The Important Thing

What That Was the Doctor Told Mary Trenton.

By JEANNE O. LOIZEAUX.

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Dr. John Trevor lifted his big rumpled black head from his book and, with his mind still full of "Minor Surgery," scowled on his friend who had for some time been talking unheeded. He concluded to give Morton a minute's attention and then if necessary put him bodily forth from the office and be rid of him.

"Come out of your hole for once and help a fellow in a pinch," Morton was saying in evident continuance of a (to him) interesting subject. "Be human. You used to be occasionally decent to a girl in college. I need you—honest, Trevor. Miss Dell is here at the Kings' with her cousin. You knew her at school—Mary Trenton. It seems that one will not stir without the other. I wish to goodness you would take Miss Trenton to the club dance tonight."

The doctor looked his friend over with good natured contempt. He was a snapshot diagnostician. No need to look at Morton's tongue. It always proclaimed its owner's ailment in time.

"Again!" he remarked caustically. "The hundredth time since I have known you! It's Miss Dell, I take it, Morton, it occurs to me to inquire why in thunder you don't marry and have done with your sufferings. Why be the eternal target? What is the important thing in your life anyway? If the law is like medicine you should give some time to your profession, and it looks to me as if you do nothing but stall about after some pretty bundle of skirts. It's well enough, but you don't seem to be landing anywhere in particular."

"Well, it's serious this time. If I thought she would—have me I'd—do—anything! I'm hard hit, I think she likes me too. But how much? I can't get her alone if you don't help me. Nobody else in this empty town is fit to amuse that little cousin of hers. You remember her? Little and blond and—awfully sweet, you know."

"Seems to me I do," he said thoughtfully. Morton groaned.

"To think of any human man having to remember Mary Trenton—that is, unless he had seen her cousin! Are you going to be decent the next two weeks, Trevor?"

"Sure thing, boy! Make your plans, and I'll play dummy, anything to do you a good turn. But let me tell you this—the important thing with me is to build up my practice and ground myself at every turn in my profession. I want another year abroad; I want the best piano money can buy, for I miss my music; I want a pedigreed Boston terrier and a motor-car that can't be beat. But I don't want a wife—not now. I can't more than support myself yet in the style to which I have been accustomed, and I don't want to touch what Aunt Joanna left me. I want 'to make good' myself. I tell you this because you are a vile matchmaker and because you may as well know now that if you have anything up your sleeve about me and Miss Trenton you can shake it out now and have done; that's all. Call around, and I'll be in gala togs and do your bidding. Now get out!"

That was the beginning of two weeks unparalleled in the history of John Trevor, M. D. Morton tried his complaisance to the utmost. Constantly every evening, many afternoons, every spare minute and many minutes that really could not be spared he demand attendance on Mary Trenton, while his friend won his labored way to the heart of Eleanor Dell. Mary was used to slavish attentions, and this great rugged, bluff, brilliant, totally delightful man of science piqued her pride, stimulated her interest. He was beneath his perfect courtesy indifferent, wary—nay, he seemed at times even disapproving. She felt for the first time in her spoiled young life inadequate and futile. It seemed that even her great beauty did not blind life to her little faults.

Dr. Trevor began to be interested, to think that with a little training the girl might really concern herself with the real things of life. He took her through the hospitals, and she found a new life of helping open to her vision. All these poor sick minds and bodies were to be healed! She felt more than ever silly and futile, more than ever humble and admiring. The doctor explained everything to her, told her of the physician's life, its hard work, its high aims, its stimulus to better conditions for the world.

The girls began to speak of returning to their own house in another week, and summer festivities began to multiply in their honor. The doctor actually neglected his practice, and his research work was forgotten. He did not realize what was upon him until one night he woke from a dream of cutting a broken arm without giving an anaesthetic and found it was Mary Trenton's round little arm. It seemed a horrible thing to hurt her. He was cursing himself for a brute when at last he found himself sitting straight up in bed. Then he cursed himself for an utter fool that he could let a tiny yellow headed slip of a laughing girl disturb his scientific peace even in a dream! He resolved to get out of the danger zone. He was glad she was going away.

But the next night was even worse, for he could not sleep. He now knew, with a sort of terror, that he was in love. His prognosis was guarded. Did it always hurt like this—love? He would, save that shame deterred him, have asked the experienced Morton, now safely betrothed in an engagement to Miss Dell. But he, John Trevor, M. D., would not weakly settle into mere happy domesticity. He would devote every energy to his noble profession. He would fight off this weakness.

He prescribed a dose of absence for himself. In the morning he phoned to Morton that he had an important case and would be busy all day and evening. Sorry, but it could not be helped. Then in his private office he proceeded by the light of his reason to convince himself that it was but a senseless fancy. Men often got over worse ailments. Then there came again before his vision her little fair face with the new sweet, helping look in the deep blue eyes, the serious attention to his words—as if his words mattered. He could not help wondering whether he could not have made her care. He supposed Hilton, the idiot, would take his place in the moonlight picnic party "on" for that evening. He went into his laboratory and began to toil.

Long past noon he snatched his forgotten lunch. He was restless. Well, hot as it was, he would have a walk. He had a theory that plenty of fresh air and stiff exercise would cure any known form of temporary insanity. He started out. But the girl went with him. Coming back, perspiring and disgusted, he determined firmly not to pass the King house. In the first place it was out of his way, and she might be in the big old garden or on the veranda, and he would have to go in a minute and be decent. No, he would not see her. Still—well, he would go past, for really he should see old Mrs. Patton across the way and ask about her hay fever. His step quickened. He made his call, talking with his lazy, comfortable old patient on the porch. As he left her she pursued him with gossip.

"Ah, there goes Percy Hilton!" she exclaimed. "I suppose, as usual, he is going to see Mary Trenton. Elizabeth King would be delighted to have her cousin marry him. Isn't it a pity that money and brains don't always go together?" He laughed and got away. But his blood boiled. Hilton, that degenerate son of the overrich—it would be hideous! He did Hilton injustice, however, for he really was decent enough in his way. The doctor decided to call at the Kings' just for a moment. As he turned the corner he saw the other man swinging along, evidently bound for the same goal.

And, like a flash, John Trevor knew that there was but one important thing in the whole world, and that was to get to Mary Trenton—first. Surely that fellow would not have the unbelievable impudence to propose to her! Surely she would never accept him if he did! As he came to the foot of the long garden, walking in his restless, headlong fashion, something twitched at his coat sleeve. He turned to see Mary Trenton. The girl was leaning over the green hedge, smiling up to him, her great garden hat pushed back.

"Is it so important as all that, your case?" she queried, mischief in her eyes. "If somebody is really dying I will not detain you; otherwise it is too hot to race like that—past your friends especially." He looked down on her, helpless.

"The only important thing in this world is—you," he said suddenly, while she trembled and blushed at his tone.

"Happy to be even a thing—to you," she murmured, mischief still in her eye. His look rebuked her.

"Do you can you Mary—I adore you! Will you marry me? Will you?" It was sufficiently precipitate, and the sun was very hot, and she saw Hilton looking over the lawn for her.

"Tell me—will you?" The girl's face was very happy, but she was yet a woman and would not be too ready with a reply.

"Come over into the shade," she said. "I don't want—that man to find me." The doctor cleared the hedge, and like two naughty children they sneaked behind the shrubbery to safety in a tree hidden corner. Then he faced her inquiringly. Tears suddenly filled her eyes, and she laid her arm up across her face like a child. He took it down and drew her close.

"Dearest, dearest, what is it? Won't you tell me?" She drew away and looked at him seriously.

"I was—afraid—you—weren't going to ask me!"

Was ever anything so foolish? He straightway informed Mary Trenton—and thought he was telling the truth—that from the first time he had set eyes on her he had loved her and would have followed her round the world to "ask her." The really foolish thing would have been to devote a big warm heart to a mere profession. Love was the important ...

Oil Rush to Southern Alberta WILL BE GREATER THAN YUKON

It is only of recent years that we have awakened to the great possibilities and the wonderful wealth represented in the natural resources of the Dominion of Canada.

Prominent in the mineral areas is crude oil or petroleum, and quite recently Southern Alberta Oil Fields have experienced considerable activity.

If you were to turn to the map recently issued by the Geological Department of the Dominion Government showing the petroleum deposits, you would find that that district close to and immediately southwest of Pincher Creek, in Southern Alberta, is, as the district most clearly defines, a country of great petroleum wealth.

We are offering for immediate sale a block of 25,000 shares in the Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Company, Limited, at 25c each, which shares have a par value of one dollar each, and are non-assessable since the company is a limited liability corporation, operating under a charter issued by the Government of the Province of Alberta.

The Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Company Limited, control an area of oil lands to the extent of 5,760 acres in the heart of the Pincher Creek district.

The Company owns one of the largest two-rig drilling equipment ever imported into Canada. This plant was shipped direct from the centre of the oil industry, Pennsylvania, to the Company's property, and is now being set up ready for drilling.

We have every reason to believe, since we know the property thoroughly, that those who are fortunate enough to secure a holding in this Company at the present price of twenty-five cents per share are in the pathway of big profits on their investment. Quite recently a vein of finest grade of bituminous coal was unearthed on the Company's property. The seam is ten feet deep, and was full length of the property. It is a most valuable asset.

Those who were fortunate enough to buy in on the ground floor of the big American oil company have become independently wealthy.

TWO THOUSAND PER CENT, is the average advance of the stock of thirty oil companies in the United States. The following are a few samples :

THE HOME OIL CO., which was started with a cash capital of only $45.00 and ten acres of land, paid eight millions in dividends. The San Francisco Petroleum Co. has paid over twenty-seven millions in dividends. The Pacific Coast Oil Co. has paid over fourteen millions, and the Standard Oil Co. pays upwards of forty millions annually in dividends.

OIL LANDS and lands adjacent to them bring fabulous prices. One-eighth of an acre of oil land in Texas was sold for $80,000.00, and acre-plots three to five miles away were sold for $27,000.00 and $33,000.00 respectively, whereas before the discovery of oil this same ground could have been bought for 50 cents per acre, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that the lands of the Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Co. may increase similarly in value.

We reproduce herewith a letter which was written to Mr. Black, Superintendent of the Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Co., Limited, by John W. Warren, who personally visited and inspected property controlled by the Company. It is certainly a most unconditional endorsement of the district, and in particular the quality of petroleum taken from the same :

LETTER.

TESTIMONY OF JOHN W. WARREN.

Elgin, Ill., July 21, 1908.

Mr. David Black,
Pincher Creek, Alberta, Canada.

Dear Sir :

In reply to yours of recent date, I will say that I went to the oil fields of Alberta, Canada, and saw oil oozing out of the rocks and ground, and floating away on small creeks. I went to the last "seepage" and saw the oil running down the rocks for at least 300 feet. I saw a great many oil springs. I gathered some of the oil in a bottle and brought it home, some I caught flowing from a well 750 feet deep. I took my small still, hydrometer, and other things necessary to make a test with me—I found it,

40 degrees Baume

It contains 20 to 25 per cent. gasoline. I distilled and refined some gasoline and did it with our sulphuric acid or lead. It was very fine, in fact the finest I ever saw. I made some axle grease out of the Alberta oil just as it came from the well near Pincher Creek. We greased a buggy, 2 wheels on one side with this axle grease, and the other 2 wheels with pure castor oil. The axle grease ran twice as long as the castor oil and without gum. Further, I have treated oils from New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Texas, Kansas, California and Eastern Canada. I consider Alberta Oil to be the best of all in gasoline and lubricating oil. It contains less sulphur than any oil I have treated. Any man can see that there is a great demand in Canada for Alberta oil, for five-sixths of the oil used there comes from the United States. You ask my opinion. I think the oil fields of Alberta are as good as ever the Pennsylvania were.

I remain yours,
JOHN W. WARREN.

We will not accept applications for less than one hundred shares, and, when the whole sum of $25 is paid, certificate will be issued at once.

Shares may be secured, however, on terms : 10c per share cash, balance 5c per share per month.

We shall be pleased to forward those at a distance complete information concerning this proposition, and answer all inquiries.

Our office is open daily from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Remember that the price of 25c per share is good only until Friday evening at nine o'clock, December 24th. Any unsold shares that we may have on our hands after this date will be withdrawn from the market, and no stock will be offered at any future date for less than thirty or thirty-five cents. Once drilling commences you may expect to see considerable activity in the shares of this Company, and, by the time the drills are down to the oil level (a matter of sixty or ninety days), there is every indication that the stock will be selling at par.

Our Address is Suite 8, Imperial Chambers, 32-34 Adelaide Street East. Next Door to Post Office

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

Guaranterd by a $1,000,000 Bank

SUPPOSE a million-dollar bank should offer you a gold bond, guaranteeing you against loss in an investment you desired to make, and providing that, whether the investment did or did not prove a profitable one, the bank would pay you back every dollar of your money at the end of twenty years, wouldn't that "look good" to you? And wouldn't you take it?

Wouldn't it look as though the bank itself, as well as the men behind the enterprise that formed the basis of the investment, had absolute confidence in it, and looked upon it as a safe and profitable venture?

Can you figure out any way in which you could possibly lose the money you put into an enterprise with that kind of backing? To be sure, you would run the risk of not receiving interest for that length of time on the amount of your investment, but you would also run the chance of multiplying it many times over in the way of dividends—and that is worth something, isn't it? In other words, you have opportunity to win, and not a single chance to lose.

Now, that is exactly what we, the officers and directors of Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company, of Reno, Nevada, are offering for a short time to those who wish to take advantage of it, and we make this remarkable offer, first, because we know what we have in the way of a property, and, second, because we need a little more capital to erect a mill upon it and make it an extremely profitable producer in the shortest possible time.

This is the first time, to our personal knowledge, that an offer like this has ever been made with reference to any enterprise of a similar character, here or elsewhere.

Organization, Capitalization and Officers

Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company is organized under the laws of the State of Nevada, with a capital stock of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000), divided into One Million (1,000,000) shares, of the par value of One Dollar ($1.00 each, full paid and non-assessable, and with no personal liability attaching to the stockholders. The number of shares in the treasury is Four Hundred Thousand (400,000).

The principal office of the company is at No. 336 Mill Street, Reno, Nevada, and the depository of the company is the Nixon National Bank, of the same city.

The officers are as follows: President, D. J. Kennedy, an old resident of Nevada, and one of the best known and most successful mining operators in the state; vice-president, F. W. Thomas, of the firm of John Breuner & Co., one of the largest mercantile establishments in the city; secretary, Donald Fraser, one of the proprietors of the Red Cross Drug Company, of Reno; treasurer, H. L. Barchell, mining operator, and manager of the most prominent of the leading law firms of the state.

Location and Character of Properties

The holdings of Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company include the following valuable properties in the famous Fairview district, in Churchill county, Nevada, reached by a fine wagon road from Fallon, the county seat:

By purchase outright—fully paid for and deed recorded at Fallon—valuable mining estates on both sides of the great Mizpah mine, on both of which properties rich ore has been found.

By purchase—paid for, deeded and recorded—the Treasury group of two full claims, amounting to 40 acres, to the north-east of the Mizpah mine, the rich ledge of which we have every reason to believe courses straight through our property for at least 2,000 feet. This we regard as a very valuable holding.

By purchase, an undivided one-half interest in seven claims, containing 100 acres, southwest of the Mizpah, with every indication that the Mizpah vein runs through our ground at least 1,500 feet. The deed for our one-half interest is recorded at Fallon, and we have an option for one year on the other one-half interest.

All the leasing rights and privileges of the Mizpah Milling and Leasing Company on twelve blocks of the celebrated Mizpah mine, for the term of five years. On this property, considerable quantities of fine shipping ore are already opened; drifting has been carried on for some distance on the 100-foot level, while the second level, at 175 feet depth, is now being driven on to catch the same ore body, when shipments will begin.

Values as Shown By Assays

Assays of ores taken from the various properties of the company show the following values:

" " " " " " " " " "	346.80
" " " " " " " " " "	77.42
From Kentucky Group, surface workings, gold and silver values	128.00
" " " " " " " " " "	78.00
From Mizpah shafts, tunnels and upraises, gold and silver values	993.95
" " " " " " " " " "	239.77
" " " " " " " " " "	235.46
" " " " " " " " " "	34.21

From the foregoing tests, it will be seen that, leaving out of the calculation our own extensive properties, all of which contain indications of remarkable richness, we are fully justified in expecting sufficient profits from the operation of our five-year lease on the great Mizpah mine alone, to pay enormous dividends to all our stockholders. But to operate them all, with the greatly increased facilities and equipment we intend to add, should give us a production equaled by few mining properties in the world.

We have already found very rich ore in the shallow workings of our Kentucky group to the west, and of our Treasury group to the east of the Mizpah, and we can see no reason why both of these properties should not prove fully as rich as the famous Mizpah mine itself. We are in a district noted for its immense bodies of gold and silver ores, and where deep workings open up vast treasure vaults of mineral wealth.

Additional Equipment Required

In order to more speedily place these splendid properties among the high class producers of the state, and to combine the maximum of production and profit with the minimum of cost, considerable additional equipment is required.

This includes a standard, modern mill, to reduce our ore to bullion and concentrates at the mine, thus saving the transportation and treatment charges of $20 to $30 a ton on the ore to the Salt Lake smelters. To be sure, the ore is of such a high grade character that there is a good profit in mining and shipping it even at these high rates, but it would be better business to save it and add that much more to the net profits, by treating it at our own mill, which, under the circumstances, thus becomes a necessity. With a 100-ton plant, we should easily be able to treat our ore at an expense not to exceed $3.50 per ton, and by adding another unit to its capacity, can still further reduce the cost, and thus save from $17.50 to $27.50 per ton on transportation and treating charges alone—quite an item when figuring the net profits.

The first unit capacity of 100 tons daily, of a standard mill, modern in every way, including stamps, amalgamators, tube grinding, concentration and cyaniding, with a sampler in front, so that ore can be purchased from surrounding properties, and general custom work done if desired, will enable us to add one unit after another as may be required with increased development of the ore bodies. By thus adding to the capacity of the mill, we shall be in a position to treat an immense tonnage daily, and pay dividends accordingly.

We will therefore not only effect a great saving of our present expenditures, but earn a handsome revenue, practically all profit, from the large volume of custom work that would be brought to our mill for treatment and reduction.

We also want to sink a capacious double-compartment shaft into the permanent sulphide zone at once, first, in order to have the ore bodies opened up for the mill, and secondly, to aid in determining the proper methods of treatment; so that we may build a mill adapted to the character of the ores, and capable of giving the largest returns to the company in the extraction of the gold and silver values.

Novel Plan to Secure Funds

Now, we are quite willing to admit that equipment of the character already mentioned, which will put the properties in the best possible working shape, will cost more money than is available at present, unless we accept the alternative of sacrificing a small portion of our special stock, in order to begin operations on a profitable basis at once.

The officers and directors of the company have therefore decided to adopt this method, and, while limiting the sales to but one-fifth of the capitalization, to surround the sale of every share with a positive safeguard against any possible loss.

We do not know that such an offer has ever before been made, and we expect the amount offered to be over-subscribed several times when the terms of the offer are made known.

First, we limit the amount of stock that will be sold, in order to provide the funds for necessary equipment, to Two Hundred Thousand (200,000) shares, and this is to be positively the last as well as the first, allotment that will be sold at the present low price, of 20 cents a share, as we honestly believe the stock will be good for dividends of not less than one dollar per share annually, after we commence treating 100 tons daily at the mill.

Stock Guaranteed

In order to absolutely protect purchasers of these shares against the possibility of a loss, we have made arrangements with the Metropolis Trust and Savings Bank, of San Francisco, one of the strongest financial institutions in the United States, to guarantee every share of stock sold, and to issue to every purchaser a gold bond for the full amount of his investment, such bond being payable in twenty years, whether the mines pay or not. Therefore, even if the mines never paid a dollar—though we expect them to pay millions—the stockholders cannot possibly lose anything except the interest on their investment, while they stand to win fortunes from the amounts they put into these properties.

The shares offered on these unparalleled terms may be paid for either in cash or in five equal monthly payments, and the money derived there from will be used entirely for the further development and equipment of the properties. The shares will also be traded in on both the New York and Boston exchanges the moment we begin shipping and paying dividends.

The elements of industrial safety and of the speculative profits of gold mining unite such extremely favorable conditions, are combined in this enterprise to a greater degree than in any other undertaking within our knowledge or experience, and will appeal with irresistible force to all sensible and conservative people as an opportunity without an equal. It is a case of "heads, you win; tails, you cannot lose." If the mines pay as we believe they will bring to every stockholder, in dividends, many times the amount of his investment. If they do not pay, he gets his money back.

THE QUEST OF KATE.

The Result of the Search In Which Rena Assisted.

By MARIAN W. WILDMAN.

He stooped and picked it up—a lace edged cobweb handkerchief, elusively fragrant and marked with a daintily embroidered "Kate."

Harper watched the couples gliding by him. "Jane—Gladys—Anne," he murmured—"Dorothy—Isabel—Ruth. Now, which of the hundred I don't know is Kate? Kate?" he repeated musingly.

The music stopped with a crash, and the young lawyer mingled with the promenading throng, a frowning, preoccupied expression in his eyes.

"Look at that coat of Ted Harper's, Miss Cavanaugh," drawled a gilded youth to his companion. "He cares as little for clothes that fit as I"—

"For anything else, reggie," she completed. "He's too good looking to need to care. He's like the lilies—not that he doesn't toil and spin," she added quickly. "He's worth a dozen of you lazy society boys—is Theodore Harper!"

Her voice was low, but the passing owner of the name turned suddenly and came back with outstretched hand.

"Rena! I was afraid you hadn't come. Can't I have this dance?"

"I saved it for you, Ted. And we'll talk—I know you'd rather."

"Good girl!" he replied gratefully as he escorted her to the moonlit piazza. There, with the music softened by distance, he was content. He even forgot the mystery of Kate while he and Rena laughed and chatted.

"Now that you are getting rich and famous, Teddy, you ought to marry. You're plenty old enough. I know your age to a minute."

"And I yours, my dear. I haven't forgotten being dragged to see you when you were three weeks old nor how I cried when our mothers made me kiss you."

"Poor boy! It has been a long friendship, Ted. It would have broken my heart if you had taken whittled fingers and love affairs to any other girl."

"Oh, by Jove, that reminds me—I'm in love again, Rena!"

Rena's silvery laugh was anything but credulous.

"I am honestly. Aren't you interested this time?"

"Profoundly! Who is the happy lady?"

"Her name is Kate."

"Kate what?"

"I don't know."

"Well, really, Teddy, what do you know about her?"

"This!" said Harper, laying something in her soft hand. Rena held the handkerchief up to the moonlight.

"You always were susceptible, Ted, but to fall in love with a bit of linen and lace!"

"I haven't. It's the suggestion, the atmosphere, the—the"—

"The violet perfume?" suggested Rena helpfully. "We all use it, you know."

"Teddy, what is it you want me to do?"

"To tell me all the Kates who may possibly have been in this jam tonight. Then I'll devote myself between briefs to narrowing the inquiry."

"Kate Simpson, Kate Ray, Kate"—

"Hold on, Rena! One at a time, please."

"Very well. Kate Simpson you ought to know. You went to dancing school with her. She has dimples."

"She's not the Kate I'm after. I remember her now. Dimples in a baby are all right, but how about Kate Ray?"

"Engaged to Reggy Van Dyke. You know that, of course."

"Of course I didn't. Who next?"

"Kate Delemater, a new girl in town, handsome, tall, black eyes, awfully clever. Shall I take you in and introduce you?"

"Thanks; I can wait. I'll have some one of the fellows get permission to take me around for a call. If she doesn't prove to be the real Kate I'll come to you, say, Friday for more news."

"You might come in any case. I shall be wild to know. Yes, really," in reply to his protest as she arose, "I must go in now."

Harper offered a reluctant arm, and they passed from the freshness of the June night to the glare and gayety within.

* * * * * * *

"I'm too delightfully weary to rise," she said. "I've been in the country all day. "Look" with a comprehensive wave of her hand. The library was aglow with lavish masses of color—the orange and scarlet of maple, the crimson of sumac, the purple and russet of oak and beech. "This is my October carnival. I always celebrate when the autumn gets into my blood. Oh, the glory of the woods today, Teddy!" She leaned forward to lay a fagot on the coals. The seasoned wood burst into a whirl of blue and yellow flame. Harper watched her face curiously as she talked. "All summer these leaves have been quiet, contented little dreamers. Today they are new creatures, glorious. It's the transfiguration of their lives—what they have been waiting for all these tranquil weeks."

"The autumn has gone into Teddy!"

"You have reason to blush. You know how I abominate the bohemian girl who smokes cigarettes and is always stopping on the verge."

"Didn't you find her clever and handsome?"

"Oh, very! Who next?"

"Kate Randall. Mother suggested her. You did like her a bit, I remember."

"I liked her a great deal. She's a sensible, modest, well behaved young woman. But she's not Kate."

Rena sighed patiently.

"What was the matter with Hattie Pomeroy? There isn't a dearer, sweeter, prettier little girl in"—

"I'm not looking for a dear, sweet, pretty little girl."

"What sort of girl are you looking for, Ted?"

"I think she's tall and has dark eyes. She's well bred, but not conventional. She's honest and kind. She has brains and a sense of humor. She"— He broke off suddenly. "I have it, Rena! Find me a Kate just like you, and I surrender the handkerchief."

"And your heart?"

The light words had an unfamiliar tremor in them, like that of the butterfly's filigree wings. Something sweet and sudden and unforeseen swept over Harper's heart. He was looking down at the leaves in her lap, and fragments of what she had said of them came back to him—"All summer contented dreamers—today new creatures—the transfiguration of their lives—what they have been waiting for all these tranquil weeks."

"Rena," he whispered, bending lower over the silver butterfly, and then as she looked up into his face with startled eyes, "I believe it is you I love!" he added simply.

"And Kate?" Her eyes smiled, though her lashes were still wet.

"Dear, stupid boy!" Rising, she crossed the room and brought back a great Bible, which she laid on his knee. Perching on the arm of his chair, she opened the volume at the pages of family record and laid a finger on one of the names.

"Katherine, daughter of James and Katherine Cavanaugh, born June ——."

"Rena, is it you?"

"Who else? But Rena I've been from my cradle save to one person."

"And he?" jealously.

"And she"—reassuringly—"is a college friend who dislikes my poor christname. I can show you dozens of letters from her addressed to Miss Kate Cavanaugh. The only other proof I could have offered—her gift to me last Christmas—I unfortunately lost."

"At a ball?"

"At a charity ball last June."

"I don't believe you're my Kate, after all. I told you my Kate was honest and kind."

"And had a sense of humor, Teddy, do you regret the prosaic end of your romance?"

"Prosaic?"

"Do you?" she insisted.

"I should be an ungrateful fool if I did."

"Then forgive your Cinderella and give back her glass slipper, dear prince!"

From the pocket nearest his heart Theodore drew a crumpled bit of linen and lace still faintly fragrant. He held it in her hand, and his own fingers closed over it.

A Modern Proposal.

"It's like this, Miss Belle," said the Honorable Algy, sliding a yawn. "Our people seem to think we ought to get married, you know, and I don't like to disappoint 'em, and all that sort of thing. I'm not a clever chap, but there must be something in me, for I owe about £15,000. I'm a younger son, and the bit of money the mater left me isn't enough to pay for my cigarettes. I can't help my extravagant tastes. I inherited 'em. You've got money and can put me on my feet, eh—what? I've got enough blue blood for the two of us, and if your pater did make his money packing pork into tins it can't be helped. I'm prepared to waive that, don-cher-know. You're a smart sort of girl and can behave yourself very nicely, considering everything. I don't like the way your father drops his aspirates or his eating peas with a knife, but he's quite a respectable old soul in his way, and he'll improve, I dare say, after I've shown him what's what a bit. Come, what d'ye say, Miss Belle? Is it a deal? Eh—what?"

And the Honorable Algernon seemed greatly astonished when Miss Belle declined the honor of the proposal.—London Pictorial.

Realized Pleasure.

"What," asked Mrs. Hammersley, "is your opinion of a woman who will pay a million dollars for the purpose of becoming the wife of a foreigner with a title?"

"I think," replied Mrs. Oldham, "she is very foolish. After one goes abroad to live one never can have the pleasure of going to Europe every summer and smuggling things in when one comes back home."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments—the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

Awakened from sleep by what she thought to be a cat scratching on her window, Mrs. Tom Moore, who resides at 365 Mark street, Ashburnham, about 11 o'clock, one night, was astonished on making an investigation, to find that there was a man trying to pry open the window. He apparently was endeavoring to gain an entrance, but went about it too noisly. He made a hurried retreat when he found that he was discovered. Several thefts have been committed in this neighborhood of late, and it is believed the same man is the perpetrator of them all. The matter has been reported to the police.

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do an act of Humanity?
Will you tell some sick friend of this remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that its maker dare say to the sick, "It is absolutely and unconditionally free if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's Restorative and its popularity.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments everywhere in America.

When the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has quickly vitalized, and strengthened, and brought these nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not dose the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the outside of these ailments—the failing, faltering, inside or controlling nerves. And herein lies the keynote to my success.

When these nerves are again made well and strong, then is the certain end of all such sickness.

To me it is a great satisfaction that I am the only physician able to say to the suffering sick, "Take my prescription for full 30 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours."

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the same identical "No help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescriptions or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the message to some sick friend.

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist to whom you can conveniently go for the 30 day test.

But first, ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 30 day test.

So write me now and save all delays. Remember that tomorrow never comes. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

IF PEERS WERE POOR

MOST OF ENGLAND'S LORDS COULD TURN A PENNY.

Several of Them Are Expert Sea-Captains, and Many Are Capable of Earning a Livelihood at Literature —There Are Also Some Notable Financiers In the British Upper Chamber and Some Land Agents.

In spite of the dismal prognostications in which certain wealthy peers have been indulging as to the probable effect of the budget on their incomes, it is unlikely that many of them would be unable to make both ends meet by their own exertions even were they reduced by a hard-hearted Chancellor of the Exchequer to the painful necessity of earning their own living.

Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, for instance, could easily obtain employment as a chauffeur or garage attendant were he to be deprived of his estates in Hampshire, while Lord de la Warr is another peer who is equally at home whether steering a 60-horse-power motor car or a dainty racing yacht.

Quite a number of peers could earn a very good living amongst those that go down to the sea in ships. Lord Brassey is a case in point. Not only is he one of the foremost authorities in the Upper House on maritime matters, but he also holds a master's certificate from the Board of Trade, and has sailed many thousand miles in his famous yacht the Sunbeam. Another peer who is quite at home on the briny is Lord Dunraven, whose name was once in everybody's mouth as that of a challenger for the America's cup.

Many members of the Upper House, were they to be suddenly deprived of their inherited incomes, would doubtless turn their attention to literature and journalism, among those who have earned distinction in these fields being the Duke of Argyll, Lord Rosebery, and Lord FitzMaurice. In addition to these aristocratic lights of the literary firmament, there are, of course, in the House of Lords many men who owe their position to their brilliant work as professional journalists and newspaper proprietors. Most prominent among these, perhaps, are Lord Northcliffe, founder of the halfpenny press, which has done so much to revolutionize newspaper methods, and Lord Burnham, an ex-proprietor of The Daily Telegraph. In this connection it is interesting to note that the late Marquess of Salisbury in his younger days used to eke out his not over lavish allowance as a younger son by brilliant contributions to The Saturday Review.

Except as directors and "guinea pigs," few members of the Upper House would be able to make much of a living at commercial or financial pursuits but there are some conspicuous exceptions, notably Lord Avebury and Lord Rothschild, while the Marquess of Londonderry, an ex-Postmaster-General, has had considerable practical experience as a colliery proprietor.

Sporting peers whose ancestral hen roosts had been robbed would doubtless seek posts in connection with their favorite sports and this market would probably be overcrowded, for there are a large number of occupants of the gilded chamber who would be eminently qualified to act as trainers, huntsmen, or gamekeepers.

Among prominent peers whose knowledge of racing matters might procure them profitable employment might be mentioned Lord Durham and the Duke of Portland, while several noble lords who at present act as masters of foxhounds would be able to earn their living in the humbler, but equally important, post of huntsman.

Even if he had not his profession to fall back upon, the Lord Chancellor might still turn an honest penny as marker at a racquets or tennis court, he having been in his day one of the best amateur exponents of these games, while a post in the World of athletics could also be found for Lord Desborough, the founder of the Olympic Games.

Another occupation which peers shorn of their ancestral revenues might be glad to take up is that of a land agent. Earl Carrington, for instance, the present popular President of the Board of Agriculture, is probably excelled in practical knowledge by very few professional land agents, while another peer who is an adept in agricultural pursuits is the famous scientist, Lord Reay.

From these examples it will be easily seen that peers, even if they do take life easily on occasion, are by no means the incompetent drones they are sometimes supposed to be. Indeed it may be said that there are few jobs which could not be performed by some handy man in the House of Lords. Even firemen are not unrepresented, the well-known Sussex peer, Lord Egmont, having at one time served in the Metropolitan Fire Brigade, while Lord Lonsdale is the energetic chief officer of a brigade in the provinces.

Dark Skins and Heat.

Staff Surgeon Oswald Rees of the British navy says the negro's color gives him an advantage over the white man in the stokehold as well as in the sun. "In the sun," this authority explains, "dark skins resist heat better; in the stokehold it radiates heat better." Dr. Rees says the little thin man loses heat much more rapidly and therefore is a much better stoker than is the larger and more fleshy man.

Mount Asquith.

Availing himself of the privilege of explorers, Lieut. Shackleton has named several of the mountains discovered on his journey towards the South Pole.

One he calls after the Prime Minister of England, Mount Asquith; another he names after the First Commissioner of Works, Mount Harcourt; and a third after "Toby, M.P.," Mount Henry Lucy.

New Faces at the Princess.

This week Mr. Ernest Hanna, proprietor of the favorite Se. theatorium, the Princess, has broken away from former conditions in Peterborough. This means that in this city the people have got tired of seeing the same faces of actors or actresses in the picture characters. Mr. Hanna has inaugurated an entirely new series of films, so that his patrons will see not only the best class of pictures but new actors and actresses filling the various bills. This new service is the best yet and Mr. Hanna is to be congratulated on his enterprise.

Pincher Creek Oil

Mr. C. C. Cottrell,

22 King's Hall, Montreal, Quebec.

Dear Sir,—I am today forwarding you a supply of the Official Prospectus of the Pincher Creek Oil and Refining Company, Limited, which prospectus you will note is signed by the directors, filed and approved by the Registrar, Provincial Government of Alberta, so that its contents are according to facts.

The oil industry is perhaps new to you and your clients, but with the history of oil in the States to the south, you cannot afford to overlook Canada's richest resource and the one which is bound to make the greatest fortunes for her people.

The Directors are all personally known to me. They are Canadians and men of the highest commercial standing and business integrity.

Mr. Herron, M. P., President of the Company, accompanied Dr. Dawson when on his tour of inspection, and learned from that noted geologist the unlimited possibilities of oil in the Pincher Creek district, and Mr. Herron has ever since been enthusiastic over the developing of Canada's high grade oil industry.

Mr. J. E. Woods is the civil engineer who knows every foot of Southern Alberta and selected the valuable properties of the Western Coal and and Coke Company, whose oil lands adjoin this Company's property. It was owing to Mr. Wood's efforts that Pincher Creek Oil and Refining Company, Limited, have secured what is conceded to be the most valuable oil property—1,760 acres—of any of the seven large operating companies now in the Pincher Creek district.

Personally I have gathered oil from the big, crude oil seepage on the Pincher Creek Oil & Refining Co. property, only recently collecting a half barrel of this seepage oil in a short time.

I have taken oil from the well bored this summer on the Pincher Creek Oil & Refining Company's property, and oil can be seen oozing up around the casing and thoroughly saturating the soil. I believe this well when shot with nitroglycerine and a pump put into it will become a good producer.

A friend of mine proposes to spend $40,000 on his own hook boring for oil as near to this well as he can get as soon as Spring opens up.

Page 8, of the prospectus shows C.P.R. letter regarding shipments of Pincher Creek crude oil also a letter from a merchant of the town stating he has handled at least one hundred and fifty barrels and used kerosene and gasoline made from this oil and it gave the whitest light he ever saw.

Therefore we say we have oil on this property of 1760 acres and oil of the highest quality.

Our directors are local men, who know the district and how to obtain the best results at the smallest cost, and this I consider a great point. Directors should always be at the scene of operations.

Here is more of a guarantee than any business man has; more certain than silver or gold mining, for every time the Pincher Creek Oil and Refining Company, Limited, produce one hundred barrels the Canadian Government gives them a cheque for $52.50, "Petroleum bounty." Think what this means on a production of one thousand barrels per day—and single wells have produced twenty-five hundred barrels per day for three years—for one year; the Government would pay us $ 191,625, or about 40 per cent. dividends. Add to this a profit of only ten cents per gallon on the oil sold and there would be an additional $1,277,500, or 255 per cent., making a total of nearly 300 per cent. on a 1,000 barrel production. The property when thoroughly operated will produce that or it is practically worthless.

Now can you not see why the average advance in stocks of 1910 Oil Companies in the United States has been over 2,000 per cent.?

Mr. Cottrell, I feel this will prove one of the very finest investments in Canada, and a proposition that you can conscientiously force your clients to accept as a bona-fide enterprise. Your clients having capital to invest can not do better than take up a block of this stock. As this stock is being offered simultaneously in various Eastern cities, how many shares will I reserve for you to place?

Sincerely Yours,

Signed MARCY B. COUCH,

Secretary Pincher Creek Oil and Refining Co.

Mr. E. F. Mason Asked to Stand for the Mayoralty

Some couple of weeks ago The Times mentioned Mr. E. F. Mason as a probable candidate for the mayor's chair. Mr. Mason's friends have gathered around him and have been most persistent in their appeals for him to enter the fight. Deputation after deputation have waited upon him and although he has not definitely stated that he will stand for nomination the general opinion seems to be that he will finally consent. There is one thing sure, if Mr. Mason consents to run he will poll a very large vote. If he is elected he will make a first-class mayor. Every citizen remembers his splendid career in the council for three years, the last two years he being chairman of the Finance Committee, and considered one of the ablest legislators that ever sat in the council. He always kept the city's finances at his finger tips, and was at all times in a position to defend the policy of his committee. If he is elected mayor on January 3rd, the public will know that he will devote his time, energy and ability to the city's business. Mr. Mason's friends are very anxious for him to come out and the probability is he will.

Complete Rout of Zelaya's Forces

Bluefields, Dec. 22.—General Estrada has won a complete victory over the Government troops at Rama. A total of 600 men of both armies were killed or wounded.

Nineteen hundred of Zelaya's men have surrendered, including General Gonzales, who was in command. Two Americans are reported killed.

Bluefields, Nicaragua, via wireless to Colon, Dec. 22.—"Our forces are winning all along the line. Complete victory is certain. The enemy's flank at Tatumbla has been turned, and his forces are in confusion. The battle continues."

From Rama, where he is directing the operations against the Zelayan army, Revolutionary President Gen. Estrada telephoned the above message to the United States correspondent early today. It indicates how sure he is of complete victory, and the result is that Bluefields, the provisional government headquarters, is in a tumult of delight. Confunteers are flocking to the Estrada standard, and even the few inhabitants who have maintained their loyalty to the controlling regime in Nicaragua now declare Estrada is sure to win.

FOUGHT FOR THREE HOURS.

The story of the all-day fight of yesterday at Recreo, which resulted in an overwhelming triumph for the revolutionary forces, and of the night battle at Tatumbala, which also yielded an insurgent success, has not yet been told in its entirety. Last night's fight was nearly a general engagement, and for three hours the two armies were engaged. Gen. Luis Mena, who was in command, when he received word that the result at Recreo was an Estrada victory, made a forced march and threw his entire division on the enemy's flank. The expectation of a surprise, however, failed, as the enemy were found to be ready and they put up a stubborn resistance. Mena utilized his machine guns, which were imported from the United States, to great advantage, and although the enemy had much the best of it, so far as position was concerned, the revolutionary army finally charged the Zelayan forces, and the latter unable to stand the fierce fighting, gave way and soon were in full retreat.

So precipitate was their flight that they left behind all of their arms and ammunition, and their wounded. Mena reports that he has taken many prisoners, and that war stores of great value are also now in his possession.

CLOSING IN ON THEM.

The entire revolutionary army is today closing in on the Vasquez army. Mena is following up his advantage, while the main body, under the command of Gens. Chamorro, Pacheco, Fernos, Diaz, and Matuty, are advancing from Recreo in such a manner that they can make a general assault all along the line as soon as Gen. Estrada gives the word.

ESTRADA ON HIS METTLE.

Estrada is in supreme command and from his headquarters in Rama is directing the fight. The intimation that he has received from the United States, that he must demonstrate that his army is all powerful and able to control the situation before he can expect recognition, has put him on his mettle, and he is preparing to so overwhelm the Zelayan army that it must surrender or flee in confusion. Estrada had an elaborate field telephone service installed by electricians from the United States, who volunteered to aid him, and by this means is constantly in touch with every one of his commanding officers.

At daylight today the Estrada forces resumed their operations, and the last report received from the front was that the Zelayan forces were slowly giving way before the Revolutionists.

Godfrey Fowler, a former captain in the United States volunteer service, and an experienced artillery officer, is now in command of the field artillery forces, and he is expected to utilize the rapid firers to advantage.

Stefoff is Suspected of Having Slain Four Men

Toronto, Dec. 23.—Though Paval Stefoff confessed to only two murders, the police have information connecting him with three tragedies. His victims are supposed to be four in number:

Vani Simoff, murdered and robbed at Toronto.

Soon after the local detectives arrested Stefoff they heard that he had been connected with two other murders. The chief of police at Buffalo disclosed the fact that two Macedonians had been murdered in a box car at Akron, a suburb of that city, and robbed. Stefoff's photograph was sent over and several men in the Akron quarry where the double murder was done recognized it as that of the man who had worked there and fled. But Stefoff had flown to his native land after the double murder and thus escaped the Buffalo police.

If the Macedonian murderer had escaped the death penalty in Toronto he would probably have been taken to Buffalo to be tried for his crime in the Akron quarry.

"We said nothing about those other cases at the time of the trial, or even after the sentencing of Stefoff," said Inspector Duncan this morning, "because we did not want to influence the course of justice in the case. "Stefoff did not enter the witness box in his own defence, and the reason was that he knew that we knew something of the other cases, and he would have to answer some embarrassing questions.

The inspector says he does not who was murdered in Bedford, near Terre Haute, Indiana, and but little know the name of the Englishman is known of the crime.

The Aim of Modern Medicine. A Small Blaze.

To prevent disease, to keep people well, to teach them the laws of health and how to obey them—this is the aim and task of modern medicine. Reducing this to its personal application, it means that you should diagnose small ailments before they grow big.

In the liver, kidneys, stomach and bowels, we find the instrumentalities that principally maintain life. They are prone to minor interference that can be easily corrected by taking a weekly dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. There will be a big crowd at the rink tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Paper Read by Miss Perry and an Address by Mr. Scott.

In the Telephone Gazette for December appears a most interesting letter from Mr. F. W. Doan, local manager of the Company. He tells about the Peterborough Telephone Club having launched its program for the season at that meeting and by the talk giving the talk given by Mr. H. E. Scott, Superintendant of Construction. A paper was also read by Miss Perry, the chief operator, which was exceptionally interesting and beneficial to the staff and it will no doubt be of profit to many operators elsewhere who read the Telephone Gazette.

CATTLE KILLED.

Four Broke Through the Ice and Were Drowned.

Four cattle belonging to Stanley Blewett, who resides on the Monaghan side of the river, three or four miles from the city, lost their lives Wednesday afternoon by breaking through the ice. According to the report of the affair he had cut a hole in the ice to enable the animals to drink. It had not been used for some time but had frozen over and when the cattle went down to drink four of them broke through. There were fourteen altogether and the four had gone through before the small herd was driven away from the danger zone. They were dragged out, but too late, as they had been in the water too long.

PETERBOROUGH LOCK.

Wm. Collins, Lockmaster.

The traffic through the Peterborough Lock does not at the present time indicate the volume of traffic down the Otonabee river to Rice Lake as it did some years ago, before the Peterborough Street Railway company extended its line to a point on the Otonabee river just below the locks. As is well known, a handsome new dock has been constructed on the Otonabee river, at the foot of the Peterborough Street Railway, and a good deal of traffic commences at this point. Notwithstanding this fact, however, the total lockages through the Peterborough lock during the past year past year amounted to 1,198. Of this amount it is worth noting that 179 of these lockages consisted of small boats, chiefly gasoline launches.

Total number of steamers 594.
Total number of small boats 479
Total number of scows 125.
Total lockages 1,198
Total number of passengers (class No. 2), 19,563.

Trenton Minister Makes a Good Suggestion

Rev. F. W. Armstrong of Trenton Hockey Club, writes to the secretary of the O.H.A., suggesting a better hockey organization from Bowmanville east to Kingston, along the G.T.R. He says:

"The Ptterborough representative thought the scheme a good one, and said no doubt Peterborough and Lind say would like to become a portion of the league. My sole object in making the suggestion was to encourage more hockey for hockey players than they now get. If a team gets thrown out on the first round, my experience is that the club goes all to pieces forthwith. Take our own club this year in the intermediate series. We have merely two games on the first round. If we are unsuccessful in the group our hockey, to all intents and purposes, ceases by the end of January.

"I did not intend doing anything with my proposition at present, but since this article has appeared in the newspapers I have addressed a letter to all the neighboring clubs, stating that I would be well satisfied with an eastern branch of the O.H.A.

"I do not wish you or the executive to think I am running opposition in any way whatever. I am anxious though, to bring on our younger boys and encourage them a bit.

"I yet think that the executive of the O.H.A. would make a greater success of their association if it could be divided into three branches east and west and north of Toronto. Details of semi-finals and finals could be worked out later. I merely make this suggestion as I believe it to be perfectly feasible without in any way impairing the usefulness and success of the O.H.A.

"Our rink is fast approaching completion, and if we have ten days' fine weather, will be ready for occupation by Jan. 1st, 1910. Our ice surface is 85x190 feet. The building itself is 100x225 feet, with eight dressing rooms, and lower and upper balcony all around the rink."

King Albert I. Took the Oath Yesterday

Brussels, Dec. 23.—Prince Albert became King Albert of Belgium today, the oath of office being administered in Parliament Hall in the presence of the ministry, the chief officials of Belguim, Albert's wife, Princesses Clementine and Stephanie daughters of the late King Leopold, and a distinguished gathering that completely filled the inaugural chamber. Many foreign representatives witnessed the ceremony, including United States Minister Lane.

As the Belgian ceremony does not include a cornation, Albert became king in fact as well as in name the moment the oath of office was administered.

Commander Peary to Seek the South Pole

This is the definite assurance made today by the commander himself.

"A year ago last May or June," Commander Leary said, "I sent to the International Polar Society at Brussels a statement, that after I returned from the expedition upon which I was then to start, e would be willing to promote and organize an expedition to find the North Pole.

"I am still of the same mind. I would be only too glad to participate in an Antarctic expedition in which the equipment and experience of my North Polar dashes would be of service."

Asked whether there was at present any South Pole party forming, Commander Peary declared that so far as he knew there was not. He intimated, however, that immediately after he had completed his magazine work and wound up his affairs here, he would himself organize a hunt for the bottom of the world.

TOBOGGAN SLIDE.

The slide at Jackson Park is now ready for use and has already felt the momentary touch of the whizzing toboggan on its downward flight. The chutes are in good condition and this sport may be enjoyed any time now. The rink will be open on Christmas Day for the first time and the 57th Band will be in attendance. From present prospects the slide and rink should be well patronized on the holiday.

The fire brigade received a call from the gas house last night at 9.30, to extinguish a blaze caused by soot from the boiler. Little damage was done.

The Canadian Navy Has been Starte

Ottawa, Dec. 23.—The announcement that the Dominion Government has purchased a cruiser of the Apollo class for a training ship is officially confirmed.

The vessel which will constitute the nucleus of the Canadian fleet is the second-class twin-screw cruiser Rainbow, which will be purchased outright by the Canadian Government and not borrowed.

The Rainbow is now undergoing alterations and repairs in one of the admiralty dockyards, and will cross the Atlantic during the early spring or summer months, manned by a complement of British officers and a skeleton British crew. As the full complement of officers and men for the Rainbow is only 273, this one vessel will not give any very great scope for the training of Canadian seamen, but it will be enough for a start.

The government is negotiating for a second and larger ship to be sent to Canada a little later on, and with the training ships in commission it is expected that it will be possible to turn out Canadian seamen at a fairly rapid rate to man the vessels of the Canadian navy as they are completed.

The Rainbow, when constructed will cost $820,000. The amount which the government will pay to the admiralty for the ship has not been divulged, and will probably not be announced until the estimate is brought down in the House of Commons.

Indicated horse power, 7,000.
Forced draft, 9,000.
Length, 380 feet
Beam, 43 feet.
Draft, 16.6
Armor in the gun division, 4½ inches.
Speed, 20 knots.
Coal supply, 4,000 tons.

HER ARMAMENT.

The armament of the rainbow is,
Two six inch guns.
Six 4.7 guns.
Eight six-pounders
One three-pounder.
Four torpedo tubes.
The Rainbow is constructed of steel.

Combines and Tariff, To Curb Monopoly

In a protective tariff there is a leverage which might be used with good effect to curb monopoly, whether that monopoly take the form of a merger, a combine, or any other. Every protective duty should be regarded as a privilege to be held during good behavior and to be forfeited by abuse. The true principle is that home manufacturers are protected from foreign competition upon condition that they will give consumers the benefit of domestic competition. If both kinds of competition are removed, and the Canadian consumer is left absolutely at the mercy of a monopoly, the tariff becomes an instrument of injustice and oppression.

The government has at its command two weapons by which the consumer may be defended. One is the control of the House of Commons over the tariff. Every year the tariff may be revised by the House. Usually radical revisions are made at longer intervals, for the purpose of maintaining stability. But it should be understood that stability depends upon good conduct. If manufacturers combine for the purpose of raising prices they deprive the consumer of the benefit of stability, and they cannot claim stability for their own privilege.

Besides the annual power of revising the tariff with the consent of the House of Commons, the Government has taken power to remove or reduce duties by order-in-Council, wherever a combine is formed in violation of the tariff law. But there is no effective means of setting this machinery in motion. The complainant is referred to a court. He must collect his evidence and conduct his case, or pay a lawyer to conduct it, as if he were a private litigant, seeking his own interest. The government now proposes to reimburse him for his costs if he succeeds in establishing a reasonable prima facie case. But this is not enough.

The person who gives the government information that the protective tariff is being abused is a public benefactor, entitled to assistance and encouragement. The person who informs the government that smuggling is going on is assisted, encouraged, and sometimes even rewarded. A staff of keen-eyed officials is ready to act upon his information and even to follow up any clue he may give. There should be equal vigor and watchfulness in enforcing the law against combines. The rights of the consumer are as sacred as the revenue, and more sacred than the privileges of the beneficiaries of the tariff.

Mrs. Harriman is Worth 220 Millions

New York, Dec 23.—Although a recent appraisal of the estate of the late Edward H. Harriman placed its value at $149,000,000, it was reported today on reliable authority, that shortly before his death, Harriman transferred to his wife and eldest son securities worth more than $50,000,000. These securities have appreciated in value since Harriman's death.

Mrs. Harriman's total wealth, in view of this new disclosure, is estimated at fully $220,000,000.

Death Caused by Blows on the Head

North Bay, Dec. 22. The jury investigating the death of William J. Dyson, night operator at Redwater station, have decided that death was caused by blows on the head by a club held by William Morin. They recommended that Cornish should be held as an accesory before the fact. The evidence showed that there had been a dispute regarding a load of coal in Dyson's office. The young operator ordered the men out, and, when they refused to go, he picked up the big club and started for them. But before he reached them he dropped the weapon and jumped on Cornish, forcing him to the floor. Then Morin stepped up behind him, got the club and struck Dyson several times over the head.

A strange phase of the affair was that William Nixon, a conductor on the T.N.O. Railway, saw the whole affair and yet did not interfere until the young fellow had been struck several times. Then he went out to call the train crew but it was too late.

Heaviness at Pit of the Stomach

Nearly everyone gets an occasional attack of indigestion and knows just what that heavy feeling means in the stomach. "I was subject to stomach derangements and my health was seriously hampered on this account. After meals I belched gas, had a wagity sensation in my stomach and over my left side. The first relief I got was from Nerviline—I used it three times a day and was cured. I continue to use Nerviline occasionally, and find it is a wonderful aid to the stomach and digestive organs."

NERVILINE RESTORES WEAK STOMACHS

The above letter comes from Mrs. P. E. Stetson, wife of an important merchant in Brockton, and still further proof of the exceptional power of Nerviline is furnished by A. E. Rossman, the well-known upholsterer of Chester, who writes: "Let everyone with a bad stomach use 'Nerviline,' and I am sure there will be few sufferers left. I used to have cramps, rumbling noises gas on my stomach and severe fits of indigestion. Nerviline was the only remedy that gave me relief, and I found it so entirely satisfactory that I would like to have my letter of recommendation published broadcast in order that others may profit by my experience."

The Cuckoo.

Where does the cuckoo lay its eggs? What is its staple diet? What course does it take in its autumn migration when it returns to its African haunts? These are questions that await satisfactory answers. Until it was found that the cuckoo laid its egg on the ground and subsequently carried it in its bill to a neighboring nest it was supposed that the bird fed largely on the eggs of smaller birds. This fallacy has been disproved. Probably in the whole range of British birds there is no other that can boast such curious domestic traits as the cuckoo. It makes no nest, does not attend to incubation duties and rears no young and apparently never sees the bird that is hatched from the egg that it surreptitiously places in the nest of some smaller bird.—London Globe.

Served Him Right.

"You're looking very gloomy today, Tomkins. What's the matter?"

"Matter! Do you know Miss Parno, the old maid that lives over the way? Dawkins told me that she was engaged to him, so just for the fun of the thing I went and proposed to her, and she accepted me. Now I'm looking for Dawkins!"—London Tit-Bits.

Light.

Father—You seem to look at things in a very different light since your marriage. Newly Married Daughter—Well, so I ought after receiving fourteen lamps and nine candelabra for wedding presents.

It is easier to appear worthy of a position one does not hold than of the office one fills.—La Rochefoucauld.

The Caddie's Sneer.

Golfer—The day I get round these links in under a hundred I'll give you a shilling, Sandy! Juvenile Caddie—How will I want it when I'm drawin' me auld age pension?—London Punch.

His Vowels.

Ethel—Have you noticed how Lord Stinker drops his aspirates? Fred—It's nothing to the way he drops his vowels; I've got more than a dozen of his I O U's myself.—London Scraps.

Coughs that are tight, or distressing tickling coughs, get quick and certain help from Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. On this account Druggists everywhere are favoring Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is entirely free from Opium, Chloroform, or any other stupefying drug. The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainous shrub give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its curative properties. Those leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough, and to soothe, and heal the most sensitive bronchial membranes. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it once yourself, and see! Sold by all dealers.

PASSPORTS.

Method of Applying For Them to the State Department.

Passports are issued to citizens of the United States upon application to the state department in Washington. The application must be accompanied by an affidavit attested by a notary public or other officer empowered to administer oaths stating that the applicant is a citizen and giving the place of birth and age, and it must be accompanied by the certificate of one other citizen to whom he is personally known that the declaration made by the applicant is true.

The application must be accompanied by a description of the person, particularly as to age, height, complexion, forehead, eyes, nose, mouth, chin, hair and face. Blank forms are furnished by the state department on application. The fee for each passport is $1. Citizens traveling abroad may also obtain passports by applying to United States ambassadors and ministers.

Where any person has made a declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States and has resided in the United States for three years a passport valid for six months may be issued to him. This passport is not renewable and does not entitle the holder to the protection of this government in the country of which he was originally a citizen.—New York American.

MOUNT ETNA.

It Is Said to Hold All the Climates of the Earth.

Mount Etna has furnished more material for travelers' tales than any other mountain on earth. Astonished Englishmen of a century ago, who fell into the fashionable habit of climbing to its highest peak—and some did so, to the amazement of the Sicilians, even in the dead of winter—have left on record in the exuberant language of their day the emotions that thrilled their soul. "The man who treads Mount Etna," wrote one of these, "is a man above the world. Every river on the island can be traced from its mouth to its source.

"The characters," the same writer continues, "of all the climates of the earth can be detected—the frigid zone around one, the temperate with its belt of trees just beneath and the tropical at the base of the mountain, with its vineyards and luxuriant groves. The great ocean around, with the islands of Lipari, Panari, Alicudi, Stromboli and Volcano, with their smoking summits, appear under your feet, and you look down upon the whole of Sicily as upon a map."

In addition to all the climates, Etna is reported to have trees that rival the giants of California, lakes that never thaw, bottomless caverns and salable snow.—Chicago News.

Why We Laugh.

Laughter seems to be a specialized form of either the scream of a startled or injured animal or the cry of triumph common to many beasts of prey. In children the cry of terror and the shout of laughter often shade into each other, and the young child escaping from pursuit will scream with laughter or fear, according to his chances of escape. Some unexpected event that causes slight alarm short of actual terror is the commonest cause of children's laughter, but in adults some sudden event that gives a sensation of triumph over others has much more influence. Really clever jokes seldom cause laughter, and it has been pointed out that a man chasing his hat will produce laughter far more hearty in character than the best efforts of the cleverest wit. The sight of ill fortune in another causes by contrast a feeling of triumph in ourselves. The ticklish parts of the body are for the most part the sites of important blood vessels, and the laughter produced in children by tickling is even more closely allied to the cry of pain.

HUGO AND THE YOUNG POET.

Praise For His Verses Which the Master Had Not Read.

A Paris contemporary tells a story of Victor Hugo and a young unknown poet. The poet, hailing from the provinces, sent to the author of "Notre Dame de Paris" a copy of his work, which he had just published in the form of a book of poems. Hugo replied in most sympathetic terms, and the young man was delighted with the letter, as well he might have been.

His joy, however, was but short lived, for a day or two later his servant announced that the package containing the volume of poems had come back through the post unopened. The package bore the legend, "Refuse par le destinataire—affranchissement insuffisant" (refused by the addressee on account of insufficient postage).

Hugo's letter was hyperbolic and in these terms: "Your work has given me a proud pleasure, under the impression of which I hasten to congratulate you. Your fame is young and radiant; mine is declining. It is the salutation of the night which departs at the rising of the dawn. You are shining, and I am dying. You emerge from oblivion; I return there.

"The heart either grows hard or breaks forth. Your sentiments have come forth, and you have written sonorous and superb poetry which consecrates you as a poet as well as affirming you as man. You are then 'deux fois mon frere' (twice my brother). Accept my admiration as great as my esteem."

Frederic Harrison's Rules of Life.

"Touch not tobacco, spirits, nor any unclean thing. Rise from every meal with an appetite. Walk daily for two hours. Sleep nightly for seven hours. Reverence all to whom reverence is due. Be content with what you have." Such are the rules of life laid down by Mr. Frederic Harrison, the veteran Positivist and man of letters, who celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday recently. Mr. Harrison lives up to his rules, and is as well to-day as many men of his age. Indeed, he claims to feel younger than ever. He is now engaging in his devotional but healthy exercises. Smoking he describes as a "beastly habit"; playing cards he "unnecessary and inane." After a day's hard work, he [illegible] written for the morning [illegible] but only [illegible] to say.

A UNIQUE EXPERIMENT.

The possibility of boiling and freezing water at the same time in the laboratory is one of the most interesting developments of modern science. The temperature at which water boils depends simply on the air pressure above its surface at the time. If there is high pressure the water has to be made a good deal hotter to boil than at low pressure.

On mountains where the air pressure is a good deal lower than at sea level water boils easily at low temperature. In cooking vegetables that require a certain degree of heat and where the water boils before that degree is reached the vegetables will not get done. They consequently have to be put into a closed boiler so that the generated steam will create enough pressure for the water to boil at or beyond the required temperature. In the experimental proof of this fact water is placed in a vessel and the air exhausted from above the surface of the water. As the process of pumping goes on the water will violently boil, the steam congealing on the sides of the exhaust vessel. If the pumping is continued long enough and the outside is cooled below the freezing point of water the water will continue to boil and bubble till it is frozen into a snowy mass of ice.

This fact is also made use of in taking a rough test of the height of a mountain. Ordinarily at sea level where the pressure is about thirty inches of mercury water boils at 212 degrees F. Now, if it is noticed that at a certain place it boils at a few degrees lower the height of that place can be easily ascertained by comparison with a table made out for this purpose. In general for every degree the boiling takes place under 212 a height of about 500 feet is counted.

Of course these principles do not apply to water alone, but are characteristic of all liquids.—New York Tribune

FISH LOCOMOTION.

The Nature and Functions of the So Called Air Bladders.

Leaning over the parapet of some old stone breakwater or pier head and watching the fish playing about in the clear green depths below, perhaps the first thought which is likely to occur to any of us is that we are looking on at a really astonishing thing. That a fish is able to propel itself through the water in any desired direction is in no way surprising, but that it can change its level at will, rising or falling without the use of its fins, and instantly assuming a horizontal or vertical position, according to the mood or need of the moment, is a fact that a little reflection will soon develop into prime motive for wonder.

For it is clear that the fish must be able at will to vary its weight in relation to the water it displaces. When it sinks to the bottom it must have suddenly rendered itself heavier than the medium it inhabits; each time it rises to the surface like a released cork, head first, tail pointing almost vertically downward. It must not only have transformed itself into something lighter than the water, but must have become lighter in its fore parts than in its tail.

The mystery, for such it undoubtedly is on a casual survey, says the London Chronicle, resolves itself immediately we come to study the nature and functions of the so called air bladder in fishes. By this contrivance all these intricate movements of the fish are brought about.

The bladder, however, contains not air, as is commonly supposed, but gas, which is discharged or regenerated by certain organs of the fish, according to whether upward or downward movement is necessary; also either the whole length of the bladder or only its front or rear portion can be inflated. Thus the fish is able to swim level or, by altering its center of gravity, to raise or lower either head or tail at will.

Singular Services of Sheep.

In the northern part of India sheep are put to a use unthought of in European or American countries. They are made to serve as beasts of burden. The mountain paths along the foothills of the Himalayas are so precipitous that the sheep, more sure footed than larger beasts, are preferred as burden carriers. The load for each sheep is from sixteen to twenty pounds. The sheep are driven from village to village, with the wool still growing, and in each town the farmer shears as much wool as he can sell there and loads the sheep with the grain which he receives in exchange. After the flock has been sheared he turns it homeward, each sheep having on its back a small bag containing the purchased grain.

Economy.

Mrs. Blockley—John, do you know that Royal Worcester vase I bought yesterday for £5? Well, they reduced them to £3 this morning. Mr. Blockley—Then you lost £2 by not waiting until this morning. Mrs. Blockley—No; only £1. I went down today and bought another for £3, making two of them average £4 each.—London Fun.

Bobby's Questions.

Papa—Because he is bigger, my boy.

Small Bobby (after pondering for a few moments)—Well, if that's the reason, why don't the hind wheels of a wagon run faster than the front wheels?—Chicago News.

If you wish to reach the highest, begin at the lowest.—Syrus.

AN HONEST POLITICIAN.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson Was an Honor to the British Commons.

"Laws should be adapted to those who have the heaviest stake in the country; for whom, as a government means not mortified pride or stinted luxury, but want and pain and degradation and risk to their own lives and to their children's souls." Mr. George Russell has put these noble words in the foreground of his memoir of the late Sir Wilfrid Lawson, and they give the keynote of the life portrayed therein.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson is described by one who knew him as an "absolutely honest man." His life shows it. He entered politics in 1859, and left them in 1906. Yet he was the same man all through. The ideals he fought for at Carlisle in 1859 he fought for until his death. He never faltered; he never changed. Some of his ideals have been accomplished. Others remain ideals. But there is not one which was, or is, not noble and unselfish.

He was once described as a "gloomy fanatic." Probably a more gross misdescription was never penned. He came of a sturdy Border stock. The Wybergbs of Clifton have been there since the days of the Third Edward. The Lawsons of Brayton were another ancient Border family, which had again and again represented Cumberland in Parliament. In 1806, Sir Wilfrid Lawson looked round about him for an heir, as he was childless, and he chose his nephew, Thomas Wybergh, who assumed the name of Lawson, and from him our hero was descended. Young Lawson's life was that of an ordinary country squire, save that the religious surroundings of his home were more marked. But withal there was little of stern sour puritanism about the home at Brayton. "My father enjoyed a long day's hunting or shooting almost to the end of his life, and in skating and playing hockey on the ice he often tired out younger men."

And the love of open-air life and field sports passed on to the son. Many thousands have asked the question, "D'ye ken John Peel?" Young Lawson "ken'd" him, and he bought the hounds that Peel had hunted, improved the pack, and became Master of the Cumberland Foxhounds. Incidentally Sir Wilfrid settles the right reading of the old song, "With his coat so gay" is the conjectural emendation of those who cannot conceive of a huntsman without a red coat. But Lawson says, "his gray coat is no more a myth than himself, for I well remember the long, gray garment."

This, then, is the type of man who sought to enter politics in 1857. A typical English gentleman, bearing an ancient name, heir to a large inheritance; and a thorough sportsman. And, with all this, there was a sturdy Radicalism which never changed and never faltered.

The first essay for Parliament was unsuccessful, but in 1859 young Lawson stood with his uncle, Sir James Graham, of Netherby, Canningite, Whig, Peelite and Liberal, a hard-hitting politician of the old school, whose favorite aversion was Disraeli. Lawson was roused out of bed in the middle of the night by a deputation of Carlisle Liberals, and—"in my robes of repose" he furnished his election address there and then. He was returned after a stiff contest, and took part in the fights of Lord Palmerston's last administration. Here, perhaps, we may finish off Sir Wilfrid's electoral experiences. He was turned out of Carlisle in 1865, but won the seat back in 1868 and held it until 1885, when he stood for Cockermouth and was defeated by ten votes, the Irish vote going against him. In 1886 the Irish vote went for him, and he held the seat until 1900, when Khaki proved his undoing. Camborne gave him a refuge in 1903, and he returned to Cockermouth in 1908.

When We Sleep.

The Hindus never sleep with their heads to the north, for they believe that to do so would cause their days to be shortened. There is much superstition in Hindustan as to the point of the compass towards which the head should point when in bed; to lie in the direction of the south being thought to be productive of longevity, where as the east and west, it is asserted, are calculated to bring riches and change of scene respectively. The Japanese never sleep with their heads to the north, their reason being that the dead in their country are always buried with their heads in that direction. So particular are the Japanese in this respect that, in their sleeping rooms, a diagram of the points of the compass will usually be found pasted upon the ceiling of the room for the benefit of guests. The Russians, too, dread the northern position, as they have been taught that all evil emanates from that quarter of the heavens, and that by sleeping with their heads towards it they are in danger of disaster, illness, or sudden death. The Hungarians, Poles, Patagonians, the Samoans, and several African tribes have the same objections on various grounds, but all tending to the one direction — abject fear of visitation while asleep by some unknown but evil influence if the head is directed towards the north.

How Fish Change Color.

In a lecture at the Royal Photographic Society's exhibition Dr. Francis Ward said that the power of certain fish to change their color in harmony with their environment resided in their optic nerve. He placed a pike in such a position that its head was in a dark chamber while the rest of its body lay in bright sunshine. The pike remained black in color, but when he reversed its position and caused its head to be in the sunlight its color [illegible] much lighter hue [illegible] space of a few minutes. [illegible] acted upon the optic nerve, [illegible] the pigment cells all over the skin to contract or relax.

The Witch's Track.

At Peel, in the Isle of Man, it is reported a witch and once the harvest there would not return. Every [illegible] set, and she was rolled down [illegible] in a barrel set with spikes. [illegible] never grown since in [illegible]'s track.

The "Worthy" Fuller.

Intimately connected with the County of Northampton is that "stout church and King man," Fuller, who spoke with a peculiar love of the great county, its fruitful earth and plentiful waters; and "if that country esteem me no disgrace to it, I esteem it an honor to me." At Aldwinkle St Peter's his father was "the painful preacher" of that place—his early boyhood was passed, until he was sent, at the early age of twelve years, "a boy of pregnant wit," to Queen's College at Cambridge. He was preferred to the rectory of Broadwindsor, in Dorset, where he began his history of the Crusades, under the title of the "Historie of the Holy Warre," marked by his peculiar humor, for wit was the stuff and substance of Fuller's intellect, which with his deportment, "according to the old English guise," made him popular in the "crowd pulpits" of London, when he was called thither in the memorable convention of Canterbury, and which won him, when lecturer at the chapel of St. Mary Savoy, crowded audiences which extended far into the chapel yard. A partizan of peace, a preacher of ardent loyalism, when London was well-nigh abandoned by active royalists, Fuller was obliged to make his way secretly to the "home of lost causes," where he became chaplain to the regiment of Lord Hopton, and was considered one of the great soldier parsons, but where, for the last five years of the war, he "had neither list or leisure to write, fearing he might be made a history. All that time he was collecting materials for his work from old buildings and ancient gossips, which were afterwards made use of in his "Church History" and the "Worthies of England."

Remarkable Song Service.

A remarkable service was held one Sunday recently in the chapel of Pentonville Prison, England, when over a thousand prisoners attended and listened to the singing of a male voice choir from London. A large prison chapel, crowded with the prisoners—men of all ages and sizes, clad in their khaki-colored prison garb, and wearing their identification badges on their sleeves—presented a remarkable sight. Here and there the yellow was relieved by the blue uniforms of the warders. The men listened with manifest interest to the singing of favorite hymns by the choristers, and as the strains of touching pieces reached their ears, one could see hard faces perceptibly softening, and now and again a head would bury itself in a big blue prison handkerchief. The listening audience included "Fight the good fight," "O, love that will not let me go," and "Lead kindly light," and among the choruses rendered were [illegible] song of hope."

Preventics, the new Candy Cold Cure Tablets, are said by druggists to have four special specific advantages over all other remedies for a cold. First—They contain no Quinine nothing harsh or sickening. Second—They give almost instant relief. Third—Pleasant to the taste, like candy. Fourth—A large box—48 Preventics—at 25 cents. Also fine for feverish children. Sold by all dealers.

Almost every one has heard of or knows something of The Prudential Insurance Company of America, Home Office, Newark, N. J., often called the Gibraltar life insurance company, because of its use of the Rock of Gibraltar as a trade-mark.

This big company has established a branch office in this city and is conducting business in both branches of insurance, Industrial and Ordinary.

About thirty-four years ago Industrial insurance was unknown in the United States. It was introduced on this continent by John F. Dryden, founder and present chief executive of The Prudential, the Industrial plan at once found favor with the public.

This life insurance is applicable to every member of the family, from one year of age to seventy.

The premiums are collected weekly from the homes of the insured and are from three cents per week upward, according to the amount insured for, thus bringing the benefits of life insurance protection within the means of the wage-earning population.

Much of the thrift and economy of this same wage-earning population may be traced to Industrial insurance. The habit of saving required to meet the weekly premiums unconsciously, but surely, invades his similar habits of thrift and saving in other directions.

In the Ordinary branch all the popular forms of Life and Endowment policies are issued, in amounts from $1,000 up, and the cost is the lowest consistent with the liberal provisions of the policy and the high grade of life insurance afforded. As an investment a Prudential policy offers unique advantages.

The high standing of The Prudential makes it possible to do business satisfactorily, because there can be no doubt of a Prudential promise.

The Prudential has seven and three-quarter millions of policies in force, representing nearly a billion and a half of insurance.

In extending its field of operations to this city The Prudential offers a splendid opportunity for our young men to obtain profitable employment. Progress and promotion will be quick if hustle and ability are shown. Any young man desirous of making money and building up a successful future should consult The Prudential's representative here.

Prudential Agents will be glad to furnish full and complete information concerning the plans of The Prudential to any one. You should take an interest in life insurance, for it may make a big difference in your family's happiness some day.

BEHIND SEALED DOORS.

How the British Admiralty Guards Its Secrets.

Officially, it has been stated that some of the plans of the celebrated mystery ship, the Indomitable, have disappeared. These consist of confidential drawings supplied to the contractors, and they should now be in the possession of the Admiralty. While the very closest search has been made, the First Lord of the Admiralty has stated that it is not expected the possession of them will be regained.

Some little time ago, the Admiralty decided that all new ships should be built with the greatest secrecy, every effort being made to avoid letting any information at all reach foreign Governments. Every man connected with the work has to take an oath that he will not reveal anything which comes to his knowledge. No longer is any outsider allowed near the building warship. Yet, despite all precautions taken, confidential plans of the greatest value have disappeared.

It is well known that certain foreign Governments will pay almost any sum to obtain possession of some of our closely guarded secrets. It is also the case that many foreigners are employed in the drawing offices of some of the warship-building contractors.

As evidence of the big sums which are paid, it may be mentioned that some time ago it was discovered that a traitor in the Russian army, Col Grim, had received no less than £80,000 from Germany and Austria for the sale of confidential information.

In our great warship-building yards, such is the secrecy observed, that even workmen are not allowed in certain departments unless provided with a special pass. Any man attempting to enter such a department will be dismissed instantly.

It is frequently the case that the entrances to some of the workshops are guarded by special armoured, fire-proof doors, and entrance and exit can only be made when the doors are specially unlocked by the official having charge of the key. These keys are retained in the head office, and cannot be removed without the express sanction of high officials. In all cases an entry has to be made in a book, stating who has had possession of the keys, and the reason, the exact time of removing and replacing the keys being noted.

Then, the men employed in these confidential departments are especially picked, and are subject to heavy penalties in the case of the slightest dereliction of duty. The men are not chosen until the strictest investigation has been made with regard to their history and habits.

Husband Seekers.

Hindu girls go through several superstitious rites in order to obtain a good husband. The "worship of Gauri, or Parati, is the consort of Shiva, and on the twelfth day of the first month of the monsoon season, little girls between the ages of five and ten years form an earthern image of Gauri, and dress it up in clothes.

On either side they have set a vessel full of earth, in which they have sown wheat and barley. The morning of the twelfth, as soon as they get up, they go to the river side to bathe. Returning thence, they proceed to some place where all the female children of the village or quarter of the town are assembling, and thence the whole proceed together, singing songs, to the house of some Brahmin to whose care the image of Gauri has been entrusted.

They now worship the goddess with the sixteen prescribed ceremonials, making her presents, which fall as perquisites to the Brahmins. The mothers, or elder sisters of the girls, at this time prompt them to ask a boon of the goddess, and the children, one after another, say, "Gori! Mal Grant me a good bridegroom." The festival is not a little suggestive. It is not so poetic as that other festival celebrated by Moore, during which Hindu maidens float little lamps on the Ganges, and go away disheartened if the tiny lights do not reach the opposite bank in safety.

The Franklin Expedition.

The greatest tragedy of the far north, says a writer in The Boston Herald, was that of the Sir John Franklin expedition. Franklin sailed in 1845 with two ships, the Erebus and the Terror. They passed up the west coast of Greenland and were last seen in latitude 74 degrees 48 minutes. For three years nothing was heard of the party. Then expeditions were sent out, and the discovery after years of the records of the voyage as well as of many skeletons showed that the commander, officers and crews of the two vessels, to the number of 134, had perished to a man. Their fate was only finally revealed in 1854 by Dr. Rae of the Hudson Bay Co. and in 1859 by Captain McClintock.

"Three Nights."

Sir Henry Irving had a number of old pensioners who, though they had never risen above "deep-thinking" parts, yet considered they were infallible experts on matters dramatic.

Shortly before one magnificent but ill-fated Lyceum production, of which a certain super had no exalted opinion, Sir Henry Irving, towards the end of a rehearsal, had a long consultation with his two colleagues on matters musical and artistic.

"Just look at 'em!" said he. "Pore ole Sir 'Enry Irving, pore ole Sir Alexander Mackenzie, and pore ole Sir Alma-Tadema! Three bloomin' knights—and that's abart as long as the balfy piece will run!"

A "Fine Panama."

The Duke of Argyll has enriched the humor of the game with a new golf story. In opening the new club house at Helensburgh recently the duke commented on the picturesqueness of the situation occupied by the club house. It recalled to his memory an incident that occurred to himself one day when he said to his caddie that, on a certain course, a very fine view could be obtained. "Yes," said the caddie, with his arms akimbo, "it is a very fine panama."

Dr. Johnson and Bagpipes.

Dr. Johnson's prejudice against the Scots stopped short just where so many Englishmen's toleration ends—at the bagpipes. Boswell records the great man's confession that he did not like music and had hardly any perception of it. He knew, he said, "a drum from a trumpet and a bagpipe from a guitar, which was about the extent of his knowledge of music," and he also said that it seemed to be a "method of employing the mind, without the labor of thinking at all and with some applause from a man's self." But in the Highlands he appeared to be distinctly fond of the bagpipes "and used often to stand for some time with his ear close to the great drone."—London Chronicle.

FAMOUS STAMP COLLECTION.

Sir William Avery Gathered £24,500 Worth In His Time.

One of the largest private stamp collections ever sold has just been acquired, for the sum of £26,500, by W. H. Peckitt, a London stamp dealer, from the executors of the late Sir William Avery of Birmingham. Collected throughout a long life from the age of eight, it is generally considered to be the largest general collection of postage stamps next to that in the British Museum. It is rich in all the great rarities, comprises from 90,000 to 100,000 stamps, and represents almost completely the postal systems of every country in the world.

Two "gems" are unused Postoffice Mauritius stamps engraved by a local watchmaker in Mauritius in 1847. The Prince of Wales paid £1,450 at auction for the two-penny stamp unused. Only two copies of the penny stamp in this state are known. Recently in Paris a collection of Swiss stamps of the millionaire banker M. Paul Mirabaud was sold for approximately £8,000, but in the Avery collection there are several unique pieces lacking in the Mirabaud one. Unused copies of the double Geneva stamp, of which there are seven and a half in one block, fetch £75 each. So rare is the whole top two rows of the five centimes Eagle stamp of Geneva that its value can hardly be estimated.

The Avery collection of three-cornered issues of Cape of Good Hope in many respects is superior to the Vernon Roberts collection, sold to Mr. Peckitt in 1907 for £6,000. The original stamps were engraved in London, but during a temporary shortage in the colony a local engraver had to provide an imitation. These are excessively rare. There are a unique block of four of the penny brick-red stamp and a pair and a single of the fourpence unused and five superb used pairs. Among the stamps of Ceylon the unperforated ninepence lilac-brown stamp is valued at £125. The collection also includes a copy of the three-lire stamp of Tuscany unused, worth about £100.

The pair of the twenty-seven paras Moldavian stamp are priceless, and in no other collection will there be found so large a number of the rare first stamps of Moldavia, for which Sir William Avery had a penchant. On one day he bought three complete sets, twelve stamps, for £2,000—a record deal in any single class of rarity.

The collection includes many rare stamps of Great Britain, among them being some of the Parliamentary envelopes issued in January 1840, some five months before the issue of the first stamp and the Mulready envelope. There is a part sheet of twenty of the rare penny black V.R. stamp, worth about £10 a piece singly, and of almost priceless value in a large block as in this instance. Sir William has also an experimental stamp showing the first attempts to perforate postage stamps by Mr. Henry Archer.

There are of the famous circular British Guiana stamps of 1850 the four cents on orange paper, another on yellow paper, two copies of the eight cents on green paper, and five of the twelve cents on blue paper, some being valued at over £100. Of the 1856 series the one cent black on magenta stamp is missing, the only copy in existence being in the possession of a French collector. Of the companion rarity, the four cents on blue paper, Sir William possessed a superb copy valued at over £300. Of the next series of 1862 the four cents black on blue is shown in a complete reconstructed sheet, including seventeen unused and unsigned copies, each lacking the signature of the postmaster. Only three examples of such sheets are known, the others being in the British Museum and in the French collection referred to.

Unique again is the only word which will describe the beautiful unused pair of the 12D black stamp of Canada, of which the collection contains five copies in all. This stamp is worth $500 a copy.

Oldest Inns in England.

The Fighting Cocks Inn, on the river Ver, St. Albans, said to be over 1,100 years old, claims to be the oldest inhabited house in the kingdom, but the Saracen's Head, Newark, memorable in the story of Jeanie Deans, can actually, it seems, show title deeds dating back to 1341. The oldest tavern bill extant is that of Richard de Insula, Bishop of Durham, at the Angel Inn, Blyth, Notts, anno 1274. The item "In Coquina, 27s. 5 1-2." is somewhat excessive, taking the relative value of money into consideration. London Athenæum.

OIL RUSH TO SOUTHERN ALBERTA

WILL BE GREATER THAN YUKON

It is only of recent years that we have awakened to the great possibilities and the wonderful wealth represented in the natural resources of the Dominion of Canada.

Prominent in the mineral areas is crude oil or petroleum, and quite recently Southern Alberta Oil Fields have experienced considerable activity.

If you were to turn to the map recently issued by the Geological Department of the Dominion Government showing the petroleum deposits, you would find that that district close to and immediately southwest of Pincher Creek, in Southern Alberta, is, as the district most clearly defines, a country of great petroleum wealth.

We are offering for immediate sale a block of 25,000 shares in the Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Company, Limited, at 25c each, which shares have a par value of one dollar each, and are non-assessable since the company is a limited liability corporation, operating under a charter issued by the Government of the Province of Alberta.

The Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Company Limited, control an area of oil lands to the extent of 5,760 acres in the heart of the Pincher Creek district.

The Company owns one of the largest two-rig drilling equipment ever imported into Canada. This plant was shipped direct from the centre of the oil industry, Pennsylvania, to the Company's property, and is now being set up ready for drilling.

We have every reason to believe, since we know the property thoroughly, that those who are fortunate enough to secure a holding in this Company at the present price of twenty-five cents per share are in the pathway of big profits on their investment. Quite recently a vein of finest grade of bituminous coal was unearthed on the Company's property. The seam is ten feet deep, and was full length of the property. It is a most valuable asset.

Those who were fortunate enough to buy in on the ground floor of the big American oil company have become independently wealthy.

TWO THOUSAND PER CENT, is the average advance of the stock of thirty oil companies in the United States. The following are a few samples :

THE HOME OIL CO., which was started with a cash capital of only $45.00 and ten acres of land, paid eight millions in dividends. The San Francisco Petroleum Co. has paid over twenty-seven millions in dividends. The Pacific Coast Oil Co. has paid over fourteen millions, and the Standard Oil Co. pays upwards of forty millions annually in dividends.

OIL LANDS and lands adjacent to them bring fabulous prices. One-eighth of an acre of oil land in Texas was sold for $80,000.00, and acre-plots three to five miles away were sold for $27,000.00 and $33,000.00 respectively, whereas before the discovery of oil this same ground could have been bought for 50 cents per acre, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that the lands of the Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Co. may increase similarly in value.

We reproduce herewith a letter which was written to Mr. Black, Superintendent of the Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Co., Limited, by John W. Warren, who personally visited and inspected property controlled by the Company. It is certainly a most unconditional endorsement of the district, and in particular the quality of petroleum taken from the same :

LETTER.

TESTIMONY OF JOHN W. WARREN.

Elgin, Ill., July 21, 1908.

Mr. David Black,
Pincher Creek, Alberta, Canada.

Dear Sir :

In reply to yours of recent date, I will say that I went to the oil fields of Alberta, Canada, and saw oil oozing out of the rocks and ground, and floating away on small creeks. I went to the last "seepage" and saw the oil running down the rocks for at least 300 feet. I saw a great many oil springs. I gathered some of the oil in a bottle and brought it home, some I caught flowing from a [illegible] feet deep. I took my small still, hydrom[illegible], and other things necessary to make a test with me—I found it,

40 degrees Baume

It contains 20 to 25 per cent. gasoline. I distilled and refined some gasoline and did it without sulphuric acid or lead. It was very fine, in fact the finest I ever saw. I made some axle grease out of the Alberta oil just as it came from the well near Pincher Creek. We greased a buggy, 2 wheels on one side with this axle grease, and the other 2 wheels with pure castor oil. The axle grease ran twice as long as the castor oil and without gum. Further, I have treated oils from New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Texas, Kansas, California and Eastern Canada. I consider Alberta Oil to be the best of all in gasoline and lubricating oil. It contains less sulphur than any oil I have treated. Any man can see that there is a great demand in Canada for Alberta oil, for five-sixths of the oil used there comes from the United States. You ask my opinion. I think the oil fields of Alberta are as good as ever the Pennsylvania were.

I remain yours,
JOHN W. WARREN.

We will not accept applications for less than one hundred shares, and, when the whole sum of $25 is paid, certificate will be issued at once.

Shares may be secured, however, on terms : 10c per share cash, balance 5c per share per month.

We shall be pleased to forward those at a distance complete information concerning this proposition, and answer all inquiries.

Our office is open daily from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Remember that the price of 25c per share is good only until Friday evening at nine o'clock, December 24th. Any unsold shares that we may have on hands after this date will be withdrawn from the market, and no stock will be offered at any future date for less than thirty or thirty-five cents. Once drilling commences you may expect to see considerable activity in the shares of this Company, and, by the time the drills are down to the oil level (a matter of sixty or ninety days), there is every indication that the stock will be selling at par.

Our Address is Suite 8, Imperial Chambers, 32-34 Adelaide Street East. Next Door to Post Office

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

Guaranterd by a $1,000,000 Bank

SUPPOSE a million-dollar bank should offer you a gold bond, guaranteeing you against loss in an investment you desired to make, and providing that, whether the investment did or did not prove a profitable one, the bank would pay you back every dollar of your money at the end of twenty years, wouldn t that "look good" to you? And wouldn't you take it ?

Wouldn't it look as though the bank itself, as well as the men behind the enterprise that formed the basis of the investment, had absolute confidence in it, and looked upon it as a safe and profitable venture ?

Can you figure out any way in which you could possibly lose the money you put into an enterprise with that kind of backing ? To be sure, you would run the risk of not receiving interest for that length of time on the amount of your investment, but you would also run the chance of multiplying it many times over in the way of dividends—and that is worth something, isn't it? In other words, you have opportunity to win, and not a single chance to lose.

Now, that is exactly what we, the officers and directors of Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company, of Reno, Nevada, are offering for a short time to those who wish to take advantage of it, and we make this remarkable offer, first, because we know what we have in the way of a property, and, second, because we need a little more capital to erect a mill upon it and make it an extremely profitable producer in the shortest possible time.

This is the first time, to our personal knowledge, that an offer like this has ever been made with reference to any enterprise of a similar character, here or elsewhere.

Organization, Capitalization and Officers

Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company is organized under the laws of the State of Nevada, with a capital stock of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000), divided into One Million (1,000,000) shares, of the par value of One Dollar ($1.00 each, full paid and non-assessable, and with no personal liability attaching to the stockholders. The number of shares in the treasury is Four Hundred Thousand (400,000).

The principal office of the company is at No. 336 Mill Street, Reno, Nevada, and the depository of the company is the Nixon National Bank, of the same city.

The officers are as follows: President, D. J. Kennedy, an old resident of Nevada, and one of the best known and most successful mining operators in the state; vice-president; F. W. Thomas, of the firm of John Breuner & Co., one of the largest mercantile establishments in the city; secretary, Donald Fraser, one of the proprietors of the Red Cross Drug Company, of Reno; treasurer, H. L. Barchell, mining operator, and manager of the most prominent of the leading law firms of the state.

Location and Character of Properties

The holdings of Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company include the following valuable properties in the famous Fairview district, in Churchill county, Nevada, reached by a fine wagon road from Fallon, the county seat:

By purchase outright—fully paid for and deed recorded at Fallon—valuable mining estates on both sides of the great Mizpah mine, on both of which properties rich ore has been found.

By purchase—paid for, deeded and recorded—the Treasury group of two full claims, amounting to 40 acres, to the north-east of the Mizpah mine, the rich ledge of which we have every reason to believe courses straight through our property for at least 2,000 feet. This we regard as a very valuable holding.

By purchase, an undivided one-half interest in seven claims, containing 100 acres, southwest of the Mizpah, with every indication that the Mizpah vein runs through our ground at least 1,500 feet. The deed for our one-half interest is recorded at Fallon, and we have an option for one year on the other one-half interest.

All the leasing rights and privileges of the Mizpah Milling and Leasing Company on twelve blocks of the celebrated Mizpah mine, for the term of five years. On this property, considerable quantities of fine shipping ore are already opened; drifting has been carried on for some distance on the 100-foot level, while the second level, at 175 feet depth, is now being driven on to catch the same ore body, when shipments will begin.

Values as Shown By Assays

Assays of ore taken from the various properties of the company show the following values:

" " " " " " " " " "	346.80
" " " " " " " " " "	77.42
From Kentucky Group, surface workings, gold and silver values	128.00
" " " " " " " " " "	78.00
From Mizpah shafts, tunnels and upraises, gold and silver values	993.90
" " " " " " " " " "	239.77
" " " " " " " " " "	235.40
" " " " " " " " " "	95.87
" " " " " " " " " "	84.21

From the foregoing tests, it will be seen that, leaving out of the calculation our own extensive properties, all of which contain indications of remarkable richness, we are fully justified in expecting sufficient profits from the operation of our five-year lease on the great Mizpah mine alone, to pay enormous dividends to all our stockholders. But to operate these all, with the greatly increased facilities and equipment we intend to add, should give us a production equaled by few mining properties in the world.

We have already found very rich ore in the shallow workings of our Kentucky group to the west, and of our Treasury group to the east of the Mizpah, and we can see no reason why both of these properties should not prove fully as rich as the famous Mizpah mine itself. We are in a district noted for its immense bodies of gold and silver ores, and where deep workings open up vast treasure vaults of mineral wealth.

Additional Equipment Required

In order to more speedily place these splendid properties among the high class producers of the state, and to combine the maximum of production and profit with the minimum of cost, considerable additional equipment is required.

This includes a standard, modern mill, to reduce our ore to bullion and concentrates at the mine, thus saving the transportation and treatment charges of $20 to $30 a ton on the ore to the Salt Lake smelters. To be sure, the ore is of such a high grade character that there is a good profit in mining and shipping it even at these high rates, but it would be better business to save it and add that much more to the net profits, by treating it at our own mill, which, under the circumstances, thus becomes a necessity. With a 100-ton plant, we should easily be able to treat our ore at an expense not to exceed $2.50 per ton, and by adding another unit to its capacity, can still further reduce the cost, and thus save from $17.50 to $27.50 per ton on transportation and treating charges alone—quite an item when figuring the net profits.

The first unit capacity of 100 tons daily, of a standard mill, modern in every way, including stamps, amalgamation, fine grinding, concentration and cyaniding, with a sampler in front, so that ore can be purchased from surrounding properties, and general custom work done if desired, will enable us to add one unit after another as may be required with increased development of the ore bodies. By thus adding to the capacity of the mill, we shall be in a position to treat an immense tonnage daily, and pay dividends accordingly.

We will therefore not only effect a great saving of our present expenditures, but earn a handsome revenue, practically all profit, from the large volume of custom work that would be brought to our mill for treatment and reduction.

We also want to sink a capacious double-compartment shaft into the permanent sulphide zone at once, first, in order to have the ore bodies opened up for the mill, and secondly, to aid in determining the proper methods of treatment; so that we may build a mill adapted to the character of the ores, and capable of giving the largest returns to the company in the extraction of the gold and silver values.

Novel Plan to Secure Funds

Now, we are quite willing to admit that equipment of the character already mentioned, which will put the properties in the best possible working shape, will cost more money than is available at present, unless we accept the alternative of sacrificing a small portion of our special stock, in order to begin operations on a profitable basis at once.

The officers and directors of the company have therefore decided to adopt this method, and, while limiting the sales to but one-fifth of the capitalization, to surround the sale of every share with a positive safeguard against any possible loss.

We do not know that such an offer has ever before been made, and we expect the amount offered to be over-subscribed several times when the terms of the offer are made known.

First, we limit the amount of stock that will be sold, in order to provide the finds for necessary equipment, to Two Hundred Thousand (200,000) shares, and this is to be positively the last as well as the first, allotment that will be sold at the present low price, of 20 cents a share, as we honestly believe the stock will be good for dividends of not less than one dollar per share annually, after we commence treating 100 tons daily at the mill.

Stock Guaranteed

In order to absolutely protect purchasers of these shares against the possibility of a loss, we have made arrangements with the Metropolis Trust and Savings Bank, of San Francisco, one of the strongest financial institutions in the United States, to guarantee every share of stock sold, and to issue to every purchaser a gold bond for the full amount of his investment, such bond being payable in twenty years, whether the mines pay or not. Therefore, even if the mines never paid a dollar—though we expect them to pay millions—the stockholders cannot possibly lose anything except the interest on their investment, while they stand to win fortunes from the amounts they put into these properties.

The shares offered on these unparalleled terms may be paid for either in cash or in five equal monthly payments, and the money derived there from will be used entirely for the further development and equipment of the properties. The shares will also be traded in on both the New York and Boston exchanges the moment we begin shipping and paying dividends.

The elements of industrial safety and of the speculative profits of gold mining under such extremely favorable conditions, are combined in this enterprise to a greater degree than in any other undertaking within our knowledge or experience, and will appeal with irresistible force to all sensible and conservative people as an opportunity without an equal. It is a case of "heads, you win! tails, you cannot lose." If the mines pay as we believe they will bring to every stockholder, in dividends, many times the amount of his investment. If they do not pay, he gets his money back.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

NOT INVINCIBLE.

When Art Experts Are Taken In by Crooked Dealers.

All "antiquities" are not antique. The art of the art-faker is an art that conceals itself, and often enough it is almost impossible of detection.

The doubt, for instance, that has been cast by art experts generally upon the wax bust attributed to Leonardo da Vinci (pronounced Layonardo da Vinchi) purchased by Dr. Bode for the German Government for £8,000, is by no means an isolated incident in the history of art collecting.

It has yet to be decided whether this bust is the work of the great and versatile Leonardo or Mr. Cecile Lucas, the recently deceased wax modeller, but it is an undeniable fact that there is hardly a public collection that does not contain several items, the authenticity of which would not bear investigation.

At the Victoria and Albert Museum, the Louvre, and elsewhere, it has more than once been discovered that treasures that had been long venerated as unique are most flagrant forgeries.

Some years ago a Parliamentary commission was held upon the contents of the museum at South Kensington, and very early in the evidence it transpired that the predecessor of the then curator had removed over fifty objects, as either forgeries or as absolutely worthless, which had been considered of great importance and value.

For instance, the authorities purchased three items at the famous Hamilton Palace sale in 1882, all of which proved to be other than was supposed. These were the Agate Cup, purchased for $2,500 the Cardinal Wolsey chair; and a Vernis Martin cabinet, which cost the nation no less than $4,000.

The cup proved to be a made-up piece, worth, at the most, $250; the chair, which was supposed to be English fifteenth century work, turned out to be Cingalese work of the eighteenth century, and the cabinet, though partly genuine, was discovered to contain panels made by a man who later, upon obtaining employment at the museum, readily recognized his handiwork.

There is also at South Kensington a statue attributed to Michael Angelo which many claim to be a made-up piece, whilst a terra cotta bust of Savonarola in the same collection, purchased in the middle of last century as a genuine example of fifteenth century work, was later discovered to be of quite modern manufacture.

In the National Gallery there is more than one work, the attribution of which does not meet with general acceptance.

In 1904, when the portrait of Ariosto, by Titian, was acquired for the nation for the huge sum of $150,000, there were many who claimed and, in fact, still do so that the portrait was not by Titian; and, moreover, that it was not a portrait of the famous Italian poet.

Another remarkable instance of experts being bested is that of the purchase of a picture, reputed to be by the great French landscape artist Corot, for the New Dublin Gallery of Modern Art, a few years ago.

The sensational discovery at the Irish Picture Gallery that, of the 200 pictures labelled with the greatest names in the history of art, only seventy were genuine, is still fresh in the memories of most readers.

"Dry Cure" For Colds.

A fact that ought to please all the sufferers from colds, and they are legion, is that there exists an infallible cure for them, according to Dr. Romme, of Paris. Dr. Romme adds that it is an English cure, and is, moreover, some 150 years old, having been discovered by an English physician, Dr. J. B. Williams, who was well known at the end of the eighteenth century.

This marvelous and simple cure consists in abstaining from all liquids during a period of 24 or 48 hours, starting from the moment when the sufferer feels the first irritating symptoms of a "cold in the head."

Bread, fish, vegetables, "white" meat and pudding may be eaten, but beverages should be taken in very small quantity- a spoonful of tea, coffee, or milk in the morning, and a small glass of water before going to bed—or, if possible, not taken at all. It is not necessary to remain at home. The dry cure, in fact, is more rapid and complete if the sufferer breathes in the open air.

Dr. Steinberg, the well-known Viennese medical authority, fully believes in this old English cure, and considers it as thoroughly efficient. He has modernized it by forbidding soup which is more liquid than solid, and even the small quantity of tea or milk of Dr. Wilhams' system. But he allows a small glass of wine and water during the day.

Got a Prize.

Wertheimer, a London art dealer, was one day passing through Mayfair when he noticed a sale about to take place of the "furniture and household effects of a deceased nobleman." He walked through the rooms were dealers were critically examining choice specimens of undoubtedly genuine Chippendale and Sheraton, interspersed among early Victorian furniture, his eyes apparently dwelling on nothing. But when the sale was about to begin he asked the auctioneer if he would take $25,000 for everything in the house. The offer was accepted. "Now you can resell everything for me," said Mr. Wertheimer, "except this," and he took down from the mantelpiece a dirty ornament some nine inches high and put into his pocket. It was a piece of the rarest Dresden china, bearing the coveted mark of the wand of Aesculapius, which he afterward sold for $50,000.

Canada's Manufactures.

The capital invested in the various manufacturing industries in Canada amounts to $834,000,000, an increase of 8 per cent in five years; while the total deposits in chartered Canadian banks on November 30, 1909 equalled nearly $100 per capita for everyone, man, woman and child, as against $39 per capita ten years ago.

Plants That Mimic Stones.

In South Africa there is found a plant of the genus Mesembryanthemum, growing on stony ground, which so closely resembles a pebble that it is invariably taken by the stranger to be a stone.

Another species of the same plant growing on the hills round the Karoo produces two leaves about as large as ducks' eggs, having a surface resembling weathered stone of brownish grey color, tinged with green. These plants look like stones, but for a short time they put forth bright yellow flowers. Still another species of the same plant resembles the quartz pebbles among which it grows.

A SCOTTISH LEGEND.

The Story of the Knight With the White Feather.

TWO COURAGEOUS WARRIORS.

Heroic Alexander Hume and His Still More Heroic Fellow Soldier and Protector—The Sad Sequel to the Battle That Was Lost.

The heraldic arms of the Scotch town of Selkirk show a woman seated on a tomb, on which is also placed the Scottish lion. The legend told about the arms is this: King James IV. of Scotland, who was about to invade England, needed recruits for his enterprise. The town clerk of Selkirk, William Brydone, tried his best to aid his king by persuading his fellow countrymen to enlist in the royal cause. So earnest was he that he is said to have moved over a hundred lusty Scots to join his standard. Among these was one of the name of Alexander Hume This man was a shoemaker of the town of Selkirk. He was strong, stalwart, bold and an excellent workman. Brydone was very glad to welcome him, as he reckoned him quite the best man of the hundred, and his comrades, who were also brave men and true, cheered him as he appeared among them, such confidence had they in his wisdom, prudence, valor and strength.

Hume's wife, Margaret, was a fine young woman and very fond and proud of her brave, strong husband Now, Margaret did not at all like this proposed invasion of England. She felt that it would mean great trouble to the Scotch people, who would certainly be vanquished by their strong enemy, and the thought came to her that her own brave husband might perhaps lose his life in the struggle. She therefore used all her best efforts to keep him at home. She pleaded in vain. Alexander was firm. At last she held up to his face their little five-months-old daughter and asked who would look after the child if he should die and who would keep her from misery and misfortune.

Hume loved his wife and child, and these appeals brought the tears to his eyes, but they did not break down his resolution, which he had girt about him as armor. Nothing could move him to become untrue to his king and country.

Finding that no entreaties could move him, Margaret at last gave way to anger and told him that his eager desire to be thought the bravest man of Selkirk would not supply the child he was bound to work for with a bite of bread. She said even more than this. Her tones grew higher, and one word led to another, as you know it will, until the couple parted in anger, he to the field of battle and she to remain at home.

Alexander had not gone far before it flashed across the mind of his wife that perhaps she might never see him alive again. Unable to control herself, she flung the child into its crib and rushed out of the house. She must see her husband again and get from him one parting glance or word of reconciliation. She hurried through the town, she sought everywhere for him, but he was nowhere to be seen. He had gone off with his comrades The poor wife wept bitterly. Her grief was deep.

Hume and his fellows were soon engaged in battle. He displayed the greatest bravery. Wherever he went numbers of the enemy fell. In every direction upon the field of battle he was seen. His companions kept well up to him, and in particular one man who had lately joined the party. This man fought with a courage equal to that of Hume himself, keeping continually beside him and defending him in many perils. Once when an Englishman from behind drew very near to the Scot this soldier struck the cowardly fellow to the earth just as he was inserting his spear between the clasps of Hume's armor. Hume called to the brave fellow and demanded his name, even in the midst of the fight, but the stranger said that that was no matter.

This generous soldier wore a leather jacket and an iron helmet, in which there was placed a small white feather. Wherever Hume fought on the battlefield there might be seen beside him the iron helmet and the white feather.

At last the battle ended in defeat for the Scotch, who scattered in all directions. Hume, who, with other soldiers, was obliged to lie concealed in the forest for some time, took the first opportunity of inquiring after his faithful attendant. But all his inquiries were without avail. He could not trace him. Nothing could be learn of him but that he had disappeared when the fight was over.

Alexander Hume hurried to his cottage He was anxious to see again his beloved wife and bestow upon her the kiss of reconciliation. When he reached it he listened at the door, and his heart beat fast. He had kind words to say to her from whom he had parted in anger, and his deep wounds needed dressing. He lifted the latch and walked in. All was still. No wife came to meet him; no child's cry met his ear On looking round the room he saw seated in an armchair the knight who had fought so bravely beside him in the battle, wearing the same leather jacket, iron helmet and white feather. That person was Margaret Hume She was dead and clasped in her dead arms the little child.

Be conciliatory and considerate if you hope to win conciliation and consideration.—Wood.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments—the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

Christmas Market.

There will be a big crowd at the market this morning. It is the recognized Christmas market and both farmers and citizens will turn out. There will be a big supply of turkeys, geese and other poultry for sale besides the usual market produce. It is safe to say that there will be no Toronto buyers present and the prices should be fairly reasonable.

Heavy Traffic.

The railways are now taxed to their utmost capacity. From one end of the Dominion to the other people are on the move. Old residents of Ontario from the Atlantic to the Pacific are on their way home for Christmas and every station in the country is crowded with travelers or those waiting for friends. The regular trains are running in two and three sections and all are crowded. It is the greatest Christmas Canada has ever seen.

Hoarseness in a child subject to croup is a sure indication of the approach of the disease. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given at once or even after the croupy cough has appeared, it will prevent the attack. Contains no poison. L 3

Peterborough Leads.

A review of the lyles of the Telephone Gazette reveals that a large preponderance of the contributions from the staff on subjects of practical interest have come from Montreal and Peterboro, this being clearly due to the interest gained through the local organizations of the Company's employees. This makes all the more noticeable the entire absence of contributions from other large exchanges where they have no such organizations. To name the latter places might be considered invidious, but the fact is sufficiently obvious. The Telephone Gazette cannot but wonder how long the staff at these exchanges will remain quiescent and apparently oblivious to the advantage of a general exchange of ideas, for which this publication provides a medium.—Telephone Gazette.

New Faces at the Princess.

This week Mr. Ernest Hinns, proprietor of the favorite bi. theatorium, the Princess, has broken away from former traditions in Peterborough. This means that in this city the people have got tired of seeing the same faces of actors or actresses in the picture characters. Mr Hinns has inaugurated an entirely new series of films so, his patrons will see not only the best class of pictures but new actors and actresses from the various hills This Hinns is to be congratulated on his enterprise.

THE AMERICAN WOMAN.

Her Position Here and Its Influence in the Old World.

There is no doubt that the most interesting thing to the European who lands on the northern shores of the new world is the American woman—that happy, victorious heroine of modern femininism who has discovered how to extract from the new condition of woman all the advantages with almost none of the inconveniences, that being who has known how to assume the masculinity in all that regards independence and liberty of action atal remain feminine in grace, charm and altruism; that American beauty, that American genius, whose wonders are seen and felt in all the American and European reviews, whose writers declare her to be engaged almost entirely in severe study, in masculine work, sport and similar occupations.

Europe, moreover, is right. The American woman is not only one of the most interesting phenomena of North America, but is also the phenomenon of the new world that might have the greatest and gravest effect on the old, shaking on their foundations the essential principles of our female instruction and training, overthrowing the society of the old continent or continents, which rest to a greater extent than is realized on the antique functions of woman in the family and in society.—Gina Lombroso Ferrero in Putnam's Magazine.

THE RACE FOR RICHES.

Is Wealth That Cannot Be Enjoyed Worth the Price?

The writer once inquired of a very successful man:

"When do you ever get a moment's time for your own self—to be yourself and to think your own thoughts? Do you ever get a time like that?"

The very successful man hesitated for a moment and then replied:

"Why, yes, I get such a time while I am being shaved in the morning."

Is success really worth the price when it must be paid for at such a rate? Of what use are mansions and country houses and great estates if one has no time to visit them and enjoy their beauty? Why should one collect through agents the most exquisite works of art if he cannot find more than a casual half hour in which to view them? What are wife and children if you are always hastening about the world, far too preoccupied to give them any serious thought or to receive the pleasure which their company could afford you?

And yet there is one sole satisfaction—if it be a satisfaction. Millions of your fellow countrymen and countrywomen will believe beyond all doubt that you are really happy and will envy you.—Munsey's Magazine.

Icebergs.

Apparently ice is ice, of course; but strangely enough, there is a marked difference in it. Sea water and salt water in general freezes at a lower temperature than pure water, in doing which a part of the salt separates and the ice when melted gives water that is fresher than the original, and along this same line there exists a marked difference in form between the ice bergs of the two hemispheres. Arctic bergs are of irregular shape, with lofty pinnacles, cloud capped towers and glittering domes, whereas those of the southern waters are flat topped and solid looking. The former reach the sea by narrow fiords, while the latter are more regular in formation, reaching the open sea by the way of wide passageways and not subject to the grinding and breaking efforts of their northern relatives.—Pittsburg Press.

A Real Cute Dog.

A good dog story is attributed to a visitor to an English country inn on market day. "Now," he said, "I've got a dog here I wouldn't take £50 for. You can believe me or not, but what I am going to tell you is perfectly true. In the early part of last spring I lost six ewes and could find them nowhere. One day about three weeks later as I was looking across from my house to the edge of the moor about two miles away I noticed some sheep. I got my telescope and assured myself that they were mine. I placed the telescope in a suitable position and made Rob look through it. After about a minute the dog wagged his tail and looked at me as if he understood what I wanted and was off like a shot. In less than two hours he brought the sheep home safe and sound."

No Misunderstanding.

"I hear you have had a misunderstanding with your old political friends."

"No," said Senator Sorghum; "the worst of it is the impossibility of misunderstanding. We have expressed our opinions of each other in terms so explicit as to be unmistakable."—Washington Star.

OBITUARY.

Margaret Soucie.

Word was received Wednesday night by Mrs. John Soucie, of the sudden death of her second daughter, Margaret, at Williard, N.Y., where she had been engaged in teaching at the high school of that town. No further particulars have been received as to the cause of death. The family had a letter from her a few days ago and she was then in the best of health, and intended coming home to spend the Christmas holiday with her mother.

The body arrived last night by the ten o'clock G.T.R. train, and will be taken to her home at 236 Perry St. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed, and will be given later.

The deceased was of a very bright and lovable disposition; and she will be sadly missed in the family circle, and among her host of friends.

G. H. BALFOUR,
General Manager.

Quebec, Nov. 30th, 1909.

Before submitting the Resolution for the adoption of the Report, the Meeting was addressed at considerable length by the President, Hon. John Sharples, who was followed by the General Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Balfour, both addresses referring to the past year's business of the Bank, and to the various items in the General Statement. Mr. F. E. Kenaston, one of the Western Directors, addressed the Meeting, his speech giving valuable information as to business conditions in Western Canada, and the Western States. Col. J. F. Turnbull, and Capt. W. H. Carter also made addresses on behalf of the Shareholders.

It was then moved by the Hon. John Sharples, and seconded by Mr. Wm. Price:—"That the Report submitted to this Meeting be adopted, and printed for distribution among the Shareholders."—Carried.

Moved by Capt. W. H. Carter, and seconded by Mr. Frank M. Duggan:—"That the Meeting now proceed to the election of Directors for the ensuing year, and that the ballot box for the receipt of votes be kept open until 3 o'clock, or until five minutes have elapsed without a vote being offered, during which time proceedings be suspended."—Carried.

The Scrutineers appointed at the Meeting reported that the following gentlemen were elected as Directors of the Bank for the ensuing year, viz.:—Hon. John Sharples, Wm. Price, Esq.; E. J. Hale, Esq.; Wm. Shaw, Esq.; Mortimer B. Davis, Esq.; Geo. H. Thomson, Esq.; R. T. Riley, Esq., F. E. Kenaston, Esq.; John Galt, Esq.; E. L. Drewry, Esq.

At a subsequent Meeting of the new Board of Directors, Hon. John Sharples was re-elected President, and Mr. Wm. Price, M.P., Vice-President.

Pincher Creek Oil

Mr. C. C. Cottrell,

22 King's Hall, Montreal, Quebec.

Dear Sir,—I am today forwarding you a supply of the Official Prospectus of the Pincher Creek Oil and Refining Company, Limited, which prospectus you will note is signed by the directors, filed and approved by the Registrar, Provincial Government of Alberta, so that its contents are according to facts.

The oil industry is perhaps new to you and your clients, but with the history of oil in the States to the south, you cannot afford to overlook Canada's richest resource and the one which is bound to make the greatest fortunes for her people.

The Directors are all personally known to me. They are Canadians and men of the highest commercial standing and business integrity.

Mr. Herron, M. P., President of the Company, accompanied Dr. Dawson when on his tour of inspection, and learned from that noted geologist the unlimited possibilities of oil in the Pincher Creek district, and Mr. Herron has ever since been enthusiastic over the developing of Canada's high grade oil industry.

Mr. J. E. Woods is the civil engineer who knows every foot of Southern Alberta and selected the valuable properties of the Western Coal and and Coke Company, whose oil lands adjoin this Company's property. It was owing to Mr. Wood's efforts that Pincher Creek Oil and Refining Company, Limited, have secured what is conceded to be the most valuable oil property—1,760 acres—of any of the seven large operating companies now in the Pincher Creek district.

Personally I have gathered oil from the big, crude oil seepage on the Pincher Creek Oil & Refining Co. property, only recently collecting a half barrel of this seepage oil in a short time.

I have taken oil from the well bored this summer on the Pincher Creek Oil & Refining Company's property, and oil can be seen oozing up around the casing and thoroughly saturating the soil. I believe this well when shot with nitroglycerine and a pump put into it will become a good producer.

A friend of mine proposes to spend $40,000 on his own hook boring for oil as near to this well as he can get as soon as Spring opens up.

Page 8, of the prospectus shows C.P.R. letter regarding shipments of Pincher Creek crude oil also a letter from a merchant of the town stating he has handled at least one hundred and fifty barrels and used kerosene and gasoline made from this oil and it gave the whitest light he ever saw.

Therefore we say we have oil on this property of 1760 acres and oil of the highest quality.

Our directors are local men, who know the district and how to obtain the best results at the smallest cost, and this I consider a great point. Directors should always be at the scene of operations.

Here is more of a guarantee than any business man has; more certain than silver or gold mining, for every time the Pincher Creek Oil and Refining Company, Limited, produce one hundred barrels the Canadian Government gives them a cheque for $52.50, "Petroleum bounty." Think what this means on a production of one thousand barrels per day—and single wells have produced twenty-five hundred barrels per day for three years—for one year; the Government would pay us $191,625, or about 40 per cent. dividends. Add to this a profit of only ten cents per gallon on the oil sold and there would be an additional $1,277,500, or 255 per cent., making a total of nearly 300 per cent. on a 1,000 barrel production. The property when thoroughly operated will produce that or it is practically worthless.

Now can you not see why the average advance in stocks of 120 Oil Companies in the United States has been over 2,000 per cent.?

Mr. Cottrell, I feel this will prove one of the very finest investments in Canada, and a proposition that you can conscientiously force your clients to accept as a bona-fide enterprise. Your clients having capital to invest can not do better than take up a block of this stock. As this stock is being offered simultaneously in various Eastern cities, how many shares will I reserve for you to place?

Sincerely Yours,

Signed MARCY D. COUCH,

Secretary Pincher Creek Oil and Refining Co.

VOL. XXXII NO. 301 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, SATURDAY DECEMBER 25. 1909 PRICE TWO CENTS

THE TIMES WISHES ITS MANY READERS A VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS

We Greet You with a Merry Christmas

The Times this morning greets you with a Merry Christmas, more sincere and hearty than in the past, for the year so rapidly drawing to a close has seen a return to Canada and to Peterborough, in a large measure that prosperity which so marked the opening years of the 20th century, and which we began to consider ours by devine right. The set back of a couple of years ago has opened our eyes and we now realize that we only reap that which we sow.

With that thought in mind, and the knowledge that we must earn what we get, we feel today, the 1909th anniversary of the birth of Jesus Christ, the son of Mary, other that joyous and glad, and extend to all a beaming face and a hand of good fellowship! Even though we have suffered disappointments and afflictions, we still have much to make us even glad. The fact that we live in the greatest country God ever made, and in the most beautiful spot in this wonderful country, should fill ours hearts with joy. That we are privileged to give of our bounty to our friends, and to the less fortunate and thus add pleasure to their lots, should fill us with thanksgiving.

Is there a man in all Peterborough who does not feel a brotherly love for all on this glorious festive day? If so that man is not worthy the name of "Good Citizen."

Let everyone join in the great chorus and send forth music from the heart to the God above who sent his Son to the world to be a living example of true manhood, and to show us the only way to gain the eternal reward.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

Four Aldermen Stated That They Would be in the Field Again

INTEREST INCREASING

Of the six aldermen who have to appeal to the electors on January 3rd, the following have stated to The Times that they would be in the field again:—Ald. Bradburn, Ald. Turner, Ald. Duffus and Ald. Duncan. There is no doubt but that these will all be returned and they should be for their record in the council and on the committees has merited a continuance of the people's confidence.

Ald. McIntyre has not yet declared himself so far as The Times can learn, and Ald. Metheral was also undecided up to a short time ago.

Altogether seven aldermen are to be elected. Six for aterm of two years and one for one year to complete Ald. Morrow's term. As yet there has been no new candidates announced that could be seriously considered, and it is very doubtful if ex-Ald. Johnston or Mr. B. Lastar will ask to have their names placed on the ballot paper.

NOMINATION.

The nominations will take place on Monday. Between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock the city clerk will be in the council chamber to receive nominations for the mayoralty, water commissioners and Board of Education.

Between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock the city clerk will receive nominations for aldermen.

In all probability the hour between 11 and 12 o'clock will be devoted to speech making by ex- Ald. Morrow and Mr. E. F. Mason, and other mayoralty candidates. It might also be the good fortune of the ratepayers to hear the water commission candidates as that is a body the ratepayers know very little about.

One man one vote and that vote i to be cast in the division in whic. you live, except for the money by law and then you vote in each ward in which you own property. Under the present system the man who owns a small house away out in the outskirts has just as much authority at the polls as the man who has several hundred thousand dollars invested in all parts of the city.

DYING "LITTLE TIM"

Wanted Funeral on Friday So as Not to Spoil Christmas Dinner.

New York, Dec. 23.—In obedience to his last dying whisper the funeral of Alderman Timothy P. Sullivan (Little Tim), will be held tomorrow, and arrangements for it are being completed today. After lying for many hours in a state of coma the community leader became conscious last night, and whispered to his cousin "Big Time" Sullivan, who was at the bedside:

"I want the funeral on Friday so that the poor fellows of the Bowery can have their Christmas dinner as usual. I'm sorry I won't be there."

With a smile on his face "Litt.e Tim" sank into final consciousness. Those were his last words. So the annual Christmas dinner given by the Sullivans for many years in the club rooms of the Timothy D. Sullivan Association on the Bowery will take place Saturday, with only the "Master of Ceremonies" absent.

Little Tim took great pride in these dinners, and no matter what the state of his health, could always be found at them each Christmas day, hustling big plates of smoking turkey and "Bowery buckets" of beer, and none who ever came went hungry.

STOPPED AT BOUNDARY.

Another Instance of Uncle Sam Shutting Out One of His Residents.

Winnipeg, Dec. 23.—Another boundary incident occurred today when P. Gervais, a French-Canadian, of Fargo, North Dakota, who has been a resident of the United States for eighteen years, and says he was naturalized in 1900, was stopped at the line and refused admittance by the American authorities. He has been visiting relatives at Eli for the past six weeks, and was on his way home. He did not have his naturalization papers with him, and doubts whether he can find them. He is a cripple.

E.F.Mason in the Field Announced Yesterday

Mr. E. F Mason will be a candidate for the mayor's chair for 1910. He decided yesterday and now his friends will spend a Merry Christmas and on the first day of the week they will start a lively campaign to elect their man to the chair. Mr. Mason was unwilling to re-enter the city government, but his friends and admirers remembered the splendid course he pursued during the three years he was in the council and the two years he looked after the finances of the city, and they made up their minds that he was the man to lookafter their interests next year.

A great feature in Mr. Mason's favor is, that whatever he goes in for he puts his whole heart into it and never lets up until he has carried it through to a successful finish When he was chairman of the Finance Committee he had the details of every department at his finger ends and from day to day he could defend any argument which might be brought up. He is a progressive man and sees in the future great prospects for Peterborough if the proper course is persued.

He will outline a policy at the nominations and on that policy he will appeal to the people of Peterborough for their votes.

Official Information from O.H.A. Secretary

Officers of O. H. A. clubs, especially managers and secretaries, should take cognizance of the following official information, which was issued last night by Secretary W. A. Hewitt:

Certificates are issued at the discretion of the Executive, and are revocable without notice. All players must have certificates.

O. H. A. Clubs are warned not to play with or against professionals, or teams suspended by the Association.

Players eligible to play in the junior O. H. A. this season must be under twenty years of age on January 1, 1910.

Any club convicted of having in its membership professionals of any kind shall forfeit its membership in the association.

Junior certificates should not be sent in to the O. H. A. Secretary unless each is accompanied with the proper age declaration. Avoid all the confusion possible.

The O.H.A. executive has no power of reinstatement in breaches of the amateur definition of any kind, and applications for reinstatement cannot even be considered by the committee.

Each club is responsible for its own players, and should not apply for a certificate for a doubtful player without notifying the Secretary of the circumstances of his case.

Clubs of any other recognized amateur hockey association are regarded as such by the O. H. A., and interleague matches are permissible without official sanction.

When a change of residence permit is desired, the player concerned must take out a statutory declaration covering completely the circumstances of his change of residence and forward it through the club he desires to play with, to the O. H. A. Secretary.

Clubs unable to agree on a referee must notify the O. H. A. Secretary at least 72 hours before the match in order to secure a competent official. At the same time they should send in their suggestions as to whom they would prefer as referee.

Any clubs using players not qualified under the residence rule, will be summarily suspended. The date this year is August 1.

No player can play in an exhibition match with any club but his own without first receiving a permit from the O. H. A. Executive.

No player is eligible to play in the intermediate series who plays in more than one senior championship match this season, and no player is eligible to play in the junior series who plays in a senior series or in more than one intermediate match this season.

Club Secretaries should see that the players have their certificates on hand early to show to the referee, so that there will be no delay in starting the game.

Home clubs should see that a dark distinguishing line is drawn on the ice between the goal posts and small white flags provided for the goal umpires.

No player can play in an O. H. A. schedule game who is or has been in the current season a member of, or has played with, in the same association year, any other club in a recognized hockey association—city and town leagues excepted—without special permission of the Executive.

Each club shall play half the expenses of the referee. It shall be $5 for all distances up to 50 miles, and he shall be allowed at the rate of 10c per mile one way for all distances above 50 miles. When a referee is away from home over night, and the mileage is below eighty miles, he shall be allowed mileage for 80 miles at 10 cents a mile.

The expenses of the travelling club are at the rate of 10c per mile for one way for eight men, which expenditure must be guaranteed and paid by the home club.

When the home-and-home matches are played in the same city or town the home club is to take the net proceeds of the gate.

Any club intending to default a match must send to the Secretary of the opposing club, and also to the Secretary of the association, at least three days' clear notice, exclusive of the day on which the match is to be played. Unless the Executive shall otherwise order, any club failing to send such notice shall be subject to a penalty of $25, together with allegitimate expenses incurred by the competing club in connection with such match. The penalty is expulsion.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Smart, of Toronto, are spending Christmas with their daughters, Mrs. G. A. Gohoen and Mrs. O. S. Matchett.

Had His Leg Amputated While Sleigh Riding

An unfortunate accident occurred yesterday afternoon just before 3 o'clock when Cyril Rathbone, the ten year old son of Mr. Francis Rathbone 606 Downey St., had his right leg completely severed. In company with Birrill Moore and Roderick Cameron, the little fellow was going sleighriding on Smith St. A freight train was going towards the station and the young fellow caught the side of it and just above Aylmer St. he was pulled under and the wheels passed over his leg, taking it off.

The Dan Spence ambulance was called and the injured boy was taken to Nichols Hospital, where Dr Cameron is attending him.

W. G. Morrow is in the Fight for Mayoralty

Mr. W. G. Morrow, ex-Alderman, announced himself a candidate for the mayoralty a couple of weeks ago. It looked like an election by acclamation until a couple of days ago when the friends of Mr E. F. Mason induced that gentleman to enter the field. There will be a contest, and Ald. Morrow will open his campaign at once. He will announce to the people on Monday a policy which he will pursue and upon that policy he will seek election.

Ald. Morrow has been the finance minister for the past two years. His record as such is fresh in the minds of the ratepayers and it needs no comment. He is in touch with all the affairs of the city and he has always taken an active interest in them. He has the time and the ability to devote to the work and the city's affairs will not suffer under his guidance.

Ald. Morrow has a large circle of friends upon whose solicitation he entered the field and those friends will stand by him in the contest and will leave no stone unturned to assure his election.

Local Option Campaign

The liquor party has at last shown itself in the form of campaign literature at the eleventh hour. The citizens of any community must decide for themselves in the fact of this well known plan of campaign. For a whole year a very competent, thoughtful and widely-read editorial committee has been putting forth all the facts relating to the importance and value of local option, and no answer has been attempted. The committee in charge of public meetings have arranged for the most representative men from far and near to give personal testimony to the great value of local option in the places where it has been tried, yet these men have not called forth any opposition. The only man that has been bold enough to be the liquor men's champion has made such a fool of the whole thing that they now repudiate him altogether. Now at the last moment they make the attempt to publish misleading statements, and in every way possible to falsify the conditions in well known places.

Always remember that the whiskey trade has always been a licensed evil and has always been a source of crime and ruined manhood. The words of Governor Hanly are timely.

WHY I HATE THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

I have seen so much of the evils of the liquor traffic, so much of its physical ruin, so much of its mental blight, so much of its tears and heartache, that I have come to regard the business as one that must be held and controlled by strong and effective laws. I bear no malice toward those engaged in the business, but I hate the traffic. I hate its every phase I hate it for its commercialism I hate it for its greed and avarice.

I hate it for its domination in politics. I hate it for its incessant effort to debauch the suffrage of the country. I hate it for its utter disregard of law.

I hate it for the load it straps to labor's back, for its wounds to genius. I hate it for the human wrecks it has caused. I hate it for the alms houses it peoples, for the prisons it fills, for the insanity it begats, for its countless graves in Potters' fields

I hate it for the mental ruin it imposes upon its victims, for its spiritual blight, for its moral degradation. I hate it for the crimes it has committed. I hate it for the homes it has destroyed. I hate it for the hearts it has broken. I hate it for the grief it has caused womanhood—the scalding tears, the hopes deferred, the strangled aspirations. I hate it for its heartless cruelty to the aged, the infirm and the helpless for the shadow it throws upon the lives of children.

I hate it as virtue hates vice, as truth hates error, as righteousness hates sin, as justice hates wrong, as liberty hates tyranny, as freedom hates oppression.

The voice against the saloon is not only the voice of professed religious people. What a philosopher said—

John Stuart Mill said "Any trade that tends to produce pauperism and crime is an evil against society and society has a perfect right to deal with it.

Every member of society should

For a Bigger and Better Peterborough

This country would have been today a poor and unimportant colony had it not been for Confederation. Confederation begot a spirit of co-operation among the people. It is this united strength and energy that has made Canada.

The United States of America is a great compact republic. If it had not been for the spirit of co-operation infused by Lincoln it might now be split in twain.

The spirit of co-operation has done much for Peterborough in the past years. It has carried through a program of progress because all the people united in the enterprises for advancement. There were no laggards and no factions. Each citizen was as much in the forefront as his brother.

We have only a foretaste of what co-operation can do for this city. The great prize lies in the future.

What about that tomorrow of ours? It will be a great tomorrow if there remains with us the spirit of co-operation that made our successes of yesterday.

This is a personal question. Do you mean to do your share of the co-operative work of making Peterborough reach her fullest possibilities? Answer that question in a heart to heart talk with yourself. You are proud of the city, you are proud of what she has done, you are proud of the future that lies before her.

Co-operation of Peterborough people is the one thing needed for the opening year. Let us all pull together for a bigger and better Peterborough.

WILL FORM A DISTRICT

NEW LOCAL MANAGER

The Bell Telephone Company is about to form a new district to be known as the Peterborough district, with Mr. F. W. Dean as local manager. A meeting of the district managers will be held in January, when the boundaries of the new district will be outlined. They are likely to be Kingston on the east and Lindsay on the north west and including the towns along the lake front. Mr. Ernie Bruce having been promoted to the managership at Collingwood and Mr. Smith the present manager there, will in all probability come here

MRS SNEAD'S MOTHER.

Has Been Indicted With Her Two Sisters, But Police Have Not Taken Her Yet.

New York, Dec. 23.—Although Mrs. Caroline B. Martin, mother of Ocey Snead, has been indicted with her two sisters for the murder of the East Orange bathtub victim, the New Jersey authorities have not yet obtained possession of Mrs. Martin's person, and the self-willed elderly woman is determined not to be taken from New York State without a fight. Today her attorney, Colonel Robert J. Haine, announced that he would at once take steps for bringing habeas corpus proceedings to test the strength of the case against his client. Alternative indictments have been found against Mrs. Martin, Miss Virginia Wardlaw, and Mrs. Mary Snead, under which they may be tried either as having directly caused the death of Ocey Snead,or abetted her in suicide. This was held today to indicate that the prosecutor means to leave no avenue through which the elderly trio can escape the alleged responsibility of having been the instruments through which the tragedy was enacted.

NEW MUSIC.

Mr. Gliddon Heard Several New "Marches" While in Toronto.

When he was in Toronto attending the recent concerts given in Massey Hall by Sousa's band, Mr. Gliddon, conductor of the 57th regimental Band was much taken with several of the numbers played by the widely known "March King's" superb organization of musicians. Among these three spirited marches by Sousa himself, viz.: "The Joy of the Yankee Navy," "Diplomat," and "Hands Across the Sea," and are all written in that stirring, tuneful and unconventional way that have gained the Sousa marches such a gained popularity. Included in the list of other new numbers which Sousa's band played, and which have been added to the 57th's already extensive library are, "Pet of the Guards," march Pryor; the Egyptian serenade "Amina" and the intermezzo "The Glow Worm," both by Paul Lincke; "Frozen Bill," rag. Pryor; medley of popular airs of 1903, and "Miserere" from Il Trovatore," with duet for cornet and baritone.

All the selections mentioned are especially attractive and will be given together with the latest addition to the band's repertoire of popular and standard compositions, at the five successive monthly concerts which will be held in the Conservatory Music Hall, commencing in January

CHRISTMAS GREETING.

No Christmas season has ever brought with it such blessings, such peace and plenty, as our country enjoys at the present moment. Preparations for the quiet enjoyment of the Yuletide season have been going on apace, and the mercantile pulse indicates that there has been a happy distribution of wealth in this new land.

To all its subscribers The Times sends the old greeting "A Merry Christmas."

Croup is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes and it has never disappointed them. 6

Dying of Cholera

What is it that keeps down cholera, cramps, and summer complaints in America? Ask any doctor or live druggist and he will tell you "Nerviline." Just fancy, a million bottles are sold every year to people who use Nerviline for stomach disorder, cramps, flatulence, and summer complaint. For fifty years in most Canadian homes no other pain-relieving medicine but Nerviline is kept. Nothing cures the aches, pains and sickness of the entire family so quickly as Nerviline.

LETTER NO. 4272

"As far back as I can remember, at least 50 years ago, there was never a time that our house was without 'Nerviline.' In the summer time, when the children ate green apples and got sick with diarrhoea and cramps, it was Nerviline that cured them. Mr. father used Nerviline frequently to cure gas on his stomach and acute indigestion. There are but few minor ailments that Nerviline does not cure, and I know of no medicine so useful; in fact, so indispensable around the home as Nerviline.'

This letter, written by Mrs. N. Cl Bateaer, a well known resident in Batteress, shows the high opinion entertained of Nerviline by those who have used it constantly for nearly half a century.

You'll never regret using Nerviline. Get it today, keep it on and for an accident or sudden case of sickness in your home. Refuse anything else offered you instead of Nerviline. 25c per bottle, or five for $1.00. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

OUR SENSE OF SPACE.

Experiments With Infants to Show That It Is Innate.

There are many optical illusions which show that our perception of distance, height and space are acquired rather than instinctive, and in the domain of psychological physiology one of the standing controversies touches this point. The German school of Leipsig is inclined to affirm that all our perceptions of distance, area and solidity and our ability to distinguish between right and left, up and down, before and behind, are acquired as a result of long practice and experience.

A person blind from birth who has learned to distinguish triangles, squares, circles and objects of other forms by touch is not able immediately after the acquisition of sight to distinguish these familiar objects by sight alone. He or she is still compelled to rely on feeling. In the beginning all objects appear to such a person (and perhaps they do so in the case of babies) as shapeless, tremulous spots of color situated close to the eye.

In the course of the debate that raged in Germany some experiments were made with babies. It appeared that in babies what must be described for want of a better term as a sense of space seems to exist. The infant was held in the arms of the experimenters for about a minute, at the end of which interval the child was permitted to drop upon its bed. In every instance the child exhibited a dread or panic when it felt the arms of the persons holding it relax. The babe, even at the age of one month, seemed to understand that its support was departing. It held, or, rather, clutched, at anything it could reach, whether the arm, neck or collar of the person holding it.

From these experiments it has been inferred that there must exist a sense of space almost from infancy. What is the dread of falling but a manifestation of an innate sense of space?—London Post.

A LOVE TRAGEDY.

In 1858, when Ruskin was in his fortieth year, he was asked by a friend to give some lessons in drawing to a child named Rose La Touche, whose name, indeed, was French, but whose family were Irish. There sprang up between Ruskin and this young girl a very charming friendship, which, of course, at the time could be nothing but a friendship. They wrote each other letters and exchanged drawings, and then for a while they did not meet.

Ten years passed by before they saw each other. Meanwhile the child, whom he had remembered as a blue eyed, saucy, clever little blood with ripe red lips and hair like fine spun gold, had become a very lovely young woman of nineteen. They resumed their old acquaintance, but in a very different way. Though Ruskin was now nearly fifty, he gave to Rose La Touche an adoration and a passion such as he had never felt before. On her side she no longer thought of him as "very ugly," but was singularly drawn to him despite the difference in their years.

The two met often. They took long strolls together in the pleasant fields of Surrey, and at last Ruskin begged her to make him happy and to be his wife. Oddly enough, however, she hesitated, not because he was so much older than herself, but because he had ceased to be what she regarded as "a true believer." Some of the things that he had written shocked her as being almost atheistic. She was herself, underneath all her gaiety of manner, a rigid and uncompromising Protestant. She used phrases from the Bible in her ordinary talk, and when she spoke of marriage with John Ruskin she said that she could not endure to be "yoked with an unbeliever."

Yet her heart was torn at the thought of sending him away, and so for several years their intimacy continued, he pleading with her and striving hard to make her see that love was every thing. She, on the other hand, read over those passages of the Old Testament which seemed to bar all compromise.

At last, in 1872, when she was twenty-four and he was fifty-three, she gave him her final answer. She would not marry him unless he could believe as she did. His honesty forbade him to deceive her by a pretended conversion, and so they parted, never to see each other again. How deeply she was affected is shown by the fact that she soon fell ill. She grew worse and worse until at last it was quite certain that she could not live. Then Ruskin wrote to her and begged that he might see her. She answered with a note in which she feebly traced the words:

"You may come if you can tell me that you love God more than you love me."

When Ruskin read this his very soul was racked with agony, and he cried out:

"No, no; then I cannot go to her, for I love her even more than God!"

When she died, as she did soon after, the light of his life went out for Ruskin.—Lyndon Orr in Munsey's Magazine.

The Ocean's Age.

The ocean, of course, is not as old as the earth, because it could not be formed until the surface of the globe had sufficiently cooled to retain water upon it, but it seems chimerical to try to measure the age of the sea. Nevertheless Professor Joly undertook the task, basing his estimate upon the ratio of the amount of sodium it contains to that annually contributed by the washing from the continents. He thus reached the conclusion that the ocean has been in existence between 80,000,000 and 170,000,000 years. This does not seem a very definite determination, but then in geology estimates of time in years are extremely difficult because of the uncertainty of the elements of the calculation. The most that can be said for such results is that they are probable.

Couldn't Signal It!

During some tactical operations one of the ships of the squadron had made some bad blunders, and at length the admiral completely lost his temper. He stormed about his quarterdeck and informed his hearers of his opinion of the officer in command of the erring ship. When he paused for want of breath he turned to the signaler and said to him, "And you can tell him that, sir!"

The man scratched his head meditatively. "I beg pardon, sir," he ventured, "but I don't think we have quite enough flags for your message."—London Answers.

Cannibalism.

Among regular cannibals the most varied motives have been found. There are Indians who are said to eat their enemies by way of insult and Australians who consume their deceased parents as a mark of affection. Some tribes devour the dead enemy to abolish him utterly, others to assimilate his virtues. Africa has revealed cannibalism of every sort, from the most solemn religious rite to the most prosaic gratification of appetite and taste.

Traced a Long Way.

She—How far can your ancestry be traced? He—Well, when my grandfather resigned his position as cashier of a country bank they traced him as far as China, but he got away.—London Tit-Bits.

The Remedy.

"What do you think of a man with a rip in his coat and only three buttons on his vest?"

"He should either get married or divorced."—Boston Transcript.

How It Happened.

There was a man in our town
Who hunted for the pole,
But another fellow came along
And rescued the long sought goal.

And when he found the pole was found,
With all his might and main,
He jumped into his auto
And discovered it again.

—Ellis O. Jones in Judge.

Even Up.

"I suppose you heard what Meanby did in church last Sunday when the plate came round to him."

"Dropped a button in it, I suppose."

"Worst than that. He leaned over and whispered: 'I paid the pastor's car fare yesterday. We'll call it square.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

JOHN HAY'S FIRST SPEECH.

A Witty Response to the Toast "Our Countrywomen" at a Banquet in Paris When He Was Secretary of Legation in the French Capital.

By official proclamation President Johnson set apart the first Thursday of December, 1865, as a day of national thanksgiving. The American residents and visitors in Paris deemed it an occasion to be celebrated with more than usual ceremony. The result was that at 8 o'clock on the evening of the 7th of December some 250 of our countrymen sat down to a dinner in the spacious dining room of the Grand hotel in Paris, then regarded by travelers as the most elegant public dining hall in Europe.

After a succession of speeches the chairman closed the entertainment with a toast to "Our Countrywomen" and asked Colonel John Hay, then secretary of legation in Paris, to respond to it. As this was probably the first public speech Mr Hay had ever made and though nothing he then said could possibly add any luster to his subsequent career, it may justly be said that it was more successful than the first public effort in oratory either of Sheridan or of Beaconsfield. He replied in part as follows.

"My Countrymen (and I would say my countrywomen but that the former word embraces the latter whenever opportunity offers)—I cannot understand why I should have been called upon to respond to this toast of all others, having nothing but theoretical ideas upon the subject to be treated—one, in fact, I must be presumed never to have handled. [Laughter and applause.]

"I have been called up, too, by a committee of married men. I can think of no claim I have to be considered an authority in these matters except what might arise from the fact of my having resided in early life in the same neighborhood with Brigham Young, who has since gained some reputation as a thorough and practical ladies' man. [Great laughter.] I am not conscious, however, of having imbibed any such wisdom at the feet of this matrimonial Gamaliel as should justly entitle me to be heard among the elders.

"So I am inevitably forced to the conclusion that these husbands cannot trust each other's discretion. The secrets of the prison house are too important to be trusted to one of the prisoners. So ignorance of the matter in hand has come to be held an absolute prerequisite when any one is to be sacrificed to the exigencies of this toast.

"I really do not see why this should be so. It is useless for husbands to attempt to keep this thin veneering of a semblance of authority. The symbols of government they still retain deceive nobody. They may comfort themselves with the assurance of some vague, invisible supremacy, like that of the spiritual mikado or the grand llama, but the true tycoon is the wife. A witty and profound observer the other day said, 'Every husband doubtless knows he is master in his own house, but he also knows his neighbor's wife is master in hers.' [Laughter and cheers.]

"Why should not you, husbands of America, admit this great truth and give up the barren scepter? Things would go much easier if you ceased the struggle to keep up appearances. The ladies will not be hard on you. They will recognize the fact that, after all, you are their fellow creatures, and you can be very useful to them in many little ways. They will doubtless allow you to pay their bills, take care of their children and carry their votes to the ballot box just as you do now.

"You had better come down gracefully, and, above all, let no feeling of discovered inferiority betray you into evil speaking of the domestic powers. There have been recent instances of distinguished gentlemen, no doubt instigated by rebellious husbands, who have recklessly accused these guardian angels of your fireside of being extravagant and frivolous. These things are never uttered with impunity. I would not insure the life of one who libels the ladies for less than cent per cent.

"Discite justitiam moniti et non temnere Divos, which, as you may not understand the backwoods pronunciation of the classic warning, I will translate with a freedom befitting the day we celebrate:

"Now, all you happy husbands,
Beware the rebel's fate!
Live in obedience all your lives,
Give up your hatchways to your wives
And never stay out late."

The Alternative.

Constituent—Say, Bill, the salary that goes with my job isn't half enough to live on. Can't you use your influence to have it raised a little? Alderman—I'm afraid not, Jake. But I'll do better than that. I'll use my influence to have a cheaper man appointed to the place.—Chicago Tribune.

A Quick Thinker.

Dittendorf—Here come two evil looking rascals. I shouldn't wonder if we were held up. Heine—I'm afraid so. By the bye, here's that dollar you lent me this morning.—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Preventics, the new Candy Cold Cure Tablets, are said by Druggists to have four special specific advantages over all other remedies for a cold. First—They contain no Quinine, nothing harsh or sickening. Second—They give almost instant relief. Third—Pleasant to the taste, like candy. Fourth—A large box 48 Preventics—at 25 cents. Also fine for feverish children. Sold by all dealers.

FAMOUS STAMP COLLECTION.

One of the largest private stamp collections ever sold has just been acquired, for the sum of £24,500, by A. H. Peckitt, a London stamp dealer, from the executors of the late Sir William Avery of Birmingham. Collected throughout a long life from the age of eight, it is generally considered to be the largest general collection of postage stamps next to that in the British Museum. It is rich in all the great rarities, comprises from 90,000 to 100,000 stamps, and represents almost completely the postal systems of every country in the world.

Two "gems" are unused Post-office Mauritius stamps engraved by a local watchmaker in Mauritius in 1847. The Prince of Wales paid £1,450 at auction for the two-penny stamp unused. Only two copies of the penny stamp in this state are known. Recently in Paris a collection of Swiss stamps of the millionaire banker M. Paul Mirabaud was sold for approximately £8,000, but in the Avery collection there are several unique pieces lacking in the Mirabaud one. Unused copies of the double Geneva stamp, of which there are seven and a half in one block, fetch £75 each. So rare is the whole for two rows of the five centimes Eagle stamp of Geneva that its value can hardly be estimated.

The Avery collection of three-cornered issues of Cape of Good Hope is many respects is superior to the Vernon Roberts collection, sold to Mr. Peckitt in 1907 for £4,000. The original stamps were engraved in London, but during a temporary shortage in the colony a local engraver had to provide an imitation. These are excessively rare. There are a unique block of four of the penny brick-red stamp and a pair and a single of the fourpence unused and five superb used pairs. Among the stamps of Ceylon the unperforated ninepence lilac-brown stamp is valued at £125. The collection also includes a copy of the three-lire stamp of Tuscany unused, worth about £100.

The pair of the twenty-seven para Moldavian stamp are priceless, and in no other collection will there be found so large a number of the rare first stamps of Moldavia, for which Sir William Avery had a penchant. On one day he bought three complete sets, twelve stamps, for £2,000—a record deal in any single class of rarity.

The collection includes many rare stamps of Great Britain, among them being some of the Parliamentary envelopes issued in January 1840, some five months before the issue of the first stamp and the Mulready envelope. There is a part sheet of twenty of the rare penny black V.R. stamp, worth about £10 a piece singly, and of almost priceless value in a large block as in this instance. Sir William has also an experimental stamp showing the first attempts to perforate postage stamps by Mr. Henry Archer.

There are of the famous circular British Guiana stamps of 1850 the four cents on orange paper, another on yellow paper, two copies of the eight cents on green paper, and five of the twelve cents on blue paper, some being valued at over £100. Of the 1856 series the one cent black on magenta stamp is missing, the only copy in existence being in the possession of a French collector. Of the companion rarity, the four cents on blue paper, Sir William possessed a superb copy valued at over £200. Of the next series of 1862 the four cents black on blue is shown in a complete reconstructed sheet, including seventeen unused and unsigned copies, each lacking the signature of the postmaster. Only three examples of such sheets are known, the others being in the British Museum and in the French collection referred to.

Unique again is the only word which will describe the beautiful unused pair of the 12D black stamp of Canada, of which the collection contains five copies in all. This stamp is worth $500 a copy.

A Carlyle Retort

An empty-headed duke once said to Thomas Carlyle at a dinner:

"The British people, sir, can afford to laugh at theories."

Carlyle, scowling, replied:

"The French nobility of a hundred years ago thought that they could afford to laugh at theorists too. But a man came and wrote a book called 'The Social Contract.' This man was Jean Jacques Rousseau, and his book was a theory and nothing but a theory. The nobles could laugh at his theory, but their skins went to bind the second edition of the book."

Oldest Inns In England.

The Fighting Cocks Inn, on the river Ver, St. Albans, said to be over 1,100 years old, claims to be the oldest inhabited house in the kingdom, but the Saracen's Head, Newark, memorable in the story of Jeanie Deans, can actually it seems, show title deeds dating back to 1341. The oldest tavern bill extant is that of Richard de Insula, Bishop of Durham, at the Angel Inn, Blyth, Notts, anno 1374. The item "In Coquina, 27s. 5 1-2," is somewhat excessive, taking the relative value of money into consideration. [illegible] changed to a very much lighter hue within the space of a few minutes. The light acted upon the optic nerve, thus causing the pigment cells all over the skin to contract or relax.

The Witch's Track.

At Peel, in the Isle of Man, it is related that a witch said once the herring fleet would not return. Every ship was lost, and she was rolled down the hill in a barrel set with spikes. The grass has never grown since in the barrel's track.

The "Worthy" Fuller.

Intimately connected with the County of Northampton is that "stout Church and King-man," Fuller, who speaks with a peculiar love of the great corn county, its fruitful earth and plentiful water; and "if that country esteem me no disgrace to it, I esteem it an honor to me." At Aldwinkle St. Peter's—his father was "the painful preacher" of that place—his early boyhood was passed, until he was sent, at the early age of twelve years, "a boy of pregnant wit," to Queen's College at Cambridge. He was preferred to the rectory of Broadwindsor, in Dorset, where he began his history of the Crusades, under the title of the "Historie of the Holy Warre," marked by his peculiar humor, for wit was the stuff and substance of Fuller's intellect, which with his deportment, "according to the old English guise," made him popular in the "voiced pulpits" of London, when he was called thither in the memorable convocation of Canterbury, and which won him, when lecturer at the chapel of St. Mary Savoy, crowded audiences which extended far into the chapel yard. A partizan of peace, a preacher of ardent loyalism, when London was well-nigh abandoned by active royalists, Fuller was obliged to make his way secretly to the "home of lost causes," where he became chaplain to the regiment of Lord Hopton, and was considered one of the great cavalier parsons, but where, for the last five years of the war, he "had little list or leisure to write, fearing to be made a history. All that time 'tis collecting materials for his work from old buildings and ancient gossips, which were afterwards made use of in his "Church History" and the "Worthies of England."

Remarkable Song Service.

A remarkable service was held one Sunday recently in the chapel of Pentonville Prison, England, when over a thousand prisoners attended and listened to the singing of a male voices choir from London. A large prison chapel, crowded with the prisoners—men of all ages and sizes, clad in their khaki-colored prison garb, and wearing their identification badges on their chests—presented a remarkable sight. Here and there the yellow was relieved by the blue uniforms of the warders. The men listened with manifest interest to the singing of favorite hymns by the choristers, and as the strains of touching pieces reached their ears, one could see hard faces perceptibly softening, and now and again a head would bury itself in a big blue prison handkerchief. The hymns sung included "Fight the good fight," "O, love that will not let me go," and "Lead, kindly light," and among the choruses rendered were "The comrades' song of hope."

Also fine for feverish children. Sold by all dealers.

Almost every one has heard of or knows something of The Prudential Insurance Company of America. Home Office, Newark, N. J., often called the Gibraltar life insurance company, because of its use of the Rock of Gibraltar as a trade-mark.

This big company has established a branch office in this city and is conducting business in both branches of insurance, Industrial and Ordinary.

Almost thirty-four years ago Industrial insurance was unknown in the United States. Introduced on this continent by John F. Dryden, founder and present chief executive of The Prudential, the Industrial plan at once found favor with the public.

This life insurance is applicable to every member of the family, from one year of age to seventy.

The premiums are collected weekly from the homes of the insured and are from three cents per week upward, according to the amount insured for, thus bringing the benefits of life insurance protection within the means of the wage-earning population.

Much of the thrift and economy of this same wage-earning population may be traced to industrial insurance. The habit of saving required to meet the weekly premiums unconsciously, but surely, inculcates similar habits of thrift and saving in other directions.

In the Ordinary branch all the popular forms of Life and Endowment policies are issued, in amounts from $1,000 up, and the cost is the lowest consistent with the liberal provisions of the policy and the high grade of life insurance afforded. As an investment a Prudential policy offers superior advantages.

The high standing of The Prudential makes it possible to do business satisfactorily, because there can be no doubt of a Prudential promise.

The Prudential has seven and three-quarter millions of policies in force, representing nearly a billion and a half of insurance.

In extending its field of operations to this city The Prudential offers a splendid opportunity for our young men to obtain profitable employment. Progress and promotion will be quick if worth and ability are shown. Any young man desirous of making money and building up a successful future should consult The Prudential's representative here.

Prudential Agents will be glad to furnish full and complete information concerning the plans of The Prudential to any one. You should take an interest in life insurance, for it may make a big difference in your family's happiness some day.

THE BARBER'S TRADE.

Men Who Followed It and Afterward Rose to Fame.

Perhaps the best known of all barbers who have attained fame were Arkwright, the improver of the spinning jenny, who is said to have turned to mechanics when the wigmaking trade fell off, and Jeremy Taylor, who was brought up in his father's shaving shop at Cambridge.

Edward Sugden, afterward made Baron Saint Leonards, was the son of a hair cutter in a shop in Lincoln's Inn, London. A story is told to the effect that once when Sugden was addressing a crowd in the interest of his candidacy to Parliament a man called out to know what soap cost, and how lather was made. "I am particularly obliged to that gentleman," Sir Edward is reported to have said, "for reminding me of my lowly origin. It is true that I am a barber's son and that I myself was once a barber. If the gentleman who so politely reminded me of these facts had been a barber he would have continued to remain one till the end of his life."

Charles Abbott, Baron Tenterden, was also a barber's son, and it is related how, when he was made a peer of England, he took his own son to a little Westminster shop and bade him remember it was there that his grandfather had been accustomed to shave others for a penny.

William Falconer, the poet, was a poor barber in Edinburgh until his poem "The Shipwreck" brought him renown and incidentally a commission in the royal navy.

Cregga, associated with the south sea bubble, was a barber who turned promoter. He became enormously wealthy. But when the south sea crash came his fortune dwindled, and in despair he committed suicide.

Giovanni Belsoni of Padua was a barber with a varied and interesting history. Belsoni set up a shop in England, but soon found more profit in posing at Sadler's Wells as the "Patagonian Samson." Being of thrifty temperament, Belsoni accumulated quite a fortune as the discoverer of interesting relics in the tombs of Egypt and as a traveler.

An Ancient Mountain Race.

The most ancient people still living in the mountains of India are the Todas. Long before the arrival of the other tribes of the region the Todas were the kings of this country, which they held in common without strife or treachery to one another. The Todas are a fine race, tall, well proportioned and with regular features. Their complexion is of a light brown, and their eyes are bright and intelligent. The men wear a linen or cotton garment that reminds a European of the Roman toga. Their bearing is proud and dignified; their countenances are pleasing; their fine straight hair is regularly cut and well kept. Their superior appearance, the mystery that surrounds them and the obscurity of their origin have caused certain students of ethnology to suppose that the Todas are descended from the soldiers of Darius or Alexander, the ancient conquerors of India.

Deaf Guests at Hotels.

"To waken a deaf person who wishes to be called at a certain time in the morning is about the hardest proposition a hotel clerk runs up against," said a member of that fraternity. "To ring the telephone is useless, because the man can't hear. Knocking for the same reason is futile. Now and then a guest who has lost his hearing suggests that he leave his door open, so we can walk right in and shake him, but there are so many chances of somebody less guileless than ourselves walking in ahead of us that we can't consent to that simple expedient. It seems to me that the man who can patent a device for waking the deaf is sure of fame and fortune, not to mention the gratitude of the brotherhood of hotel clerks."—New York Globe.

SEAWEED.

Several Varieties Are Valuable For Food Purposes.

Seaweed is not much to look at, but seaweed does not depend so much upon beauty as upon more substantial merit to make itself worthy of attention. Various species of it are used in manufactures, and several varieties are edible, the most important of the latter being Irish or carragheen moss, used in the preparation of jellies—blancmange, for instance—dulse or dillesk, very highly thought of by Scotland, particularly when roasted by wrapping about hot irons, and kelp or tangle.

Irish moss and some other species, particularly eel grass and flat stalk rock weed, have been found valuable as cattle food, especially when boiled to destroy the rank taste and mixed with meal. The eel grass and rock weed compare favorably with hay as regards the most important constituent—protein—containing 6.06 and 8.21 per cent respectively. They are deficient in fat, but contain a large amount of ash.

The great bulk of the seaweed gathered, however, is used as a fertiliser, and the average seaweed contains large quantities of all the essential fertilising elements. Allowing 10 cents a pound for nitrogen, 2 cents a pound for phosphoric acid and 4 cents a pound for potash—and these are as low prices as it is possible to procure these materials in any form—a ton of seaweed containing 80 per cent water is worth as a fertiliser $1.42 a ton.—New York Times.

Frederic Harrison's Rules of Life.

"Touch not tobacco, spirits, nor any anodyne thing. Rise from every meal with an appetite. Walk daily for two hours. Sleep nightly for seven hours. Reverence all to whom reverence is due. Be content with what you have." Such are the rules of life laid down by Mr. Frederic Harrison, the veteran Positivist and man of letters, who celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday recently. Mr. Harrison lives up to his rules, and is as active and as well today as many men half his age. Indeed, he claims to feel younger than ever. He is not sparing in his denunciation of bad habits. Smoking he describes as a "beastly habit"; playing cards as "wearisome and inane." With regard to literary work, he claims never to have written for the sake of writing or for money, but only

THE OLD TIME NAVY.

Jack tars in the British navy in Nelson's day were treated like dogs and worse. Imps of midshipmen, twelve or thirteen years old, were permitted to cuff and kick them with impunity, and none dared protest. Torture, under the guise of punishment, was part of the regular routine of the service. From one to five dozen lashes with the cat-o'-nine-tails could be inflicted at the whim of a commander, but the usual number was three dozen.

Such sentences were for trifling derelictions of duty. For really serious offenses, such as violence to a superior officer, desertion or mutiny, offenders were strung up at the yardarm or dogged round the fleet, the latter a punishment more dreaded than death itself. Other savage punishments, such as "starting," "running the gantlet" and the hideous one known as "keelhauling" were also frequently resorted to, although nominally they were illegal.

Nowadays, of course, a bluejacket, although subject to naval discipline, is in no more danger of being subjected to corporal punishment than is the average civilian.

His officers are courteous, kindly and considerate, and if his life is not a happy and comfortable one he has, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, only himself to blame.—Pearson's Weekly.

Louis the Magnificent.

As soon as he rose he was dressed by his valet in a coat of blue cloth. Two little epaulets of gold cord were sewed to the cloth. Under the coat was a white waistcoat, which was almost entirely hidden by the ribbons and wide sashes of his orders. His satin breeches ended in a pair of high boots or gaiters of red velvet, which came above the knees and were more supple than leather, for the thickness of leather on legs that were often painful from gout would have created too much friction. He made a great point of these boots. He thought that they made him look like a general, ready at any moment to spring upon a horse, though this was a physical impossibility to him since he was much too fat and too infirm. He used powder with a view to hiding the white locks of age, and this gave his complexion an appearance of youth.—From "The Return of Louis XVIII.," by Gilbert Stenger.

Telling the Time.

His horse had lost a shoe, and as it was being replaced by a Somerset blacksmith he asked the time. "I'll tell 'ee presently, sir," said the man. Then he lifted a hind foot of the horse and, looking across it attentively, said, "Half past 11."

"How do you know?" asked Coleridge.

"Do 'ee think I have shod horses all my life and don't know by sign what time it is?"

The poet went away puzzled, but returned in the evening and offered the blacksmith a shilling to show him how he could tell the time by a horse's hoof.

"Just you get off your horse, sir. Now do 'ee stoop down and look through the hole in you pollard ash and you'll see the church clock."

Hard to Tell.

"If your mother bought four bunches of grapes, the shopkeeper's price being sixpence a bunch, how much money would the purchase cost her?" asked the new teacher.

OIL RUSH TO SOUTHERN ALBERTA

WILL BE GREATER THAN YUKON

It is only of recent years that we have awakened to the great possibilities and the wonderful wealth represented in the natural resources of the Dominion of Canada.

Prominent in the mineral areas is crude oil or petroleum, and quite recently Southern Alberta Oil Fields have experienced considerable activity.

If you were to turn to the map recently issued by the Geological Department of the Dominion Government showing the petroleum deposits, you would find that that district close to and immediately southwest of Pincher Creek, in Southern Alberta, is, as the district most clearly defines, a country of great petroleum wealth.

We are offering for immediate sale a block of 25,000 shares in the Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Company, Limited, at 25c each, which shares have a par value of one dollar each, and are non-assessable since the company is a limited liability corporation, operating under a charter issued by the Government of the Province of Alberta.

The Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Company Limited, control an area of oil lands to the extent of 5,760 acres in the heart of the Pincher Creek district.

The Company owns one of the largest two-rig drilling equipment ever imported into Canada. This plant was shipped direct from the centre of the oil industry, Pennsylvania, to the Company's property, and is now being set up ready for drilling.

We have every reason to believe, since we know the property thoroughly, that those who are fortunate enough to secure a holding in this Company at the present price of twenty-five cents per share are in the pathway of big profits on their investment. Quite recently a vein of finest grade of bituminous coal was unearthed on the Company's property. The seam is ten feet deep, and was full length of the property. It is a most valuable asset.

Those who were fortunate enough to buy in on the ground floor of the big American oil company have become independently wealthy.

TWO THOUSAND PER CENT, is the average advance of the stock of thirty oil companies in the United States. The following are a few samples:

THE HOME OIL CO., which was started with a cash capital of only $45.00 and ten acres of land, paid eight millions in dividends. The San Francisco Petroleum Co. has paid over twenty-seven millions in dividends. The Pacific Coast Oil Co. has paid over fourteen millions, and the Standard Oil Co. pays upwards of forty millions annually in dividends.

OIL LANDS and lands adjacent to them bring fabulous prices. One-eighth of an acre of oil land in Texas was sold for $80,000.00, and acre-plots three to five miles away were sold for $27,000.00 and $33,000.00 respectively, whereas before the discovery of oil this same ground could have been bought for 50 cents per acre, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that the lands of the Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Co. may increase similarly in value.

We reproduce herewith a letter which was written to Mr. Black, Superintendent of the Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Co., Limited, by John W. Warren, who personally visited and inspected property controlled by the Company. It is certainly a most unconditional endorsement of the district, and in particular the quality of petroleum taken from the same:

LETTER.

TESTIMONY OF JOHN W. WARREN.

Elgin, Ill., July 21, 1908.

Mr. David Black,
Pincher Creek, Alberta, Canada.

Dear Sir:

In reply to yours of recent date, I will say that I went to the oil fields of Alberta, Canada, and saw oil oozing out of the rocks and ground, and floating away on small creeks. I went to the last "seepage" and saw the oil running down the rocks for at least 300 feet. I saw a great many oil springs. I gathered some of the oil in a bottle and brought it home, some I caught flowing from a well 750 feet deep. I took my small still, hydrometer, and other things necessary to make a test with me—I found it,

40 degrees Baume

It contains 20 to 25 per cent. gasoline. I distilled and refined some gasoline and did it without sulphuric acid or lead. It was very fine, in fact the finest I ever saw. I made some axle grease out of the Alberta oil just as it came from the well near Pincher Creek. We greased a buggy, 2 wheels on one side with this axle grease, and the other 2 wheels with pure castor oil. The axle grease ran twice as long as the castor oil and without gum. Further, I have treated oils from New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Texas, Kansas, California and Eastern Canada. I consider Alberta Oil to be the best of all in gasoline and lubricating oil. It contains less sulphur than any oil I have treated. Any man can see that there is a great demand in Canada for Alberta oil, for five-sixths of the oil used there comes from the United States. You ask my opinion. I think the oil fields of Alberta are as good as ever the Pennsylvania were.

I remain yours,
JOHN W. WARREN.

We will not accept applications for less than one hundred shares, and, when the whole sum of $25 is paid, certificate will be issued at once.

Shares may be secured, however, on terms: 10c per share cash, balance 5c per share per month.

We shall be pleased to forward those at a distance complete information concerning this proposition, and answer all inquiries.

Our office is open daily from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Remember that the price of 25c per share is good only until Friday evening at nine o'clock, December 24th. Any one who says that we may have shares upon hands after this date will be withdrawn from the market, and no stock will be offered at any future date for less than thirty or thirty-five cents. Once drilling commences you may expect to see considerable activity in the shares of this Company, and, by the time the drills are down to the oil level (a matter of sixty or ninety days), there is every indication that the stock will be selling at par.

Our Address is Suite 8, Imperial Chambers, 32-34 Adelaide Street East.

Words of praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discriminating and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you.

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered.

Its self-evidenthonesty of purpose, purity, brilliancy, body, and every other attribute that goes to make a perfect beer are ever in evidence.

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

Guaranterd by a $1,000,000 Bank

SUPPOSE a million-dollar bank should offer you a gold bond, guaranteeing you against loss in an investment you desired to make, and providing that, whether the investment did or did not prove a profitable one, the bank would pay you back every dollar of your money at the end of twenty years, wouldn't that "look good" to you? And wouldn't you take it?

Wouldn't it look as though the bank itself, as well as the men behind the enterprise that formed the basis of the investment, had absolute confidence in it, and looked upon it as a safe and profitable venture?

Can you figure out any way in which you could possibly lose the money you put into an enterprise with that kind of backing? To be sure, you would run the risk of not receiving interest for that length of time on the amount of your investment, but you would also run the chance of multiplying it many times over in the way of dividends—and that is worth something, isn't it? In other words, you have opportunity to win, and not a single chance to lose.

Now, that is exactly what we, the officers and directors of Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company, of Reno, Nevada, are offering for a short time to those who wish to take advantage of it, and we make this remarkable offer, first, because we know what we have in the way of a property, and, second, because we need a little more capital to erect a mill upon it and make it an extremely profitable producer in the shortest possible time.

This is the first time, to our personal knowledge, that an offer like this has ever been made with reference to any enterprise of a similar character, here or elsewhere.

Organization, Capitalization and Officers

Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company is organized under the laws of the State of Nevada, with a capital stock of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000), divided into One Million (1,000,000) shares, of the par value of One Dollar ($1.00 each, full paid and non-assessable, and with no personal liability attaching to the stockholders. The number of shares in the treasury is Four Hundred Thousand (400,000).

The principal office of the company is at No. 336 Mill Street, Reno, Nevada, and the depository of the company is the Nixon National Bank, of the same city.

The officers are as follows: President, D. J. Kennedy, an old resident of Nevada, and one of the best known and most successful mining operators in the state; vice-president, F. W. Thomas, of the firm of John Brenner & Co., one of the largest mercantile establishments in the city; secretary, Donald Fraser, one of the proprietors of the Red Cross Drug Company, of Reno; treasurer, H. L. Burchell, mining operator, and manager of the most prominent of the leading law firms of the state.

Location and Character of Properties

The holdings of Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company include the following valuable properties in the famous Fairview district, in Churchill county, Nevada, reached by a fine wagon road from Fallon, the county seat:

By purchase outright—fully paid for and deed recorded at Fallon—valuable mining estates on both sides of the great Mizpah mine, on both of which properties rich ore has been found.

By purchase—paid for, deeded and recorded—the Treasury group of two full claims, amounting to 40 acres, to the north-east of the Mizpah mine, the rich ledge of which we have every reason to believe courses straight through our property for at least 2,000 feet. This we regard as a very valuable holding.

By purchase, an undivided one-half interest in seven claims, containing 100 acres, southwest of the Mizpah, with every indication that the Mizpah vein runs through our ground at least 1,500 feet. The deed for our one-half interest is recorded at Fallon, and we have an option for one year on the other one-half interest.

All the leasing rights and privileges of the Mizpah Milling and Leasing Company on twelve blocks of the celebrated Mizpah mine, for the term of five years. On this property, considerable quantities of fine shipping ore are already opened; drifting has been carried on for some distance on the 100-foot level, while the second level, at 175 feet depth, is now being driven on to catch the same ore body, when shipments will begin.

Values as Shown By Assays

" " " " " " " " " "	346.80
" " " " " " " " " "	77.42
From Kentucky Group, surface workings, gold and silver values	128.00
" " " " " " " " " "	78.00
From Mizpah shafts, tunnels and upraises; gold and silver values	993.95
" " " " " " " " " "	239.77
" " " " " " " " " "	235.46
" " " " " " " " " "	88.87
" " " " " " " " " "	34.21

From the foregoing tests, it will be seen that, leaving out of the calculation our own extensive properties, all of which contain indications of remarkable richness, we are fully justified in expecting sufficient profits from the operation of our five-year lease on the great Mizpah mine alone, to pay enormous dividends to all our stockholders. But to operate them all, with the greatly increased facilities and equipment we intend to add, should give us a production equaled by few mining properties in the world.

We have already found very rich ore in the shallow workings of our Kentucky group to the west, and of our Treasury group to the east of the Mizpah, and we can see no reason why both of these properties should not prove fully as rich as the famous Mizpah mine itself. We are in a district noted for its immense bodies of gold and silver ores, and where deep workings open up vast treasure vaults of mineral wealth.

Additional Equipment Required

In order to more speedily place these splendid properties among the high class producers of the state, and to combine the maximum of production and profit with the minimum of cost, considerable additional equipment is required.

This includes a standard, modern mill, to reduce our ore to bullion and concentrates at the mine, thus saving the transportation and treatment charges of $30 to Salt Lake smelters. To be sure, the ore is of such a high grade character ing and shipping it even at these high rates, but it would be better business to save it and add that much more to the net profits, by treating it at our own mill, which, under the circumstances, thus becomes a necessity. With a 100-ton plant, we should easily be able to treat our ore at an expense not to exceed $2.50 per ton, and by adding another unit to its capacity, can still further reduce the cost, and thus save from $17.50 to $27.50 per ton on transportation and treating charges alone—quite an item when figuring the net profits.

The first unit capacity of 100 tons daily, of a standard mill, modern in every way, including stamps, amalgamators, fine grinding, concentrators and separating, with a sampler in front, so that ore can be purchased from surrounding properties, and general custom work done if desired, will enable us to add one unit after another as may be required with increased development of the ore bodies. By thus adding to the capacity of the mill, we shall be in a position to treat an immense tonnage daily, and pay dividends accordingly.

We will therefore not only effect a great saving of our present expenditures, but earn a handsome revenue, practically all profit, from the large volume of custom work that would be brought to our mill for treatment and reduction.

We also want to sink a capacious double-compartment shaft into the permanent sulphide zone at once, first, in order to have the ore bodies opened up for the mill, and secondly, to aid in determining the proper methods of treatment; so that we may build a mill adapted to the character of the ores, and capable of giving the largest returns to the company in the extraction of the gold and silver values.

Novel Plan to Secure Funds

Now, we are quite willing to admit that equipment of the character already mentioned, which will put the properties in the best possible working shape, will cost more money than is available at present, unless we accept the alternative of sacrificing a small portion of our special stock, in order to begin operations on a profitable basis at once.

The officers and directors of the company have therefore decided to adopt this method, and, while limiting the sales to but one-fifth of the capitalization, to surround the sale of every share with a positive safeguard against any possible loss.

We do not know that such an offer has ever before been made, and we expect the amount offered to be over-subscribed several times when the terms of the offer are made known.

First, we limit the amount of stock that will be sold, in order to provide the finds for necessary equipment, to Two Hundred Thousand (200,000) shares, and this is to be positively the last as well as the first, allotment that will be sold at the present low price, of 20 cents a share, as we honestly believe the stock will be good for dividends of not less than one dollar per share annually, after we commence treating 100 tons daily at the mill.

Stock Guaranteed

In order to absolutely protect purchasers of these shares against the possibility of a loss, we have made arrangements with the Metropolis Trust and Savings Bank, of San Francisco, one of the strongest financial institutions in the United States, to guarantee every share of stock sold, and to issue to every purchaser a gold bond for the full amount of his investment, such bond being payable in twenty years, whether the mines pay or not. Therefore, even if the mines never paid a dollar—though we expect them to pay millions—the stockholders cannot possibly lose anything except the interest on their investment, while they stand to win fortunes from the amounts they put into these properties.

The shares offered on these unparalleled terms may be paid for either in cash or in five equal monthly payments, and the money derived there from will be used entirely for the further development and equipment of the properties. The shares will also be traded in on both the New York and Boston exchanges the moment we begin shipping and paying dividends.

The elements of industrial safety and of the speculative profits of gold mining under such extremely favorable conditions, are combined in this enterprise to a greater degree than in any other undertaking within our knowledge or experience, and will appeal with irresistible force to all sensible and conservative people as an opportunity without an equal. It is a case of "heads, you win! tails, you cannot lose." If the mines pay as we believe they will bring to every stockholder, in dividends, many times the amount of his investment. If they do not pay, he gets his money back.

TRAVELERS' TALES.

The Blunders in Books That Describe Foreign Countries.

A lively article on the amusing mistakes to be found in books appears in the London Academy. The author in referring to the blunders often made in books that describe foreign countries notes that a traveler's ignorance of the manners and customs of strange peoples or deliberate imposition by his informants are both supposed to have given a somewhat fabulous character to some parts of the writings of Herodotus. He quotes these lines, which he found written on his desk when he was attending lectures at Oxford.

Herodotus, Herodotus,
You could not spell, you ancient cuss.
The priests in Egypt gammoned you.
It was not very hard to do
But don't you think you'll gammon us,
Herodotus, Herodotus

The author adds: "The second line is presumably a reference to the spelling of Ionic Greek. What follows alludes to the story of the Nile issuing from between the mountains Crophi and Mochi, which certainly sounds like a nursery tale. In justice, however, to the historian we must remember that recent investigations have discovered that many of his narratives once regarded as mythical have been found to have some foundation in fact.

"This is more than can be said of most mediæval travelers' tales. Some, however, admit of explanation, as, for instance, Othello's account of 'men whose heads do grow beneath their shoulders.' Raleigh is convinced that the wonder is true, because every child in the provinces of Arromaia and Canuri affirms the same. The origin of the belief in such prodigies has been found in the account given by Olearius of the Samojeds of northern Muscovy, whose garments are made like those that are called cossaques, open only at the necks. When the cold is extraordinary they put their cossaques over their heads and let the sleeves hang down, their faces being not to be seen but at the cleft which is at the neck. Whence some have taken occasion to write that in these northern countries there are people without heads, having their faces in their breasts."

FREAK CATALOGUING.

British Museum Has a System That Few Can Fathom.

It may seem ungrateful in an old reader who has reaped so many benefits from the great library in Bloomsbury to find fault with the arrangements, and if I stood alone in this complaint I would retain my isolation, but the grievance is ventilated by many.

In the first place I and J are treated in the same letter, as U and V are. This was all right when the catalogue was begun and was in manuscript, but now that printing has superseded handwriting the obsolete fashion of cataloguing Jones and Ives under the same letter or Vale and Unwin as having the same initial might be discontinued and the modern usage adopted.

In the second place, anonymous works are catalogued according to a bewildering system, the object of which seems to be to hide the identity of the work.

Take the case of the valuable little book with the following title: "An Account of the Origin of Steamboats, In Spain, Great Britain and America and of Their Introduction and Employment Upon the River Thames Between London and Gravesend to the Present Time"—i. e., 1851. One would think that it would be catalogued under "Steamboats," that being the main subject, but no—it is catalogued under "Spain." I am told the rule is to take the first proper name.

That rule, however, is not applied in the next case. A well written little book published in 1907 is entitled "Devon, the Shire of the Sea Kings." "Devon" would seem to be the natural heading, but no—in the catalogue it will be found under "Great Western Railway."—London Notes and Queries.

Broke the Combination.

The father of Judge W. H. Wadhams had a chicken coop and a dog and a stable hand. It began to look to Mr. Wadhams as though some one had discovered the combination. So he kept the coop and the stable hand, but he got a new dog. Next day the faithful old negro who groomed the Wadhams horses came to him.

"You los' you affection fob me, boss?" he asked.

"No, Scipio," said Mr. Wadhams. "I like you as well as ever."

"Then," asked Scipio peevishly, "why'n't you tie old Rover in de chicken coop stid of dat new dorg?"—Argonaut.

Psalms Not Barred.

The other evening Miss Y., a maiden lady of uncertain years, suspecting the cook was entertaining her beau downstairs, called Martha and inquired whether she did not hear some one talking with her.

"Oh, no, ma'am!" cried the quick witted Martha. "It was only me singing a psalm."

"Very good," returned Miss Y. significantly. "You may amuse yourself with psalms, but let's have no hims."

The Bland One.

Lady—What! You're just come out of prison! I wonder you are not ashamed to own it! No'er-do-well—I don't own it, lady—wish I did. I was only a lodger.—New York Journal.

Lively Lazaruses.

Startled Visitor—Gracious! What's that? Must be an earthquake! The plaster is falling too! Mild Mater—Oh, no! It's just the boys. Two of them are sick in bed today.—Puck.

Plants That Mimic Stones.

In South Africa there is found a plant of the genus Mesembryanthemum, growing on stony ground, which so closely resembles a pebble that it is invariably taken by the stranger to be a stone.

Another species of the same plant growing on the hills round the Karoo possesses two leaves about as large as duck's eggs, having a surface resembling weathered stone of brownish gray color, tinged with green. These plants look like stones, but for a short time they put forth bright yellow flowers. Still another species of the same plant resembles the quartz pebbles among which it grows.

FILIPINO WOMEN.

Their Cares Begin Early, and They Win Husbands by Hard Work.

"Filipino women know how to win husbands," says an American woman who is living at Manila. "It is a common thing in the islands to see a girl, young and brown and strong, crushing rice with a heavy wooden mallet, while around her sit a number of admiring swains, looking on, but never dreaming of offering to help. And the girl doesn't expect it. She pounds cheerfully away, and by and by her reward comes in a husband to work for.

"Life accustoms the Filipino woman to labor at a very early age. As a tiny girl she is rarely seen without an appendage in the shape of a baby brother or sister perched on her little brown hip. When she grows a few inches taller and a few degrees stronger she is pressed into service as a water carrier, bearing heavy jars of water poised gracefully on her head from the river to her home. Now, too, she works in the fields, and a vivid bit of color she makes in her short kilted scarlet skirt. When she becomes a woman and she is a woman at fifteen or before she may have a small shop to tend, and there is the rice to beat and much other work to do.

"Marriage brings no vacation. She is pretty sure to have many children to care for. She tends the fields, cooks and frequently has a stall in the market for several hours a day. But when the women are really old then their rest time comes. They sit quietly by, looking on as life goes past them, but taking part no more. In spite of the hard labor they have had there is generally a very peaceful look in the brown, wrinkled faces of these old women."—New York Tribune.

A ROYAL BED.

The Magnificent One That Was Used by Queen Elizabeth.

An interesting description of the magnificence of a bedstead ordered for Queen Elizabeth's use is found in a "wardrobe warrant" dated 1581 and quoted in "Gleanings After Time." It was of walnut tree, richly carved, painted and gilded. The celure, tester and valance were of cloth of silver, figured with velvet, lined with changeable taffeta and deeply fringed with Venice gold, silver and silk.

The curtains were of costly tapestry curiously and elaborately worked, every seam and every border laid with gold and silver lace, caught up with long loops and baltons of bullion.

The headpiece was of crimson satin of Bruges, edged with a passamayne of crimson silk and decorated with six ample plumes containing seven dozen ostrich feathers of various colors profusely decorated with gold spangles.

The counterpoint was of orange colored satin quilted with cutwork of cloths of gold and silver and of satins of every imaginable tint embroidered with Venice gold, silver spangles and beautifully colored silks fringed to correspond and lined with orange sarcenet.

This was a queen's bed, but almost equally gorgeous ones were common for several centuries. In the reign of Queen Anne a bedstead put up as a prize in a lottery was reported to have cost over £3,000.—London Family Herald.

Graft in the Household.

The tipping system has become acute now that graft is boldly recognized as "business," and the world has no shame for the majority of workers in the vineyard. A charming young matron exclaimed the other day that graft had even invaded her household. She was asked how that were possible and replied: "I have discovered that my most trusted and faithful maid has been approached by some one who shall be nameless to advise the cook, who is another treasure, to leave me."

"But she did not?" "Yes, she did," said the young matron, laughing. "Yes, she did, and I don't blame her for the price. My nice Julia was paid $20 to sell me out, and the cook's wages are about double what I can pay." "A case of bribery." "Not at all plain, unvarnished graft," was the philosophic response.—Boston Herald.

One of Field's Jokes.

Edward Everett Hale greatly enjoyed a joke which was perpetrated on him by Eugene Field. Field celebrated one of Dr. Hale's visits to Chicago by giving a luncheon in his honor and inviting a number of prominent persons to meet him. "Field was aware," said Dr. Hale, "that I was a temperance man, and therefore I was somewhat surprised to see that the table on which the luncheon was served was very abundantly supplied with bottles labeled 'Whisky,' 'Brandy' and 'Champagne.' But when these bottles came to be uncorked they were all found to contain nothing but water!"

Effective.

A Chicago judge recently rebuked a person who was sitting in the courtroom with his feet placed upon the table by sending him, through a bailiff, a piece of paper on which he had written the following query: "What else boots do you wear?" The feet were at once withdrawn.

No Panic.

"We had a bad fire scare in church today."

"Good gracious! Was there a panic?"

Prodigal.

"That fellow seems to be extravagant."

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments—the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see if Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

Removed by Staff.

Mr. H. P. Kennedy was honoured by the staff of his Toronto office Thursday afternoon, when his employees surprised him by presenting him with a very handsome gold-headed umbrella. The presentation was made by Mr. A. Quinn, on behalf of the staff, who desired to express their appreciation of the many kindnesses rendered them by Mr. Kennedy during the year. Mr. Kennedy made a neat reply thanking the staff for their [illegible]

To the Electors of the City of Peterboro'

To the Ratepayers,—

At the earnest solicitation of a large number of citizens, I have finally decided to come forward as candidate for the Mayoralty. I am convinced that a forward and progressive policy for the city is essential.

Respectfully,

Wants an Owner.

Chief Rossel has a purse, containing a return ticket to Kinmount and a baggage check. It was picked up on the street and the chief would like to locate the owner.

Coming East.

Although the Winnipeg Shamrocks have cancelled their Stanley cup dates it is probable that another Western team will be down after all to play Ottawa. This morning President D'Arcy McGee of the Ottawas received a telegram from Jack Winchester, acting manager of the Edmonton club, asking the Ottawas to keep the dates open for them. Mr. McGee wired back that Edmonton could have the Shamrock or Galt dates. The Edmonton club has gathered in some of the Shamrock players and intends to bring a strong team east.

It is in time of sudden mishap or accident that Chamberlain's Liniment can be relied upon to take the place of the family doctor, who cannot always be found at the moment. Then it is that Chamberlain's Liniment is never found wanting. In cases of sprains, cuts, wounds and bruises Chamberlain's Liniment takes out the soreness and drives away the pain. 4

Good Show at the Princess.

Yesterday afternoon and evening Santa Claus must have whispered words of advice to many hundreds of our citizens to the effect that the pictures at the Princess were particularly good, and this popular place of amusement was crowded at every performance. The pictures shown, which will be repeated today, were "The Fatal Ball," a thrilling tragedy; "A Run for His Money," a very laughable comedy and the "Mystery of an Arrow." The latter picture is based on Indian life and customs. It is one of the most interesting and truly realistic Indian pictures ever shown in this city. Miss Nellie Hallihan, the well known local vocalist, was greeted with rounds of applause after every rendition of her song, "I wish I had a girl like you."

A MOST DISTINGUISHED VISITOR

Governor R. P. Glenn, of South Carolina, will arrive in the city today and will give the address at the Christmas service in George street Methodist church tonight (Christmas) at eight o'clock. There will be Christmas music.

Governor Glenn will give the address at the Temperance Meeting in the Grand Opera House on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

To both of these important gatherings everybody is invited.

Y.M.C.A. Trimmed.

The interior of the Young Men's Christian Association presents a very pleasing appearance as a result of the artistic work of the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary and Boys' Department. The decorations of evergreens, flags and bunting makes a pretty effect. A new stained glass effect has been added to the upper portion of the east window of the parlor. Drapings have also been placed on the windows and similar improvements will be made to the main reading room by the ladies. 1°

Robert G. Ingersoll, the once noted athiest, who did not look at things religiously said:—

"Alcohol is the blood of the gambler, the inspiration of the burglar, the stimulus of the highwayman and the support of the midnight incendiary. It suggests the lie and countenance the liar; condones the thief and esteems the blasphemer. It violates obligation, reverences fraud, turns love to hate, scorns virtue and innocence. It incites the father to butcher his offspring, and the child to sharpen the fratricidal axe. Alcohol burns men, consumes women, destroys life, curses God and despises heaven. It suborns witnesses, nurses perfidy, defiles the jury box and stains the judical ermine. It bribes voters, disqualifies vates, corrupts elections, pollutes our institutions, endangers the government, degrades the citizen, debases the legislator, dishonors the statesman and disarms the patriot. It brings shame, not honor, terror not safety; despair, not hope; misery, not happiness; and with the malevolence of a fiend, calmly surveys its frightful desolation, and reveling in havoc; it poisons felicity, destroys peace, ruins morals, wipes out national honor, curses the world and laughs at the ruin it has wrought. It does that and more. It murders the soul. It is the sum of all villainies, the father of all crimes, the mother of all abominations, the devil's best friend. In this connection a Kentucky paper puts it this way: "Whiskey is the cause of nearly all crime, disorder and misery. Strike it out, and strikes will end; tramp it out, and tramps will be few; murder it, and murders will cease; stab it to the heart, and hearts will no longer be stabbed; put an everlasting end to the mean thing, and meanness will be the exception instead of the rule; set fire to it—burn the last bottle and barrel, and fewer souls will burn in hell!" He also quoted the remarks of the president of a liquor dealers' association to substantiate the statement that the saloon keeper was endeavoring to entice young men to the bar;

"It will appear from these facts gentlemen that the success of our business is dependent largely upon the creation of appetite for drink. Men who drink liquor, like others, will die, and if there is no new appetite created, our counters will be empty, as will our coffers. Our children will go hungry, or we must change our business to that of some other remunerative. The open field for the creation of this appetite is among the boys. After men have grown up and their habits are formed, they rarely ever change in this regard. It will be needful, therefore, that missionary work be done among the boys, and I make suggestion that nickels expended in treats to the boys now, will return in dollars to your tills after the appetite has been formed. Above all things, create appetite!" The cold-blooded utterances of such advice as that horrifies us; but we ought long ago to have been horified by the facts to which the utterances merely give voice. The old topers would soon die off, if their ranks were not recruited from the young; and that's an important part of the saloon-keeper's business—and a Christian nation tolerates.

In conclusion, the speaker alluded to the legal side of the question. He did not like the way hotelmen got their living, but they had permission to do so by the Government which one hotel keeper once told him was elected by a Christian people. They as temperance people should get at the traffic through the strong arm of the law.

Many other reasons might be added, but people are able to read and think for themselves. In Owen Sound the fact that the law is well enforced and that the output of the distilleries cannot remain on the streets of that town is used by the local liquor men as an argument against local option. No stranger evidence for proper enforcement can be used by the Temperance advocates than to show that the law will no more tolerate the sign of liquor on a man in Owen Sound, than it will tolerate perjury in Peterboro. Under Local Option to be seen drunk is a punishable offence. What a change it would make in Peterboro?

The attention of the Ontario License Department has been drawn to a four-column advertisement appearing in a weekly paper, reciting in type several inches high, that local option does not work in Owen Sound. The "ad" states that blind pigs are situated all over the town, that men carry flasks in their pocket that perjury is indulged in, and several other similar statements.

One of the most prominent citizens in Owen Sound has complained to the department, stating that the advertisement is a libel on the town and the department, and asking if some action cannot be taken to prevent the publication of such advertisements. The department officials say the statements are grossly false and malicious and a suit for libel may be started against the paper which published the advertisement

1. With the adoption of local option a new magistrate was appointed with the result that no man dare show himself on the street the worse of liquor.

2. Under license drinking men were kept in and about the hotels all day—now in hotels that may illegally sell strong drink such men are at once put on the street.

3. There are we understand two distilleries in Owen Sound and one can easily imagine the natural result of such an institution. Under license its influence for evil was far greater.

4. It is a healthier condition in any community to have drunkeness punished than under license to have drunkenness on the streets rampant as at present. It certainly proves that the local option law is well enforced.

STARVATION AMID PLENTY.

Not Uncommon Today—The Reason is Explained.

"For a period last summer the thought of food excited feelings of nausea," writes Mrs. C. A. Dodges, of Bloomsbury. "The heat had made me listless and the distaste for food reduced me to a condition of semi-starvation and brought me to the the verge of nervous collapse. Tonics were useless to restore an active desire for food. The doctors told me my liver and Kidneys were both at fault, but the medicines they gave me were too severe and reduced my strength so that I had to abandon them. At the suggestion of a friend who had been cured of blood and skin trouble, I began the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The difference I first noticed was, that while they cleansed the system, instead of feeling weaker I felt better after taking them. Indeed their activity was so mild it was easy to forget I had taken them at all; they seemed to go right to the liver, and in a very brief time not only did all source of nausea disappear but I began to crave food and I digested it reasonably well. Then I began to put on weight until within three months I was brought to a condition of good health. I urge Dr. Hamilton's Pills for all who are in poor health."

An Excellent Map

An excellent specimen of the stained glassworkers' handicraft is afforded by a novel map that has been prepared for the west end office of the Grand Trunk Railway System on Cockspur street, London, S.W. On a solid sheet of glass, 1¼ inches thick, measuring 12 feet in length and six feet broad, a faithful production of the map of the Dominion of Canada has been executed. The names of places in great numbers, the rivers, the lakes and the mountains are clearly shown, while the distineitive colors of the various Provinces comprising the Dominion and adjacent territories of the United States have been burned in to ensure fixity. Stretching across the continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific may be easily followed the route of Canada's all-red route, the Grand Trunk Pacific, by means of which millions of square miles of new grain-producing territory are being opened up to the settler. The work not only affords a graphic idea of the vastness of the great Dominion, but also gives an impressive idea of this 3,000 miles of new road. The preparation of the map was a delicate task, since it is the largest piece of ceramic work that has ever been attempted. It required the combined services of eight expert operators continuously for five months, and it is one of the most costly reproductions of a map that has ever been undertaken. In its manufacture the great difficulty was to obtain a result which would be quite legible in daylight, and which would yet be sufficiently transparent to allow of illumination by means of twenty-four 25-candle power lamps by night. The delicate blending of the various tints, the definition of the finest hair-like lines, and the distinctness of the names renders it a work of artistic and educational value. Owing to its fragile character and large size, combined with its great weight of one ton three hundredweights, its transport from Birmingham, where it was manufactured, to London had to be carried out by special means.—"Canada," London, Dec. 4, 1909.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

CASE OF BRONCHIAL CATARRH PROMPTLY RELIEVED BY PE-RU-NA.

MR. J. C. HERVUS PELLETIER

J. C. Hervus Pelletier, Dep't de l'Agriculture, Ottawa, Ont., writes: "The Peruna is particularly efficacious in the cure of catarrhal affections of the lungs and bronchial tubes, and it is in consequence the remedy most appreciated here in Ottawa. Six bottles cured me this winter of bronchitis. I am completely restored and I owe thanks to the Peruna. I have recommended this remedy to a large number of my friends afflicted with the same trouble, and they have verified my good opinion of this valuable remedy."

CATARRH of the bronchial tubes often very quickly becomes catarrh of the lungs. Catarrh of the lungs makes the patient an easy victim to the germs that cause tuberculosis. Sound lungs protect themselves against disease germs.

Peruna has acquired a lasting reputation in relieving catarrh of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. This should prevent the tubercular bacilli from gaining any foothold in the lungs, and saves the patient from the inevitable result.

Ask your dealer for afree Peruna Almanac for 1910.

Mr. Wickliffe R. Smith, Editor of The Potlatch Herald, formerly Principal of the Schools at Cameron, Idaho, writes: "For some time I suffered with catarrh of the throat and bronchial tubes. I tried many remedies, but could find nothing that would give me relief.

"Finally I tried Peruna. Three bottles cured me, made me sound and well. I believe it will do as much for others as it did for me. I shall be glad to recommend it to those suffering with catarrh."

VOL. XXXII NO. 302 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, TUESDAY DECEMBER 28th, 1909 PRICE TWO CENTS

Canadians are in Hopeless State

Ottawa, Dec. 27.—A pathetic pen picture of the Canadian colony at Ocean Beach, Cuba, is given in a report to the Department of Trade and Commerce by Mr. Kirkpatrick, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Havana, who was instructed to make inquiries about the colony. Complaints as to the distress of the colonists, who were induced to go to Cuba and take up fruit lands some time ago, have been received here from time to time.

Kirkpatrick, after visiting the settlement, says that it would be hard to conceive of a situation more helpless and desperate than the one in which the Canadians are placed. During recent months the district has been swept by a hurricane, which destroyed most of the fruit trees. The only hope of the colonists lies in the possibility of the land being purchased by an American syndicate. The troubles of the Canadians have been accentuated by a dispute between two municipalities as to which has the right to collect taxes on the land occupied.

A Thirty-Five Mile Ride for Five Cents

Chicago, Dec. 27.—A 35-mile ride for five cents will be made possible by the $70,000,000 merger of all the surface lines of the south side.

According to figures given out by President Thomas E. Mitten, of the Chicago City Railways Company, the average total number of passengers carried annually on the lines involved in the railway merger is 340,000,000. Of this number it is estimated that 220,000,000 are cash fares, and the remainder transfers.

The various roads involved in the merger cover 407 miles of railroad.

WANTED TO VOMIT.

"The doctors told me my sickness was caused by complications of the stomach and liver," writes Mrs. E. P. Fourraine, well known in William sport. "The least little error in eating would cause nausea, and after a time actual vomiting was easily excited. I grew very thin, pale, with dark lines under the eyes; my strength so failed that even light housework quite exhausted me. Of course with a large family, I could not afford a doctor all the time, and when in deepest despair, I tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills. From the very first they acted wonderfully, and I experienced a desire for food and ate my meals with a relish. After a while my system became quite regular, and that horrid sick feeling only came now and again. This made me persevere, and it was a good thing I did so, because the continuation of Dr. Hamilton's Pills was the means of giving me my health again, and I am now the happiest woman I know."

Two Candidates for Mayoralty Campaign will be a Lively One

W. G. Morrow and E. F. Mason Fight for the Mayor's Chair—Ten Nominated for Board of Education—Big List of Aldermen —Spirited Speeches were Made

The nominations for 1909 are over. They were held yesterday morning from 10 to 1 o'clock, and several hundred citizens turned out to take part in the selection of the men who are to guide the destinies of Peterborough during 1910.

The first hour was devoted to the receiving of nominations for mayor, Water Commissioners and members of the Board of Education. Of the former there were two. For water commissioner Mr. W. H. Moore was elected by acclamation. For the Board of Education ten were nominated. All have until 9 o'clock tonight to fyle their declarations with City Clerk Armstrong.

SPEECHES.

Between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock addresses were made by the mayoralty candidates and their movers, as well as by the Water Commissioner. The mayoralty candidates let off some fire works and the campaign was opened with a vim seldom seen in this city. Each candidate had 20 minutes. Ald. Morrow spoke first and was followed by Messrs. T. F. Matthews and Wm. Langford, who supported him. Mr. E. F. Mason spoke in his own behalf, and he was supported by Ald. R. Hicks, who started the first sky rocket and aroused the gathering.

Mr. S. R. Armstrong was elected chairman.

W. G. MORROW.

Mr. W. G. Morrow was the first speaker, and in opening he said that he had very reluctantly consented to stand for election to the mayor's chair. He had been urged by a great many citizens to come forward and consequently he declared himself a couple of weeks ago. He had been a life long resident of the city and had always been much interested in Peterborough's welfare. He is interested in several industrial and commercial concerns and he would do the very best in his power for the city if elected.

Mr. Morrow then referred to some of the very important matters to be considered next year such as:—

The extension of the sewer system in the south end, a large but necessary undertaking.

Permanent Roadways—He felt that the time had come when Peterborough should do away with the present system of patching and construct permanent roadways.

Power—The securing and developing of electric power was a very important question and in this connection he referred to the available power at the new water works dam. He was glad that Mr. Moore had mentioned that some 1300 or 1400 horse power could be developed there. He then gave a brief history of the movement to develop that power which was rejected last year by the people. But since then the water commissioners have made changes which makes that proposition not only feasible but profitable.

Mr. Morrow than took up the finances of the city and read a lot of figures.

T. F. MATTHEWS.

Mr. T. F. Matthews said that he was supporting Mr. Morrow for the Mayor's chair simply because he believed him to be the best man in the city for the position, and consequent ly the better of the two candidates. Mr. Matthews briefly referred to a few of the municipal affairs.

WM. LANGFORD.

Mr. Wm. Langford said he had seconded Mr. Morrow's nomination because he had always admired his course in the council. Mr. Morrow is interested in one of the largest institutions in the city and if he helps himself he will help me, and everyone else in the city.

MR. E. F. MASON.

Mr. E. F. Mason said that some time ago he was asked to come out. He did not desire to run and kept out of the field, but a large number of citizens and his friends have persistently urged him to come out. Since they have been so insistent he would not imply that their confidence had been misplaced by declining the compliment.

During the time he was chairman of the Finance Committee, the tax rate was lower than years previously, and much lower than at present, or will be next year. He always had the finances of the city at his finger tips and anything he goes into he does so with his whole heart and gives it his best engeries.

He appealed to the electors on a policy of general good government, careful and thorough. He has never taken a stand in favor of either the hotel men or the temperance party. It is up to the people to say what they want in reference to temperance. He has never given a subscription to either party in spite of the story circulated to the contrary.

He said he would put his record as finance chairman against any chairman the city has ever had and he will have something more to say latter as to the finances of city. He asked for a hearty support from all, and he would do his duty if elected to the chair.

ALD. HICKS.

Ald. Hicks being called upon, said that he was heartily glad that Mr. Mason was in the field, not because of their personal friendship, but, because of his record in the council. He had always admired Mr. Mason in the council and he had always carried a surplus over to the next year.

Referring to the finances, Ald. Hicks said, if the council collects not a dollar for uncontrollable expenditure, the rate next year would be 19 mills, and he challenged anyone to contradict the statement. He then criticized Ald. Morrow as chairman of the Finance Committee.

Ald Hicks challenged Mr. Morrow on several points and Mr. Morrow replied. As a result they indulged in quite a warm argument for several minutes before the close.

MR. W. H. MOORE.

Mr. W. H. Moore was the first speaker. He expressed sincere thanks for the honor conferred upon him in electing him water commissioner by acclamation. He had been a member of the Board of Commissioners for six years, and during that time had acquired a good deal of information about the waterworks. Mr. Moore then took up the building of the new dam. It was to cost $120,000, and the Bishop Construction Company was given fifteen months to complete their work. Six months had now passed and the dam is now complete, the pump house is up and some of the machinery is now on the ground. Of course it will take some time to have everything completed. Nearly all the machinery is being secured from the Wm. Hamilton Company, and it is considered the best in the world. The old pumps were installed by the same company and not one dollar had to be spent on them for repairs. The new pumps will have a capacity of 10,500,000 gallons. The capacity of the pumps now in use was 2,500,000 gallons.

OBITUARY.

Cora E. Lightfoot.

The death occurred on Sunday morning at nine o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. John Lightfoot, 352 Stewart street, of her second daughter, Miss Cora Lightfoot, after an illness extending over four months. She was twenty-five years of age and was well known in this city.

The funeral will take place today at 2.30 p.m. from the family residence to Little Lake cemetery.

Gladys Bishop.

The death occurred at two o'clock yesterday morning of Gladys Bishop, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bishop, Chamberlain street. The deceased was only seven years of age.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock from the family residence to Little Lake cemetery.

Mrs. J. J. Cunningham.

The death occurred in Nicholl's Hospital Sunday afternoon of Mrs. J. J. Cunningham, after an illness of short duration. The deceased, while having been in poor health for some time, passed away very suddenly. She was thirty-five years of age and had lived here all her life.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence, 154 Lock street, to the Little Lake cemetery. It will be under Salvation Army auspices.

John D. Knox.

The news of the death of Mr. John D. Knox, who passed away at the home of his mother, 384 Queen St. Sunday night at half-past seven, was received throughout the city with the profoundest regret. While the deceased's health had been declining for about a year he had only been confined to his bed for the past three weeks.

The funeral will take place this afternoon. Service at the house will be held at 2.30, and the funeral will leave at 3 o'clock and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery.

Phoebe C. Kilgour.

As the old market clock was striking ten on Christmas night, there passed away in the western part of our city one whose life and work deserve more than a passing reference, in the person of Mrs. Phoebe C. Kilgour, wife of the late Rev. Joseph Kilgour.

The late Mrs. Kilgour was born in the County of Prince Edward, being the daughter of Richard and Abigail Youmans. In her early life a teacher of music, she was married to the Rev. Mr. Kilgour, to whom for so many years she was undoubtedly a helpmate in the truest and fullest sense.

She was identified very prominently in the promotion, organization and operation of the various institutions of the Methodist Church during the whole of her long and active Christian life, and after the death of her beloved husband about six years ago, she seemed to redouble her efforts to carry on the work of the Church. Though very frail in body, she possessed an energy that enabled her to outdo very many in sowing seed, and doing works of kindness and charity in and about the sphere of her activities.

In the Women's Missionary Society she was very active, occupying the position of president for some years. To her many friends she has left a heritage of good deeds well done, and an example of what may be accomplished by one who is truly devoted to Christian work.

Her illness was of brief duration, she having attended Charlotte street Methodist church twice on Sabbath, 19th inst. On Monday last she was stricken with pneumonia, and her gentle, patient spirit passed to its reward on Saturday evening.

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, and was very largely attended.

Mother and Two Children Burned Near Elk Lake

Mrs. Hayes and Children were the Victims of a Fire at a Stopping Place West of Englehart

Englehart, Dec. 27.—A stopping place nine miles from Elk Lake, kept by Mr. Hayes, was burned this morning. Mrs. Hayes and her two children were burned to death. Particulars of the fire have not yet been received, but it is understood that the mother and children were burned in their beds.

"Hayes" is the name of one of several lodging places at a stopping place nine miles west of Elk Lake, on the road from Englehart. These places are usually one-storey, frame structures, used principally as temporary restaurants for the accommodation of people on their way to and from Lake Elk and Gow Ganda.

Tides Swept New England Coast---Many Lives were Lost

Boston, Dec. 27.—Five million dollars' loss is today's estimate of the havoc wrought in and around Boston by the blizzard which yesterday swept New England and drove a record tide over the coast. No fatalities, however, have been reported besides the four in Chelsea, where a tidal wave, bursting through the dyke along Island End River, flooded 80 acres of homes and forced 2,500 people to flee scantily clad into the raging storm.

Thirty-two cities and towns last night plunged in darkness owing to the cutting off of electric light service, hope to have their lighting facilities restored by tonight, but it is doubtful if this work can be completed so early.

The storm was easily the greatest that New England has experienced in 11 years. All along the coast phenomenal tides were reported. In many places sea walls were battered to piece, boulevards ruined and clubs and houses along the shore destroyed.

In Boston the tide swept over the wharves, across Atlantic avenue, and as far inland as the Chamber of Commerce building. It is estimated that the damage in this immediate section will reach at least $500,000.

BAREFOOTED IN SNOW.

The worst damage was in Chelsea and Everett, where it is believed it will be several weeks before the tide gate on the Island End River can be repaired and the flooded district reclaimed. This means that the many homeless people will lose the greater part of their household good Their plight is pitiful. Having escaped through the snow, many of them barefooted, they had to stand for hours in the blizzard waiting for wagons to take them to shelter. Hundreds of the homeless were taken care of in the relief stations established in Public schools and churches.

NEW YORK RECOVERING.

New York, Dec. 26.—With ten thousand men aiding the regular force of 3,700 "white wings" in clean ing up the streets and sidewalks, New York is today rapidly recovering from the blizzard and snowstorm of Christmas Day and Sunday.

Commissioner "Bill" Edwards, as every man, woman and child in New York knows Princeton's giant right guard, who is in charge of the Street Cleaning Department, today declared that he could not get within 10,000 of the number of men he needed to make a "hurry-up" job of cleaning up. He estimates that it will cost the city $200,000 to clean house.

As a result of the snowstorm and blizzard it is announced by the police today that 14 lives were lost in New York alone, while great suffering was entailed, occasioned by the tying up of traffic and the impossibility of carrying food and clothing to the needy poor.

No trains are arriving in New York on time today except the short haul commuter trains. Passengers from the east, west and south are from one to five hours late.

TAFT CANCELLED TRIP.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Not since last inauguration day has the capital been the victim of so severe a climatic disturbance as raged here during the past 48 hours. The city was practically cut off from communication with the north Saturday night and Sunday. Trains from 15 to 18 hours late began to straggle into the Union Station last night.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 27.—Philadelphia is still in the grip of the blizzard which descended upon this section of the country. Christmas day. General business is tied up worse than it has been for many years, and the prospects are that it will be several days before conditions become normal. Railroad traffic and street car service are still in bad shape.

With the exception of the Market street subway line, there was practically no street car service in the city this morning and all people got to work late.

Appointed Manager

A circular signed by Mr. E. J. Chamberlin, Vice-President and General Manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, has just been issued appointing Captain C. H. Nicholson Manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific Steamship Lines on the Pacific Coast with headquarters at Vancouver, B. C. He will have supervision of all matters pertaining to marine and steamship business for the company and the Pacific Coast, the operation and maintenance of steamers, docks, etc., with such other duties as may be assigned to him from time to time.

Captain C. H. Nicholson was born at Belleville, Ont. He entered the steamboat business in 1881 as cabin boy on the old steamer "Magnet" of the Richelieu & Ontario Line. In 1882 he secured the position of purser on the steamer "Hero," operated by the late Mr. C. F. Gildersleeve on the Bay of Quinte and Rives St. Lawrence, which position he occupied for three years, when he was promoted to the captainey of that steamer and served as captain of the steamers "Hero," "Hastings," "Norseman," and "North King" on Lake Ontario and River St. Lawrence, covering a period from 1885 to 1893. During this period he undertook a college course during the winters, taking one year at Queen's University, Kingston, and completing his course at the University of Maryland, Baltimore, Md.

When Mr. C. F. Gildersleeve organized the Lake Ontario and Bay of Quinte Steamboat Company, Captain Nicholson was appointed General Passenger and Freight Agent, and later was appointed as representative of that company in the United States with headquarters at Rochester up to the year 1902, which service was terminated to accept the position of General Manager of Transportation of the Muskoka Lakes Navigation Company in the spring of the year 1903. This position he resigned in 1904 to accept the position of Traffic Manager of the Northern Navigation Company of Ontario, Limited, having charge of traffic and operation of the Lake Superior Division with headquarters at Sarnia.

Peterborough Leads.

A review of the fyles of the Telephone Gazette reveals that a large preponderance of the contributions from the staff on subjects of practical interest have come from Montreal and Peterboro, this being clearly due to the interest gained through the local organizations of the Company's employees. This makes all the more noticeable the entire absence of contributions from other large exchanges where they have no such organizations. To name the latter places might be considered invidious, but the fact is sufficiently obvious. The Telephone Gazette cannot but wonder how long the staff at these exchanges will remain quiescent and apparently oblivious to the advantage of a general exchange of ideas, for which this publication provides a medium.—Telephone Gazette.

Belleville, Dec. 27.—A fatal accident occurred at the G.T.R. station here yesterday. A brakeman, named George Lewis, about thirty years of age, had stepped between two freight cars to couple them. He came out from between the cars and stepped right in front of the express which killed him instantly. He was horribly mutilated. Today the body was taken to Havelock for burial.

"Nerviline" Cures Rheumatism

"If I had lived through my sufferings another year it would have been a miracle." This is the opening sentence of the declaration made by Mr. J. Eccles Squires, member of one of the best-known families for twenty miles round Sydney. "My hands were drawn out of shape, even my fingers were gnarled and crooked—my lameness, stiffness and inability to get about all showed the havoc Rheumatism made with my health. The blessing of it all is that I have heard of Nerviline, and now I am able to tell and advise others how they GET WELL. get well, too. My system was so weakened that I had to build up with a good tonic, so I took Ferrozone at meals, but I soon stopped rubbing on Nerviline and had a magic influence on my most painful joints. Four bottles of Nerviline rubbed on the painful parts, Nerviline cured me. I am well today—have been well for 4½ years."

You also can cure rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia or any pain or stiffness in the muscles or joints—to do so use Nerviline. Don't let your druggist substitute. Get Nerviline only—large bottles, 25c., or five for $1.00; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston Ont.

ESKIMO PIPE.

Some Interesting Things About the Eskimos.

Owing to the recent visit of Capt. Bernier, the Canadian Arctic explorer, and to the general interest taken in the work of Dr. Grenfell among the Eskimos in Labrador, the following will be of interest:

The pipes used by the Eskimos are quite different from those of any other North American race, and in the shape of the bowl more resemble the opium pipes used by the Chinese than anything else. The old pipes were very small in the amount of tobacco that they would hold, for in former days tobacco was extremely scarce and in its use was more carefully husbanded.

There was therefore a wide flaring margin to the pipe to catch any grains of tobacco that might be spilled in filling it, then there was a hollow which would hold a pinch of tobacco half as large as an ordinary pea and a rather wide hole passing down through the base of the bowl which fitted into the pipe stem. The bowl of the pipe was of ivory, stone, brass or copper.

The pipe stem was curved and had a mouthpiece. It is said that the small hole running down through the base of the bowl and into the pipe stem was usually plugged with caribour hair to save any grains of tobacco that might otherwise have passed down through this aperture and so be lost. The smoking of such a pipe would not last long, and we may presume that a very few draws would exhaust it. The smoke was, of course, taken into the lungs.

The Eskimos are known to be extremely skilful in the representation of scenes and objects, while the Indians of Queen Charlotte's Sound and generally all the natives of the north-west coast of America are famous for their carving in wood and in black slate. Handsomely carved Eskimo pipes of walrus ivory from north-western Alaska have on each side of the pipe that is to say on four more or less long flat surfaces scenes from the daily life of the Eskimo. Of these the two sides on the right hand of the pipe, as it is held in position for smoking, appear to represent the period of cold weather, lates Autumn, Winter and early Spring, while those on the left hand side of the pipe represent the Summer life of the Eskimo.

Coughs that are tight, or distressing tickling coughs, get quick and certain help from Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. On this account Druggists everywhere are favoring Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is entirely free from Opium, Chloroform, or any other stupefying drug. The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainous shrub give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its curative properties. Those leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough, and to soothe, and heal the most sensitive bronchial membranes. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it once yourself, and see! Sold by all dealers.

Police Court News

Two blacklisted persons were charged with a breach of the liquor license act, at the police court this day. T. Hearn of Bridgenorth, pleaded guilty to having obtained liquor and was fined ten dollars and costs, amounting to $15.40, which was paid forthwith. The other man also pleaded guilty and was fined ten dollars. It appears that the former defendant went into the bar of the Peterborough House and asked for a drink. When asked if his name was Hearn he denied it, saying it was Sullivan. He got the drink, but the bar-tender, later learned that the "Indian List" name had not told the truth and informed on him resulting in his being fined. The second offender fell from the water waggon on Wednesday.

A large representation of Italians readily overcame at the new waterworks dam were interested spectators at the county court Thursday afternoon, when Magistrate Edmison heard the evidence in the charge of assault preferred by Nicolas Lamorgia against Nicolas Renzetti. The latter is the proprietor of the "shack" in which the men have lived when they were not at work in the construction of the new dam. A great deal of the evidence was conflicting in its character, and Magistrate Edmison dismissed the case, the plaintiff refusing an order for the costs to be taken from the wages coming to him. Mr Tom Monizola acted as interpreter.

From the evidence it seems that there were two shanties, and on account of a large number of the men employed their services were required in connection with one of its residents, excepting one Bruno, who was almost the counterpart of King George who paid the shack a visit last June. Bruno was therefore taken into the other shack as he did not like the idea of being the sole sleeper in the place. It was decided by Proprietor Renzetti that he should share Lamorgia's bed, and as a matter of caste, the latter decided that he would leave the place rather than endure the said Bruno as a bedfellow. He offered to settle his bill and Lamorgia dared him to it, and Renzetti took up the gauntlet, but the plaintiff claimed that he also picked up a butcher knife as long as a man's arm, and was only prevented from reaching Lamorgia by the interference of three or four other men.

The various witnesses did not see these men, it being stated that the only person who interfered was Mary Winn, a woman who has been Renzetti's housekeeper for a number of years, although she is not his wife. She simply pushed him back behind the counter of the little store room, in which the affair happened. When the evidence for the defence was concluded Mr. Gordon held that there were not sufficient grounds for a conviction, but put in a defence. Some of these witnesses stated that Renzetti did not even pick up the knife, and the case petered out with the costs to come out of Lamorgia's pocket.

BOUGHT 30 AUTOMOBILES.

Detroit, Dec. 23.—J. C. Coe, a Saskatchewan farmer dropped into Detroit Sunday, and by the time he had finished his errand yesterday he had purchased thirty automobiles for his farmer friends of the far Northwest. He was not an agent. He told his neighbors he was going east, and they gave him their orders, accompanied by bank drafts. Coe paid $4,500 for his own machine, and the cars were all high-grade, several being the $4,000 to $5,000 class. Bumper wheat crops in the Northwest were the cause of so much prosperity.

GODFREY—LANCASHIRE.

The wedding was quietly solemnized at the residence of Rev R. Fogue of St. Paul's church Thursday afternoon of Mr. Wm. Henry Godfrey to Miss Joan Isabella Lancashire. The young couple, who will reside in the city, were unattended, and will reside on Dufferin street.

If Sick

Don't risk even one single penny!

And I will tell you why I say this.

No one need risk even one single penny.

No risk, no excuse, nothing whatever to harm health lies before you. For 30 full days, and without the risk of a penny, you can use either of my two remedies—Dr. Shoop's Restorative or Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy.

Then why take any chance whatever?

Why purchase any medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

And besides, I am no stranger to you.

My "No Relief—No Pay" plan has made Dr. Shoop a Reliable Name in every drug store in the land. Try me, I said. We take no chance when we use here.

And I have established brand and reputation for these remedies by years of square dealing with druggists everywhere and yours. These selected druggists are authorized to sell the sick—and the entire risk is mine alone.

But write me first for order.

I make an agent in almost every community—but all druggists are authorized to accept the 30 day test.

So drop me a line, please—and thus save all disappointments and delays.

Besides, you are free to consult me by letter as you would your home physician. Do so freely and fully—if you desire. My advice and the book I send are yours—and without cost. Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment that I have helped thousands upon thousands all over. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan.

Besides, the books will open up new and helpful ideas to you. They tell of my 30 years experience at the bedside in homes and in hospitals. All phases of ailments and relief are told of here. They tell of Dr. Shoop's "Inside Nerve" an larger than a dime that gives to the Heart its impulse. How the Stomach and Kidney each have their inside or power nerve. How these organs surely falter when these controlling or master nerves begin to fail. How Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to these failing nerves, and rebuilds, and strengthens, and restores the lost tone and power. It can surely help you—if it is within the power of medicine to do so. My best effort is surely worth a simple request. So write now, while it is fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

Guaranterd by a $1,000,000 Bank

SUPPOSE a million-dollar bank should offer you a gold bond, guaranteeing you against loss in an investment you desired to make, and providing that, whether the investment did or did not prove a profitable one, the bank would pay you back every dollar of your money at the end of twenty years, wouldn't that "look good" to you? And wouldn't you take it?

Wouldn't it look as though the bank itself, as well as the men behind the enterprise that formed the basis of the investment, had absolute confidence in it, and looked upon it as a safe and profitable venture?

Can you figure out any way in which you could possibly lose the money you put into an enterprise with that kind of backing? To be sure, you would run the risk of not receiving interest for that length of time on the amount of your investment, but you would also run the chance of multiplying it many times over in the way of dividends—and that is worth something, isn't it? In other words, you have opportunity to win, and not a single chance to lose.

Now, that is exactly what we, the officers and directors of Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company, of Reno, Nevada, are offering for a short time to those who wish to take advantage of it, and we make this remarkable offer, first, because we know what we have in the way of a property, and, second, because we need a little more capital to erect a mill upon it and make it an extremely profitable producer in the shortest possible time.

This is the first time, to our personal knowledge, that an offer like this has ever been made with reference to any enterprise of a similar character, here or elsewhere.

Organization, Capitalization and Officers

Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company is organized under the laws of the State of Nevada, with a capital stock of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000), divided into One Million (1,000,000) shares, of the par value of One Dollar ($1.00 each, full paid and non-assessable, and with no personal liability attaching to the stockholders. The number of shares in the treasury is Four Hundred Thousand (400,000).

The principal office of the company is at No. 336 Mill Street, Reno, Nevada, and the depository of the company is the Nixon National Bank, of the same city.

The officers are as follows: President, D. J. Kennedy, an old resident of Nevada, and one of the best known and most successful mining operators in the state; vice-president, F. W. Thomas, of the firm of John Breuner & Co., one of the largest mercantile establishments in the city; secretary, Donald Fraser, one of the proprietors of the Red Cross Drug Company, of Reno; treasurer, H. L. Burchell, mining operator, and manager of the most prominent of the leading law firms of the state.

Location and Character of Properties

The holdings of Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company include the following valuable properties in the famous Fairview district, in Churchill county, Nevada, reached by a fine wagon road from Fallon, the county seat:

By purchase outright—fully paid for and deed recorded at Fallon—valuable mining estates on both sides of the great Mizpah mine, on both of which properties rich ore has been found.

By purchase—paid for, deeded and recorded—the Treasury group of two full claims, amounting to 40 acres, to the north-east of the Mizpah mine, the rich ledge of which we have every reason to believe coarses straight through our property for at least 2,000 feet. This we regard as a very valuable holding.

By purchase, an undivided one-half interest in seven claims, containing 100 acres, southwest of the Mizpah, with every indication that the Mizpah vein runs through our ground at least 1,500 feet. The deed for our one-half interest is recorded at Fallon, and we have an option for one year on the other one-half interest.

All the leasing rights and privileges of the Mizpah Milling and Leasing Company on twelve blocks of the celebrated Mizpah mine, for the term of five years. On this property, considerable quantities of fine shipping ore are already opened; drifting has been carried on for some distance on the 100-foot level, while the second level, at 175 feet depth, is now being driven on to catch the same ore body, when shipments will begin.

Values as Shown By Assays

" " " " " " " " " "	346.80
" " " " " " " " " "	77.42
From Kentucky Group, surface workings, gold and silver values	126.00
" " " " " " " " " "	78.60
From Mizpah shafts, tunnels and upraises, gold and silver values	943.95
" " " " " " " " " "	339.77
" " " " " " " " " "	235.46
" " " " " " " " " "	69.87
" " " " " " " " " "	84.21

From the foregoing tests, it will be seen that, leaving out of the calculation our own extensive properties, all of which contain indications of remarkable richness, we are fully justified in expecting subsequent profits from the operation of our five-year lease on the great Mizpah mine alone, to pay enormous dividends to all our stockholders. But to operate them all, with the greatly increased facilities and equipment we intend to add, should give us a production equaled by few mining properties in the world.

We have already found very rich ore in the shallow workings of our Kentucky group to the west, and of our Treasury group to the east of the Mizpah, and we can see no reason why both of these properties should not prove fully as rich as the famous Mizpah mine itself. We are in a district noted for its immense bodies of gold and silver ores, and where deep workings open up vast treasure vaults of mineral wealth.

Additional Equipment Required

In order to more speedily place these splendid properties among the high class producers of the state, and to combine the maximum of production and profit with the minimum of cost, considerable additional equipment is required.

This includes a standard, modern mill, to reduce our ore to bullion and concentrates at the mine, thus saving the transportation and treatment charges of $20 to $30 a ton on the ore to the Salt Lake smelters. To be sure, the ore is of such a high grade character that there is a good profit in mining and shipping it even at these high rates, but it would be better business to save it and add that much more to the net profits, by treating it at our own mill, which, under the circumstances, thus becomes a necessity. With a 100-ton plant, we should easily be able to treat our ore at an expense not to exceed $2.50 per ton, and by adding another unit to the capacity, can still further reduce the cost, and thus save from $17.50 to $27.50 per ton on transportation and treating charges alone—quite an item when figuring the net profits.

The first unit capacity of 100 tons daily, of a standard mill, modern in every way, including stamps, amalgamators, tube grinding, concentration and cyaniding, with a sampler in front, so that ore can be purchased from surrounding properties, and general custom work done if desired, will ensure us to add one unit after another as may be required with increased development of the ore bodies. By thus adding to the capacity of the mill, we shall be in a position to treat an immense tonnage daily, and pay dividends accordingly.

We will therefore not only effect a great saving of our present expenditures, but earn a handsome revenue, practically all profit, from the large volume of custom work that would be brought to our mill for treatment and reduction.

We also want to sink a capacious double-compartment shaft into the permanent sulphide zone at once, first, in order to have the ore bodies opened up for the mill, and secondly, to aid in determining the proper methods of treatment; so that we may build a mill adapted to the character of the ores, and capable of giving the largest returns to the company in the extraction of the gold and silver values.

Novel Plan to Secure Funds

Now, we are quite willing to admit that equipment of the character already mentioned, which will put the properties in the best possible working shape, will cost more money than is available at present, unless we accept the alternative of sacrificing a small portion of our special stock, in order to begin operations on a profitable basis at once.

The officers and directors of the company have therefore decided to adopt this method, and, while limiting the sales to but one-fifth of the capitalization, to surround the sale of every share with a positive safeguard against any possible loss.

We do not know that such an offer has ever before been made, and we expect the amount offered to be over-subscribed several times when the terms of the offer are made known.

First, we limit the amount of stock that will be sold, in order to provide the finds for necessary equipment, to Two Hundred Thousand (200,000) shares, and this is to be positively the last as well as the first, allotment that will be sold at the present low price, of 20 cents a share, as we honestly believe the stock will be good for dividends of not less than one dollar per share annually, after we commence treating 100 tons daily at the mill.

Stock Guaranteed

In order to absolutely protect purchasers of these shares against the possibility of a loss, we have made arrangements with the Metropolis Trust and Savings Bank, of San Francisco, one of the strongest financial institutions in the United States, to guarantee every share of stock sold, and to issue to every purchaser a gold bond for the full amount of his investment, such bond being payable in twenty years, whether the mines pay or not. Therefore, even if the mines never paid a dollar—though we expect them to pay millions—the stockholders cannot possibly lose anything except the interest on their investment, while they stand to win fortunes from the amounts they put into these properties.

The shares offered on these unparalleled terms may be paid for either in cash or in five equal monthly payments, and the money derived there from will be used entirely for the further development and equipment of the properties. The shares will also be traded in on both the New York and Boston exchanges the moment we begin shipping and paying dividends.

The elements of industrial safety and of the speculative profits of gold mining under such extraordinarily favorable conditions, are combined in this enterprise to a greater degree than in any other undertaking within our knowledge or experience, and will appeal with irresistible force to all sensible and conservative people as an opportunity without an equal. It is a case of "heads, you win; tails, you cannot lose." If the mines pay as we believe they will bring to every stockholder, in dividends, many times the amount of his investment. If they do not pay, he gets his money back.

On my second trip to Japan, when I was once more in Kobe, idling the days among the quaint temples that rear their red walls and tiled roofs among dwarfed cedars and bamboos, I ran across young Wakuru Hoji, who had been my body servant five years before.

"Honorable sir," said Wakuru Hoji, prostrating himself before me, "I would again become one of your eminent suit."

"My good Wakuru, you shall compose my entire suit. You shall be chief cook and bottle washer, guide, philosopher and friend. Come along!" I replied.

Whereupon Wakuru arose, delighted, and proceeded to pave the path of my travels with flowers as only a perfect Japanese servant knows how to do.

On the third day I still lingered in the garden that surrounds the temple erected by that emperor of blessed memory—he who flourished thirteen centuries ago and lived to the ripe old age of 141 years.

Long rillets of sparkling water led to nothing save perhaps a stone of strange shape, or perhaps to the mouth of a fish in the light bronze and the shape of the strange, grotesque animals peculiar to Japan.

After awhile we sat down on a stone seat in a remote corner of the garden, and I fell into dreamy musing. The

"Sir Honorable Lewis," he said respectfully, "I would wish to make you a kindness before you go away home again."

"Thank you, Wakuru," I smiled back at him. "You are a faithful servant. That is enough for me. I will recommend you highly when I go away."

"It are not enough for me, Honorable Lewis," he persisted. "I would do you a great kindness. I would make you happy and rich!"

"I'm afraid that is not in your power. I appreciate your kind thought, Wakuru, but while I am not rich by any manner of means I have enough to support me comfortably, and I have learned that to have a competence is to be happy."

"Ah, I believed all Americans to be rich," sighed Wakuru. "Nevertheless, if you are happy, I can make you still more happy if your honorableness will but follow me." He paused suggestively, and I, somewhat amused at his persistence, arose also and followed him down the ancient flagged walk to the very walls of the temple.

Here, beneath a thick network of clinging ivy, was a small door so cunningly contrived that it seemed part of the temple wall.

Wakuru produced a bronze key and unlocked the door. He pushed it inward and beckoned for me to precede him. In an instant he was beside me, and the door was closed.

We were in a low vaulted passage beneath the floor of the shrine, and before us was a flight of narrow stone steps.

At the foot of these my servant opened another door and then another, presently ushering me into a small, square stone chamber, lighted only by the paper lantern that Wakuru had produced from nowhere when we entered the building.

In the faint pink light I could distinguish a square stone sarcophagus. That was all, save a low stone seat along the wall.

I watched Wakuru with interest as he approached the coffin and with some marvelous feat of strength pushed aside the stone slab which served as a cover.

From within he drew something that glistened like gold in the candlelight, such a marvelously woven fabric that I stared open mouthed as he approached me.

"What is it?" I demanded.

"It is the great coat of him who built this shrine—the golden coat the greatest emperor. Few wear it, but whoever does will receive riches and glory."

"And why do you not wear it?" I said, extending it toward him.

"Ah, I believed all Americans to be rich," sighed Wakuru. "Nevertheless, if you are happy, I can make you still more happy if your honorableness will but follow me." great riches and the fulfillment of your desire to study at the American colleges in the west."

For answer he lifted the cloak and threw it about my shoulders.

"It may be worn only once in a century. I sacrifice my opportunity that my honored friend, the great Lewis, may enjoy benefits," said Wakuru meekly.

He stood facing me with his eyes wide open, as if watching for some metamorphosis to take place beneath the emperor's golden coat.

Presently I became aware that the coat was pressing my shoulders heavily and that before me I saw nothing save Wakuru's steady eyes. They changed to two black crows flying above a desolate mining country in Nevada.

They paused above the mine in which I had sunk a little fortune in years past—the Cinnamon Bear mine—and I dimly realized that the mine was no longer deserted. A small town had grown up about it, and as I gazed a car heaped with rich ore was run out of the shaft and sent whirling down an incline to the smelter.

My brother-in-law and partner in my mining enterprise stood in the foreground, and somewhere on a signboard I read: "Lewistown, Nevada."

The vision came so quickly and as so rapidly vanished that it seemed but a second later that I was once more gazing at Wakuru's steady black eyes.

"The Honorable Lewis has seen visions of success," he said quietly, as one who states a fact.

"Wakuru, you rascal, you've hypnotized me!" I ejaculated angrily. "But I'm blessed if I've thought of the Cinnamon Bear for three years, although Ned did say he was going to have another try out there."

Without a word the Japanese removed the cloak from my shoulders and restored it within the stone coffin. Five minutes later we were walking toward my hotel.

I went directly to my sitting room, while Wakuru laid out my clothes for dinner I opened my accumulation of letters on my desk. Among them was a brief cablegram from Ned Mordaunt, my brother-in-law:

Lewiston, Nev., May 13.

For a man who desired not great riches, but merely a competence, as I had so neatly outlined to Wakuru, I displayed unusual excitement at the news coming so suddenly upon the strange vision I had had while wearing the emperor's golden coat.

I blush to recollect that I fell upon my complaisant mannervant and snapped his august back and thrust into his reluctant hand a fifty dollar note—American money, of course.

When Wakuru withdrew and left me arrayed for dinner I was simmering with delight. I dined merrily, and I sought divers information regarding outgoing steamers in the near future.

Morning came and no Wakuru. I waited until noon and then sought the hotel manager.

He shrugged his portly shoulders. "My boy told me this morning that Wakuru had embarked for the United States on the steamer that touched at Kobe at 8 o'clock. There's Wakuru's brother—he's the telegraph operator in the office—Matsukemo!"

"Wakuru," he murmured reminiscently. "Ah, him have most generous august patron. My brother, him have gone from rich American and go immediate to that America where all learning and much money is. So late now, too bad, Wakuru gone." He moved away toward the telegraph office, and I went to my room and looked at the cable message.

It had been received an hour before my departure for the temple the previous day, and there was not the slightest doubt that Matsukemo had received the message and imparted to the faithless Wakuru the news that his employer had fallen into great riches.

As for the emperor's golden coat, I fear its only usefulness had been to cover Wakuru's deceit and avarice and display his very clever powers of hypnotism.

Of course the vision came true.

No Cheap Resorts Near Paris.

It is a remarkable thing, but in the near neighborhood of Paris there are but very few places where you can go and spend a cheap holiday and take your family. For one thing, milk is always difficult to get in country districts. It is all sent to the nearest town as the ground is cultivated. Pasture land is rare in France, and milk is dear. The same thing applies to fruit and vegetables. They all go away to the towns.

Apropos of this, there is a butcher in Barbison who enjoys a unique position. He is the only butcher within five or six miles, and if you grumble at him he says: "The tramway leaves in two hours. See if you can get further in the next town or try the fish; if my meat doesn't please you."—Gen Gleba.

Plants That Mimic Stones

In South Africa there grows a plant of the genus Mesembrianthemum, growing on stony ground, so closely resembles a stone that it is invariably taken for such. Another species, growing on the high plateaux of the province, has two leaves like ducks' eggs, hence the bling weather gray color, by which plants look like stones at a time they are not in flower. The same plant also has other

Prince Rupert.

A copy of the Prince Rupert Optimist has just come to hand, and it is a credit to the Optimist and to Prince Rupert. The addition is devoted to picturing that city of promise just before the sale of town lots and the city of today. It truly portrays a wonderful change from barren rocks and forest to a busy, bustling city where corner lots that first sold for $6000, are held today, after seven months at $25,000. Whole mountains have been removed to permit a street to run through and Western energy has laughed at Nature's strongholds.

SUMMER HEAT.

London, Dec. 23.—A meteorological phenomenon, which, it is stated, has not been known in 150 years, is being experienced in parts of Western and Southern Europe. The temperature has risen with astonishing suddenness, under the influence of a of a southerly wind, to a summer level. The contrast has been most marked in Spain, France and Switzerland, but has been very great further north. Concurrently with the gale in Great Britain yesterday the mercury in London rose in the course of a few hours from 27 to 55

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments —the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

MRS SNEAD'S MOTHER.

New York, Dec. 23.—Although Mrs. Caroline B. Martin, mother of Osey Snead, has been indicted with her two sisters for the murder of the East Orange bathtub victim, the New Jersey authorities have not yet obtained possession of Mrs. Martin's person, and the self-willed elderly woman is determined not to be taken from New York State without a fight. Today her attorney, Colonel Robert J. Haine, announced that he would at once take steps for bringing habeas corpus proceedings to test the strength of the case against his client. Alternative indictments have been found against Mrs. Martin, Miss Virginia Wardlaw, and Mrs. Mary Snead, under which they may be tried either as having directly caused the death of Osey Snead, or abetted her in suicide. This was held today to indicate that the prosecutor means to leave no avenue through which the elderly trio can escape the alleged responsibility of having been the instruments through which the tragedy was enacted.

Abbott—Billings.

A very interesting event took place Monday evening at the residence of Mr. Geo. Billings, 20 Lisburn street, Auburn, when his eldest daughter, Violet Travers, was united in holy wedlock to Mr. James Abbott, of Collingsville, Mass. The parlor was prettily decorated with evergreens and Christmas bells, and the bridal party entered the room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Hazel Billings, sister of the bride. Rev. J. G. Potter performed the ceremony, the bride being given away by her father. Miss Lily Porter of Toronto, acted as bridesmaid, while Mr. C. S. Billings, brother of the bride, assisted the groom. The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of cream net over champagne silk, and carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations. Her going-away costume was an amethyst worsted suit with hat to match. The bridesmaid was prettily gowned in a pale silk mull with black trimmings, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Little Evelyn Curtis, cousin of the bride, who acted as flower girl, wore a beautiful white silk dress, and carried a basket of roses and carnations.

After the wedding ceremony about forty guests sat down to a dainty repast, after which speeches were made by Rev. J. G. Potter and Mr. G. G. Pratley, expressive of good wishes for the future happiness of the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbott were the recipients of many beautiful presents, and left on the midnight C.P.R. train for their home in Collinsville, Mass., accompanied by the best wishes of their many friends.

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

At the earnest solicitation of a large number of the ratepayers, I am now asking your support for my election to the Mayoralty of the City of Peterborough for the year 1910; and in doing so I am relying upon my record as a ratepayer, as a lifelong citizen, as one materially interested in the manufacturing and industrial development of the city, and as one who as an Alderman served you for the past three years, first as chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee and secondly as chairman of the Finance Committee.

It is usual for one aspiring to the chief magistracy to attempt to outline some definite policy to be pursued during the term of office. In compliance with that custom I can only say that it will be my one aim to serve the city to the best of my ability, to do what I can to promote its commercial, industrial and moral development, to give fair and just consideration to all questions which may come before the council, having regard to neither class nor party, as I am pledged to none.

Our city has made rapid progress in recent years, and the continuation of this progress will depend largely upon the growth and expansion of the city's present industries, and upon the establishment of new ones to which every encouragement and legitimate inducement should be given—the council should give immediate attention to securing an adequate supply of cheap power, every effort conducing to these ends has my fullest sympathy and support.

The time has also arrived when the council must take into consideration the question of permanent roadways in the business section, and in general street construction, and of the extension and improvement of the sewer system in the southern parts of the city. To both of these matters I shall, if elected, give my earliest attention.

I am in favor of carrying out a policy of the strictest economy consistent with proper service in every department of the municipal business.

As the time between now and election day is short it will be impossible for me to personally call upon every ratepayer. I therefore take this means and opportunity of soliciting for myself the honor of your vote and influence.

Wishing you all a very Happy and Prosperous New Year, I am,

Yours sincerely,

W. G. Morrow

For Alderman

Your Vote and Influence is Requested for Re-election of

W. H. BRADBURN

as Alderman

Vote for E. F. Mason as Mayor

The Nominations are over, I am a candidate for the Mayor's Chair. I appeal to you, THE PEOPLE, for your support.

If elected I will do the very best for the people. No class, click or party will have any influence. Straight, clean, economical and business methods will be adopted and the usual overdraft and reckless expenditures will be abolished.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, and again cordialy soliciting your vote and influence,

I remain, Yours truly,

E. F. MASON

W. S. ROBINSON.

A Candidate for the Board of Education.

A very large following will be glad to know that Mr. W. S. Robinson is a candidate for the Board of Education, and he will poll a very large vote. Mr. Robinson has served one term on the Board and he did a one term on the Board and he did good work. He is employed in the Canadian General Electric Works and he has always taken a particular interest in educational matters. He is a man whose word is as good as his bond and his reputation in the city is of the best. He is a practical man and one who should be on the Board of Education!

MR. JOS. BATTEN.

Elected by Acclamation for One-Year Term.

Congratulations are extended to Mrs. Jos. Batten, the only alderman to be elected by acclamation. He will fill out ex.-Ald. Morrow's uncompleted term for one year. Ald. Batten is by no means a stranger in the city or in municipal life. He was in the council for five years continuously, and retired three years ago. He was one who helped to make Peterborough a city and he will be welcomed to the council by all. Mr. Batten is a good citizen and straightforward in all dealings and his past experience will be of value next year.

DR. GEO. BURNHAM.

Oldest Member of Board of Education in the City.

Dr. Geo. Burnham will once more be a candidate for re-election to the Board of Education. It is thirty years since the doctor joined that institution and he has long been looked upon as the father of education in Peterborough. During his term on the board he has been chairman four years and also chairman of the various committees. He has been connected with all the improvements and additions made to the school accommodation. When he first went on the board there were only three schools. Today there are six and all have been enlarged and added to. Dr. Burnham has been and is now a valued member of the board, and there is no doubt but that he will be re-elected on January 3rd.

ALD. W. H. BRADBURN.

One of the Most Capable Members of the Council.

One of the candidates for the council is Ald. W. H. Bradburn, and he is seeking the support of the people solely on his record in the council. He has served on several committees and has been chairman of the Property Committee and the Special Power Committee and he did splendid work on both. As an alderman he is very thorough. He very seldom missed a meeting and always took an active part in the discussion. He is a man of business ability and is straightforward and fearless. He acts in the council as appears to him to be in the best interests of the people. The city would lose one of the best aldermen it has had for several years if Ald. Bradburn is not returned.

ALD. DUNCAN.

Is a Candidate for Re-election to the Council.

Ald. Geo. A. Duncan is appealing to the ratepayers for their support on Jandary 3rd. He has been in the council for several years and has proven himself a good man for the position. He has served on several committees, and was chairman of the Board of Works three years ago. He forms his own opinions and he is never afraid to express them. Ald. Duncan should receive a large support from all classes who want fair and square government.

CHARITY BOARD.

Passed House of Providence Account.

A long meeting of the Central Board was held last night when a lot of routine business was put through, including accounts and the relief officer's report.

A letter was received from W. D. Scott, superintendent of immigration stating that the department would furnish passage for Wm. Swan and family to England if the city sent them to Halifax.

On motion this was accepted and the family will be sent back to England at once.

HOUSE OF PROVIDENCE.

There was a lot of discussion over the account received from Rev. Father McCoh, for the care of patients in the House of Providence during the year. The account was for $648.

Finally it was decided to pay it on motion of Rev. Dr. Langfeldt and Mr. McClellan.

It was felt by some that the account had not been properly submitted and that a better business system should be adopted. The matter, however, has been settled for all time to come.

FALLACIES ABOUT HEALTH.

Fuller Knowledge of the Body Needed.

Thousands of useful lives are yearly sacrificed just because people lack knowledge of simple things about the body.

We must remember that little failures of the stomach, kidneys or liver bring about lack of nutrition. At first the body bends before its burden, but finally it breaks down.

Health depends upon unity of action between all the organs, and in no way can it be secured more satisfactorily than by the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. From the blood they remove every impurity—to the stomach they impart digestive power, to the bowels they ensure painless and thorough action.

It is easily to see how quickly Dr. Hamilton's Pills will restore health, how surely the system will rebuild, gain strength and endurance. For general family use in the cure of languor, headaches, weak stomach, backache and kidney complaint no medicine ranks with Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they will make you look and feel always your best. Refuse any substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills; 25c. per box, all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

ANNUAL SUPPER.

For St. Andrew's School Held Last Night.

The Sunday school Christmas gathering of about 300 children and parents of St. Andrew's Sunday school sat down to tea in the lecture hall as guests of the teachers and officers last night. At eight o'clock a program was given and proved exceedingly interesting. It took the form of a cantata representing the various holidays of the years. The different persons taking part being decorated with appropriate costume. First was New Year's Day, St. Valentine, Victoria, Summer Time, Dominion, Thanksgiving and Christmas. Mr. Stewart Lang was Santa Claus. At the conclusion of the cantata the presents were distributed from the tree to the infant and primary classes.

To Miss Bella King is due the success of all the training of the children for the various parts and choruses in the cantata. Many of the costumes also being prepared by herself. The great success of the evening's entertainment was highly complimentary.

ESKIMO PIPE.

Some Interesting Things About the Eskimos.

Owing to the recent visit of Capt. Bernier, the Canadian Arctic explorer, and to the general interest taken in the work of Dr. Grenfell among the Eskimos in Labrador, the following will be of interest:

The pipes used by the Eskimos are quite different from those of any other North American race, and in the shape of the bowl more resemble the opium pipes used by the Chinese than anything else. The old pipes were very small in the amount of tobacco that they would hold, for in former days tobacco was extremely scarce and in its use was more carefully husbanded.

There was therefore a wide flaring margin to the pipe to catch any grains of tobacco that might be spilled in filling it, then there was a hollow which would hold a pinch of tobacco half as large as an ordinary pea and a rather wide hole passing down through the base of the bowl which fitted into the pipe stem. The bowl of the pipe was of ivory, stone, brass or copper.

The pipe stem was curved and had a mouthpiece. It is said that the small hole running down through the base of the bowl and into the pipe stem was usually plugged with caribour hair to save any grains of tobacco that might otherwise have passed down through this aperture.

The Eskimos are known to be extremely skilful in the representation of scenes and objects, while the Indians of Queen Charlotte's Sound and generally all the natives of the north-west coast of America are famous for their carving in wood and in black slate. Handsomely carved Eskimo pipes of walrus ivory from north-western Alaska have on each side of the pipe, that is to say on four more or less long flat surfaces, scenes from the daily life of the Eskimo. Of these the two sides on the right hand of the pipe, as it is held in position for smoking, appear to represent the period of cold weather, later Autumn, Winter and early Spring, while those on the left hand side of the pipe represent the Summer life of the Eskimo.

PREPARING REPORT.

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. was held last night when a committee composed of Messrs. S. R. Hall, J. J. Thornton and Dr. J. E. Middleton, was appointed to receive and make nominations for the new board of directors.

A committee was also appointed to prepare the report to be presented to the annual meeting on Tuesday Jan. 11th. The members of the committee are Messrs. J. H. Conmi, J. J. Howden and C. E. Sission.

The board also considered a revision of the constitution of the association on which all the members will be asked to vote at the annual meeting. Copies of the old constitution and of the suggestion new one are now posted on the bulletin board for all to see.

Met Death on Way to Marriage Altar

Red Deer, Alta., Dec. 28. A tragedy occurred on Christmas day between Penhold and Innisfail, about 15 miles south of this town. A man named Johnson, who lived near Markerville, a widower with a family of six small children, was driving toward Penhold. It is said that he was going there to be married, when a team driven at a furious rate by two men under the influence of liquor ran into Johnson's team, throwing the man out. He sustained a fracture of the spinal cord, which proved fatal last evening. One of the men at the team named Wilson, a former member of the N.W.M.P., after seeing the result of the accident, committed suicide by shooting himself. The second man is named Mulligan, but it is not known where he lives.

Bride of Five Days Ended Her Life

Toronto, Dec. 28.—After a married life of only five days, poison ended the life of Louisa Firth, a young woman of 25 years. It is one of the most inexplicable and tragic suicides in the history of self-destruction, as the young woman apparently took the secret of the act with her to the grave. No reason can be given for it. Up till the last few moments before life became extinct she was conscious, but said nothing but that she was sorry.

Mrs. Firth was the bride of Daniel Garfield Firth, a young farmer living at Jessopville, about nine miles from Shelburne. Married last Wednesday, they went to the Winchester Hotel and registered. On Friday they left and did not return until Sunday night, when they again took a room. Yesterday morning they removed to the residence of her uncle, Mr. Francis Dunn, 14 Lakeview Ave. At the hotel they showed no signs of melancholy or madness on the part of the deceased lady, but thought rather that they were a happy young couple. Her husband, who is a big silent farmer, can give no reason for the act, as he had been in unusually good spirits and had been planning to make various purchases before returning to their home in Jessopville.

British Ship Offered Pres. Zelaya Refuge

Managua, Nicaragua, Dec. 28.—The statement by former President Zelaya at Salina Cruz, Mexico, yesterday that he had been offered asylum on the British cruiser Shearwater by the British minister, is denied here today.

The facts are these; Zelaya, when he wished to leave the country, begged of the British consul in this city that he be given permission to embark upon the Shearwater, which was then in the habor of Corinto. The consul referred the matter to the British Foreign office. Two days later the British government replied in effect as follows:

"If Zelaya reached the side of the Shearwater in his own skiff asking refuge he would be allowed to go on board. First, however, he must agree formally never to return to Nicaragua."

Zelaya balked at this condition, whereupon permission for his presence upon the Shearwater was withdrawn. Subsequently the fleeing ex-president agreed to the same terms when imposed by the Government of Mexico.

General Irias announced today his intention to travel abroad. He is leaving Nicaragua, he says, to free President Madriz of the suspicion that the latter means to continue the Zelayan regime.

Seven Little Bodies from the Holocaust

Dubois, Pa., Dec. 28.—The bodies of seven children were recovered today from the ruins of the home of Steve Bronosky, near here, which was destroyed by fire last night. The children ranged in age from two to twelve years.

The fire, which was caused by an overheated stove, exploded a can of powder, and cut off all chances of rescue. Six of the children belonged to the Bronsky family, and one to a boarder.

A boon to Stock Raisers

To Know How to Cure Colic, Distemper, Colds, Swellings, Etc.—

Saves Thousands Each Year

It is a matter of vital importance to every farmer, horse-owner and stock-raiser to know exactly what to do when one of his animals is taken suddenly sick.

The letter of Mr. Frank F. Fullerton, which we print below, gives information of inestimable value, and tells of his experience in curing ailing stock during the past thirty-eight years:

SAVED $1,000 BY NERVILINE

"Several years ago when my horses took colic I used to give them Cayenne Pepper in a few cases only did it help, and because I had so proper means at hand I lost several valuable animals. Some one told me of the success Mr. Weadling, of Brockville, Ont., had in his racing stables with "Nerviline," so I laid in a supply. It wasn't very long before Nerviline saved the life of a valuable stallion of mine, which was worth at least $1,000.00. This horse was taken with colic, and would have died, had it not been for Nerviline. I have used Nerviline for reducing swellings, for taking out distemper lumps, and easing a bad cough, and always found it worked well. I recommend every man who owns horses or cattle to keep Nerviline on hand.

Mr. Fullerton is one of the best known residents of Stormont, and his recommendation as an experienced and practical horseman proved beyond question how valuable Nerviline really is.

Give Nerviline a trial. It's good for man or beast, internally or externally. 25c per bottle or five for $1.00. At all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE COST OF LIVING.

Industrial Canada discusses the question; "Why the cost of living increases." It is disposed to think that protective tariffs are unfairly blamed for the increase, and that even in the United States the tariff is not the main cause. It enumerates three causes. The first is wasteful and unscientific agriculture. The second is that workmen live in better style today than formerly. The third is that wages have increased, and hours shortened, and thus the product has been diminished and prices augmented.

Leaving the protectionist argument out of the question for the present, the reasons assigned by Industrial Canada open up an interesting field of thought. If it is true that workmen are living better than they formerly did, that their wages are high er and their hours shorter, these are matters for congratulation. But have the wages of workmen increased and has their standard of living improved in proportion to the growth in the wealth of the nation? In other words, are the workers of their country receiving their fair share of the wealth they produce.

Doubtless, it will be found that in many workmen's homes there is an increase in the possession and use of the comforts and refinements of life. The Americans are an inventive people and their inventive faculty is largely devoted to devices for lightening household labors. Few things have contributed more to the comfort and happiness of American home life than this tendency.

An assertion that is very commonly made is that people, both in this and in the United States, use more for meat because they futile upon having choice cuts, while their fathers were content with the cheaper parts of the animal. This is very doubtful. In the first place, the use of the cheaper parts of food animals has been increased by the great packing houses, which, as it is facetiously said, use everything except the squeal. Canned meat is necessarily something of a mystery, and undoubtedly meat products are sold at a good price today which the old-fashioned butcher hardly regarded as a source of revenue.

In the second place, even with this substitution of inferior meat, the average consumption of meat in the United States has declined. The last report of the secretary of agriculture says. "Seventy years ago the per capita consumption of meat was about one-half the national dietary. In 1900 it had declined about one-third or a little more. It may be less than one-third." This change in the habits of the people is undoubtedly largely due to dearer meat forcing the consumer to use substitutes.

The urban population has been increasing more rapidly than the rural population, and this would tend to make food scarcer and dearer. Governing and legislative bodies should strive not only to improve farming methods, but to make the life of the farmer more attractive by giving him just treatment and protecting him from monopoly. Mr. Roosevelt's commission on country life contains a passage worth quoting. "We need," say the commissioners, "to recognize the necessity of the individual farmer to the use of the individual resources and agencies that go with the utilization of agricultural lands, and to protect him from hindrance and encroachment in the natural development of his business. If the farmer suffers because his business is small, isolated, and unsyndicated, then it is the part of the government to see that he has a natural opportunity among his fellows and a square deal."

INSIDE THE EARTH.

A Scientist's Idea of What Might Be Discovered.

"I have had the idea for some time past," writes Camille Flammarion in the London Strand Magazine, "of sinking a shaft into the earth for the express purpose of scientific exploration: descending as far below the surface as the utmost resources of modern science would permit.

"The first result would be to obtain an inexhaustible source of heat, which might be distributed and applied to industrial purposes. According to the most authentic estimates, the boiling point will be found at a depth of about two miles.

"Without doubt we should also discover springs of hot water, like those which were found during the construction of the Simplon tunnel in 1903, with a temperature of 48 to 53 degrees centigrade. We should also come upon subterranean rivers and cascades, which might be employed as a motive power.

"The second result would be the exploration of this unknown world itself. Who knows what curiosities of geology and paleontology might be revealed by this investigation into these dark abysses of the earth—what mines of iron, of copper, of precious metals such as gold, platinum, silver, radium and of elements hitherto unknown and unsuspected?

"This idea has been forcibly recalled to my attention in consequence of the recent earthquakes and the extremely contradictory opinions of geologists upon the interior state of the globe. Is this globe liquid or solid? From the most ancient times scientific men have considered the problem under all its bearings without having succeeded in lighting upon any satisfactory solution.

"The railway tunnels which pierce the mountains have done no more than traverse the inequalities of the crust of the earth. The deepest shaft which penetrates the earth was constructed between 1893 and 1902 at Parsechowitz, near Rybnik, and is about a mile and a quarter in depth, scarcely more than an insignificant scratch upon the surface of our globe."

Weeds as Food.

In view of the present prices of food products and the outlook for the future it may be some comfort to the American citizen to know that several of the most common weeds are good for table use.

Wild chicory is bitterly hated by the farmer, but it will make a delightful salad, tender and wholesome. The virtues of the dandelion in this respect are now well known. Wild mustard, or charlock, another bane of the farmer, gives a delicious flavor to soups, as will pokeweed, which in France is cultivated as a vegetable, taking the place of bay leaves, sage, thyme and the like. Dock weeds are astonishingly hard to discourage, so in Europe they use both the broad leafed and curly leafed varieties as table vegetables. Nettles are much used in Scotland, Poland and Germany as greens when young and tender. Purslane is boiled with other vegetables to give the dish a peculiar flavor. Sorrel is looked upon as a great pest by most farmers, but choice leaves picked from sorrel weeds make a splendid salad for a game dinner. Most people think milkweed poisonous, but it is in fact a medicinal vegetable with a flavor all its own. The young leaves seem a cross between spinach and asparagus and in a salad are delicious.—Harper's Weekly.

The Irony of Fate.

The late Baron Von Mueller, government botanist of Victoria, made the study of the plants and flowers of Australia his life work. He published lofty books on the subject, was made a German baron and a British knight and was otherwise decorated by most of the sovereigns of Europe. He spent £4,000 in the interest of Australian botanical science, with the result that he died worth only a few hundred pounds. By his will he ordered that this money should be devoted to the preparation of a memoir and the care of his grave, specifying the flowers he wished to have painted over his remains. But a Melbourne court has just decided that the money called be applied to these purposes, but must be handed over to the relatives.—London Chronicle.

The Air Nine Miles High

Samples of air at a height of nearly nine miles have been recently obtained and examined for the presence of the rare gases. The connecting apparatus carried by a large balloon is a series of vacuum tubes each drawn out to a fine point at one end. At the desired height an electro magnetic device, controlled with exhaustless patience by a barometer, breaks off the point of the tube, admitting the air. A few minutes after a second contact sends a current through a platinum wire round the broken end, melting the glass and sealing the tube. All the samples obtained show argon and neon, but no helium was found in air above six miles.

Lantern Pictures Without Screens.

A French engineer, F. de Mare, has invented an apparatus for projecting stereoptikon pictures without the use of a canvas screen. The picture in lantern at the back of the stage and causes the magnified image of the slide to be reflected from two mirrors, the second of which presents the picture directly to the spectators. The latter are seated in a fully lighted room, and the lecturer is not compelled to hide himself in darkness while explaining his views. By placing the lantern beneath the stage one of the mirrors can be dispensed with, and the spectators see the image at its first reflection.

SLOW DEATH.

Disease Usually Takes a Long Time to Kill, Says a Scientist.

Few indeed are the men and women of full age, say twenty-five, who have not yet contracted the malady that will kill them, according to that distinguished scientist and physician Dr. Felix Regnault. Normally, as contemporary investigators are beginning to find out, it takes twenty years for a fatal malady to kill a patient. It may take thirty years. The popular impression is that a man may die suddenly or that he may require only a year to die in six months. To be sure, a man may be killed or a child may die in a few months at the age of one year. But, ordinarily speaking, deaths are very slow, indeed, and about 95 per cent of civilized adults are now stricken with fatal diseases. They do not know it. They may not suffer from them. In due time they will have their cases diagnosed as cancer or tuberculosis or diabetes, or what not. But so inveterate are current misconceptions of the nature of death that the origin of the fatal malady—in time—will be miscalculated by from ten to thirty years.

In the case of human beings death, barring accident, is nearly always caused by some specific malady. This malady is as likely as not to be cured—what is called cured. The cure, however, no matter how skillful the treatment or how slight the disease, has left a weakness behind it in some particular organ of the body. One of the organs is, if not prematurely worn out, at least so worn that its resisting powers are greatly diminished. All of us in this way when we have reached a certain age possess an organ that is much older than the rest of the physique. One day we shall die because of this organ. Even if we live to be very old, indeed, we shall not die of old age, but of weakness of the lungs or of the kidneys or of the liver or of the brain.—Current Literature.

A Ten Years' Penance.

It is happily seldom that the revenge of a disappointed husband takes quite such an extreme form as in the case of the man whose will ran thus: "When I remember that the only happy times I ever enjoyed were when my wife sulked with me, and when I remember that my married life might, for this reason, be considered to have been a fairly happy one because she was nearly always sulking, I am constrained to forget the repulsion the contemplation of her face inspired me with and leave her the sum of £60,000 on condition that she undertakes to pass two hours a day at my graveside for the ten years following my decease, in company with her sister, whom I have reason to know she loathes worse than she does myself."—London Tit-Bits.

Didn't Like the Walk.

A north country pitman went with his wife one Saturday night to do a little shopping. They visited a large drapery establishment, and the obsequious shopwalker, having ascertained their requirements, said to the couple politely, "Will you please walk this way?" But unfortunately he walked very lame.

"No, mistor," said the pitman, "An nivvor bev wanked that way, an' An'm not gannin' te try!"—London Scraps.

Not Deceived.

"Never in my life have I deceived my wife."

"Same here. Mine only pretends to believe the yarns I tell."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

'Tis the mind that makes the body rich.—Shakespeare.

A LOVE TRAGEDY.

In 1858, when Ruskin was in his fortieth year, he was asked by a friend to give some lessons in drawing to a child named Rose La Touche, whose name, indeed, was French, but whose family were Irish. There sprang up between Ruskin and this young girl a very charming friendship, which, of course, at the time could be nothing but a friendship. They wrote each other letters and exchanged drawings, and then for a while they did not meet.

Ten years passed by before they saw each other. Meanwhile the child, whom he had remembered as a blue eyed, saucy, clever little blood with ripe red lips and hair like fine spun gold, had become a very lovely young woman of nineteen. They resumed their old acquaintance, but in a very different way. Though Ruskin was now nearly fifty, he gave to Rose La Touche an adoration and a passion such as he had never felt before. On her side she no longer thought of him as "very ugly," but was singularly drawn to him despite the difference in their years.

The two met often. They took long strolls together in the pleasant fields of Surrey, and at last Ruskin begged her to make him happy and to be his wife. Oddly enough, however, she hesitated, not because he was so much older than herself, but because he had ceased to be what she regarded as "a true believer." Some of the things that he had written shocked her as being almost atheistic. She was herself one [illegible] with all her gaiety of manner a rigid and uncompromising Protestant. She used phrases from the Bible in her ordinary talk, and when she spoke of marriage with John Ruskin she said that she could not endure to be "yoked with an unbeliever."

Yet her heart was torn at the thought of sending him away, and so for several years their intimacy continued, he pleading with her and striving hard to make her see that love was everything. She, on the other hand, read over those passages of the Old Testament which seemed to bar all compromise.

At last, in 1872, when she was twenty-four and he was fifty-three, she gave him her final answer. She would not marry him unless he could believe as she did. His honesty forbade him to deceive her by a pretended conversion, and so they parted, never to see each other again. How deeply she was affected is shown by the fact that she soon fell ill. She grew worse and worse until at last it was quite certain that she could not live. Then Ruskin wrote to her and begged that he might see her. She answered with a note in which she feebly traced the words:

"You may come if you can tell me that you love God more than you love me."

When Ruskin read this his very soul was racked with agony, and he cried out:

"No, no; then I cannot go to her, for I love her even more than God."

When she died, as she did soon after, the light of his life went out for Ruskin.—Lyndon Orr in Munsey's Magazine.

The Ocean's Age.

The ocean, of course, is not as old as the earth, because it could not be formed until the surface of the globe had sufficiently cooled to retain water upon it, but it seems chimerical to try to measure the age of the sea. Nevertheless Professor Joly undertook the task, basing his estimate upon the ratio of the amount of sodium it contains to that annually contributed by the washing from the continents. He thus reached the conclusion that the ocean has been in existence between 90,000,000 and 170,000,000 years. This does not seem a very definite determination, but then in geology estimates of time in years are extremely difficult because of the uncertainty of the elements of the calculation. The most that can be said for such results is that they are probable.

Couldn't Signal It!

During some tactical operations one of the ships of the squadron had made some bad blunders, and at length the admiral completely lost his temper. He stormed about his quarterdeck and informed his hearers of his opinion of the officer in command of the erring ship. When he paused for want of breath he turned to the signaler and said to him, "And you can tell him that, sir!"

The man scratched his head meditatively. "I beg pardon, sir," he ventured, "but I don't think we have quite enough flags for your message."—London Answers.

Preventics, the new Candy Cold Cure Tablets, are said by druggists to have four special specific advantages over all other remedies for a cold. First—They contain no Quinine nothing harsh or sickening. Second—They give almost instant relief. Third—Pleasant to the taste, like candy. Fourth—A large box—48 Preventics—at 25 cents. Also fine for feverish children. Sold by all dealers.

Almost every one has heard of or knows something of The Prudential Insurance Company of America, Home Office, Newark, N. J., often called the Gibraltar life insurance company, because of its use of the Rock of Gibraltar as a trade-mark.

This big company has established a branch office in this city and is conducting business in both branches of insurance, Industrial and Ordinary.

About thirty-four years ago Industrial insurance was unknown in the United States. Introduced on this continent by John F. Dryden, founder and present chief executive of The Prudential, the industrial plan at once found favor with the public.

This life insurance is applicable to every member of the family, from one year of age to seventy.

The premiums are collected weekly from the homes of the insured and are from three cents per week upward, according to the amount insured for, thus bringing the benefits of life insurance protection within the means of the wage-earning population.

Much of the thrift and economy of this same wage-earning population may be traced to industrial insurance. The habit of saving required to meet the weekly premiums unconsciously, but surely, inculcates similar habits of thrift and saving in other directions.

In the Ordinary branch all the popular forms of Life and Endowment policies are issued, in amounts from $1,000 up, and the cost is the lowest consistent with the liberal provisions of the policy and the high grade of life insurance afforded. As an investment a Prudential policy offers superior advantages.

The high standing of The Prudential makes it possible to do business satisfactorily, because there can be no doubt of a Prudential promise.

The Prudential has seven and three-quarter millions of policies in force, representing nearly a billion and a half of insurance.

In extending its field of operations to this city The Prudential offers a splendid opportunity for our young men to obtain profitable employment. Progress and promotion will be quick if honesty and ability are shown. Any young man desirous of making money and building up a successful future should consult The Prudential's representative here.

Prudential Agents will be glad to furnish full and complete information concerning the plans of The Prudential to any one. You should take an interest in life insurance, for it may make a big difference in your family's happiness some day.

TIMES OFFICE

A CAPTAIN OF INDOLENCE.

He Managed to Dodge Both Work and Matrimony.

By H. S. FRANK.

(Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.)

Gabe was lying upon his back, his hands clasped under his head, gazing unthinkingly at the sky. He was twenty-five years old and barefooted.

Overhead a buzzard floated upon motionless wings, and Gabe's eyes followed it as far as they could without causing his head to move.

If he had any thought that was strong enough to be called an ambition it was to be a buzzard, for a buzzard was not forced to flap its wings to fly.

Times had been going somewhat hard with him of late. For one thing he had had to think, and the prospect was that before long he might have to do.

Cooner's daughter was now of age, and the understanding between the families had been that some time after Mary Bet was old enough these two should marry in order to save the seven acres on one side of the slope being separated from the nine acres which joined and crept over and down the other side.

Cooner was arbitrary, and Gabe's father, under the influence of Cooner, would be just as despotic.

Then Mary Bet was pretty—there was no denying that—and more than once Gabe's heart had thumped tremendously in her presence. In that state he had even looked about her cabin critically, it may be hopefully.

But Mary Bet did not like work herself. He had found the ax lying beside three or four uncut branches her father had dragged in and the seven or eight chickens picking about without a sign of coop or shelter.

By that time his heart was again beating tranquilly, and he had viewed the scene with dispassionate forethought. Married to Mary Bet he would have to cut wood and perhaps make chicken coops and it might be would even have to plant a corn and potato patch.

The thought, made permanent by the persistent hints of Cooner and his father, had harassed him for days past, and this morning, feeling the need for absolute, unthinking rest, he had come out to this sunny spot where he could lie in his favorite attitude, with his hands clasped under his head.

But alas for plans! As the buzzard floated slowly beyond view and the unthinking eyes following it began to grow dreamy and heavy there came a sudden rasping interruption. It was Cooner admonishing his father.

"I tell ye," the strident voice was saying, "this thing's goin' on too slow. First we know somebody 'll be steppin' in, an' then where'll our two estates be? Divided. There's that Bill Tanner already comin' up to see Bet an' she lowin' him.

"Pshaw! He'd be for carryin' her way down to his cabin in the valley, an' likely 'a not they'd be for sellin' my seven acres some day. I tell ye, Mose, ye must be stirrin' up Gabe. He's a good boy and won't never be goin' off, an' if he's got a single wicked habit I've never heerd on it.

"I'll see the preacher this very day an' have him come up in two weeks. We'll have 'em ready by that time. I'll have to get Bet some new shoes, an' ye must see about Gabe's gettin' his hair cut. It's pretty toler'ble long an' untidy for a weddin'. An' we'd better be askin' all the folks to come."

Gabe had forced himself as deep as possible into the leaves, and he lay with bated breath until the voices and footsteps had died away toward Cooner's cabin.

Then he groaned and removed his hands slowly and despairingly from beneath his head. He must think and think quickly and hard or he would be lost.

Bill Tanner was peeling bark in the valley. He was a worker—not in the ordinary acceptance of the word perhaps, but from the slope point of view. Gabe went to him there.

"Hello, Bill," he began affably. "Get'in' quite a heap, ain't ye?"

Bill nodded gruffly. He had no objection to Gabe personally—only that he was welcome at the Cooner cabin and that was enough.

"Hello," he responded. "But I 'low ye'd better come some other day. I'm too busy to talk now."

"That's all right," graciously. "I don't mind seein' folks work. Comin' up tonight?"

"Where?"

"Cooner's, of course," with a grin. "But there's no need to get mad, Bill," at the look on the other's face. "I ain't here to plague ye. I come down to sell my fater patch. What'll ye give?"

It was Bill's turn to grin.

"I've heerd 'bout that fater patch," he said. "It's two acres. An' old Cooner plowed it—with his mule, an' your [illegible] ye was to [illegible] an' diggin'. I don't b'lieve ye've struck a lick in it yet."

"I don't b'lieve I have," acknowledged Gabe frankly. "But what'll ye give?"

"Why, I thought they was your wedd'n' taters," said Bill wonderingly. "I heerd Cooner say there'd be forty bushels an' that ye could sell twenty and have twenty for a winter put by."

"Yes, I heerd him say that myself," smiled Gabe. "But, see here, Bill, I ain't a hankerin' of nobody. Bet likes me better'n she does me, an' ye like her, an' the wust thing her dad's got agin ye is that you'd take her away. I don't want her to leave. Now, I've got two acres that joins him on the [illegible] side, an' it can be had for $30 if I hears the owner say so. Can ye raise [illegible] promptly."

Bill might part of it and the rest when [illegible] done."

"Well," in a relieved tone, "ye kin it quick's ye can. The owner'd take half down and wait for the rest. He told me so. He tried to sell it to me but I didn't want no land to work.

"But ye must hurry. The preacher's [illegible] up in two weeks an' ye want to be ready. Old Cooner'll be all right long's ye own ten acres j'inin' an' two acres of taters."

"An' you'll give up Bet?" incredulously.

"Long's she likes ye best, of course. I ain't comin' in between nobody that way, Bill."

Bill looked at him earnestly, then his face softened, and he extended his hand.

"You're the best fellow that ever was," he cried heartily. "An' I'm sorry for anything I've said or done. I'll be your friend after this. Now, what'll ye take for the taters?"

"Oh, that's all right," easily. "When ye're married and settled up there I'll let ye do the chores when I have any, so 'twon't cost ye nothin' but work."

Gabe went directly to Cooner, drawing a long face.

"That Bill Tanner's too smart for me," he grumbled. "I went down there thinkin' I could make a trade, but he's got my taters an' I ain't got a thing to show."

He waited long enough for his words to have their full effect, then added:

"I b'lieve I'll go out to Mexico or Maine or somewhere that way. The only thing is it'll be right hard for Bet to go so fur, but mebbe she can stand it."

"Bet go to Mexico or Maine!" almost shrieked Cooner. "Why, you—you plumb idiot, Bill Tanner's wuth a dozen of ye. Bet 'll stay right here. Now ye be gittin' off."

"But I thought"—

"Thought nothin'!" angrily. "Git along with ye."

Gabe went with downcast head until he got beyond the cabin. Then he began to chuckle.

His chuckles grew louder and louder as he widened the distance between him and the cabin, and by the time he had gone half a mile they had developed into roars of laughter.

In his present mood, however, laughter seemed all too ineffective as an expression of his feelings, and he stood on his head, turned a handspring or two and then walked on his hands for at least a dozen feet along the rough road.

Not in years had Gabe displayed one-tenth of the energy he now expended.

He was very tired, however, when his paroxysm of joy was over, and he promptly sought a secluded nook in the woods and took a long nap.

When he awoke an hour later the first audible sound he made was a chuckle, and he continued in this merry mood until the outlines of the parental cabin were sighted.

Much of the next two weeks he spent upon his back, with his face to the sky.

But when the wedding day came he was among the guests, smiling and happy, with his hair cut in honor of the momentous occasion.

"Oh, Gabe," she whispered happily, "I shan't ever forgit what ye've done for Bill an' me. It was fine the way ye got round dad, an' so smart. I—I never s'posed ye had it in ye. Bill told me all about it, an' we won't ever forgit. Ye must come jest as often as ye can an' eat with us."

PASSPORTS.

Method of Applying For Them to the State Department.

Passports are issued to citizens of the United States upon application to the state department in Washington. The application must be accompanied by an affidavit attested by a notary public or other officer empowered to administer oaths stating that the applicant is a citizen and giving the place of birth and age, and it must be accompanied by the certificate of one other citizen to whom he is personally known that the declaration made by the applicant is true.

The application must be accompanied by a description of the person, particularly as to age, height, complexion, forehead, eyes, nose, mouth, chin, hair and face. Blank forms are furnished by the state department on application. The fee for each passport is $1. Citizens traveling abroad may also obtain passports by applying to United States ambassadors and ministers.

Where any person has made a declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States and has resided in the United States for three years a passport valid for six months may be issued to him. This passport is not renewable and does not entitle the holder to the protection of this government in the country of which he was originally a citizen.—New York American.

MOUNT ETNA.

It Is Said to Hold All the Climates of the Earth.

Mount Etna has furnished more material for travelers' tales than any other mountain on earth. Astonished Englishmen of a century ago, who fell into the fashionable habit of climbing to its highest peak—and some did so, to the amazement of the Sicilians, even in the dead of winter—have left on record in the exuberant language of their day the emotions that thrilled their soul. "The man who treads Mount Etna," wrote one of these, "is a man above the world. Every river in the island can be traced from its mouth to its source.

"The characters," the same writer continues, "of all the climates of the earth can be detected—the frigid zone around one, the temperate with its belt of trees just beneath and the tropical at the base of the mountain, with its vineyards and luxuriant groves. The great ocean around, with the islands of Lipari, Panari, Alicudi, Stromboli and Volcano, with their smoking summits, appear under your feet, and you look down upon the whole of Sicily as upon a map."

In addition to all the climates, Etna is reported to have trees that rival the giants of California, lakes that never thaw, bottomless caverns and salable snow.—Chicago News.

Why We Laugh.

Laughter seems to be a specialized form of either the scream of a startled or injured animal or the cry of triumph common to many beasts of prey. In children the cry of terror and the shout of laughter often shade into each other, and the young child escaping from pursuit will scream with laughter or fear, according to his chances of escape. Some unexpected event that causes slight alarm short of actual terror is the commonest cause of children's laughter, but in adults some sudden event that gives a sensation of triumph over others has much more influence. Really clever jokes seldom cause laughter, and it has been pointed out that a man chasing his hat will produce laughter far more hearty in character than the best efforts of the cleverest wit. The sight of ill fortune in another causes by contrast a feeling of triumph in ourselves. The ticklish parts of the body are for the most part the sites of important blood vessels, and the laughter produced in children by tickling is even more closely allied to the cry of pain.

OIL RUSH TO SOUTHERN ALBERTA

WILL BE GREATER THAN YUKON

It is only of recent years that we have awakened to the great possibilities and the wonderful wealth represented in the natural resources of the Dominion of Canada.

Prominent in the mineral areas is crude oil or petroleum, and quite recently Southern Alberta Oil Fields have experienced considerable activity.

If you were to turn to the map recently issued by the Geological Department of the Dominion Government showing the petroleum deposits, you would find that that district close to and immediately southwest of Pincher Creek, in Southern Alberta, is, as the district most clearly defines, a country of great petroleum wealth.

We are offering for immediate sale a block of 25,000 shares in the Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Company, Limited, at 25c each, which shares have a par value of one dollar each, and are non-assessable since the company is a limited liability corporation, operating under a charter issued by the Government of the Province of Alberta.

The Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Company Limited, control an area of oil lands to the extent of 5,760 acres in the heart of the Pincher Creek district.

We have at our office here considerable quantity of crude oil taken from the oil seepages which appear at different points on the Company's property.

The Company owns one of the largest two-rig drilling equipment ever imported into Canada. This plant was shipped direct from the centre of the oil industry, Pennsylvania, to the Company's property, and is now being set up ready for drilling.

We have every reason to believe, since we know the property thoroughly, that those who are fortunate enough to secure a holding in this Company at the present price of twenty-five cents per share are in the pathway of big profits on their investment. Quite recently a vein of finest grade of bituminous coal was unearthed on the Company's property. The seam is ten feet deep, and was full length of the property. It is a most valuable asset.

Those who were fortunate enough to buy in on the ground floor of the big American oil company have become independently wealthy.

TWO THOUSAND PER CENT, is the average advance of the stocks of thirty oil companies in the United States. The following are a few samples:

THE HOME OIL CO., which was started with a cash capital of only $15.00 and ten acres of land, paid eight millions in dividends. The San Francisco Petroleum Co. has paid over twenty-seven millions in dividends. The Pacific Coast Oil Co. has paid over fourteen millions, and the Standard Oil Co. pays upwards of forty millions annually in dividends.

OIL LANDS and lands adjacent to them bring fabulous prices. One-eighth of an acre of oil land in Texas was sold for $80,000.00, and acre-plots three to five miles away were sold for $27,000.00 and $33,000.00, respectively, whereas before the discovery of oil this same ground could have been bought for 50 cents per acre, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that the lands of the Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Co. may increase similarly in value.

We reproduce herewith a letter which was written to Mr. Black, Superintendent of the Chicago-Alberta Oil Fields Co., Limited, by John W. Warren, who personally visited and inspected property controlled by the Company. It is certainly a most unconditional endorsement of the district, and in particular the quality of petroleum taken from the same:

LETTER.

TESTIMONY OF JOHN W. WARREN.

Elgin, Ill., July 21, 1908

Mr. David Black,
Pincher Creek, Alberta, Canada.

Dear Sir:

In reply to yours of recent date, I will say that I went to the oil fields of Alberta, Canada, and saw oil oozing out of the rocks and ground, and floating away on small creeks. I went to the last "seepage" and saw the oil running down the rocks for at least 300 feet. I saw a great many oil springs. I gathered some of the oil in a bottle and brought it home, some I caught flowing from a well 750 feet deep. I took my small still, hydrometer, and other things necessary to make a test with me—I found it,

40 degrees Baume
6 88-100 lbs. weight per gallon, wine measure.

It contains 20 to 25 per cent. gasoline. I distilled and refined some gasoline and did it without our sulphuric acid or lead. It was very fine, in fact the finest I ever saw. I made some axle grease out of the Alberta oil just as it came from the well near Pincher Creek. We greased a buggy, 2 wheels on one side with this axle grease, and the other 2 wheels with pure castor oil. The axle grease ran twice as long as the castor oil and without gum. Farther, I have treated oils from New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Texas, Kansas, California and [illegible] Canada. I consider Alberta Oil to be [illegible] all in gasoline and lubricating oil. It contains less sulphur than any oil I have treated. Any man can see that there is a great demand in Canada for Alberta oil, for five-sixths of the oil used there comes from the United States. You ask my opinion. I think the oil fields of Alberta are as good as ever the Pennsylvania were.

I remain yours,
JOHN W. WARREN.

We will not accept applications for less than one hundred shares, and, when the whole sum of $25 is paid, certificate will be issued at once.

Shares may be secured, however, on terms: 10c per share cash, balance 5c per share per month.

We shall be pleased to forward those at a distance complete information concerning this proposition, and answer all inquiries.

Our office is open daily from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Remember that the price of 25c per share is good only until Friday evening at nine o'clock, December 24th. Any shares that we may have on our hands after this date will be withdrawn from the market, and no stock will be offered at any future date for less than thirty or thirty-five cents. Once drilling commences you may expect to see considerable activity in the shares of this Company, and, by the time the drills are down to the oil level (a matter of sixty or ninety days), there is every indication that the stock will be selling at par.

Our Address is Suite 8, Imperial Chambers, 32-34 Adelaide Street East.

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

Guaranterd by a $1,000,000 Bank

SUPPOSE a million-dollar bank should offer you a gold bond, guaranteeing you against loss in an investment you desired to make, and providing that, whether the investment did or did not prove a profitable one, the bank would pay you back every dollar of your money at the end of twenty years, wouldn't that "look good" to you? And wouldn't you take it?

Wouldn't it look as though the bank itself, as well as the men behind the enterprise that formed the basis of the investment, had absolute confidence in it, and looked upon it as a safe and profitable venture?

Can you figure out any way in which you could possibly lose the money you put into an enterprise with that kind of backing? To be sure, you would run the risk of not receiving interest for that length of time on the amount of your investment, but you would also run the chance of multiplying it many times over in the way of dividends—and that is worth something, isn't it? In other words, you have opportunity to win, and not a single chance to lose.

Now, that is exactly what we, the officers and directors of Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company, of Reno, Nevada, are offering for a short time to those who wish to take advantage of it, and we make this remarkable offer, first, because we know what we have in the way of a property, and, second, because we need a little more capital to erect a mill upon it and make it an extremely profitable producer in the shortest possible time.

This is the first time, to our personal knowledge, that an offer like this has ever been made with reference to any enterprise of a similar character, here or elsewhere.

Organization, Capitalization and Officers

Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company is organized under the laws of the State of Nevada, with a capital stock of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000), divided into One Million (1,000,000) shares, of the par value of One Dollar ($1.00 each, full paid and non-assessable, and with no personal liability attaching to the stockholders. The number of shares in the treasury is Four Hundred Thousand (400,000).

The principal office of the company is at No. 236 Mill Street, Reno, Nevada, and the depository of the company is the Mixon National Bank, of the same city.

The officers are as follows: President, D. J. Kennedy, an old resident of Nevada, and one of the best known and most successful mining operators in the state; vice-president, F. W. Thomas, of the firm of John Brenner & Co., one of the largest mercantile establishments in the city; secretary, Donald Fraser, one of the proprietors of the Red Cross Drug Company, of Reno; treasurer, H. L. Burchell, mining operator, and manager of the most prominent of the leading law firms of the state.

Location and Character of Properties

The holdings of Treasury Gold Mining and Milling Company include the following valuable properties in the famous Fairview district, in Churchill county, Nevada, reached by a fine wagon road from Fallon, the county seat:

By purchase outright—fully paid for and deed recorded at Fallon—valuable mining estates on both sides of the great Mizpah mine, on both of which properties rich ore has been found.

By purchase—paid for, deeded and recorded—the Treasury group of two full claims, amounting to 40 acres, to the north-east of the Mizpah mine, the rich ledge of which we have every reason to believe courses straight through our property for at least 2,000 feet. This we regard as a very valuable holding.

By purchase, an undivided one-half interest in seven claims, containing 100 acres, southwest of the Mizpah, with every indication that the Mizpah vein runs through our ground at least 1,500 feet. The deed for our one-half interest is recorded at Fallon, and we have an option for one year on the other one-half interest.

All the leasing rights and privileges of the Mizpah Milling and Leasing Company on twelve blocks of the celebrated Mizpah mine, for the term of five years. On this property, considerable quantities of fine shipping ore are already opened; drifting has been carried on for some distance on the 100-foot level, while the second level, at 175 feet depth, is now being driven on to catch the same ore body, when shipments will begin.

Values as Shown By Assays

From Treasury Group at the surface, gold and silver values	$139.50
" " " " " " " " " "	348.00
" " " " " " " " " "	77.42
From Kentucky Group, surface workings, gold and silver values	128.00
" " " " " " " " " "	78.00
From Mizpah shafts, tunnels and upraises, gold and silver values	963.00
" " " " " " " " " "	230.77
" " " " " " " " " "	235.40
" " " " " " " " " "	89.87
" " " " " " " " " "	84.21

From the foregoing tests, it will be seen that, leaving out of the calculation our own extensive properties, all of which contain indications of remarkable richness, we are fully justified in expecting sufficient profits from the operation of our five-year lease on the great Mizpah mine alone, to pay enormous dividends to all our stockholders. Best to operate them all, with the greatly increased facilities and equipment we intend to add, should give us a production equaled by few mining properties in the world.

We have already found very rich ore in the shallow workings of our Kentucky group to the west, and of our Treasury group to the east of the Mizpah, and we can see no reason why both of these properties should not prove fully as rich as the famous Mizpah mine itself. We are in a district noted for its immense bodies of gold and silver ores, and where deep workings open up vast treasure vaults of mineral wealth.

Additional Equipment Required

In order to more speedily place these splendid properties among the high class producers of the state, and to combine the maximum of production and profit with the minimum of cost, considerable additional equipment is required.

This includes a standard, modern mill, to reduce our ore to bullion and concentrates at the mine, thus saving the transportation and treatment charges of $20 to $30 a ton on the ore to the Salt Lake smelters. To be sure, the ore is of such a high grade character that there is a good profit in mining and shipping it even at these high rates, but it would be better business to save it and add that much more to the net profits, by treating it at our own mill, which, under the circumstances, thus becomes a necessity. With a 100-ton plant, we should easily be able to treat our ore at an expense not to exceed $2.50 per ton, and by adding another unit to its capacity, can still further reduce the cost, and thus save from $17.50 to $37.50 per ton on transportation and treating charges alone—quite an item when figuring the net profits.

The first unit capacity of 100 tons daily, of a standard mill, modern in every way, including stamps, amalgamators, fine grinding, concentration and cyaniding, with a sampler in front, so that ore can be purchased from surrounding properties, and general custom work done if desired, will enable us to add one unit after another as may be required with increased development of the ore bodies. By thus adding to the capacity of the mill, we shall be in a position to treat an immense tonnage daily, and pay dividends accordingly.

We will therefore not only effect a great saving of our present expenditures, but earn a handsome revenue, practically all profit, from the large volume of custom work that would be brought to our mill for treatment and reduction.

We also want to sink a capacious double-compartment shaft into the permanent sulphide mass at once, first, in order to have the ore bodies opened up for the mill, and secondly, to aid in determining the proper methods of treatment; so that we may build a mill adapted to the character of the ores, and capable of giving the largest returns to the company in the extraction of the gold and silver values.

Novel Plan to Secure Funds

Now, we are quite willing to admit that equipment of the character already mentioned, which will put the properties in the best possible working shape, will cost more money than is available at present, unless we accept the alternative of sacrificing a small portion of our special stock, in order to begin operations on a profitable basis at once.

The officers and directors of the company have therefore decided to adopt this method, and, while limiting the sales to but one-fifth of the capitalization, to surround the sale of every share with a positive safeguard against any possible loss.

We do not know that such an offer has ever before been made, and we expect the amount offered to be over-subscribed several times when the terms of the offer are made known.

First, we limit the amount of stock that will be sold, in order to provide the finds for necessary equipment, to Two Hundred Thousand (200,000) shares, and this is to be positively the last as well as the first, allotment that will be sold at the present low price, of 20 cents a share, as we honestly believe the stock will be good for dividends of not less than one dollar per share annually, after we commence treating 100 tons daily at the mill.

Stock Guaranteed

In order to absolutely protect purchasers of these shares against the possibility of a loss, we have made arrangements with the Metropolis Trust and Savings Bank, of San Francisco, one of the strongest financial institutions in the United States, to guarantee every share of stock sold, and to issue to every purchaser a gold bond for the full amount of his investment, such bond being payable in twenty years, whether the mines pay or not. Therefore, even if the mines never paid a dollar—though we expect them to pay millions—the stockholders cannot possibly lose anything except the interest on their investment, while they stand to win fortunes from the amounts they put into these properties.

The shares offered on these unparalleled terms may be paid for either in cash or in five equal monthly payments, and the money derived there from will be used entirely for the further development and equipment of the properties. The shares will also be traded in on both the New York and Boston exchanges the moment we begin shipping and paying dividends.

The elements of industrial safety and of the speculative profits of gold mining under such extremely favorable conditions, are combined in this enterprise to a greater degree than in any other undertaking within our knowledge or experience, and will appeal with irresistible force to all sensible and conservative people as an opportunity without an equal. It is a case of "heads, you win! tails, you cannot lose." If the mines pay as we believe they will bring to every stockholder, in dividends, many times the amount of his investment. If they do not pay, he gets his money back.

Janet, the Factory Girl

The Ray of Brightness That Came Into Her Dull Life.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

"Dingle, dongle, dingle, ding, ding, d-i-n-g," ended the first summons to the factory workers, the last "d-i-n-g" being long drawn out, as though the bell ringer, who was also the night watchman, was becoming weary of the signal which ended and yet did not end his hours of labor. His regular visit to the peg clock in each room was over, but now he must wait another half hour to ring the last summons to the help.

Janet Ratcher was a sleepy head, and, though she heard and recognized the last drawling "d-i-n-g" of the first bell, she made no effort to rise, but continued to lie there, gazing sullenly at the window, through which a faint suggestion of daylight was beginning to appear. Rain was pattering against it, and the chill of a falling barometer had penetrated the room until the mere thought of stepping out upon a cold floor brought an anticipatory shiver, and the factory was nearly a mile away.

Janet was blue. She had gone to bed in that condition, and now she had awakened in the same way.

It was not until she heard a hesitating step below that she sprang from bed, repentant, ashamed, and hurried into her clothes and downstairs.

"Oh, mother," she cried, "you ought not to have got up till I had a fire started! Here, let me throw this shawl around you."

"I was afraid you'd be late, dearie," her mother said apologetically. "I meant to have got up sooner and had something warm for you, but overslept. It's too bad to have to go out on a morning like this."

"Well, I didn't oversleep," confessed Janet, forcing herself into temporary cheerfulness. "I was just lazy and lay there studying about things. Lucky I had everything ready last night. I'll put the water in this shallow pan so it'll heat quickly; then we'll have coffee." She glanced at the clock. "Twenty minutes, and it'll take twelve for me to walk to the factory. No, ma, you needn't put up a chair for me. I shan't sit down. I'll just take a bite and run. Don't you hurry, though. Wait till the victuals get warmed over and the coffee's good, then take your time. It'll help fill up the day. You must get awful lonesome here by yourself."

"N-no, not so very," the old woman answered. "I have my knitting, and there's the cat. But I do look forward to your coming home, dearie."

"I suppose so. I wish"— She paused abruptly. She must not make things any harder for the invalid, who already had to bear so much. She took a few bites hurriedly and in silence, then slipped some bread and an apple into a paper bag.

Janet was all ready, with the hood of the waterproof drawn over until it almost concealed her face, when her mother returned with the slippers and stockings rolled into a small package. This and the lunch she slipped under the folds of the waterproof. Then she pushed back the hood a little in order to kiss her mother goodby.

"Now I must hurry," she said, "for time's up. Tonight I'll cook up a lot of nice things—an Indian pudding, maybe, and some brown bread. And you know, mother, Sunday's only three days off, when we'll be together most all day."

Outside the depressed feeling returned in its full intensity. The rain beat in her face, the raw wind crept through the waterproof and thin clothing, the road was covered with two inches of soft, clinging mud, and it was still too dark for her to see her way clearly.

The next house was dark. The folks had not got up yet and would not have to any more until it was light. Mary Bosworth, her best friend, lived there, and the morning before Mary had joined her in the hurry toward the mill. But Mary was a very bright girl, who had studied drawing and other things and who was quick and imaginative in sketching designs and novelties. The day before she had been promoted to the position of assistant designer for the mill, and after this she would work in the office and not have to go in until 9 o'clock.

A depression in the road caused her to stumble, splashing the mud up to her waist. Her lips quivered. She was not bright, like Mary. She could not do anything except make Indian pudding and brown bread and coffee and things like that and spin. They did say she was the best spinner in the whole room. But spinning was no good to help one up to anything else. It meant that she could just spin and spin and spin all the rest of her life.

A halting footstep and an eager "Janet, Janet," caused her to slacken her pace a little. A lame girl was limping toward her, a girl younger than herself and far more thinly clad, but the sallow, pinched face was radiant.

"Isn't it fine, Janet!" she cried gleefully as she snuggled under the waterproof, which Janet promptly open and shared with her. "I can go a' with you to the mill now, and I' work in the same room. Just t I spoke for a job six months a only got it now! It was av that Mary Bosworth got her —nice for her and me, too. one her job. Now I can things that mother need next summer I can t sons."

Janet drew the fra little closer. A yea first obtained her much the same. bought her mot' nice things th And now she Janet's spi all, she wa and been the place ful, alw step a she c was do something that would make her like them.

The last bell had been ringing for several minutes now, and from its accelerating clangs and tumultuous jingles they knew it was racing on toward its final, "dingiety, dingiety, dingiety," the last notes of which would still be madly vibrating the air when the night watchman darted out, putting on his hat and coat as he ran. His speeding exit would be the signal for the last of the help to slip inside the yard gates, for then they would be locked. Janet and her companions were a dozen yards away when the final "dingiety" sounded and the watchman speeded out, but the gatekeeper saw them and fumbled clumsily with the fastenings until they could hurry in.

On damp days like this the ends ran badly, with much twisting and breaking, and, though Janet was nimble fingered and the best spinner in the room, she had all she could do to keep her sides pieced up. Especially was this the case after doffing, which occurred twice a day. With the bobbins nearly full the threads ran more smoothly, but with them empty or nearly so there was greater strain upon the threads, causing them to snap frequently. The doffers pieced up the first irregular breaks, but after that the spinner had to attend to her own sides.

This doffing of the full bobbins and replacing them with empty ones upon the spindles had always been an interesting operation to Janet, and she could doff as quickly and neatly as the experts themselves.

There were always two of these doffers, each taking a side of a frame and going up one row and down another until the room was completed. They use small sleds or carriages which could be pushed along the sides by the right knee as they worked. It took about two hours to doff the whole room, and then the doffers were allowed to leave the mill or do whatever they pleased until doffing time came again.

This long leisure between work made the position of doffers a very desirable one, and there was a saying among the spinners that "once a doffer, always a doffer." The present two had held their positions for years.

Soon after the morning doffing the overseer made one of his observation tours among the frames, reprimanding by blowing upon his shrill whistle any neglect of work he found. No matter where the operator of a side might be, when she heard that whistle she hastened back to her neglected duty with apologetic and crimson face. In Janet's alley this whistle was rarely heard. When he came to her now the overseer was smiling. He usually was smiling when he found good work.

"You had a hard morning coming down, didn't you, Janet?" he asked.

"Yes, sir. It was pretty wet and muddy."

"Well, why don't you ask for the Harding tenement? They're going to leave next week, and it would bring you to within a few rods of the mill gate. It's the same rent as your house out there in the country, I think, and would make it a lot easier for you this winter. Suppose I speak to the outside manager about it?"

"Thank you. I wish you would," she said gratefully.

She could leave her mother late[illegible] and [illegible] be back to her earlier in the [illegible] and it would save that long walk during the winter. But, on the other hand, there was the apple orchard at the country place and the big garden and the flowers around the house. Her mother loved flowers, and one of her chief pleasures was to be out among them in the spring and during the summer. And they had planned so many vines and beds for the next year. It was really beautiful out there, while the Harding tenement was only the counterpart of fifty others, without yard or even fence around it. And even if it was cold and disagreeable sometimes that mile walk would very likely be good for her to counteract the mill confinement. What had she been thinking about?

She went straight to the overseer.

"I don't believe you'd better speak to the manager about that tenement," she said. "You see, we've got an apple orchard out there and a big garden and flowers, and mother loves things. I've been thinking it over and I believe the walking will do me [illegible]

For answer he lifted the cloak and threw it about my shoulders.

"It may be worn only once in a century. I sacrifice my opportunity that my honored friend, the great Lewis, may enjoy benefits," said Wakuru meekly.

He stood facing me with his eyes wide open, as if watching for some metamorphosis to take place beneath the emperor's golden coat.

Presently I became aware that the coat was pressing my shoulders heavily and that before me I saw nothing save Wakuru's beady eyes. They changed to two black crows flying above a desolate mining country in Nevada.

They paused above the mine in which I had sunk a little fortune in years past—the Cinnamon Bear mine—and I dimly realized that the mine was no longer deserted. A small town had grown up about it, and as I gazed a car heaped with rich ore was run out of the shaft and sent whirling down an incline to the smelter.

My brother-in-law and partner in my mining enterprise stood in the foreground, and somewhere on a signboard I read, "Lewistown, Nevada."

The vision came so quickly and so rapidly vanished that it seemed but a second later that I was once more gazing at Wakuru's beady black eyes.

"The Honorable Lewis has seen visions of success," he said quietly, as one who states a fact.

"Wakuru, you rascal, you've hypnotized me!" I ejaculated angrily. "But I'm blessed if I've thought of the Cinnamon Bear for three years, although Ned did say he was going to have another try out there."

Without a word the Japanese removed the cloak from my shoulders and replaced it within the stone coffin. Five minutes later we were walking toward my hotel.

I went directly to my sitting room, and while Wakuru laid out my clothes for dinner I opened an accumulation of letters on my desk. Among them was a brief cablegram from Ned Merchant, my brother-in-law.

The special prizes to be given at the Peterborough Poultry Association's second annual show next week are on exhibition in the north window of Lang and Maher's store, and are attracting considerable attention. They include cash prizes, handsome silver cups and other valuable awards.

Attending Funeral.

Rev. Canon Davidson and Mayor Rush left yesterday for Cobourg to attend the funeral of the late Miss Katharine Congal, who passed away on Sunday. A number of years ago Miss Congal resided in Peterborough and had many friends and acquaintances here.

Many school children suffer from constipation, which is often the cause of seeming stupidity at lessons. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are an ideal medicine to give a child, for they are mild and gentle in their effect, and will cure even chronic constipation. 7

Moto-Phonetic Pictures Interest Large Audiences at the Princess.

The way this new style of moto-phonetic pictures is shown is as follows. The scenic part of the picture is thrown on the screen in the regular way. Behind the screen is an immense phonograph, mounted on an illuminated dial. As soon as the operator in his box is ready to "run" the film he looks at the dial below the phonograph. An illuminated arrow revolves in sight of the operator. At the exact right time the operator starts the moving picture machine synchronously with the phonograph, which is out of sight of the audience. The result is that the audience sees, on the screen, characters in the scenic play performs their various parts and those in the audience are convinced that said characters are actually singing or speaking. Four new films and accompanying records will arrive here today.

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition. 8

SURVEY IS FINISHED.

Junction of Grain Route With C.P.R. Main Line May Be About2½ Miles West of the City.

There is a probability that the junction of the new C.P.R. grain route, with the main line, will be just west of Leary's ballast pit, about two and a half miles west of the city of Peterborough. The engineers who were making a new survey in that section as a result of the protests from Peterborough in connection with the proposed entrance in the western part of the city, have completed their work. The survey made shows that it is possible to get a good grade by joining the main line at the point mentioned above. There is a pretty steep grade between Peterborough and the siding at Kendrey, and this is largely avoided by keeping away from the main line until a point just west of Leary's pit.

As the survey is completed it is likely that a definite announcement as to the location of the road will be made at an early date.

NEW MUSIC.

Mr. Gliddon Heard Several New "Marches" While in Toronto.

When he was in Toronto attending the recent concerts given in Massey Hall by Sousa's band, Mr. Gliddon, conductor of the 57th regimental band was much taken with several of the numbers played by the widely known "March King's" superb organization of musicians. Among these three spirited marches by Sousa himself, viz.; "The Joy of the Yankee Navy," "Diplomat," and "Hands Across the Sea," and are all written in that stirring, tuneful and unconventional way that have gained the Sousa marches such a gained popularity. Included in the list of other new numbers which Sousa's band played, and which have been added to the 57th's already extensive library are, "Pet of the Guards," march Pryor; the Egyptian serenade "Amina" and the intermezzo "The Glow Worm," both by Paul Lincke; 'Frozen Bill," rag, Pryor; medley of popular airs of 1863, and "Miserere" from Il Trovatore," with duet for cornet and baritone.

All the selections mentioned are especially attractive and will be given widely colder.

VOL. XXXII NO. 304 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO THURSDAY DECEMBER 30. 1909 PRICE TWO CENTS

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

At the earnest solicitation of a large number of the ratepayers, I am now asking your support for my election to the Mayoralty of the City of Peterborough for the year 1910, and in doing so I am relying upon my record as a ratepayer, as a life-long citizen, as one materially interested in the manufacturing and industrial development of the city, and as one who as an Alderman served you for the past three years, first as chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee and secondly as chairman of the Finance Committee.

It is usual for one aspiring to the chief magistracy to attempt to out line some definite policy to be pursued during the term of office. In compliance with that custom I can only say that it will be my one aim to serve the city to the best of my ability, to do what I can to promote its commercial, industrial and moral development, to give fair and just consideration to all questions which may come before the council, having regard to neither class nor party, as I am pledged to none.

Our city has made rapid progress in recent years, and the continuation of this progress will depend largely upon the growth and expansion of the city's present industries, and upon the establishment of new ones to which every encouragement and legitimate inducement should be given—the council should give immediate attention to securing an adequate supply of cheap power; every effort conducing to these ends has my fullest sympathy and support.

The time has also arrived when the council must take into consideration the question of permanent roadways in the business section, and in general street construction, and of the extension and improvement of the sewer system in the southern parts of the city. To both of these matters I shall, if elected, give my earliest attention.

I am in favor of carrying out a policy of the strictest economy consistent with proper service in every department of the municipal business.

As the time between now and election day is short it will be impossible for me to personally call upon every ratepayer; I therefore take this means and opportunity of soliciting for myself the honor of your vote and influence.

Wishing you all a very Happy and Prosperous New Year, I am,

Yours sincerely,

W. G. Morrow

No Inquest will be Held Man Took His Own Life

Yesterday afternoon at two o'clock a corner's jury, on a warrant issued by Corner Dr. Grey, met at D. Helleghess's undertaking establishment to enquire into the death of the late Ed. Shannley. The corner, shortly after the members of the jury had arrived, explained he had been under the impression that Shannley had been a prisioner at the station at the time of his death. Dr. Gray noted that by law, had the deceased been a prisoner an inquest would be necessary but he was quite sober when he arrived at the station to beg for a night's shelter.

Mr. T. Cavanagh, a member of the jury summoned showed a piece of paper on which the personal history of the deceased was written. Mr Cavanagh further explained that Shannley has recently arrived from Cobalt where he had gone to work as an assistant cook. He said that the deceased had been suffering with troublesome sores and that he was without funds. The coroner then dismissed the jury.

ASKED FOR SHELTER.

Shannelley called at the police station Tuesday night shortly after ten o'clock, seeking shelter from the cold. He had no place to go and on two or three occasions had slept in the police station. Tuesday evening, when he called he went to one of the cells and laid down on the bench On coming in he bade the officer in the station "Good night," and passed along to the corridor, nothing more being said. The officers did not bother the deceased, thinking all the time that he was sleeping, until half-past two, when P. C. Meharry and Meagher, who were changing their duties, heard someone fall from a cell bench to the floor. Going to Shannelley's cell they found him lying with his face on the floor, and the empty bottle was lying beside him. His lips and mouth showed evidences of his having taken carbolic acid, but when discovered he was still breathing. Dr. McPherson was sent for, and was soon at the side of the dying man, but any effort to save his life was of little avail, and he passed away shortly after the doctor's arrival. The bottle from which he drank was a five-ounce one, but it cannot be ascertained whether it was full or not. No motive for the man's rash act can be learned.

Shannelley came originally from England. He had been around here about six years and during that time was employed as yardsman at various hotels. He was a year in Cobalt, and only returned from there two months ago. He had no relatives in Canada.

FIRE, WATER & LIGHT.

Water Commissioners' Account Was Passed.

A short session of the Fire, Water & Light Committee was held last night, the last one for the year. The account of the Water Commissioners for $2061.46, was ordered to be paid. This account is for the supply of water for fire protection.

The committee also settled up the quarter's account with the Peterborough Light & Power Co.

Truth Will Out.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—Some time ago it was stated by Mr. Lastar, the writer of many letters in the city papers in opposition to the local option movement, that he did not represent the liquor interest in the city, and that he was paying for the insertion of this matter out of his own pocket. This was corroborated by one of the liquor dealers of the city. There is now information given by Mr. Lastar himself in the possession of the Executive of the Temperance and Moral Reform League, to the effect that the cost of the insertion of these letters in excess of $63, is being paid for by the liquor interests. Mr. Lastar has made this statement in the presence of witnesses, who are prepared to substantiate this statement.

Grand Rally Meeting Held in Mr. Morrow's Committee Rooms

Spirited Addresses by Messrs. W. G. Morrow, James Kendry, T. F. Matthews and Others—A Good Sized Crowd Present —Mr. Morrow is Confident of Success

The mayoralty contest is on with a big swing now. The first meeting was held last night in Mr. W. G. Morrow's committee rooms on Simcoe street, when a big rally was held. The room was well filled and the tone of the speakers were all for success. All the prominent men present were called upon for a speech, and the list included Messrs. James Kendry, Mayor Rush, Ald. Phelan, W. H. Meldrum, T. F. Matthews, R. J. Sodan, Andrew McFarlane, J. J. Hartley, Wm. Scott, Robt. Neill, Add. Buller, W. G. Morrow, Robt. Fair and Harstone. Among others present were Messrs. Sam Clegg, Arthur McClellan, Robt. Kerr, H. Morphet.

T. F. MATTHEWS.

Mr. Matthews thought that a man should possess certain qualities to make an excellent mayor. He should be honest and of a good character. He should be loyal to the city, and a man with something at stake. Mr. Morrow had large interests in Peterborough, and its welfare would be foremost in his mind. The mayor should have a broad vision. He must look ahead. Mr. Morrow was connected with large concerns and a man that has great influence. Mr. Mason was always a friend of the speaker, and he hoped he always would be. He felt he would be amiss in his duty if he did not come forward and speak for Mr. Morrow.

In regard to the remarks of Ald. Hicks, the other day, he said that he considered him a gentleman who always knocked but never boosted. Mr. Matthews recalled the pamphlets issued by him when the Water Commissioners were asking for $120,000 for the development of power when Mr. Hicks claimed they would not have the power they would. He hoped soon to be able to provide what they had promised. This was an instance of Ald. Hick's bad judgment. The most economical man was not always the best. It was necessary to construct a fine city with good roads and sewer connections. He believed he was supporting Mr. Morrow for good sound reasons. Mr. Mason has not had the opportunities Mr. Morrow had. Mr. Morrow was the right man.

JAMES KENDRY.

Mr. James Kendry was also glad to support Mr. Morrow. The city needed such men as him. He was honest and a man of good influence. Mr. Morrow had the city's interests at heart, and as a manufacturer, the speaker was anxious to see the city go ahead. He had been eighteen years in the council himself and he knew that the aldermen were often unjustly criticized. He remembered what Ald. Phelan referred to, as to the conditions in 1908 when so many men were out of work. He believed the council did what was right when they supplied work for the unemployed. He did not think all the blame should be attached to the chairman of the Finance Committee. Extra expenditure had been incurred during the past year by a smallpox epidemic. No one could help that.

He was not going to support Mr. Mason. A man, he said, who stated he wouldn't take a stand either on the liquor side or on the temperance side because he was a business man, was not the one for mayor. A business man, the speaker believed should speak out and should stick to it. The chief magistrate should have opinions of his own and should lead the council. Mr. Morrow would, he was sure, be the right man.

W. G. MORROW.

Mr. W. G. Morrow when called upon, received a warm reception. He expressed his pleasure at so large a gathering and also his satisfaction with the reception he had been receiving at the hands of the ratepayers. He said he had gone through most of the large industrial concerns and was well received on all sides. He had in his mind no doubt as to the result when the polls closed on Monday night. He asked all present to use their influence on his behalf. In referring to the power question he said that that was one of the most essential things to Peterborough's future progress, and that the council should not leave a stone unturned to secure for the city a water power that would assure an abundant supply of power. Mr. Morrow then briefly referred to Ald. Hick's criticism of him as chairman of the Finance Committee at the nomination meeting on Monday. He said that the increase in the rate was largely due to the increased demand from the Board of Education to keep up the schools, and from the City Trust Commission to meet the big increase in the interest and sinking fund for the debenture debt. As the city grows sewers and sidewalks must be extended and the tax rate will necessarily grow. It is bound to increase. Mr. Morrow again asked the support of all and wished them a Happy New Year.

The speeches of the other gentlemen mentioned above, all expressed confidence in Mr. Morrow and termed him the best man to fill the position. They assured him of their support, and some criticised Mr. Mason for entering the field against a man like Mr. Morrow.

The meeting closed with cheers for the King and Mr. Morrow.

FARMER'S WIFE'S STORY.

Food Lacks Variety—Ill Health Frequent.

Everything one eats in town comes from the country, yet the farmer's table shows the least variety and his wife undoubtedly works the hardest. In this sweeping arraignment Mrs. J. V. Tate gives the cause of her ill-health. "I lost my appetite, gas formed in the stomach and caused great distress. A sense of fulness or distension, with aching pains in the left shoulder blade and back, inflicted further suffering upon me. My system was sluggish, and with other troubles incident to woman, my state was miserable. I used to wish for this and that to eat, but a farmer's table is mostly for well folks. It was a good thing I heard of Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they fixed up the stomach some, and then I could eat. By acting splendidly upon the system, my blood was made pure, and I got color and strength. In a few weeks I had no more gas, nor the full feeling—everything seemed to get right all at once. I can eat anything now, do my own work and feel life worth living."

Don't fail to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are the right medicine to make and keep you well. At all dealers, in 25c. boxes, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Art and the Railway.

One of the greatest living English painters has completed a series of offices in London, England. My Frank offices in London, England. Mr. Frank Brangwyn, A.R.A., is perhaps the greatest figure painter in the world, as well as one of the few great masters of color. His commission from the Grand Trunk Railway System is one more evidence of the fact that genius is hand in hand with commerce in an industrial age.

Of the work of Mr. Brangwyn, the Canadian Courier says, "No bigger work has perhaps ever been done in England than Brangwyn's friezes for the new Grand Trunk Office built by Sir Axton Webb, the most distinguished British architect. The friezes are superb historic groups representative of the conquest of Canada by commerce and the railway. They will be seen by more people than as though they had been done for an art gallery, by perhaps as many people as have seen the frescoes of Raphael in the churches of Italy. A railway company which does things of such magnitude is doing a great work in the esthetic development of the people. Such work costs a good deal of money, but it is counted a good investment by a corporation which has to deal so intimately with the public as a great railway.

Belleville in a Quandry Not Enough Candidates Nominated for Council

Belleville, Dec. 29.—It is claimed that the statutes do not cover a case which now exists in this city. On Monday last in Baldwin ward only one candidate for alderman was nominated while the law provides that three were to be elected. Now the city's legal adviser, W. C. Mikel, K.C., is in a quandary. He has not yet made up his mind whether to advise the council to hold a new nomination for the ward or to advise the new council-to itself fill the vacancy. In another ward, Bleecker, there are only two candidates, but the case is covered by the statute, as more than three candidates were nominated. It looks now as though the new council will fill the vacancies. There will be a contest in only one ward, Murney, where there are four candidates.

4,800 Cases of Typhoid Fever in City of Montreal

Montreal, Dec. 29.—An investigation made by the Montreal Herald reveals the true extent of the typhoid fever epidemic in Montreal.

A canvas of a large number of resident doctors in different sections of the city shows that the number of cases being treated at the present time outside of the city hospitals reaches the alarming total of nearly four thousand.

This with the cases in the hospital brings the total up to 4,800.

Thirty-three new cases were reported at the City Health Department this morning and two deaths.

All of the local hospitals reported turning away a large number of cases.

The agitation for the installation of a filtration plant continues to grow.

All of the doctors interviewed by the Herald some fifty in number, declared emphatically that the establishment of such a system was the only means of checking the spread of the disease and gaurding against future epidemics of a similar nature.

Some of the doctors are treating as many as thirty cases. The average per doctor is nine.

It is likely that a special meeting of citizens will be called to discuss the situation, and demand the council to take some action.

Warnings have been sent out to the citizens to boil the water, and every effort is being made to allay the scourge.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—A 35-mile for five cents will be made possible by the $70,000,000 merger of all the surface lines of the south side.

According to figures given out by President Thomas E. Mitten, of the Chicago City Railways Company, the average total number of passengers carried annually on the lines involved in the railway merger is 340,000,000. Of this number it is estimated that 220,000,000 are cash fares, and the remainder transfers.

Eleven Schooners and Sixty Men Lost

Six-Days' Storm in Newfoundland Created Awful Havoc—Villages Flooded

St. John's, N.F., Dec. 29.—Eleven Newfoundland schooners and their crews of 60 men are believed to have been lost in the Christmas blizzard, while great destruction to property throughout this island colony has resulted. The storm, which reached its height on Sunday, raged for six days, but today has abated considerably.

All telegraph lines in the interior of the colony are down and reports from inland points are slow in reaching here.

The town of Placentia was flooded for three days, and the principal business street of that place resembles an ocean beach, being piled high with flotsam and jetsam that was cast up by the unusually high tides. The village of Black Head, three miles from this city, was almost swept away.

This December has been the stormiest month the Newfoundland coast has experienced in half a century, and it is estimated that its cost to the fisheries and general trade is more than three-quarters of a million dollars.

Crows Gobbling Up Kent Farmers' Corn

Chatham, Dec. 29.—C. W. Nash, director of the Biological Department of Ontario, visited Chatham yesterday and took a drive through the townships of Harwich and Raleigh to investigate the complaints from the farmers that the crows are stealing their corn. He was accompanied by G. W. Sulman, M.P.P. It was found that the crows are very thick in this district this year, causing great destruction to the crops. In Harwich the farmers of one small district have lost fully three or four hundred bushels of corn already this year and the trouble has been getting worse all the time.

Mr. Nash will remain in the city for a week and will undertake immediate relief for the farmers who are affected by the crows. He will also take a trip through Dover township, where the trouble is also very alarming. There is now talk of holding a meeting of the farmers in this city on Saturday, when they will be addressed by Mr Nash, and advised as to the best means of fighting the pests. Much of the corn crop of the season is still standing in shocks in the fields and the question of fighting crows is a very important one. Since the snow has come the only way that the crows can live is to steal the crops.

Dr. Haggart's Home Destroyed by Fire

The firemen were up against a pretty stiff proposition last night which kept them hustling for a while. At a quarter to eight o'clock an alarm was received from the north end of Water street. The home of Dr. Haggart on the River road was on fire and by the time the brigade arrived, it was about a mile and a half run, the flames had made great headway and were doing a deadly work. The firemen jumped into the thick of the fight and did everything possible. A large number of valuable books were saved but very little else. Practically all the furniture was destroyed with the house which was a rought cast one. The loss is estimated at between $1300 and $1300.

The firemen felt the cold a great deal. The thermometer was down several degrees below zero and a cutting wind blew from the north. Under these circumstances their work was made doubly hard.

Fought for Her Life Against Armed Man

London, Ont., Dec. 29. For twenty minutes Mrs. Mary Johnston struggled for her life last night with Wm. Nicholls, a boarder, who came home drunk, and had a big six-shooter in his possession. The woman's screams finally brought a policeman, who took away the revolver and arrested Nicholls.

"It's a miracle we didn't have another horrible murder," Magistrate Love told Nicholls as he fined him $15 and costs.

THE FIRST IN PETERBOROUGH

Moto-Phonetic Pictures Interest Large Audiences at the Princess.

Dying of Cholera

What is it that keeps down cholera, cramps, and summer complaints in America? Ask any doctor or live druggist and he will tell you "Nerviline." Just fancy, a million bottles are sold every year to people who use Nerviline for stomach disorder, cramps, flatulence, and summer complaint. For fifty years in most Canadian homes no other pain-relieving medicine but Nerviline is kept. Nothing cures the aches, pains and sickness of the entire family so quickly as Nerviline.

LETTER NO. 4272

"As far back as I can remember, at least 50 years ago, there was never a time that our house was without 'Nerviline.' In the summer time, when the children ate green apples and got sick with diarrhoea and cramps, it was Nerviline that cured them. Mr. father used Nerviline frequently to cure gas on his stomach and acute indigestion. There are but few minor ailments that Nerviline does not cure, and I know of no medicine so useful; in fact, so indispensable around the house as Nerviline.'

This letter, written by Mrs. N. C. Butcher, a well known resident in Battersea, shows the high opinion entertained of Nerviline by those who have used it constantly for nearly half a century.

You'll never regret using Nerviline. Get it today, keep it on and for an accident or sudden case of sickness in your home. Refuse anything else offered you instead of Nerviline. 25c per bottle, or five for $1.00. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Ten Years' Penance.

It is happily seldom that the revenge of a disappointed husband takes quite such an extreme form as in the case of the man whose will ran thus: "When I remember that the only happy times I ever enjoyed were when my wife walked with me, and when I remember that my married life might, for this reason, be considered to have been a fairly happy one because she was nearly always smiling, I am constrained to forget the repulsion the contemplation of her face inspired me with and leave her the sum of £20,000 on condition that she undertakes to pass two hours a day at my graveside for the ten years following my decease, in company with her sister, whom I have reason to know she loathes worse than she does myself."—London Tit Bits.

Didn't Like the Walk.

A north country pitman went with his wife one Saturday night to do a little shopping. They visited a large drapery establishment, and the obsequious shopwalker, having ascertained their requirements, said to the couple politely, "Will you please walk this way?" But unfortunately he walked very lame.

"No, mister," said the pitman, "As mayter hev wanked that way, an' As'm no' gannin' to try."—London Scraps.

Not Deceived.

SEAWEED.

Several Varieties Are Valuable For Food Purposes.

Seaweed is not much to look at, but seaweed does not depend so much upon beauty as upon more substantial merit to make itself worthy of attention. Various species of it are used in manufactures, and several varieties are edible, the most important of the latter being Irish or carragheen moss used in the preparation of jellies—blancmange, for instance—dulse or dillesk, very highly thought of by Scotland, particularly when roasted by wrapping about hot tongs, and kelp or tangle.

Irish moss and some other species, particularly eel grass and flat stalk rock weed, have been found valuable as cattle food, especially when boiled to destroy the rank taste and mixed with meal. The eel grass and rock weed compare favorably with hay as regards the most important constituent—protein—containing 6.08 and 8.21 per cent respectively. They are deficient in fat, but contain a large amount of ash.

The great bulk of the seaweed gathered, however, is used as a fertilizer, and the average seaweed contains large quantities of all the essential fertilizing elements. Allowing 10 cents a pound for nitrogen, 3 cents a pound for phosphoric acid and 4 cents a pound for potash—and these are as low prices as it is possible to procure these materials in any form—a ton of seaweed containing 60 per cent water is worth as a fertilizer $2.80 a ton.—New York Times.

A CAPTAIN OF INDOLENCE.

He Managed to Dodge Both Work and Matrimony.

By H. S. FRANK.

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

Gabe was lying upon his back, his hands clasped under his head, gazing unthinkingly at the sky. He was twenty-five years old and barefooted.

Overhead a buzzard floated upon motionless wings, and Gabe's eyes followed it as far as they could without causing his head to move.

If he had any thought that was strong enough to be called an ambition it was to be a buzzard, for a buzzard was not forced to flap its wings to fly.

Times had been going somewhat hard with him of late. For one thing he had had to think, and the prospect was that before long he might have to do.

Cooner's daughter was now of age, and the understanding between the families had been that some time after Mary Bet was old enough these two should marry in order to save the seven acres on one side of the slope being separated from the nine acres which joined and crept over and down the other side.

Cooner was arbitrary, and Gabe's father, under the influence of Cooner, would be just as despotic.

Then Mary Bet was pretty—there was no denying that—and more than once Gabe's heart had thumped tirecomely in her presence. In that state he had even looked about her cabin critically, it may be hopefully.

But Mary Bet did not like work herself. He had found the ax lying beside three or four uncut branches her father had dragged in and the seven or eight chickens pecking about without a sign of coop or shelter.

By that time his heart was again beating tranquilly, and he had viewed the scene with dispassionate forethought. Married to Mary Bet he would have to cut wood and perhaps make chicken coops and it might be would even have to plant a corn and potato patch.

The thought, made permanent by the persistent hints of Cooner and his father, had harnessed him for days past, and this morning, feeling the need for absolute, unthinking rest, he had come out to this sunny spot where he could lie in his favorite attitude, with his hands clasped under his head.

But alas for plans! As the buzzard floated slowly beyond view and the unthinking eyes following it began to grow dreamy and heavy there came a sudden rasping interruption. It was Cooner admonishing his father.

"I tell ye," the strident voice was saying, "this thing's goin' on too slow. First we know somebody 'll be steppin' in, an' then where'll our two estates be? Divided. There's that Bill Tanner already comin' up to see Bet an' she lovin' him.

"Pshaw! He'd be for carryin' her way down to his cabin in the valley, an' likely 's not they'd be for settin' my seven acres some day. I tell ye, Rose, ye must be stirrin' up Gabe. He's a good boy and won't never be goin' off, an' if he's got a single wicked habit I've never heerd on it.

"I'll see the preacher this very day an' have him come up in two weeks. We'll have 'em ready by that time. I'll have to get Bet some new shoes, an' ye must see about Gabe's gettin' his hair cut. It's pretty toler'ble long an' untidy for a weddin'. An' we'd better be askin' all the folks to come."

Gabe had forced himself as deep as possible into the leaves, and he lay with bated breath until the voices and footsteps had died away toward Cooner's cabin.

Then he groaned and removed his hands slowly and despairingly from beneath his head. He must think and think quickly and hard or he would be lost.

Bill Tanner was peeling bark in the valley. He was a worker—not in the ordinary acceptance of the word perhaps, but from the slope point of view. Gabe went to him there.

"Hello, Bill," he began affably. "Gettin' quite a heap, ain't ye?"

Bill nodded gruffly. He had no objection to Gabe personally—only that he was welcome at the Cooner cabin, and that was enough.

"Hello," he responded. "But I 'low ye'd better come some other day. I'm too busy to talk now."

"That's all right," graciously. "I don't mind seein' folks work. Comin' up tonight?"

"Where?"

"Cooner's, of course," with a grin. "But there's no need to get mad, Bill," at the look on the other's face. "It ain't here to plague ye. I come down to sell my tater patch. What'll ye give?"

It was Bill's turn to grin.

"I've heard 'bout that tater patch," he said. "It's two acres, an' old Cooner stewed it with his mule, an' your dad planted it all by himself, an' ye was to do the hoein' an' diggin'. I don't b'lieve ye've struck a lick in it yet."

"I don't b'lieve I have," acknowledged Gabe frankly. "But what'll ye give?"

"Why, I thought they was four bushels 'taters," said Bill wonderingly. "I heerd Cooner say there'd be forty bushels an' that ye could sell twenty an' have twenty for a winter pot by."

"Yes, I heerd him say that myself," smiled Gabe. "But, see here, Bill, I ain't a-thinkin' of nobody. Bet likes ye better'n she does me, an' ye like her, an' the wust thing her dad's got agin ye is that ye'd take her away. He don't want her to leave. Now, there's ten acres that joins him on the other side, an' it can be had for $30. I heerd the owner say so. Can ye raise $30?" anxiously.

"I might part of it and the rest when this bark's done."

"Well," in a relieved tone, "ye git it quick's ye can. The owner'd take half down and wait for the rest. He told me so. He tried to sell it to me but I didn't want no land to work.

"But ye must hurry. The preach'ers comin' up in two weeks, an' ye want to be ready. Old Cooner'll be all right long's ye own ten acres j'inin an' two acres of taters."

"An' ye'll give up Bet?" incredulously.

"Long's she likes ye best, of course I ain't comin' in between nobody that way, Bill."

Bill looked at him gargantly; then his face cleared, and he extended his hand.

"Ye're the best fellow that ever was," he cried heartily, "an' I'm sorry for anything I've said or done. I'll be your friend after this. Now, what'll ye take for the taters?"

"Oh, that's all right," easily. "When ye're married and settled up there I'll let ye do the chores when I have any, so 'twon't cost ye nothin' but work."

Gabe went directly to Cooner, drawing a long face.

"That Bill Tanner's too smart for me," he grumbled. "I went down there thinkin' I could make a trade, but he's got my taters an' I ain't got a thing to show."

He waited long enough for his words to have their full effect, then added:

"I b'lieve I'll go out to Mexico or Maine or somewhere that way. The only thing is it'll be right hard for Bet to go so far, but mebbe she can stand it."

"Bet go to Mexico or Maine?" almost shrieked Cooner. "Why, you ain't plumb idiot. Bill Tanner's worth a dozen of ye. Bet'll stay right here. Now ye be gittin' off."

"But I thought"—

"Thought nothin'!" angrily. "Git along with ye."

Gabe went with downcast head until he got beyond the cabin. Then he began to chuckle.

His chuckles grew louder and louder as he widened the distance between him and the cabin, and by the time he had gone half a mile they had developed into roars of laughter.

In his present mood, however, laughter seemed all too ineffective as an expression of his feelings, and he stood on his head, turned a handspring or two and then walked on his hands for at least a dozen feet along the rough road.

Not in years had Gabe displayed one-tenth of the energy he now expended.

He was very tired, however, when his paroxysm of joy was over, and he promptly sought a secluded nook in the woods and took a long nap.

When he awoke an hour later the first audible sound he made was a chuckle, and he continued in this merry mood until the outlines of the parental cabin were sighted.

Much of the next two weeks he spent upon his back, with his face to the sky.

But when the wedding day came he was among the guests, smiling and happy, with his hair cut in honor of the momentous occasion.

"Oh, Gabe," she whispered happily. "I shan't ever forgit what ye've done for Bill an' me. It was fine the way ye got round dad, an' so smart. I—I never s'posed ye had it in ye. Bill told me all about it, an' we won't ever forgit. Ye must come jest as often as ye can an' eat with us."

INSIDE THE EARTH.

A Scientist's Idea of What Might Be Discovered.

"I have had the idea for some time past," writes Camille Flammarion in the London Strand Magazine, "of sinking a shaft into the earth for the express purpose of scientific exploration, descending as far below the surface as the utmost resources of modern science would permit.

"The first result would be to obtain an inexhaustible source of heat, which might be distributed and applied to industrial purposes. According to the most authentic estimates, the boiling point will be found at a depth of about two miles.

"Without doubt we should also discover springs of hot water, like those which were found during the construction of the Simplon tunnel in 1903, with a temperature of 48 to 53 degrees centigrade. We should also come upon subterranean rivers and cascades, which might be employed as a motive power.

"The second result would be the exploration of this unknown world itself. Who knows what curiosities of geology and paleontology might be revealed by this investigation into these dark abysses of the earth—what mines of iron, of copper, of precious metals such as gold, platinum, silver, radium and of elements hitherto unknown and unsuspected?

"This idea has been forcibly recalled to my attention in consequence of the recent earthquakes and the extremely contradictory opinions of geologists upon the interior state of the globe. Is this globe liquid or solid? From the most ancient times scientific men have considered the problem under all its bearings without having succeeded in lighting upon any satisfactory solution.

"The railway tunnels which pierce the mountains have done no more than traverse the inequalities of the crust of the earth. The deepest shaft which penetrates the earth was constructed between 1898 and 1902 at Paruschowitz, near Rybnik, and is about a mile and a quarter in depth, scarcely more than an insignificant scratch upon the surface of our globe."

Weeds as Food.

In view of the present prices of food products and the outlook for the future it may be some comfort to the American citizen to know that several of the most common weeds are good for table use.

Wild chicory is bitterly hated by the farmer, but it will make a delightful salad, tender and wholesome. The virtues of the dandelion in this respect are now well known. Wild mustard, or charlock, another bane of the farmer, gives a delicious flavor to soup, as will pokeweed, which in France is cultivated as a vegetable, taking the place of hay leaves, sage, thyme and the like. Dock weeds are astonishingly hard to discourage, so in Europe they use both the broad leafed and curly leafed varieties as table vegetables. Nettles are much used in Scotland, Poland and Germany as greens when young and tender. Purslane is boiled with other vegetables to give the dish a piquant flavor. Sorrel is looked upon as a great pest by most farmers, but choice leaves picked from sorrel weeds make a splendid salad for a game dinner. Most people think milkweed poisonous, but it is in fact a medicinal vegetable with a flavor all its own. The young leaves seem a cross between spinach and asparagus and in a salad are delicious.—Harper's Weekly.

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do an act of Humanity?

Will you tell some sick friend of this, my remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that its maker dare say to the sick, "It is absolutely and unconditionally free if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's Restorative and its popularity.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments everywhere in America.

Then the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail. It is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has quickly vitalized, and strengthened, and brought these nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not dose the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the source of these ailments—the failing, faltering, inside or controlling nerves. And herein lies the hegnote to my success.

When these nerves are again made well and strong, then that is the certain end of all such ailments.

To me it is a great satisfaction that I am the only physician able to say to the suffering sick, "Take my prescription for full 30 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours."

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the same identical "No help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the message to some sick friend.

A reveal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist to whom you can conveniently go for the 30 day test.

But first, ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 30 day test. So write me now and save all delays. Remember that to-morrow never comes. Address Dr Shoop, Box 17, Racine, Wis.

The Irony of Fate.

The late Baron von Mueller, government botanist of Victoria, made the study of the plants and flowers of Australia his life work. He published forty books on the subject, was made a German baron and a British knight and was otherwise decorated by most of the sovereigns of Europe. He spent £20,000 in the interest of Australian botanical science, with the result that he died worth only a few hundred pounds. By his will he ordered that this money should be devoted to the preparation of a memoir and the care of his grave, specifying the flowers he wished to have planted over his remains. But a Melbourne court has just decided that the money cannot be applied to these purposes, but must be handed over to the relatives.—London Chronicle.

The Air Nine Miles High.

Samples of air at a height of nearly nine miles have been recently obtained and examined for the presence of the rare gases. The collecting apparatus, carried by a large balloon, is a series of vacuum tubes, each drawn out to a fine point at one end. At the desired height an electro magnetic device, connected with each tube and operated by a barometer, breaks off the point of the tube, admitting the air. A few minutes later a second contact sends a current through a platinum wire round the broken end, melting the glass and sealing the tube. All the samples obtained show argon and neon, but no helium was found in air above six miles.

Lantern Pictures Without Screens.

A French engineer, E. de Mare, has invented an apparatus for projecting stereoptikon pictures without the use of a canvas screen. He places the lantern at the back of the stage and causes the magnified image of the slide to be reflected from two mirrors, the second of which presents the picture directly to the spectators. The latter are seated in a fully lighted room, and the lecturer is not compelled to hide himself in darkness while explaining his views. By placing the lantern beneath the stage one of the mirrors can be dispensed with, and the spectators see the image at its first reflection.

Preventics, the new Candy Cold Cure Tablets, are said by druggists to have four special specific advantages over all other remedies for a cold. First—They contain no Quinine nothing harsh or sickening. Second—They give almost instant relief. Third—Pleasant to the taste, like candy. Fourth—A large box—48 Preventics—at 25 cents. Also fine for feverish children. Sold by all dealers.

THE AMERICAN WOMAN.

Her Position Here and Its Influence in the Old World.

There is no doubt that the most interesting thing to the European who lands on the northern shores of the new world is the American woman—that happy, victorious heroine of modern feminiinism who has discovered how to extract from the new condition of woman all the advantages with almost none of the inconveniences; that being who has known how to assume the masculinity in all that regards independence and liberty of action and remain feminine in grace, charm and altruism; that American beauty, that American genius, whose wonders are seen and felt in all the American and European reviews, whose writers declare her to be engaged almost entirely in severe study, in masculine work, sport and similar occupations.

Europe, moreover, is right. The American woman is not only one of the most interesting phenomena of North America, but is also the phenomenon of the new world that might have the greatest and gravest effect on the old, shaking on their foundations the essential principles of our female instruction and training, overthrowing the society of the old continent or continents, which rest to a greater extent than is realised on the antique functions of woman in the family and in society.—Gina Lombroso Ferrero in Putnam's Magazine.

THE RACE FOR RICHES.

Is Wealth That Cannot Be Enjoyed Worth the Price?

The writer once inquired of a very successful man:

"When do you ever get a moment's time for your own self—to be yourself and to think your own thoughts? Do you ever get a time like that?"

The very successful man hesitated for a moment and then replied:

"Why, yes, I get such a time while I am being shaved in the morning."

Is success really worth the price which it must be paid for at such a rate? Of what use are mansions and country houses and great estates if one has no time to visit them and enjoy their beauty? Why should one collect through agents the most exquisite works of art if he cannot find more than a casual half hour in which to view them? What are wife and children if you are always hastening about the world, far too preoccupied to give them any serious thought or to receive the pleasure which their company could afford you?

And yet there is one sole satisfaction—if it be a satisfaction. Millions of your fellow countrymes and countrywomen will believe beyond all doubt that you are really happy

Pittsburg Fears a Terrible Flood

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 30.—Pittsburg is facing one of the worst floods of local river history, due so authoritative river men here say, to the unusual and severe weather conditions of the past two weeks. Conditions are such that should a sudden thaw culminate, the extremely heavy snow fall experienced in Western Pennsylvania in that length of time, the Allegheney River ice packs will be broken with a rush, the results of which will be incalculably disastrous to all shipping interests and waterfront property on the Ohio River points south of here.

The official measurement of the snowfall during the past two weeks is nine inches. The fall preceding the flood of 1907 was much less.

The river is now at a six-foot stage, and Pittsburg experienced zero weather last night. The official forecast suggests no relief. River traffic is still blocked and danger to bridges continues threatening.

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

At the earnest solicitation of a large number of the ratepayers, I am now asking your support for my election to the Mayoralty of the City of Peterborough for the year 1910; and in doing so I am relying upon my record as a ratepayer, as a lifelong citizen, as one materially interested in the manufacturing and industrial development of the city, and as one who as an Alderman served you for the past three years, first as chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee and secondly as chairman of the Finance Committee.

It is usual for one aspiring to the chief magistracy to attempt to outline some definite policy to be pursued during the term of office. In compliance with that custom I can only say that it will be my one aim to serve the city to the best of my ability, to do what I can to promote its commercial, industrial and moral development, to give fair and just consideration to all questions which may come before the council, having regard to neither class nor party, as I am pledged to none.

Our city has made rapid progress in recent years, and the continuation of this progress will depend largely upon the growth and expansion of the city's present industries, and upon the establishment of new ones to which every encouragement and legitimate inducement should be given—the council should give immediate attention to securing an adequate supply of cheap power; every effort conducing to these ends has my fullest sympathy and support.

The time has also arrived when the council must take into consideration the question of permanent roadways in the business section, and in general street construction, and of the extension and improvement of the sewer system in the southern parts of the city. To both of these matters I shall, if elected, give my earliest attention.

I am in favor of carrying out a policy of the strictest economy consistent with proper service in every department of the municipal business.

As the time between now and election day is short it will be impossible for me to personally call upon every ratepayer; I therefore take this means and opportunity of soliciting for myself the honor of your vote and influence.

Wishing you all a very Happy and Prosperous New Year, I am,

Yours sincerely,

W. G. Morrow

A GOOD MEETING.

Interesting Speeches at Park Street Church.

Mr. H. E. Irwin, K.C., of Toronto, addressed a well attended meeting in the south end of the city last night. Mr. Irwin very ably answered the objections that have been directed against local option and showed many reasons why local option ought to carry in Peterborough. These were on economic, business and moral grounds.

Mr. Irwin expressed his surprise at the announcement of Mayor Rush as reported in the Toronto papers, and from the great admiration he had for Peterborough as a law-abiding city he was shocked to know of the poor condition of affairs when as British subjects we all knew that behind every municipal government there was the power of British rule. In moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Irwin, Mr. Potter read the following telegram:

Owen Sound, Ont., Dec. 29, '09.

Rev. Potter,

Peterborough, Ont.,

Antis sheet headed "Owen Sound's awful record," infamous slander, gives for six months of this year as 236 convictions, correct records 157 convictions for past eleven months, magnificent record for a lake-port town, population of over twelve thousand.

F. W. MILLHOUSE,
Secy. Anti Barroom League.

Mr. Potter also referred to the attitude of Mayor Rush in the closing hours of his position as mayor, and thought his expression unworthy of the office he held.

STARVATION AMID PLENTY.

Not Uncommon Today—The Reason is Explained.

"For a period last summer the thought of food excited feelings of nausea," writes Mrs. C. A. Dodgen, of Bloomsbury. "The heat had made me listless and the distaste for food reduced me to a condition of semi-starvation and brought me to the verge of nervous collapse. Tonics were useless to restore an active desire for food. The doctors told me my liver and kidneys were both at fault, but the medicines they gave me were too severe and reduced my strength so that I had to abandon them. At the suggestion of a friend who had been cured of blood and skin trouble, I began the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The difference I first noticed was, that while they cleansed the system, instead of feeling weaker I felt better after taking them. Indeed their activity was so mild it was easy to forget I had taken them at all; they seemed to go right to the liver, and in a very brief time not only did all source of nausea disappear but I began to crave food and I digested it reasonably well. Then I began to put on weight until within three months I was brought to a condition of good health. I urge Dr. Hamilton's Pills for all who are in poor health."

Get this best of all medicines today and refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Look for the yellow box. Sold by all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont., at 25c. per box.

Letters to The Editor

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—As a citizen for nearly forty years, and as a large ratepayer it is a matter of gratification to me to learn that Mr. W. G. Morrow has decided to allow his name to stand for election as Mayor of this city for 1910.

I have known Mr. Morrow personally since his very young days, and was also connected with him for nearly fifteen years in connection with the Board of Education of this city as well as in other spheres of activity, and have always found him to be in all transactions an honorable, upright, careful, and economical citizen. Reflections have been made as to Mr. Morrow's ability but from my own personal knowledge of him, I am of the opinion that these are more fancied than real. A man of Mr. Morrow's standing, training, and business ability, may be depended upon to conduct the city's affairs with the same scrupulous care, and effeciency as he could, and would in his own personal activities, and any reflection cast upon him cannot be borne out by facts, in my humble judgment.

It is high time that the citizens and ratepayers of this good city realized the duty devolving upon them, and to endeavor to place at the head of affairs the best and most efficient men obtainable who have proven themselves by years of experience to be able to cope with the many important problems of civic affairs, and men who can spare the time and give the many matters of importance the attention required, in order to show a record, which is not open to criticism.

This feature is very apparent in the City of Vancouver, B.C., where it was my privilege to reside for considerable time this year. There the citizens carefully consider the selection of capable and worthy men for municipal honors as of first importance, and this is borne out by the unparalleled progressiveness of that great and important growing city of the West at the present time.

Peterborough must, if it will continue to grow, get new industries, other places of less importance appear to be more fortunate in this respect, and an earnest effort is absolutely necessary to secure, and point out the advantages and benefits of locating here. With a man like Mr. Morrow at the head of our municipal affairs, backed up by a good council, we may be sure from the very considerable vested interests represented by him that he will not leave a stone unturned to obtain good results, and build up the city in this respect. With these and many other matters in view affecting the best welfare of this fair city, and as it is very important at this time that the citizens, ratepayers and property owners should have a good, careful, progressive and economical City Council, in my opinion we will make no mistake in electing Mr. Morrow mayor of the City of Peterborough for 1910.

"CITIZEN" REPLIES.

Workingmen Not Afraid Nowadays—Times Has Changed.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—Ald. Morrow's friends and the Examiner are putting forth the claim that because he is associated with Senator Cox and other capitalists, he should be elected Mayor of Peterborough. They claim that if Mr. Morrow is elected these men will use their influence for Peterborough.

Now Mr. Editor, it just depends on how those influential capitalists intend to use their influence. If they expect to continue the same course they have pursued the past two years with Mr. Morrow as chairman of the Finance Committee, viz., to sell Peterborough debentures at 4 1-4 and 4½ per cent., then Peterborough will be much better off without them.

The years that Mr. Mason was chairman of the Finance Committee the city's debentures were sold for 4 per cent., thus the city was saved many thousands of dollars in interest.

So far as Senator Cox is concerned he is not running for mayor, and he cannot do the city any harm, no matter who is elected, for fear that his rents for George street and the many houses in the city will be forced down. It is up to Senator Cox to assist Peterborough, no matter who is mayor.

I do not mind anyone supporting Mr. Morrow, but the Examiner is conducting its usual campaign of rot and unfairness. The people no longer fear the threats of the autocrats. The laboring man does not fear dismissal. The times have changed. There is other capital besides what the Examiner talks about. There are other jobs for the laboring man and the mechanic. Fight a fair fight.

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

A sprained ankle will usually disable the injured person for three or four weeks. This is due to lack of proper treatment. When Chamberlain's Liniment is applied a cure may be effected in three or four days. This liniment is one of the best and most remarkable preparations in use. 12

Chinese Secret Organizations go Gunning After Each Other

New York, Dec. 30.—The renewal of the Tong warfare in New York's Chinatown, claimed another victim early this morning, Ah Hung, a Chinese actor, was shot and killed in the hallway of his tenement home just before daybreak.

Ah Hung, who was a prominent member of one of the Chinese secret organizations, was in his room, when he heard steps in the hallway outside, and then a voice demanding admission.

SCENTED DANGER.

Ah cautiously opened the door a bare inch or two and peeked out. There was a shot and then a scamper of feet down the stairs.

Ah's neighbors who had heard the shot, ran up and found the body. The bullet had struck him in the forehead and penetrated the brain.

ARRESTS, BUT NO CLUES.

The police, who have been expecting a continuation of the trouble in Chinatown which resulted in two deaths on Monday night, were on the spot within a few minutes. They arrested several of Ah's neighbors as witnesses, but were unable to find any tangible clues to the identity of the murderers.

Ah Hung came to New York from San Francisco three years ago. He was born in 1871 and was unmarried. His home was in London.

A WOMAN THE CAUSE.

The present strife among the Tong seems to have begun with the murder of the young Chinese girl, Bow Gum, last summer. Until that time most of the Four Brothers organization were members of the On Leong Tong. It appears that Bow Gum once was the "wife" of a San Francisco Chinaman who was a member of the Four Brothers. One day little Bow Gum met a member of the On Leang Tong and liked him. Together they ran away to New York.

The deserted member of the Four Brothers in San Francisco learned after a time where his former wife was living and with whom. On a Saturday night last July the girl was found murdered on the fourth floor of a house in Mott street. Nobody could be found who have seen the murder or knew anything of it.

THREATENED TO INFORM.

But within ten days a groupof On Leongs stepped forward and offered their services as witnesses against two members of the Four Brothers who were being held by the police.

ANY VICTIM WILL DO.

The Four Brothers were forced out of the On Leong Tong, and resented their treatment. So they swooped down on the On Leongs on October 7 and shot them. The shooters had no personal ill will against these two particular On Leongs. They shot them merely because they were On Leongs, which is a way the Chinese have. Since then the two groups have been busy trying to square up accounts.

POLICE CAN'T GET FACTS.

The police are having their troubles with the 1,000 Chinamen who now inhabit Chinatown. It is almost impossible to get at the facts in these mysterious murders.

In the windows of the Chinatown shops the stroller may see little ornaments, like paper weights, made up of three little monkeys of metal all cast in one group. One of the monkeys is so designed that it is covering its mouth with its hands, the next one is covering its eyes, the third is holding its ears—telling nothing, seeing nothing, and hearing nothing. The little groups typify Chinatown, especially where shootings and Tong wars are concerned.

Sir Thos. Shaughnessy Makes Tempting Offer

Liverpool, Dec. 28.— Prominent members of the Grimsby fish trade are about to establish a Grimsby in the West. It is intended to establish a fishing industry at a new port to be named Port Grimsby, at the mouth of the Skeena River, British Columbia. A town is to be linked up with all the towns of Canada and to the United States by the Grand Trunk Pacific, and it is intended to establish a fishing center, with docks wharves, wholesale fish markets, cold storage, salt and coal depots, fish curing, oil and fertilizer works, similar to those in existance at Hull Grimsby and Aberdeen, England. The moving spirits in Grimsby are Mr. James Schofield, Mr. Thomas Bascomb, and Mr. John L. Green. Valuable sites, water frontage, and existing canneries have already been secured, and several trawlers will be sent from Grimsby to establish the nucleus of a fleet.

THE C.P.R.'S PLAN.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, the president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, never arrives on this side but that he has some fresh information for the eagle-eyed penny-a-liner. The seat with which any statement he may make is taken up is something wonderful, and his "latest" is that his company intend to make special provision for British small holders in the way of setting aside a number of small farms in Alberta and Saskatchewan—breaking the land, sowing the first crops, and then placing the settlers on the land at harvest time. Really, this is a most tempting offer, but then there are many on this side who are never satisfied, and who say that they will wait for the next trip of the president, when it is assumed that he will throw in free transportation as well and indemnify them against loss for, say fifty years! Speaking seriously, if such a scheme as outlined by Sir Thomas is practicable—and who doubts the potentialities of the Canadian Pacific—it would without doubt be a feather in the cap, so to speak of this railroad's administration, because it it is stated on fact that recently, when 1,000 small holdings were offered in England, there were 35,000 applicants! The writer does not know whether these figures are correct; at any rate they are Sir Thomas.' Whether the scheme is put into operation or not, time of course, will tell—meantime it is an admirable ad. for the Canadian Pacific, and one that is, according to the Daily Mail, "arousing great interest." One wonders if the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk will go one better!

JONES A GREAT MAN.

Very great gloom has been cast in commercial and other circles this week by the death of Sir Alfred L. Jones—a name that is doubtless well known in Canada. Honored by his sovereign, decorated by the czar, consulted by great colonial ministers at home, by potenates and statesmen abroad, the head of the firm of Elder, Dempster, and Co., occupied quite a unique position in the world of commerce and affairs. His restless activities and unbounding energy recognized no limits and overflowed into various channels. Not content with "making" the west coast of Africa, he set himself a like herculean task in the West Indies, which he undertook to revive from the stupor and lethargy of a lost trade and an effete agriculture. It was in connection with his business relations with that part of the world that Sir Alfred happened to be in Jamaica, at the time of the great earthquake, the shock and scenes of which left their mark behind. They may possibly have helped to shorten the days of the great man of business, but they failed to subdue his innumerable activities. In the last years of his life he espoused with all his consuming energy the cause of British cotton-growing, which in him has lost a valiant champion and stalwart supporter.

75 New Cases of Typhoid in Montreal

Montreal, Dec. 30. The typhoid situation has become so bad that, at the meeting of the City Council this afternoon, Mayor Payette will resort to a method of procedure only twice before made use of in the history of the city of Montreal. According to a bylaw in case of fever, riot, flood, disaster, the mayor may order the council to vote funds for the relief of the public. This he will do. The last time the prerogative was used was when Mayor Beaugrand, away back in 1885, during the smallpox outbreak when race riots resulted because French-Canadians resented having English doctors go into their homes to vaccinate, sat on his black horse between the French and English lines and ruled that the municipality's money should be divided according to the needs of the inhabitants of the districts without fear or favor and that, much as they disliked it, every man, woman and child French or English, would have to submit to vaccination.

The drill hall, filled with tents of the army medical and army service corps, will be the temporary hospital for a part of the 2,000 stricken unable to get into regular hospitals. Since yesterday morning 75 new cases have been reported to the Health Department.

Three Tots Starve in the Silver Country

Ottawa, Dec. 29.—A terrible story of distress from the silver country has been brought out by miners who came down Lake Temiskaming on the last boat. On board were three small children named Lamarshe, who were being taken to a Montreal orphanage by a Quebec gentleman surveyor, who found them in a shack near a settlement called Fabre. The father had gone in search of work, the mother was insane, and the grandmother in a dying condition. There was no food in the house, and the hut was also devoid of a floor or door. The family was in a half frozen and starved condition when found.

Grand Prize at the Winter Poultry Show for Dressed Turkey

What promises to be the most successful of its kind ever held in this city will be the Winter Poultry Show in the Market Hall on January 4, 5 and 6, under the auspices of the Peterborough Poultry Association. For a considerable length of time, the officers and directors have been at work perfecting every detail in connection with the holding of the show and they are grateful for the assistance and encouragement given by the citizens generally. The prizes to be offered for competition are many and valuable. The prize of $10 for dressed turkeys, has caused considerable interest among the farmers and there is every indication that there will be a large number of competitors. exhibits of fancy birds will be shown by poultry men from all parts of Ontario, and the association has gone to the expense of securing 1,200 coops. This means something in the line of a treat for those who attend. The prize lists also call for exhibits in poultry, fowl and eggs, so that every farmer will have the opportunity to exhibit. A feature of the prize list will be the Grand Prize the nature of which will be announced later and every person who attends will have a chance of winning it. The one who guesses correctly the most popular exhibit will win this prize. There will be a lecture by an expert on one or more of the days and a capable superintendent will be in charge to see that every attention is given to the exhibitors in regard to the receiving and reshipment of the birds or fowl as the case may be.

From a standpoint of education alone the show is worthy of every support and the members of the association feel confident that the citizens and the farmers will not fail them.

Prince Rupert.

One of the most comprehensive unbiased articles on Prince Rupert by a writer on the spot, is an article by Mary Markwell, famous for her writings on Alpine climbing. She pictures and paints so that you can see the thing through her description. To quote:

"We landed at Prince Rupert at 6 o'clock a.m., and the unloading merchandise will go on until 2 p.m. The army of dockers were disembowling the boat's hold as I walked over the gang way, and the dray men numberless, were carrying stuff up the steep hill to the "town."

"I expected to find the morning showery, to see nothing but shacks, and up to ankle deep in slush, for it been snowing all night. But the reputation of Prince Rupert has been sadly maligned. Some of the private residences stand on fine stone foundations that cost upwards of $5,000, and it surprised me to learn that building lumber was sold at Vancouver prices.

"Real estate is dancing jigs in and around Prince Rupert. One purchaser of two lots paid $115 apiece and sold the same at $2,200 each. But this is fever heat prices and speculation only. Another man bought a double corner lot paying $6,800 and resold within a few weeks for $15,000 and the first payment had only been made. One has to judge for one's self as to the common sense of buying at fever heat prices; but there's certainly limited acres to this hillside town which has sprung into existence from a forest of firs.

To the north of Prince Rupert lies the Queen Charlotte group of islands with a fabulous wealth of farm lands, timber and rich placer mines. Coal in abundance in there inexhaustible, while the fisheries are already being developed by eager capitalists, largely Americans, I understand.

"North again big mining camps already in active operations, mills concentrators, trams, with assay valuations beyond belief. It is a new empire, drained by the Skeena and the great Naas rivers, whose output in fish alone reaches the figure of 1,250,000 annually."

"I would hesitate," the writer adds, "to advise working men and women to invest in Prince Rupert real estate at the present hour, but the possibilities for wage earners are large."

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments —the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

BOUGHT 30 AUTOMOBILES.

Detroit, Dec. 23.—J. C. Cox, a Saskatchewan farmer dropped into Detroit Sunday, and by the time he had finished his errand yesterday he had purchased thirty automobiles for his farmer friends of the far Northwest. He was not an agent. He told his neighbors he was going east, and they gave him their orders, accompanied by bank drafts. Cox paid $4,500 for his own machine, and the cars were all high-grade, several being the $4,000 to $5,000 class. Bumper wheat crops in the Northwest were the cause of so much prosperity.

"Nerviline" Cures Rheumatism

If I had lived through my sufferings another year it would have been a miracle." This is the opening sentence of the declaration made by Mr. J. Eccles Squires, member of one of the best-known families for twenty miles round Sydney. "My hands were drawn out of shape, even my fingers were gnarled and crooked—my lameness, stiffness and inability to get about all showed the havoc Rheumatism made with my health. The blessing of it all is that I have heard of Nerviline, and now I am able to tell and advise others how they get well, too. My system was so weakened that I had to build up with a good tonic, so I took Ferrozone at meals. But I never stopped rubbing on Nerviline—it had a magic influence on my stiff, painful joints, and bottle after bottle was rubbed on the painful parts. Nerviline cured me. I am well today—have been well for 4½ years."

CURED 4 1-2 YEARS.

You also can cure rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia or any pain or stiffness in the muscles or joints—to do so use Nerviline. Don't let your druggist substitute. Get Nerviline only: large bottles, 25c., or five for $1.00; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

MAYORALTY CONTEST.

The mayoralty contest opened on Monday with a vim that has aroused great enthusiasm among the ratepayers and the fight has continued to be an exciting one. There are two good men in the field although the majority of people have their own ideas as to which is the better. Ald. Morrow is a life-long resident, and he is the manager of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, a corporation which owns very large real estates interests in Peterborough, and especially in the business district and he is connected with the management of several industrial enterprises. He has been three years on the City Council, two of which he was chairman of the Finance Committee. His record in the council being of recent date is familiar to everyone and needs no comment.

Mr. Morrow's friends are advancing as a reason for his election that his relations with Senator Geo. A. Cox, will assure Peterborough that that gentleman's influence in the financial world will be brought to bear and is that way Peterborough will have advantages she would not get otherwise. Mr. Morrow has been carrying on a vigorous campaign all week. His rooms on Simcoe street are opened for his friends and supporters. He is surrounded by a lot of prominent citizens who have gone through campaigns themselves and they are leaving no stone unturned. They are all confident of the result Monday night.

On the other hand Mr. E. F. Mason came into the field a couple of days before nomination day. He was induced to come out by a large number of people, of no particular class, but who felt that the city required a man of his calibre to guide its destinies. He was late getting into the field but he has since made up for it and is making as thorough a canvas as time will allow. He is conducting a quiet campaign. He has no committee rooms and relies upon his personal friends for their volunteer assistance. Mr. Mason is one of the city's leading grocers. He began with a small capital and has developed the business by his personal efforts until today he not only receives the largest retail grocery trade, but also does a big wholesale trade. He was three years in the City Council and two years as chairman of the Finance Committee. He did his work on that committe very thoroughly and he kept his committee and the council well in hand and both years showed a surplus to start the next year on. Mr. Mason has done a lot of excellent work for the city, and his friends are confident that he will poll enough votes on Monday to place him in the coveted seat.

Both candidates are prominent business men; both have the best of records in the commercial world and both are good, clean, straightforward living men. Both served three years in the council, and two years each as chairman of the Finance Committee.

Both have been in touch with the public and how it is for the public to decide which man will be the better mayor for Peterborough.

The Redemption of Tramp Kelly.

A Lesson That Was Taught by His Brother In Misery.

By WILLIAM ALFRED COREY

Copyright 1909 by American Press Association.

Milwaukee Red had just rolled out of a box car, having arrived on a light freight from Seattle, and was jumping back doors for breakfast.

With one foot very conspicuously bound up in rags, an arm in a sling and an expression of countenance to correspond, he had applied at several doors without success when at the door of a poor little shack in a side street a woman with a foreign accent bade him enter.

"Holy smoke!" thought Milwaukee Red. "Is me power house workin' right? A warm set down already; it's sure gain' some. Dat beats de cold handouts a mile. Now, jes' watch me. Willie polish de grub!" And he accurately cut the fraction of a second out, with a cheerful willingness born of a two days' fast, he followed the woman into the house.

But Red's bright vision of a table piled with savory dishes only lasted until he got inside the door. The table was there all right, but in place of the looked-for breakfast that Red's hungry imagination had conjured up there were only some fragments of loaves of corn bread and a pitcher of water. Huddled about the table were four half-starved children.

The woman explained to Red that they were themselves nearly starving, that she was a widow and that a grown son, her sole support, had wandered off months since in search of employment, but that she never turned a hungry man away unfed at least such as she had and ended by bidding him sit up to their frugal board.

But Red did not move. He stood in the middle of the floor and stared as though hypnotized. He stared at the dirty eaten pieces of dry bread, at the famished looking children, at the pale faced woman and at the room in general, wherein want was written everywhere. He stared for a full minute and then, without a word, he turned and strode out of the room. And the woman noticed that he did not stop as he went out as he had done when he came in.

Outside Red made for the nearest alley, divested himself of his "make-up," stored the bandages in a bundle under one arm and started uptown. An inspiration had come to Mr. Red Milwaukee.

He had been in Frisco many times before, and he knew the ropes at a certain cheap eating place south of Market street. Once in a moment of weakness he had accepted a position in the place for a few days washing dishes.

Red went boldly into a meat market and said: "I'm after de meat for Johnnie's hash factory. Johnnie sent me. Dey wants ten pounds."

The butcher looked at Red. "Just the tramp dishwasher at Johnnie's," he thought to himself. "He acquires a new one every other day. I'll chance letting him have it."

So Red left with the meat, but not to Johnnie's. He next lay for a baker's wagon. Pretty soon one rattled past and stopped in front of a house. Red watched his chance, and as the driver went around the house with two loaves of bread he helped himself to four more fresh warm ones from a box up on top.

Butter and milk were next on his shopping list, and these he stole from back doors where the articles had been left, it being yet early in the morning and Red being an artist in this kind of foraging.

A half hour later the kind hearted though poverty stricken woman who had offered Red a share of what she had was surprised to find on her back porch the food he had collected, together with the following crudely written note. "I ain't goin' to see them kids go hungry," he said. "Not as long as I can rustle."

"Can't help it none," said Red. "Them kids is goin' to eat as long as I'm here."

"Where does yer fambly reside, Mr. Milwaukee Red?" inquired Kelly, with a mock obeisance.

"Yes, Russian Hill," repeated Red. "Wat's remarkable about those?"

"Nothin'," said Kelly, with forced effort to appear unconcerned. And then, after a moment during which neither spoke, he asked: "Where does them people live? Worked that section meself once."

Red told him the street and described the house, wondering the while, though not appearing to notice the strange effect the information seemed to produce upon his pal.

"An' yer been feedin' 'em for a month," mused Kelly.

"Yes, an' I'll be feedin' 'em for another month unless—unless her son comes back. Reckon he's bummin' somewhere same as you an' me. Didn't like to tell the old woman, though. Say, pal, if I had some kin folks o' me own to hustle for I'd—I'd quit the road an' go to work."

Kelly did not answer at once. He seemed to have lost the power of speech and to be lost in thought, though Red knew him too well to try to force his ragged friend to unbosom himself.

Finally Kelly pulled himself together and said: "Well, must be goin'. Got a beat on. No, don't need no help. See yer tomorrow." And then he added impressively: "Red, whatever yer do, don't git pinched. Hear me? Keep yer eye peeled an' don't git pinched. S' long."

There was no denying it was a grim risk Red was running, as was indicated by the following news item which appeared prominently the next day in a city paper:

SNEAK THIEVES INFESTING HILL DISTRICT

Recently sneak thieves have been plying their trade in the Russian Hill district so industriously that there is an insistent call for more police protection. Articles of food and clothing have been disappearing so rapidly in that neighborhood of late that it would seem a small army of these gentry are at work there. Groceries left at back doors in the early morning hours are being taken, clothes lines are being denuded and small neighborhood stores even are being entered and robbed in broad daylight. The police are laying for these miscreants, and a good, healthy penitentiary term awaits all caught in the dragnet.

And besides the risk which he knew he was running Red felt the weight of the responsibility which he had voluntarily assumed. Looking out for himself was an easy matter. Long experience had made him a past master in the high art of living without working. But looking out for himself and supporting "a fambly" were two different propositions.

However, he had not long to carry the burden. One morning—it was a week since Kelly's sudden disappearance—Red was surprised to find the poor woman awaiting him on the oft visited back porch.

Their surprise was mutual, for the woman at once recognized in Red the tramp with whom she had offered to divide her crust several weeks previous.

"And 'is it really you who have been doing this?" she questioned, as though doubting her senses.

"I reckon 'taint nobody else, mum," said Red.

"How can I thank or ever repay you?" she said, her lips trembling.

"Oh, that is what I was waiting to see you or whoever brought the things about," said the woman. "We don't need help any more. My dear son Will"—and tears of happiness shone in her eyes—"has returned, and he got work yesterday. He's going to take care of us now. He was gone so long, and we didn't know where he was. But he says he'll never leave us again. We're all so happy. It seems as though you have brought us good luck. I want you to come this evening and see my Will. He'll be so glad to see you."

Red looked past the woman and saw a coat which he easily recognized as Kelly's hanging upon a peg just within the kitchen door. And his pal's strange behavior on the night of their last conversation was at once explained.

"Don't see how I can come, mum," he said, "but tell Kelly—I mean Will—that I'm glad he's doin' so well and to stay with his new job."

And before the happy woman could detain him or press upon him more words of gratitude Red was out the gate and gone.

But one day they saw an item in a newspaper about a tramp being run over by an automobile and lying in a hospital with a broken leg. Something in the writer's reference to the man of whom it was he had befriended told it was he. Going to the hospital, late enough there was their old friend. As soon as he was able to be moved they took him home with them, and as they were now in a more prosperous condition they kept him till he had grown strong again. Then he insisted on going out to resume his tramps. They tried to persuade him to stay with them and get work, but he shook his head grimly and walked

A UNIQUE EXPERIMENT.

The possibility of boiling and freezing water at the same time in the laboratory is one of the most interesting developments of modern science. The temperature at which water boils depends simply on the air pressure above its surface at the time. If there is high pressure the water has to be made a good deal hotter to boil than at low pressure.

On mountains where the air pressure is a great deal lower than at sea level water boils easily at low temperature. In cooking vegetables that require a certain degree of heat and where the water boils before that degree is reached the vegetables will not get done. They consequently have to be put into a closed boiler so that the generated steam will create enough pressure for the water to boil at or beyond the required temperature. In the experimental proof of this fact water is placed in a vessel and the air exhausted from above the surface of the water. As the process of pumping goes on the water will violently boil, the steam congealing on the sides of the exhaust vessel. If the pumping is continued long enough and the outside is cooled below the freezing point of water the water will continue to boil and bubble till it is frozen into a spongy mass of ice.

This fact is also made use of in taking a rough test of the height of a mountain. Ordinarily at sea level where the pressure is about thirty inches of mercury water boils at 212 degrees F. Now, if it is noticed that in a certain place it boils at a few degrees lower the height of that place can be easily ascertained by comparison with a table made out for this purpose. In general for every degree the boiling takes place under 212 a height of about 500 feet is counted.

Of course these principles do not apply to water alone, but are characteristic of all liquids.—New York Tribune.

FISH LOCOMOTION.

The Nature and Functions of the So Called Air Bladders.

Leaning over the parapet of some old stone breakwater or pier head and watching the fish playing about in the clear green depths below, perhaps the last thought which is likely to occur to any of us is that we are looking on at a really astonishing thing. That a fish is able to propel itself through the water in any desired direction is in no way surprising, but that it can change its level at will, rising or falling without the use of its fins, and instantly assuming a horizontal or vertical position, according to the mood or need of the moment, is a fact that a little reflection will soon develop into prime motive for wonder.

For it is clear that the fish must be able at will to vary its weight in relation to the water it displaces. When it sinks to the bottom it must have suddenly rendered itself heavier than the medium it inhabits; each time it rises to the surface like a released cork, head first, tail pointing almost vertically downward, it must not only have transformed itself into something lighter than the water, but must have become lighter in its fore parts than in its tail.

The mystery, for such it undoubtedly is on a casual survey, says the London Chronicle, resolves itself immediately we come to study the nature and functions of the so called air bladder in fishes. By this contrivance all these intricate movements the fish are brought about.

The bladder, however, contains not air, as is commonly supposed, but gas, which is discharged or regenerated by certain organs of the fish, according to whether upward or downward movement is necessary; also either the whole length of the bladder or only its front or rear portion can be inflated. Thus the fish is able to swim level or, by altering its center of gravity, to raise or lower either head or tail at will.

Singular Services of Sheep.

In the northern part of India sheep are put to a use unthought of in European or American countries. They are made to serve as beasts of burden. The mountain paths along the foothills of the Himalayas are so precipitous that the sheep, more sure footed than larger beasts, are preferred as burden carriers. The load for each sheep is from sixteen to twenty pounds. The sheep are driven from village to village, with the wool still growing, and in each town the farmer shears as much wool as he can sell there and loads the sheep with the grain which he receives in exchange. After the flock has been sheared he turns it homeward, each sheep having on its back a small bag containing the purchased grain.

Economy.

Mrs. Blockley—John, do you know that Royal Worcester vase I bought yesterday for £5? Well, they reduced their to £3 this morning. Mr. Blockley—Then you lost £2 by not waiting until this morning. Mrs. Blockley—No; only £1. I went down today and bought another for £3, making two of them average £4 each.—London Fun.

Bobby's Questions.

Papa—Because he is bigger, my boy.

Small Bobby (after pondering for a few moments)—Well, if that's the reason, why don't the hind wheels of a wagon run faster than the front wheels?—Chicago News.

If you wish to reach the highest, begin at the lowest.—Syrus.

The old, old story, told times without number, and repeated over and over again for the last 30 years, but it is always a welcome story to those in search of health—There is nothing in the world that cures coughs and colds as quickly as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. 10

THE AMERICAN WOMAN.

Her Position Here and Its Influence in the Old World.

There is no doubt that the most interesting thing to the European who lands on the northern shores of the new world is the American woman—that happy, victorious heroine of modern feminiuism who has discovered how to extract from the new condition of woman all the advantages with almost none of the inconveniences; that being who has known how to assume the masculinity in all that regards independence and liberty of action and remain feminine in grace, charm and altruism; that American beauty, that American genius, whose wonders are seen and felt in all the American and European reviews, whose writers declare her to be engaged almost entirely in severe study, in masculine work, sport and similar occupations.

Europe, moreover, is right. The American woman is not only one of the most interesting phenomena of North America, but is also the phenomenon of the new world that might have the greatest and gravest effect on the old, shaking on their foundations the essential principles of our female instruction and training, overthrowing the society of the old continent or continents, which rest to a greater extent than is realized on the antique functions of woman in the family and in society.—Gina Lombroso Ferrero in Putnam's Magazine.

THE RACE FOR RICHES.

Is Wealth That Cannot Be Enjoyed Worth the Price?

The writer once inquired of a very successful man:

"When do you ever get a moment's time for your own self—to be yourself and to think your own thoughts? Do you ever get a time like that?"

The very successful man hesitated for a moment and then replied:

"Why, yes, I get such a time while I am being shaved in the morning."

Is success really worth the price when it must be paid for at such a rate? Of what use are mansions and country houses and great estates if one has no time to visit them and enjoy their beauty? Why should one collect through agents the most exquisite works of art if he cannot find more than a casual half hour in which to view them? What are wife and children if you are always hastening about the world, far too preoccupied to give them any serious thought or to receive the pleasure which their company could afford you?

And yet there is one sole satisfaction—if it be a satisfaction. Millions of your fellow countrymen and countrywomen will believe beyond all doubt that you are really happy.

Don't Sick; even a penny—until health returns. And I mean just exactly that.

I say this even job relation who says to the sick, "I will send my own product, pay for your medicine if it fails to bring you help!"

And for 30 years Dr. Shoop's medicines have

First

Dr. Shoop's Restorative is not a stimulant, but a tonic. It does not force the organs to do their work by whipping them with a drug, but it tones and strengthens the stomach, kidneys, heart and nerves, so that they will do their work naturally.

Don't write me about Dr. Shoop's Restorative until you have given it a fair trial. Get a bottle from your druggist, use it according to the directions, and if you are not entirely satisfied with the results, simply write me a postal card, saying, "Don't send me a bill for that bottle of Restorative you sold me." That's all you need say. No formality, no quibbling, no "but," "if" or "maybe." Simply mail me the bottle, and the empty carton, and tell me what you paid your druggist for it. That settles it. I'll send you a bill for that amount. Not a penny more, not a penny less. Your word is sufficient. I'll take it. Isn't that fair enough? Isn't that the way you would like to deal with me? Isn't that the way you would like to deal with any concern? Isn't that the way you would like to deal with any concern, every where, on every day? Of course it is. Then write me today for an order.

This will save delay and disappointment.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative and Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy. Don't be persuaded to take a substitute. If your druggist can't supply you, we will send you a bottle of either, prepaid, on receipt of price, $1.00 per bottle. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is for sale in your town by

Lost His Suit.

Toronto, Dec. 30.—James Rose, of Peterborough, sued Mrs. Dunlop of the same place, in the Divisional Court at Osgoode Hall, to compel her to fulfill a contract to buy a house. Mrs. Dunlop succeeded in showing that the lot was not as described. Rose lost his suit, but Mrs. Dunlop must pay rent for the house and premises for the time she was in possession.

Man and Wife in Duel with Knives

Yonkers, N.Y., Dec. 31.—Both stabbed in half a dozen places, Emmet Davis and his wife, Ella, were hurried to a hospital where each, before lapsing into unconsciousness, preferred a charge of assault against the others. The police say that a quarrel started between them when Mr. Davis told his wife he was going to New York to attend a theater.

Mr. Davis was seen to enter his house just before dark, and almost immediately afterwards there arose sounds of a violent struggle. A few minutes later the woman began screaming that she was being killed. Neighbors attempted to break into the house, but found all the doors locked fast. A policeman smashed his way into the house with an axe. He found man and wife fighting a desperate duel with knives and was only able to get them apart with a vigorous use of his club. Both collapsed from their injuries as soon as they were seperated. They were hurried to a hospital. Each was found to have five deep stab wounds. Mr. Davis' cut being all in the head and Mrs. Davis' injuries being about the the body. The man is not expected to live.

yesterday morning. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the accused and pleaded not guilty.

Pithy Points from Seaborn Wright

At the Grand Opera House on Wednesday night Hon. Seaborn Wright made some striking statements, among others the following:

"The war is not with men, but with a system.'

"The system has been created by the laws of the land, and therefore the people are responsible.

"The trouble is with the law that has created a system that is entirely wrong."

"Every man, woman and child in Peterborough is in the liquor business so long as the present system exists, and so long as you take $5,000 a year out of the profits of the bar in license fees which help to pay your taxes."

"I want to get out of the awful business myself. I have by my partnership in it, helped to ruin millions, and I have not helped to advance a living soul. Let me get out of it."

"We are fighting to help men against a horrible system, which you people who have votes and your ancestors created,"

"If the traffic harmed no one but the present generation of drinkers, I would be at my home in Georgia tonight, for the whole business would be gone in 20 years."

"Compensation for loss of business but no compensation for those who have lost their boys."

"Take the saloon keepers' business away! How many businesses has the saloon keeper taken away.

"I had always understood that this country was remarkable for the vigour and success with which you enforced your laws, but I have heard more whining about inability to enforce laws since I came to Canada than in my whole life before."

"Has it come to this pass, that a British community is not able to enforce its own laws?"

WISHING YOU ALL A HAPPY NEW YEAR

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

Great Interest Being Taken in Monday's Elections.

To elect six aldermen from a field of nine candidate.

To decide favourably or not on the local option by-law.

To pass or reject a by-law granting a thirty years' franchise to the Peterborough Light and Power Company.

To say whether or not the city shall return to the ward system of electing aldermen.

These are the things that the ratepayers of Peterborough have an opportunity of doing on Monday next January 3rd.

In addition the freeholders of the city will have a chance of giving their opinion on the by-law to spend $70,000 in the erection of an Isolation Hospital.

Few municipal election days have offered the citizens of Peterborough a more interesting menu and the possibilities are that there will be a record vote polled.

The keen interest that is always taken in a Mayoralty contest is enhanced at this election by the fact that there is a fight on the local option question, which is adding considerably to the excitement attendant upon the occasion.

The other by-laws are of more than usual importance and will help to swell the vote to record proportions.

Both sides in the local option fight have completed preparations for getting out the vote and there will be few ratepayers who will be allowed to remain at home on Monday.

The size of the vote too, will undoubtedly have been increased because of the lengthening of the hours in which voting may be done. By a special provision the polling booths will not close until 7 o'clock instead of 5, as in the past. This will give two hours more time for voting and will give the working men a better opportunity to use their franchise.

Following are the candidates for the different offices.

For Mayor.

Ex-Alderman W. G. Morrow.
Ex-Ald. E. F. Mason.

For Council.

W. H. Bradburn.
Geo. H. Duncan.

HAVELOCK.

The nomination meeting in the town hall on Monday night was the liveliest we have witnessed in years, and several times it looked as if the constable would have to be called in to preserve peace and order. The excitement commenced when S. S. Joyce was making his address. Councillor Geo. Phillips resented some of Mr. Joyce's statements to such an extent that he had to be forcibly restrained from venting his physical prowess on that gentleman. Mr. Joyce, Reeve Knox, and Mr. Phillips a few minutes afterward, almost came to blows over the same subject, and throughout the proceedings frequent warm passages ensued between the speakers and others who disagreed with them.—Havelock Standard.

A FINAL WORD

A NEW ERA FOR PETERBOROUGH— WILL YOU BE ONE TO MAKE IT?

A BAR

BY CHAS. F. RAYMOND.

I stood before a bar and read upon it in chiselled letters the one word, "bar." As I read a man pushed open the door, and staggered out, fell upon his face on the pavement. When he arose a thin red stream trickled down his cheek. He fumbled for his handkerchief, and the blood stained it, and dyed his hands. It was the blood of a sacrifice offered up at the shrine of the bar.

A Bar!

Yes, well named, a bar to happiness, for what happiness is there in a mind that is distorted and a face that is bloody!

A Bar!

Yes, to good society, for who wants a drunken man? He is not welcome at the theater, club or concert. He is a nuisance as he reels the street; he is a trouble at home.

A Bar!

Yes, drunken man, there i a bar against you in the very hotel where you bought the liquor and got full. You are not wanted there, for you are a bad advertisement, for who is the hotel man who will point to you and say, "That is my make," "That is my customer." "That is a product of my brand."

A Bar!

Yes, a bar to hopes fulfilled, a bar to higher ideals, a bar to complete manliness and friendliness that last and lifts. A bar to a clear head, a clear eye, and steady step. Bar to a firm hand and a trust in yourself. Bar to a full coal bin and a full cupboard. Bar to boots for the child, a dress for the wife, and a coat for yourself.

A Bar!

Well named, well put, short, pithy, and to the point, b-a-r. Bar to positions of trust, to an increase of power, to the fuller confidence of the employer and a better using of time. A bar to good, to the white life, to the strong life and well rounded character.

A Bar!

Yes, see it, the bottle behind, the rail in front, and the row of worshippers offering themselves soul and body at the shrine.

A Bar!

Yes, a bar to decency, to right judgment.

A Bar!

The rent is behind, the grocer is unpaid, and the money is blown, but what odds. "Have another."

A Bar!

Yes, to all that makes for man's best interests and the development of his higher nature, to that character that is the only thing that will stand the wreck of time.

A Bar!

How short, terse and expressive.

Yes, but not a bar to a hell on earth and a hell hereafter.

VOTE FOR LOCAL OPTION AND BANISH THE BAR FROM YOUR MIDST.

OWEN SOUND AGAIN.

Last night's local papers gave the Brewers' prize shot entitled "Local Option a failure in Owen Sound." Why was this reserved for the last hour? To try and prevent the people from receiving the answer. Certainly a few men everywhere regret the passing of the bar—They miss it.—But men in Owen Sound who employ twice the number of hands spoken of in this article declare LOCAL OPTION AN UNQUALIFIED SUCCESS.

THE CAMPAIGN

A CONTRAST.

The present temperance campaign is now drawing to a close in Peterborough. This is probably the last word that will be said to the public through the medium of the public press. It may therefore not be amiss to take a look back for a few minutes, and compare the course pursued by the two parties in the contest.

THE LITERATURE.

For almost a year there has appeared in this department carefully prepared and well sunstantiated statements of the working of local option in other places. Care has been taken to verify statements, and to eliminate everything about the truth of which there could be any doubt. The editors have endeavored to the best of their ability to appeal to the common sense and good judgment of their readers, by a presentation of well attested facts. Perhaps no better proof of the success with which that has been done could be given than the fact that throughout the whole time not a single statement or conclusion has ever been challenged.

On the other hand the advocates of the open bar have contented themselves with the distribution of several pamphlets and circulars, and the publication of a few unsupported and untruthful statements, in the form of display advertisements bearing the imprint of the Brewers' Association. None of these things cited any facts, or produced any evidence except the opinions of persons who, for the most part are either interested, or were paid for their opinions. A moment's reflection on this difference ought to convince any unprejudiced, thinking man as to which party is seeking to lead the public to a clear view of the truth and which is seeking to becloud the vision.

THE ADVOCATES.

Similarly those whose object it is to rid the city of this acknowledged evil, have provided for the public of Peterborough a number of free lectures of a very high class. Should they accomplish nothing more than simply to have afforded our citizens an opportunity of hearing these men and women, of looking into the faces of some of the most noted advocates of righteousness and clean living on the continent, and of standing with them on the same high plane of morality and social purity, it, will have been worth the while. On the other side we have had nothing. Could they get men who would have the courage to stand up before a Peterborough audience and pretend to believe that the open bar tends to the moral and spiritual uplift of society, that its object is the promotion, cleanliness and high purpose in life, or even that it promotes the material comfort and well-being of the homes of our city? If so they should have had them here and make the attempt.

Consider the position of the two parties from the point of view of the citizens who appear on opposite sides. On the one side are practically all the clergy, most of the professional men, and a great number of our business men. In short all who have ever taken an interest in things

BLUEBELLS

Why I Quit the Whiskey Men

M. Morrill.
(A True Story.)

One fine morning, as I was leisurely walking down Main Street, with no particular object in view, my attention was attracted to a little bootblack. Some one in passing had dropped or carelessly thrown away a small bunch of bluebells. My attention was first attracted to the little fellow by his stooping to pick them up, but what was my amusement to see him tenderly kiss them and then carefully fasten them in the button-hole of his faded jacket. My curiosity was aroused. I made up my mind to quiz the boy, so I walked up to him and asked him for a shine. I looked at the boy carefully: he was very small and very poorly dressed, he was pale and thin, and the large blue eyes looked as if they were full of unshed tears.

"Half a dime," he said when he had put a final polish on my shoes.

I took out a quarter, and said, as I balanced it on my finger. "Here is ten cents for the shine and fifteen cents for the flowers," pointing to the bluebells in his button-hole.

He put his small hand over the flowers quickly, and gave a quick gasp.

"No, sir; I can't sell them; if I was starving I wouldn't sell a bluebell."

"And why not, my little man?" I inquired.

He looked at me so piteously that I was almost sorry I had asked him. I put my hand on his head and said:

"Excuse me for asking; you need not tell me unless you wish to, and you can keep the quarter besides."

He looked up at me a moment and then said: "I like you, and if you care to listen I'll tell you."

"Of course I am anxious to hear why you love the bluebells."

"I will commence at the first and tell it all to you, but first let us go down there and sit down," pointing to some dry goods boxes not far from where we stood.

We went, and after seating, ourselves on a small box behind some larger ones where we would not be observed, he took the bluebell bouquet and holding it in his hand, began by saying:

"It is just a year ago this month, and it has been such a long year I thought the bluebells never would come," and then he stopped and put his hands over his eyes as if trying to shut out some horrid sight; I did not interrupt his reverie. Presently he took down his hand, and said abruptly:

"My father was a drunkard. We once owned some fine property, I've heard mother say, but that was before I was born, for we have always been poor as far back as I can remember. Mother says that father drank up the farm, the oxen, horses, sheep, cows, hogs, furniture, and everything else. We got so poor mother had to go out and wash by the day to get food for Bess and me to eat. We lived in a little log-house, a quarter of a mile from any one; it was about half a mile to town. Mother used to walk to town every day, except Saturday, to wash for somebody. On Saturday she washed for ourselves and ironed on Sunday."

"Sunday is the Lord's day. Your mother certainly didn't work on the Sabbath!"

"Yes, sir; she had to. Mother said the Lord made six days for the saloon-keeper and one for ANOTHER INDUSTRY.

May Locate Here—Looking for a Site.

Negotiations during the past few days seem to bring the assurance that Peterborough will get one new industry to represent the efforts of the Council of 1909. Representatives of an United States concern, the particulars of which were broached to the Manufacturers committee several months ago, have been in the city during the past few days looking over properties which possess particular advantages for an industrial establishment. One of the aldermen suggested to an Examiner reporter that it would be just as well to say nothing about the matter until it was definitely settled that Peterborough should be chosen by the company to locate its proposed Canadian branch factory. It is considered, however, particularly as this is the last day of the year and is the last opportunity to redeem 1909, and at the same time is a bright omen for 1910, that a reference to what is being done will not be misconstrued by the public.

The representatives of the company were particularly pleased with a lot in the south ward, near Chamberlain St. and the C.P.R. track and it is felt that this site will be the choice of the company if it announces its final decision in favour of Peterborough. The fact that the gentlemen behind the concern have returned to this city again is taken by those acquainted with them here to be significant of their appreciation of the local advantages to manufacturers. Further news from this company will be awaited with interest.

Y.M.C.A. CIRCUS TONIGHT.

One of the Funniest and Most Attractive Stunts Yet Seen.

Tonight the fun at the Y.M.C.A. will be fast and furious. At this popular and most admirable institution a circus will be held. Not the kind usually held under the "Big top," but still a circus that will amuse the most exacting. A full dress rehearsal was held last night and everything indicates a great success. The program is as follows:

Class work, such as drill, apparatus work, pyramids and all sorts of gymnastic cleverness.

Hand balancing and acrobatic performances that would make the professional men take notice. This act is executed by the Mack Brothers.

The Y.M.C.A. gymnasium is fitted up to represent a circus ring, everything is decorated to make one believe that he or she is under the "Big top."

This program, however, does not include a fraction of the funny and instructive stunts to be seen tonight.

WANTED TO VOMIT.

"The doctors told me my sickness was caused by complications of the stomach and liver," writes Mrs. E. P. Fourraine, well known in William sport. "The least little error in eating would cause nausea, and after a time actual vomiting was easily excited. I grew very thin, pale, with dark lines under the eyes; my strength so failed that even light housework quite exhausted me. Of course with a large family, I could not afford a doctor all the time, and when in despair, I tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills. From the very first they acted wonderfully, and I experienced a desire for food and ate my meals with a relish. After a while my system became quite regular, and that horrid sick feeling only came now and again. This made me persevere, and it was a good thing I did so, because the continuation of Dr. Hamilton's Pills was the means of giving me my health again, and I am now the happiest woman I know."

ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION.

Reeve and Council of Norwood Elected by Acclamation.

At the close of the formal proceedings Reeve Breault was called to the platform. He thanked the electors for the honour they had done him in re-electing him by acclamation. This was the fifth time that he had been returned without a break. He compared the expenditure on the streets for several years past to shew that the ratepayers in passing the by-law to provide for the construction of cement walks had acted wisely. Had this not been done the rate of taxation to-day would have been much higher than it is.

Heaviness at Pit of the Stomach

Nearly everyone gets an occasional attack of indigestion and knows just what that heavy feeling means in the stomach. "I was subject to stomach derangements and my health was seriously hampered on this account. After meals I belched gas, had a wighty sensation in my stomach and ever my left side. The first relief I got was from Nerviline—I used it three times a day and was cured. I continue to use Nerviline occasionally, and find it is a wonderful aid to the stomach and digestive organs."

NERVILINE RESTORES WEAK STOMACHS

The above letter comes from Mrs. P. R. Stetson, wife of an important merchant in Brockton, and still further proof of the exceptional power of Nerviline is furnished by A. E. Rossman, the well-known upholsterer of Chester, who writes: "Let everyone with a bad stomach use 'Nerviline,' and I am sure there will be few sufferers left. I used to have cramps, rumbling noises gas on my stomach and severe fits of indigestion. Nerviline was the only remedy that gave me relief, and I found it so entirely satisfactory that I would like to have my letter of recommendation published broadcast in order that others may profit by my experience."

REFORMING THE LORDS.

There is one serious danger in the movement against the House of Lords, if reformed and strengthened, will become a stronghold of opposition to democracy, Abolition is not likely to come. But the necessity for reform is conceded by rational defenders of the Lords. They admit the absurdity of hereditary law makers. But they point to the presence in the house of men experienced in legislation, diplomacy, and military affairs and declare that to drive these men from the seat of authority would be a loss to the nation. If the question were asked why representatives of this class could not be elected to the House of Commons, the answer would reveal the real motive of all advocates of second chambers—dread and distrust of the people. The plea that a House of Lords is necessary to allow of an appeal to the people against an arrogant House of Commons is an afterthought: if not a pretense. If it is necessary to protect the rights of the people against their elected representatives, the right remedy is the referendum, regulated by law, not applied at the pleasure of a body over which the people have no control.

If the British House of Lords should assert its equality with the House of Commons, it would tend to resemble the senate of the United States, a body which, as Professor Allen Smith, of the University of Washington, says; "Was intended to be representative of conservatism and wealth, and a solid and enduring bulwark against democracy." The senate was one of those checks which the framers of the American constitution erected against popular government. Their spirit was embodied in Alexander Hamilton, who, when he heard some democratic sentiment expressed at a banquet, struck his hand upon the table and cried: "You [illegible] upon the table and cried; "Your people, sir, your people, is a great beast."

The senate has fulfilled the aim of its founders, which was not to defend popular rights, but to resist the popular will and defend privilege. A characteristic exercise of its power was the Aldrich tariff, which disappointed the hopes of tariff reformers and strengthened monopoly and restriction. A similar body established in great Britain would bring joy and burden to the privileged classes, and effectually check reform. Great Britain is now the land "Where freedom broadens slowly down - from precedent to precedent." It is doubtful whether the strengthening of the House of Lords would be a part of the broaden process.

To be just to those who created those bulwarks against democracy, their fear of the democracy was sincere. They really did believe that "Your people is a great beast," which required to be chained or caged. But experience shows that the least of all dangers in legislation is popular impulse. It is the lobbyist for private interests who is to be feared. Take our experience in Canada. There has never been a case in which the House urged by popular impulse, has tried to enact some dangerous," revolutionary, or tryannical measure, and has been checked by the senate. The dangerous, arrogant democracy is a myth. The real fault of the masses of the people is the excessive humility or good nature with which they allow their rights to be over-ridden. The check that government and legislatures require is a popular check. The faults that are commonly ascribed to democracy, such as the rule of the political boss, are due to failure to understand the spirit of democracy. Its possibilities are not yet realized. Neither in British countries, nor in the United States, is there democracy in the true sense in which the people not only vote at intervals, but are the constant and dominant force in the government of the nation.

It is likely that the British Liberals are fully aware of the danger to which we have referred, and that they will insist that when the House of Lords is reformed its power shall be limited, and its subordination to the House of Commons definitely asserted. In 1907, after the Lords had rejected the education bill, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman moved "That in order to give effect to the will of the people as expressed by their elected representatives, it is necessary that the power of the other House to alter or reject bills passed by this House should be so restricted by law as to secure that within the limits of a single parliament the final decision of the Commons shall prevail." This resolution was carried by a vote of 315 to 100, and it expresses the present policy of the Liberal party. If embodied in the Liberal party.

ELEGANCES OF THE PAST.

The language flows are passing round
Like "Wilt" and "Oh, you kid!"
Seems not to flow with sense profound
As old time phrases did.
The rat-tat-tat style seem to like
The racket which they raise.
But modern diction does not strike
The peace of other days.

I wish that they might hear the way
When some one stood aloof
And proud, some friend in accents gay
Would cry, "Come off the roof!"
And when some lad appeared with buns
Upon his lip would shout
With real wit, "Say, sonny, does
Your mother know you're out?"

The cry "Wash, Emma!" is unheard;
Likewise "Pull down your vest!"
No weary soul by anguish stirred
Exclaims, "Give us a rest!"
The rapid lines through which we whiz
Compel us to agree
The art of conversation is Not what it used to be.
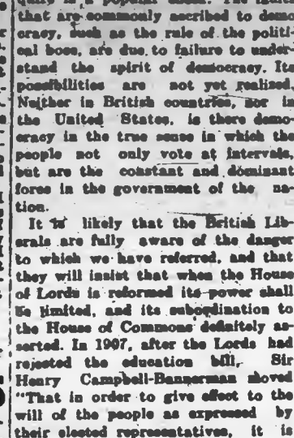
—Washington Star.

Crowded Out.



"Have you called on Gladys since she got back?"

"Yes, but I'll have to go again."

"Why?"

"She got started first in telling her summer experiences, and I didn't get a word in edgewise about what I'd been doing all summer."

Secondary Consideration.

She—I don't see why you should hesitate to marry on $3,000 a year. Papa says my gowns never cost more than that.

He—But, my dear, we must have something to eat.

Made No Difference.

"I must warn you, dearest," he said, "that after we are married you will very likely find me inclined to be arbitrary and dictatorial in my manner."

"No matter," she replied cheerfully, "I won't pay the slightest attention to what you say."—Presbyterian Standard.

Easy.

"Ted knew Jones, who was reported so rich? Well, he died the other day, and the only thing he left was an old Dutch clock."

"Well, there's one good thing about it. It won't be much trouble to wind up his estate."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Often Reminded.

"How often," said the philosopher, "a man is reminded of his own littleness in this great world."

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox, "especially if he has three daughters who have been to boarding school."—Washington Star.

The peculiar properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have been thoroughly tested during epidemics of influenza, and when it was taken in time we have not heard of a single case of pneumonia.

WHOLE HOG OR NONE.

Widow Distrustful of Farmer Who Had Porker to Sell.

"It's curious how the people have turned around within a couple of years and become so distrustful," said the old farmer as the matter of graft and trusts was touched upon. "I had four hogs to sell and advertised them in the village paper. Half a dozen people came out to see them, and among them was a widow. She wanted me to swear to the breed, the weight and the fact that the hogs were in good health. She wanted to be assured of their good eyesight and hearing. She wanted to be satisfied that they were good natured hogs. She wanted me to sign a paper that I had raised the porkers instead of gambling them. When I had done all this and the sale was about effected she suddenly turned and walked away.

"'Hello, now, but what's the matter?' I called after her.

"'You've cut their tails off,' she replied.

"'Yes; that was done when they were pigs.'

"'Then you knock off 50 cents apiece for missing tails or I don't buy. It's whole hog or none and no graft.'"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

His Experience.

"There are some songs that will never die," said the musical enthusiast.

"I guess that's right," answered Mr. Cumrox. "My daughter sits down at the piano and tries to kill a few of 'em every evening. But it's no use."—Washington Star.

For Example.

"As for me," stated the petulant person, "I see no difference between half a loaf and no bread."

"But there is a difference," replied the practical one. "Wouldn't you prefer a whole doughnut to a doughnut hole?"—Judge.

Easily Parted.

"He's quite bald, I understand."

"Almost. He has just two wisps of hair left."

"Indeed?"

"Yes, and he calls one 'the fool' and the other 'his money.'"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Renewing Hostilities.

Mrs. Caller—I'm surprised that you recognized me. It has been more than five years since we met.

Mrs. Naggeby—I had almost forgotten your face, but I remembered that dress you have on.

No Recommendation.

Goldsborough—You may say what you like about Ricketts, but he's as good as his word.

Poindexter—But consider how many bad words he uses.—Detroit Free Press.

His Holy Sabbath Day.

"Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy," said the good man.

"I always do," replied the chronic golfer. "I played seventy-two holes last Sunday."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Willing to Listen.

Tess—She was boasting that she is a very good listener.

Jess—Yes. She's what you might call a fluent listener. She loves to hear herself talk.—Philadelphia Press.

All's Well.

Griggs—But I understand he has obtained a fine job as chauffeur.—Life.

Too Much For Him.

"So Bates has given up autoing?"

"Yes. Between running down pedestrians and running up repair bills the expense was too much for him."—Town and Country.

Helping Him.

Percy Stutter—Miss Bub-bub-Brightly, will you bub-bub-be m-m-my wub-wub—er—that is, I lul-lul-love—

Dolly Brightly—You must give me time to consider, Mr. Stutter. In the meantime perhaps you will be able to say it.

Handling the Law.

"According to the boys who took Peter home this morning, his wife laid down the law to him."

"Laid it down! Why, man, she threw it at him."

For Both.

"I can forgive but never forget this whipping," said Tommy.

"That is just what I want you to do," said his mother.—Boston Courier.

Can't Call It Living.

"Does he live in a boarding house?"

"No; he boards there."—Cleveland Leader.

OLD TIM AND THE POLLYWUMPS.

The Recipe That Cured the Aged Man's Fit of Blues.

By HOMER CROY.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Old Tim Culley slowly climbed the paper padded stairs to his room on the second floor, with one hand on his knee and the other pulling at the balustar rail. At the landing he paused for breath. He did not mean to overhear the conversation between Mrs. Simonds and the man with the official badge, but the man's sharp words floated up, and Old Tim paused guiltily.

"It 'tain't my fault," explained the gas bill collector. "Rules are rules. It might be different if I was at the head of the company, but we'll have to cut off your gas. That's the rules."

"I think everything 'll be all right in a few days. Times are picking up."

"It can't be helped, Mrs. Simonds. As I say, rules are rules, and they'll turn it off Saturday."

AGAIN THE PLAINTIVE STRAINS BURST OUT

Old Tim turned into his little back room and dropped down upon his bed, one arm propping him up. His eyes wandered aimlessly around the four close walls, held on the ragged edge of the paper a moment, then drifted on to return. Even the neglect of years could not hide the fact that the room had once been rich and well worked out when East Fifteenth street was exclusive. The whole room was an epitaph.

"It's no use," complained Old Tim, "no use at all. My auger has bored through. It's not the hard times—the auger is through."

He went out and found Mrs. Simonds. He walked straight up to her.

"Mrs. Simonds, I heard what the gas man said. Half of it is my fault. I'm not worth the chores I do. I have a conscience. I am"—

"Now, now, Tim, you've got the pollywumps this evening, and after you have been here seventeen years, when we were big and swell. Maybe you'll get your job back, and then you can begin to pay me again. Then I'll get some one else to do the chores around here, and then you can go to the picture shows and to the restaurants every Saturday night, like you used to."

Mrs. Simonds' tone brightened his face with the hope that springs eternal.

"Old Tim" he was to everybody on East Fifteenth street—mate, fireman and postman—quiet, mild, bargains Old Tim.

"I haven't paid you a cent since last year, Mrs. Simonds. And here I guess was the drafting engineer for McCord & Prewett, with twenty men under me—twenty men. That's a ten-story it, Mrs. Simonds? When I came back after lying sick I was only a night watchman. But I was a good one. Mr. Prewett said so. Then came the hard times, no work, and you keeping me for puttering around here. It's not right."

"You've got 'em bad this evening, Tim—big blue pollywumps."

A flight of pain cut across Old Tim's face that Mrs. Simonds would not take him seriously. His conscience was old and rooted deep.

"I've been thinking about it a long time, Mrs. Simonds. The world is done with me. I sometimes call myself a telephone with the battery run down. You don't know how it is. You aren't as old as I am. You don't know how a man feels when he finds that out. I can't keep up. It costs a lot to keep me, eating three times a day. Let I don't burn any gas—can't see to read much any more anyway; don't take much interest in it besides. Yes, it costs a lot. It wouldn't cost much to bury me."

"Now, you shut up, Tim. You've got 'em bad this time, sure. Thinking about them that way—makes them worse. Now, you get down there and see if you can't tighten up that clothesline."

Old Tim let himself down the stairs into the basement and went out into the back court and began tightening the line.

Little Dottie, Mrs. Simonds' daughter, slipped up on tiptoe, her tongue out in her efforts to be noiseless. Old Tim turned that he might not see her.

"Boo!" cried Dottie, throwing out her hands.

Old Tim jumped. "Why—no, how you frightened me! My, but I ought to put some chewing gum in your hair!" Old Tim said.

In make believe.

Dottie covered her fairy curls with her chubby fingers and retreated. "Don't you dare! I'll put salt in your coffee if you do."

They played for half an hour, and then Old Tim in the gathering dusk pulled himself up to his little room and dropped on to his bed. Finally he reached out his hand and felt of his tobacco pouch. "Of course there isn't any. It won't grow in there of itself."

As the bell downstairs clanged he softly opened his door and guiltily listened. As he had suspected, it was the grocer from around the corner.

"You promised to come around today and settle up, Mrs. Simonds," said the groceryman sharply.

Old Tim closed his door. "And me wasting her money every day," he complained, "every day, and doing nothing but chores. Yes—and I am liable to get sick at any time, any day, and eating every day."

His eyes roved the room and fastened on all the ragged nail holes and grease spots. "Used not to be that way when I first came—carriages and dinners at the hotels. But that doesn't do any good now."

Suddenly, with quick determination, he arose and paced the ink bottle on the table before him and dipped the rusted pen. Slowly and with lowered head he wrote the note:

Mrs. Simonds—It costs a lot to keep me, and it won't cost much to bury me. It isn't the pollywumps, but fate. Give Dottie the Indian purse. If you ever hear from my brother—I think he is out west—give him the ring. You can get it off my finger. You need not write anything on the headstone.

Folding the note, he weighted it with the ink bottle. Then from the bottom of his sealed bureau he drew out the rubber hose and attached it to the gas jet. Locking the door, he turned to the window and was drawing it down when he looked across the court to the window of his BEDROOM friend. There was a glare of light on the white haired friend waiting.

Old Tim had almost forgotten him—the friend with whom he had never spoken, but who had so many times smiled across at him and nodded his head in appreciation.

Old Tim gathered up his violin, as he had done every evening, and clamped it under his chin. As the soft, plaintive tones of "Annie Laurie" welled out the old white haired man arose and turned down his light to a glow. He always turned his gas to a glimmer when Old Tim played "Annie Laurie." It was his dream hour, when he lived again the victories of youth. As Old Tim played the old white haired man dropped his head against the window casing and lost himself in reverie. When Old Tim finished he made across the air shaft slowly nodded.

"He'll miss me—anyway, even if the world doesn't," said Old Tim musingly. "It's the last time; it's the last time. I hope they will tell him so that he can come. I believe I'll play once more."

Again the plaintive strains burst out, and when Old Tim had finished the old man of the gray locks looked across and nodded again. He would never grow tired.

Old Tim nodded back, gulped and turned away. He took up his pen and added a postscript:

Will you please give the old white haired man my violin—if you don't have to sell it?

Then he fitted the rubber mask to his face and fumbled for the gas jet.

A stone cracked against his window, he paused, and then another pebble tipped the pane. Jerking off the mask, he threw up the window. He knew that it was Dottie's signal.

"Something for you, Timmie," called out Dottie—"something nice—I know it—a letter in typewriting."

Old Tim hurried down the stairs, and in the kitchen, with Dottie at his side, he tore open the envelope.

"It's from McCord & Prewett," he cried joyfully. "My old job back as night watchman—tomorrow. Isn't that nice?"

Old Tim hurried up to his room, rambling and grabbing at the rail, and turned on the gas to a full daring flame. It was the first time in many months that the flame had been so wide and joyful.

A white shape appeared against the window, and the throat out his head. "What is it, Dottie, little girl?"

"Please, Timmie, and the nice old man with the white hair wants to know if you will play 'Goodby, My Lover, Goodby.'"

Tim took up his violin, put some rosin on the bow and—drawing it across the strings several times, began to play the air he had been asked to play. Dottie listened for awhile with eyes fixed on him, then she began to dance. Tim also began to pirouette, and the two danced about. Tim continuing to make the music to which they danced. And the longer they danced the livelier they danced, and the livelier the music to which they danced. Then, when they were tired, they rested. Tim put up his violin and said:

"Well, that's the best dance I ever had in my life."

Flints in Stone Africa.

In South Africa there is found a sort of the genus Mesembryanthemum growing in stony ground, which so closely resembles a pebble that it is invariably taken by the stranger to be a stone.

Another species of the same plant growing on the hills round the Karoo produces two leaves about as large as ducks' eggs, having a surface resembling weathered stone of brownish gray color, tinged with green. These plants look like stones, but for a short time they put forth bright yellow flowers. Still another species of the same plant resembles the quartz pebbles among which it grows.

WHAT WE WANT IN PETERBOROUGH

Municipal ownership of power for street lighting, industrial, and commercial purposes.

A proper business system for maintaining our roadways, and the opening up of new thoroughfares.

No more illegal overdrafts.

A settled policy for civic financing, viz., the placing of the city's finances on a business basis.

The publication of the assessment roll to start in the year 1910.

The above are some of the principal issues upon which I solicit your vote on January 3rd, 1910.

E. F. MASON

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

At the earnest solicitation of a large number of the ratepayers, I am now asking your support for my election to the Mayoralty of the City of Peterborough for the year 1910; and in doing so I am relying upon my record as a ratepayer, as a lifelong citizen, as one materially interested in the manufacturing and industrial development of the city, and as one who as an Alderman served you for the past three years, first as chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee and secondly as chairman of the Finance Committee.

It is usual for one aspiring to the chief magistracy to attempt to out line some definite policy to be pursued during the term of office. In compliance with that custom I can only say that it will be my aim then to serve the city to the best of my ability, to do what I can to promote its commercial, industrial and moral development, to give fair and just consideration to all questions which may come before the council, having regard to neither class nor party, as I am pledged to none.

Our city has made rapid progress in recent years, and the continuation of this progress will depend largely upon the growth and expansion of the city's present industries, and upon the establishment of new ones to which every encouragement and legitimate inducement should be given—the council should give immediate attention to securing an adequate supply of cheap power; every effort conducing to these ends has my fullest sympathy and support.

The time has also arrived when the council must take into consideration the question of permanent roadways in the business section, and in general street construction, and of the extension and improvement of the sewer system in the southern parts of the city. To both of these matters I shall, if elected, give my earliest attention.

I am in favor of carrying out a policy of the strictest economy consistent with proper service in every department of the municipal business.

As the time between now and election day is short it will be impossible for me to personally call upon every ratepayer; I therefore take this means and opportunity of soliciting for myself the honor of your vote and influence.

Wishing you all a very Happy and Prosperous New Year, I am,

Yours sincerely,

Mr. W. H. Denham Strongly Supports the By-Law

Gives Lucid, Forcible Reasons Why Why Citizens of Peterborough Should Pass the Measure Giving Franchise to the Light and Power Company—What it Means to the City.

Peterborough, Dec. 30, '09.

I have noticed several articles lately which touched on the question of the price of power for commercial purposes, and also house lighting, in connection with the Peterborough Light and Power Company's by-law, to be voted on January 3rd, 1910, and feeling that the situation is not understood by some of the voters, the following information may be of interest to help to decide in favour of the By-law.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission's report was compiled by eminent engineers, thoroughly acquainted with their work and competent in every way to deal with such a subject. Their report deals with the cost of power delivered at sub-stations. In their report they also state that the distribution of this power to the consumer costs from $3.00 to $7.00. Taking $5.00 as a fair average for distribution, we arrive at the following figures:

Hamilton, $20.36 per H. P.
Toronto, $21.83 per H. P.
St. Thomas, $26.80 per H.P.
St Thompson, $26.00 per H.P.
London, $24.51 per H.P.
Tillsonburg, $29.30 per H.P.
Guelph, $23.30 per H.P.
Galt, $22.36 per H.P.
Brantford, $21.87 per H.P.
Chatham, $29.62 per H.P.
Sarnia, $34.20 per H.P.
Kingston, 26.43 per H.P.
Belleville, $21.06 per H.P.
Oshawa, $28.52 per H.P.
Port Hope, 24.60 per H.P.
Cobourg, $23.30 per H.P.

The above figures represent bringing down a maximum quantity of H.P., which means that where the maximum cannot be used that the rate would still be higher, because that rate must take care of all fixed charges, whether it be 1,000 H.P., 10,000 H.P. or more. These figures may be verified by reference to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission's report. The above list does not include all of the cities reported on by the Commission, but in no case is there any power which can be delivered at less than the lowest figures above stated.

You can readily see from this list that Peterborough is fortunate in being able to obtain her power for $20.00, and therefore, the offer of the Light and Power Company is not only reasonable, but it is extremely low, compared with what power can be obtained for at other points.

If you will refer to the report, you will also find that Peterborough is very well taken care of as regards house lighting, as the following table will show:

Peterborough 7 1-2c. net per K. W. Hr.

In the new by-law it will be 7c. net per K.W. hr.

Lindsay 12 1-2c. net per K. W. Hr.
Whitby 10c. net per K. W. Hr.
Cobourg, 18.2c. net per K. W. Hr.
Trenton, 8c. net per K. W. Hr.
Belleville 8c. net per K. W. Hr.
Kingston 12 1-2c. net per K W. Hr.
Hamilton 10c. net per K. W. Hr.
St. Thomas 10c. net per K.W. Hr.
Guelph 10c. net per K. W. Hr.
Brantford 8.1c. net per K. W. Hr.

You can also readily see from the above that Peterborough's rate is low in comparison. These are the cities which are dealt with by the Commission for the Trent District and Niagara District, and are the points which are of interest to Peterborough.

Some arguments have also been advanced as regards the cost of lighting on the basis of meter, which are misleading and unreasonable. In the first place suppositions have been made that a consumer burning eight lights for twelve hours each, paying by meter, will be paying an exterminate price for his light, the fact is that if consumers having eight lamps burned all their lamps for twelve hours, a flat rate of $1.50 could not be given. The business of lighting works on the law of average the same as life insurance, to a certain extent, that is to say, experience has shown the light companies that though a great many houses may have eight lights, that all the houses are not using their lights, and those that are using their lights are not burning all of them, and in fact the average light burned per night is very low, so low that the $1.50 flat rate is only a trifle cheaper than meter rate.

In talking with the manager of the Light and Power Company he states that the flat rate is low, and it was put low intentionally, with a measure of generosity to the working man.

Such arguments as have been advanced, as regards burning a total number of lights for twelve or even twenty-four hours should not be considered for the reason that these conditions do not exist. As a meter user, I am free to say that I have forty lights in my house, besides an electric iron, and that while reasonable care is used so that light is not wasted, there is no limit as to what amount of light may be used, in fact lights are burned all over the house wherever needed, and I dare say my house would be considered as well lighted. My light bill is not over $4.00 per month at the present time, and still lower during the summer months. Any one can readily see that it is a cheaper proposition in my case especially, to be on the meter, as against the flat rate.

An example such as the above, which is borne out by facts, is worth considerably more than suppositions, which do not deal with the regular conditions. I have no hesitancy in saying that my conclusions is the same as the great majority of meter users. Some will get along with considerably less light than I do, depending of course on the number of lamps in use.

In dealing with this question, it is only right that we should deal with actual conditions, and not with suppositions, and if we consider the By-law in this light, there is no reason why it should not be supported.

Another point is that almost everyone knows that the Light and Power Company have been supported by the Quaker Oats Company, and occasionally articles have appeared in the paper giving a quiet rap to the Quaker Oats Company. Why this should be is beyond my understand. They are a Company which came to Peterborough, and it is true got some concessions in the way of fixed assessment, for locating an industry in Peterborough.

The Quaker Oats Company not only have established in Peterborough the largest industry of its kind in Canada employing five hundred of Peterborough's citizens, but it was also through it that the street railway was re-established, and light and power brought up to a high standard of efficiency.

They also are distributing annually among the people of Peterborough approximately $150,000 in wages alone, besides thousands of dollars for material and supplies purchased in Peterborough, in addition to several millions of dollars expended for grain, purchased elsewhere in Canada.

Have they lived up to the promises that they have made when it has been in their power to carry them out? Are not all of their obligations paid?

Now, Mr. Editor, the Light and Power Company are not asking for anything, but the privilege to do business, and to extend their present capacity. They are not asking for exclusive franchise. They are not asking for bonuses. They are simply asking for the moral support of the people in the business they have carried on, and the business they want to carry on for thirty years to come. They are simply asking the people to guarantee them the right to use the streets for a period of thirty years, so that their policy may be settled for that period of time, and that the Light and Power Company may carry on the business independently of the business of the Quaker Oats Company. This can be done by putting the Light and Power Co. in a position to float their own bonds, without making it necessary for the Quaker Oats Company to guarantee them or to under-write them. That is all they ask, and to obtain this privilege they are granting a great number of concessions and are willing to grant them and to live up to them.

A great deal more may be said on this subject, but in order to put it properly before the minds of some people, who do not thoroughly understand the question, this letter is written, feeling that it may, aid them to decide.

MR. LASTAR DISMISSED.

Was Charged With Interrupting an Assembly.

Bernard Lastar was charged with interrupting an assembly by rude behaviour at the Grand Opera House on December 23, at the police court this morning. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the accused and pleaded not guilty.

After hearing five witnesses his Worship did not think it necessary to call any further evidence. He stated that the defendant was an erratic, nervous and persistent man. If he had a question the magistrate did not think it was any crime to send it up to be answered. Had there been any public notice given that no questions would be answered at these meetings then it would have been indiscreet on the part of Mr. Lastar to ask them. His Worship believed it helped the speaker for persons to ask questions, as they could often be used as arguments in the speaker's favour. Mr. Lastar went out of the Opera House quietly. "I think," remarked the Magistrate, "that to refuse to answer the questions and to have the man ejected was one of the worst things that could be done in the temperance cause. An honest question was entitled to an honest answer. His Worship found that the charge had not been proven.

The Evidence.

Chief Bossel was the first witness. He said that for some time meetings have been held in the Opera House, the one in this case being on Wednesday evening, Dec. 22, in the interests of temperance and local option. The Opera House was a licensed place, and subject to police supervision.

Mr. J. J. Turner, Sr., was next called. He was the proprietor and manager of the Grand Opera House. There was a local option meeting there on Wednesday, Dec. 22. Hon. Seaborn Wright was the speaker. Just as Mr. Wright concluded Mr. Lastar jumped up and stated he wanted some questions answered. He would not sit down and P. C. Meagher took him out. As he was going out from his seat, Mr. Lastar made the remark "I'll make someone pay for this tomorrow." He is the only person who ever got up to ask questions.

To Mr. Gordon, witness admitted getting a letter from O'Connell & Gordon, threatening suit for damages on behalf of Mr. Lastar if a settlement wasn't made by 27th inst. He denied that Mr. Brown had said to him: "Leave him there; he is not disturbing the meeting."

Rev. Mr. Keith stated that at the close of the address, Mr. Webb was speaking, when Mr. Lastar jumped up and demanded an answer to his questions. Mr. Keith said that Lastar had sent questions to be answered at a previous meeting. Mr. Lastar was the only one who sent in questions.

Mr. Wm. Yelland was at the meeting. He heard an interruption: Mr. Webb got up at the conclusion of the address, and started to speak and Mr. Lastar rose at the same time. Mr. Webb claimed the floor.

Rev. Mr. Webb made a statement before giving any evidence, to the effect that the Local Option and Moral Reform Leagues had nothing to do in bringing Mr. Lastar to court. He swore that he was speaking before Mr. Lastar was on the night of the meeting, and he asked him to sit down. The people were getting up and there was quite a commotion.

PE-RU-NA PROMPTLY RELIEVES

A Case of Dreadful Suffering Which Had Continued For Months.

An Account of a Remarkable Recovery Given By Mr. Alfred Wood, Teacher of a Private School at Launceston, Tasmania.

MR. AND MRS. ALFRED WOOD.

Mr. Alfred Wood, who has a private school at 32 Frederick street, Launceston, Tasmania (Australia), has been a teacher for 37 years under the Educational Department of Tasmania. He writes, concerning his wife's case, as follows:

"My wife was suffering for months from gastro-enteritis, and was given up by her medical attendant.

"By good fortune I was induced to try Peruna in her case, and I can truthfully state that from the first dose her dreadful suffering ceased; and after taking five bottles she is permanently cured."

By simply arousing the forces of Nature so threw off the diseased action.

Peruna contains no magic and does not operate in any mysterious way, but it does help Nature to combat disease, and thus many times comes to the rescue of the patient in some important crisis.

There is always a time in the course of any disease when a little help goes a great way.

Just as the scales are beginning to descend, when one ounce more would determine the fate of the patient, a little lift will turn the scales in favor of the patient.

Peruna is a handy medicine to have in the household.

As a tonic or catarrh remedy, its reputation is well established all over the world.

As a remedy for stomach and bowel disease, the name of Peruna is undoubtedly destined to become greater than that of any other medicine in the world.

A great many cases like that above referred to have found Peruna of untold value when no other help seemed of any avail.

Peruna For Indigestion.

Mr. Donald Robb, Jr., 16 Wrights Ave., Halifax, Nova Scotia, member Independent Order of Foresters, writes:

"While on a visit to Boston, I must have eaten something that did not agree with my stomach, as a terrible case of indigestion followed.

"Peruna was recommended to me and after using three bottles I was entirely cured.

"I therefore recommend Peruna to any one suffering with stomach trouble."

Mr. Chas. Brown, Rogersville, Tenn., writes:

"A friend advised me to take Peruna for indigestion and it cured me in a short time."

What the Churches and Clergy Have Done and are Doing for the Temperance Cause

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND'S POSITION.

Archbishop John Ireland is known throughout Christendom as an earnest, progressive, and devoted worker for the good of humanity. In an address to the Minnesota Catholic Total Abstinence Union some years ago, he made the following strong statement:

"We thought we meant business years ago in this warfare, but I hope God will forgive us for our weakness for we went into the battlefield without sufficient resolution. We labored under the fatal mistake that we could argue out the question with the rum-sellers. We imagined that there was some power in moral suasion, that when we would show them the evil of their ways they would abandon the traffic. We have seen that there is no hope of improving in any shape or form the liquor traffic. There is nothing now to be done but wipe it out completely."

Father Matthews, whose name has always been associated with temperance reform said:

"The question of prohibiting the sale of ardent spirits and the many other intoxicating drinks which are to be found in our unhappy country is not new to me. The principal of prohibition seems to me the only safe and certain remedy for the evils of intemperance. This opinion has been strengthened by the hard labor of more than twenty years in the temperance cause."

NO PEW RENT FROM SALOON KEEPERS.

In returning $10 pew rent to a saloon-keeper, Father Joseph McNamee of Pontane, Ill., wrote to him; "Your name will be retained on the pew free of charge, for the use of your family. * * * The members of this congregation who call frequently at your place, give little or nothing to the church for the good reason that they give it all to you. With temptation removed their faith and natural good qualities would make them pillars of the church. * * * The Catholic Church has been conservative and charitable in dealing with those of her children who against her wishes have gone into the liquor business, but her charitable expressions have been used as war cries on behalf of whiskey. On account of some uncertain remarks attributed to Cardinal Gibbons, that prelate has been quoted by liquor orators as the champion of the trade. All the money in possession of the beer and whiskey people of this country would not heal the wounds and black eyes inflicted on the church by Catholic names written over beer kegs and dirty pictures. It is now opportune that Catholic saloon-keepers should listen to the advice of the Bishops at the Baltimore Council to choose a more lawful and more honorable way of making a living.

Rev. Father Ryan is writing to the Renfrew Mercury among other things said;

"Is local option at least probably going to weaken these abuses? If we can answer 'yes' to those questions, then what matters it that the liquor traffic pays millions in duties to the government, or in taxes, or in wages, or for tools, or express and freight charges? What a consolation for a man with a drunken son, or woman with a drunken father, to know that he is helping to pay these millions?

Vote local option and do not mind any of this talk about millions, or any menace that country or locality will go to the dogs, if the bar-rooms are closed.

"Someone tells us that hotel-keepers do not compel anyone to drink. He thereby takes the same narrow view of the duties of hotel keepers that unfortunately they for the most part take themselves; namely, that they are quite within the bounds of law, human or divine, so long as they give liquor only to those that are able to stand up and ask for it, or even to ask for it with out being able to stand up. If they only realised and acted upon their obligation in conscience to refuse it to those who already have had enough, to refuse it entirely to habitual topers, and to all who they know will certainly or probably take liquor to excess, if they get any at all; then perhaps there would be no call for local option or any form of prohibition. The conscience of the liquor seller is not clear, when all he can say of his dealings with the drunkard is that he did not compel him to drink nor force the liquor down his throat.

"The temperance 'fanatics' do not expect hotelmen to furnish accommodation free of charge. Let them charge for what they give, but not make the misery created by, and in the bar room pay and over-pay, for the supposedly free accommodation given in other places. Local option people have no grudge or ill-will against hotelkeepers, as such; they desire not to close the hotel, but that particular drunkard-breeding corner of the hotel known as the bar room.

I sincerely hope that the people will vote solidly local option.

"Yours sincerely,

Himself, but He forgot to make a day for the drunkard's wife. She said the saloon-keeper had confiscated the Lord's day, but she had hoped the Lord would consider her circumstances and forgive her for working on the Sabbath. She said if there were no saloons she would not have to work on Sunday. There were just four of us, father, mother, Baby Bess and Willie, that is me."

"So your name is Willie, is it? but go on with your story."

"Well, as I said, mother was away all day, and sometimes she would not get home until after dark; she was not very strong, and sometimes she had big washings, and sometimes we didn't have much to eat, because the ladies mother washed for din't have the right change, or they would forget to ask their husbands for it. Mother always hated to ask for money after she had earned it; she said it did seem as if they ought to know that she needed the money, or she would not wash for it, and it generally happened that when one didn't have the change none of them did, so sometimes we got awful hungry while we were waiting for folks to pay us."

"Why didn't your mother ask for her money? It was hers after she earned it."

"She was afraid to, for sometimes they would get mad and say she didn't half wash their clothes, and then they would hunt up a new washerwoman. It was one of those weeks when nobody had any change. It was Friday morning; we had very little to eat on Thursday, and on Friday morning there was only a plate of cornmeal and about two spoonfuls of molasses. Mother baked the meal into bread, and told me to feed the baby when she woke, and to keep a sharp lookout for father; he was in town on a big spree: he was awfully cross when he was drinking; it was not safe for him to get his hands on us, so we always hid when we saw him coming, if mother was not at home. Little Bessie would nearly go into fits when she saw him coming home drunk. Don't let Bess cry if you can help it, Willie, I am afraid I won't get home until after dark tonight. Mrs. Gray always has such large washings; but I will come as soon as I can, and will bring provisions, for I must have some money tonight or we will starve." She kissed Baby Bess as she lay asleep, and then kissed me at the door. 'Be a good boy, Willie, and take care of little sister." Bessie slept a long time that morning, and I passed the time in sitting by her, and going to the door to watch for father. When she woke up she said the first thing, 'Baby is so hungry, Willie, get something to eat.' 'Get up, Bessie, and let me dress you, and then we will have breakfast.' I had not eaten a mouthful, nor had mother tasted food before leaving home, and I was awful hungry myself. She got up, and I dressed, washed, and combed her, and when we sat down to the table Bessie looked at the food and then she just dropped her curly head right down on the table and sobbed out, 'Oh, Willie, I am so tired of corn-bread and molasses; I can't eat it; I want some meat and butter.' 'Don't cry, baby,' I said, stroking her curls, 'mother will bring home something tonight.' 'But it is so long to wait. This is Mrs. Gray's day, and mother is always late when she washes for her. 'Try to eat,' I said, and I put a spoonful of molasses on her plate, and she did try, but she only swallowed a few mouthfuls and then she left the table. I ate a small piece of dry bread; I thought may be she would eat the molasses, so I did not touch it.

"All day she kept saying she was hungry, but refused to eat what we had. It was a long day to both of us. Father had not come, and it was nearly dark; we were both sitting on the doorstep. Bessie laid her head against my arm, and began to cry, 'I'm so hungry, Willie, mother stays so late tonight.' 'Don't cry, baby, mother will soon be home.' 'Of course she will!' exclaimed George Anderson; he lived a mile beyond us, and as he spoke he tossed a bunch of bluebells into Bessie's lap. 'Oh, how pretty!' she exclaimed, while the tears dropped from her sweet blue eyes on the pretty bluebells. 'Come, Bessie,' I said, 'let me fasten them among your curls.'

"She got up and stood on the doorstep with her face toward the house. I stood behind her and tied the bluebells in her golden curls. I had just fastened the last one, when some one jerked me off the bottom step. It was father; he was drunk, and I knew by his looks that he was almost crazy with drink. He pushed me aside, and stood between little Bessie and me. Bessie turned to run, but he caught her and said, 'You have been crying; what did Willie do to you?' She was so white scared that I thought she would faint. 'Willie didn't do anything' she gasped out. Father let her go, and grasped me; he commenced to shake me awful. 'You rascal, what did you do to Bessie? Tell me, or I will shake the breath out of you.' He shook me so I could not answer. Then little Bessie caught him by the arm. 'Please, father, don't hurt Willie; I was so hungry it made me cry.' He looked in at the table and saw the bread and molasses. You little white-faced liar, you are not hungry look at that table, there is plenty to eat, and good enough, too, for such a brat as you,' and he shook her roughly. She began to cry and I tried to put my arm around her, but my father pushed me away. 'If you can't eat anything, I will give you something to drink,' and he caught her up in his arms and started down the path that led to the pond where we got wash water. It was not a frog hole,—the water was as clear as a lake, and it was surrounded by green grass and several large trees grew near the bank. It was a lovely place in summer and a glorious place for skating in winter. It was only a short distance from the house.

"Bessie hushed crying, but she looked so awful scared, I followed close behind father. 'I'll give you something to drink!' he exclaimed, when he reached the edge of the water, and he walked right into the water, and I followed, scarcely knowing what I was doing, I was so frightened. He waded in about knee deep, then he took Bessie, and putting her face under one arm, he put her little curly head down under the water; she threw up her little white hands and cried out, 'Oh, Willie, take baby!' just as the curly head went down. I waded around father and tried with all my strength to raise her head out of the water, but father held it down. I begged father to take her out, but he did not listen to me. She threw up her hands wildly, there was a gurgling sound, and then all was still. I begged father to take her out, I prayed God to save Bessie's life, but all in vain, God was far away and did not hear me cry; at least it seemed so to me. It seemed hours to me, but father at last lifted up Bessie's white, dripping face. I called her name frantically, madly, wildly, but her blue lips didn't move; she was dead. Father carried her and laid her down on the green grass. 'I guess she won't be hungry for a while,' he said, as he laid her down. I was so stunned that I neither moved nor spoke until I saw the bluebells that I had twined in Bessie's hair floating out on the water. I could not bear to see them drift away; it seemed as if it was dear little Bessie's sweet, dead face drifting away; I could not bear the thought, so I waded out after them; the water was deep, and on I went; it was up to my arm-pits, now over my shoulders, still the bluebells were just beyond my reach, but I must have them; the water touched my chin, another step and I caught them, and just as I did, I heard mother call; 'Willie! oh, Willie! where are you!' I looked for father, he was seated on the ground by Bessie. 'Willie, oh, Willie!' came mother's voice again.. I was out of the water now, but so weak I could scarcely stand. 'Bessie! oh, Bessie!' I called, 'Here, mother, at the pond.

"Father gave one mad leap into the water; he plunged in face down. I was so terrified I did not know what to do. I heard mother coming. I trembled so I could not walk, so I crawled up to Bessie, and taking father's old straw hat, put it over Bessie's dead face to keep mother from seeing it. In a moment she came in sight. She saw I was dripping with water. 'Willie, Willie, what is the matter!' I could not speak. She lifted the hat off of Bessie's face. She stood for a moment as if turned to stone. 'Tell me how it happened, Willie, tell me quick!' Then I found voice and told her everything.

"She heard me through without a word, but when I had finished, shriek after shriek rent the air. She stood with clasped hands over Bessie, and shrieked such unearthly cries that soon the neighborhood flocked to the spot. Father had drowned himself; his body was taken from under the beautiful water and buried in the cemetery alongside of Bessie. Mother was a raving maniac from the moment she uttered the first heart-rending cry over her dead Baby Bess. I put the bluebells in a little box, and hung them around my neck, but after the funeral I lay in the hospital, sick for weeks with brain fever, but when I came to myself, the box was still around my neck; here it is," and he drew from his bosom a small box, which upon opening revealed a few withered leaves.

"They speak of sweet little Baby Bessie," he said, as he closed the box and slipped it back under his shirt bosom. Then he looked at me straight in the eyes, and said:

"Please, mister, don't ever vote for whiskey. It killed my father, and dear little Baby Bessie, my only sister, and it locked mother up in a madhouse. Please don't vote for rum."

And I, man that I was, drew the boot-black down and kissed him, and said: "God helping me, I never will vote for license or whiskeymen again."

The Campaign

that tend to the building up of the best type of citizenship. On the other side—B. Laster. If you have any honest doubt as to the right or wrong in this question, just honestly ask yourself which crowd is most likely to be in the right.

THE MOTIVES.

We are told that the advocates of no license are actuated by motives of pure selfishness. They have been called fanatics, cowards, black-hearted hypocrites, and other pet names. These things are probably hardly worthy of a reply. It is however difficult to see how men who are freely giving their time and their money to rid the community of what is a recognized evil, and to make conditions easier for those who are unfortunate, should be open to a charge of selfishness. To most of them there can be no personal direct gain. The chief gain will be to those in whom they have no interest beyond their desire to help to a higher moral their fellow men. Is that selfishness? But listen. Why are the brewers and distillers pleading for the open bar? Why are the local dealers and all their crowds of Lasters and other hangers-on shouting for "liberty"—liberty to debauch their fellow men? Is that selfishness? Is it a desire to promote good citizenship and help to better living? Are fellows these are to talk of selfishness. As for the lying, hypocrisy and black heartedness, we leave our honest and intelligent readers to judge.

Is it not a fact that the great majority of those who are advocates of the open bar are personally interested in the traffic? Take away all the brewers, distillers, tavern keepers, bar tenders and others who are directly connected with the manufacture and sale of the stuff. Then count out all those who, as employes of these places, as hotel proprietors or share holders in brewing or distilling plants, have an indirect interest.

After that cancel out the names of all who are addicted to the tippling habit, and, from some false idea of personal liberty, that hinders their giving up their own preferences for the sake of their fellowmen, are opposed to restriction. If these classes are removed how many of the people who are on the wrong side of this question would be left? Not many, and to that few we desire here to say an earnest word. Will you look honestly and thoroughly into your reasons for the stand you are taking. Consider carefully the company you are with. Are they people in the community for whose opinions you have the highest respect? Are they the men with whom you would choose to be found associating? Is it not true, as Governor Glenn pointed out on Sunday afternoon, that all the loafers, "bums" gamblers, and the whole of that element that is always against law of every sort, are always on one side of this question. Is it your side?

THE Catholic Third Plenary Council held at Baltimore made this declaration among many others:

"We call upon all pastors to induce any of their flocks who may be engaged in the sale of liquors to abandon as soon as they can the dangerous traffic, and to embrace a more becoming way of making a living."

Of the deliverances of this Council, Pope Leo XIII, in his reply to the part relating to intemperance, said:

"It is well-known to us how ruinous, how deplorable, is the injury, both to faith and to morals that is to be feared from intemperance in drink. Nor can we sufficiently praise the prelates of the United States, who recently, in the Plenary Council of Baltimore, with weightiest words, condemned this abuse, declaring it to be a perpetual incentive to sin and a fruitful root of all evils, plunging the families of the intemperate into the direst ruin, and dragging numberless souls down to everlasting perdition; declaring, moreover, that the faithful who yield to this vice of intemperance become thereby a scandal to non-Catholics, and great hindrance to the propagation of the true religion."

"SUPPRESSION of the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages is the only adequate remedy. Temperance societies attract comparatively few and are efficient only as long as their members are stimulated to a sort of moral intoxication. High license diminishes the number of saloons, but not the quantity of liquor drunk, nor the amount of drunkenness. And then, too, license is, in a way, to approve; and a wise and good man cannot approve the liquor traffic. Whatever restrictions may be thrown around its management, the American saloon is, and must continue to be, so long as it shall be tolerated, a nuisance. Its influence upon individual, domestic and national life is wholly evil. As to the right of the state to prohibit, there can be no question, since the right to suppress crime involves the right to suppresses its chief cause. * * * One great question that is going to be forced into politics—we can sneer at it now—is the question of Prohibition. * * * If some great moral question could be made a living issue in politics, how wholesome and helpful would not this prove in many ways, and what a blessing to politicians themselves who in this might find at least some distraction from the all-absorbing hunt for spoils of office!"

Bishop Spalding.

"THE moral suasion plea to Catholics to get out of the liquor business has proved a failure. There is nothing left to be done but to vote them out. How can a Catholic go to the poll and conscientiously vote to keep men in the liquor business while his church calls upon all to get out of it? There are Christian people who permit the open saloon to continue to debauch the people as long as it pays a license fee. To accept money in payment for the consent to perpetuate a gigantic evil is a Judas Iscariot principle."

MORAL PARALYSIS

"There is only one cause that could have produced the moral and intellectual paralysis that has fallen upon the Catholic body in this country. No other power under the earth or on it, could have produced a generation so heedless of religious interests, so vigilant and tireless in mere political wrangling, as we behold in every center of population where Catholics are numerically strong. And that cause which acts and reacts in a vicious circle, multiplies and propagates itself with diabolical intensity is SALOONISM."—The Sacred Heart Review, Boston, Mass.

Mr. Canera.

The Liquor Traffic in Furthering Its Purpose, Knows no good, God or Gospel

"Give us a chance to breathe; we are stifling! Give us a chance to swim; the torrent of rum is sinking us!"

So exclaimed Chancellor James E. Cassedy in the course of a denunciation of the saloon before a congregation of 1,400 men, Sunday, in the cathedral. He did not appeal for a no-license vote directly, but there was no misunderstanding the trend of his thought.

"The saloon undermines every decent principle in this city," went on Chancellor Cassidy. You know that where it exists there is assembled the very scum of humanity.

"Where the saloon gets a foothold it furthers the plans and schemes of Satan. It is an unmitigated curse. It is a pestilential sewer of sin, corruption, pollution, and misery, and threatens the very throne of God himself. If you do not think it to be a great curse, you should listen to the ravings of the dying drunkard as he goes before God. Like a great serpent the saloon winds its coils around men, women and children, sucking their life blood. I am attacking an enemy that is destroying my people.

"There are many men engaged in this evil, who are clean, upright, honest men. How can their consciences reconcile them to a continuance in it is more than I can say. I pray God to open their minds to a realization of the evil in which they are engaged, and turn them to nobler ends.

"There are many men occupied in this nefarious occupation who are the lowest of the low, the vilest of the vile, whose motto and god is gold. They have their fingers on the throats of decent men; they debauch the people's tribunes; they control the representatives of the people, and they undermine the government. Their power must be destroyed.

"Cardinal Gibbons must have been misquoted when he is represented as saying that the greatest evil threatening society is divorce. Drink is the supreme evil. Show me one home disrupted by divorce and I will show hundreds destroyed by drink. Show me one life blasted, one soul dammed to the depths of hell, by divorce, and I will show hundreds made demons by drink. The divorce evil is insignificant compared with the supreme destroyer of body and soul.

"Do you, as intelligent citizens, realize the common danger? Do you recognize that you have a share in the common responsibility? Let us show that we are not bound to the rock by the brewers' bonds; let us break these bonds and stand up as free men, for God, for home, and for country."

M. B. Moroney in the current number of the Quarterly "Catholic and Prohibition" published in East Aurora, by the Rev. Father Zurcher, has these appropriate lines:

TO POPE PIUS X.

Holy Father, greeting and salutation
We place before you for consideration
A question that is vexing every nation
And sending souls by millions to damnation:
It is the liquor done abomination
That ruins the noblest of God's creation.
And spreads a pall of sin and desolation.
Folios could be written for its obliteration;
Trying regulation is only an aggravation;
Blotting it out would save the situation;
Your college of wisdom and education
Is the proper place for its arbitration.
Holy Father, know that money consideration
Helps to continue the degradation.
Coin in temples often burns with fascination
And fills its victims with base hallucination.
The question has been treated with procrastination;
The present age expects a decisive elucidation
And not a "stand pat" exhortation.
We will be looking for your condemnation
With a ring to it preventing prevarication
Or any kind of wrong interpretation.
All then will greet our Pontiff with admiration
For doing so grand a work of edification.
The new redemption will be a generation.

VOL. XXXIII NO. PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, TUESDAY JANUARY 4, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

W. G. MORROW WAS ELECTED MAYOR OF PETERBORO' BY A MAJORITY OF 755

Very Exciting Election Campaign Closed with a Rush—Scores of Rigs Carried a Record Crowd to the Poles —Total Vote was 3545

Mr. W. G. Morrow is the new mayor of Peterborough for 1910. He won a sweeping victory taking a majority in every polling subdivision and winning by a total majority of 755. His total vote was 2150, and Mr. Mason's total vote was 1395.

There was great excitement over the contest and large crowds braved the storm and got down town to receive the returns, which came in slowly from a couple of the divisions, especially No. 4 in the City Hall.

Mr. Morrow carried on a strenuous campaign all last week and he was backed up by a strong force of experienced campaigners who were of great assistance to him. Mr. Morrow himself, was not idle a minute, and personally saw hundreds if not thousands of voters. He was met with a warm reception on all sides, and he was at all times confident of the result.

Mr. Mason carried on a much quieter campaign. He did most of his work himself and was assisted by only his personal friends. Still he did remarkably well, and while he did not poll as large a vote as was expected there wer great odds against him. At no time did he expect to win but he did expect to be a little closer to the top. He was induced to enter the fight very much against his will and was assured the labor vote. He got a large share of it, but the workingmen did not stand together.

All day Monday rigs were swarming the streets carrying voters hither and thither. Mr. Morrow had the majority of those used by the mayoralty candidates, Mr. Mason having only a few. It was a hot fight from beginning to end, and Mr. Morrow's many friends are jubilant.

The result of the vote by division is as follows:—

P.S.D.	Mason.	Morrow
1	94	126
2	93	176
3	133	173
4	74	98
5	86	134
6	90	106
7	111	200
8	86	215
9	78	151
10	119	146
11	118	165
12	116	165
13	92	165
14	115	169
Total for Morrow 755.

Ald. Duncan on Top and Ald. Turner Second

There was great excitement in the aldermanic contest and it is doubtful if ever so much interest was displayed. Several of the aldermen did personal canvasing and had out rigs, while a few did very little. The result of the vote was most satisfactory. All of the old aldermen were re-elected excepting Ald. McIntyre, and his place was filled by Mr. Jas. G. Graham. Those left out were Ald. McIntyre and Messrs B. Lastar and W. J. Johnston.

Ald. Duncan headed the poll with Ald. Turner second, and Ald. Bradburn third. The aldermen are all delighted with the result of the day. Ald. Turner got his biggest vote in No. 8 division, polling 213 and 173 in No. 7. These are both in the west end.

Ald. Duncan ran strong all over the city. In only four divisions did he get less than 100 votes.

THE VOTE.

The total vote taken by the aldermen were:—

Duncan	1670
Turner	1591
Bradburn	1568
Duffus	1037
Metherel	1511
Graham	1411
McIntyre	1270
Johnston	1233

HELD RE-UNION.

Family of Mr. Henry Naish Met Together on New Year's Day.

One of the most enjoyable reunions that were held during the Christmas holidays was that which was held at the home of Mr. Walter Nash, 219 Dublin street, on New Year's day. It was the re-union of Mr. Henry Naish's family, the seventh that has been held since Mr. Naish came to this country from Reading, England. Mr. and Mrs. Naish were surrounded by six of their married children with their families and one unmarried son and daughter. An excellent supper was partaken of, after which the evening was spent very pleasantly with music. The gathering was one long to be remembered, and Mr. and Mrs. Naish were heartily congratulated on their splendid health and happiness.

Croup positively stopped in 20 minutes, with Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. One test alone will surely prove this truth. No vomiting, no distress. A safe and pleasing syrup—25c. Sold by all dealers.

OBITUARY.

The death took place in Peterboro Sunday of Sophia, relict of the late J. D. Naylor. She was eighty-four years of age and is survived by six sons and five daughters.

STARVATION AMID PLENTY.

Not Uncommon Today—The Reason is Explained.

"For a period last summer the thought of food excited feelings of nausea," writes Mrs. C. A. Dodges, of Bloomsbury. "The heat had made me listless and the distaste for food reduced me to a condition of semi-starvation and brought me to the verge of nervous collapse. Tonics were useless to restore an active desire for food. The doctors told me my liver and kidneys were both at fault, but the medicines they gave me were too severe and reduced my strength so that I had to abandon them. At the suggestion of a friend who had been cured of blood and skin trouble, I began the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The difference I first noticed was, that while they cleansed the system, instead of feeling weak I felt better after taking them. Indeed their activity was so mild it was easy to forget I had taken them at all; they seemed to go right to the liver, and in a very brief time not only did all source of nausea disappear but I began to crave food and I digested it reasonably well. Then I began to put on weight until within three months I was brought to a condition of good health. I urge Dr. Hamilton's Pills for all who are in poor health."

ASSAULT CHARGE.

Douro Man Arrested—Said to Have Brutally Attacked Wife.

David Condon, a well known resident of Douro, is in the county jail on the charge of assaulting his wife on the night of December, Friday 31. The information against the prisoner was laid by his son, John Condon, who claims that his father in a fit of temper when quarrelling with his mother, knocked her down and brutally kicked her and acted in such a manner that the family left the house, fearing that the father might do someone serious injury in his uncontrollable rage.

Condon was arrested by County Constable Archie Moore on Saturday and brought before County P. M. Edmison, who remanded him until this morning at 11 o'clock.

Hutchinson—McCoig.

A wedding that will prove of interest to many Peterborough people was that of Mr. Melvin J. Hutchinson, former city editor of the Examiner, whose home is in Bowmanville, and Miss Bessie Heath McCoig, only daughter of Mr. Neil McCoig of Walkerville, Ont. It took place on New Year's day at 10 o'clock a.m. at the residence of the bride's father, Rev. Peter Taylor officiating. Mr. Hutchinson, who is known to a large number in this city, is the advertising and business manager of the Dry Goods Review, one of the trade papers of the MacLean Publishing Co., Toronto, the staff of which presented him with a handsome clock and silver pudding dish as wedding presents.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson will reside in Toronto.

Result of the Vote for Board of Education

The Board of Education supplied a surprise when it was found that Mr. D. W. Dumble was among the slain. After many years' service on the board the police magistrate will take a rest. His place will be filled by Col. Miller. Mr. Nelson's place will be filled by Mr. Harry Adams.

The vote was as follows, the first five elected:

Crane	1213
Hill	1071
Burnham	1050
Adams	931
Miller	917
Dumble	851
Robinson	700
Kingan	536
Nelson	299

The Light and Power By-law

Some surprises were sprung when it was learned how the bylaws had gone. All of them carried, and with good majorities, except the isolation hospital bylaw. All the polls were heard from last night except No. 11 and these the divisional clerk forgot to telephone and the results will not be known until noon today. With 13 divisions heard from the Light & Power bylaw received 1728 in favor as against 1160 against it, making the majority in favor 568.

The ward system bylaw was carried by 561 majority. The total vote in favor being 1730 and 1169 against it.

Isolation Hospital bylaw received 706 votes while 777 were cast against it. The poll to hear from is more likely to increase the minority.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth and all his associates were delighted with the results of the vote. It was even better than they expected but they put up a strong campaign and won. The Light & Power Company have a whole lot more friends than some give them credit for and the people also realized when they have got a good thing and when they are getting a better one. Mr. Larmonth wired the results to Chicago this morning.

Local Option By-law was Defeated Fell 96 Short of Three-Fifths' Vote

Greatest Campaign in the City's History was Fought Yesterday—Hundreds of Rigs and Citizens were Engaged in the Fight

Local option did not carry in Peterborough. It received a big majority but was 96 votes short of the required 60 per cent. majority. Never in the history of Peterborough was a contest so stubbornly fought as was the one for local option. The Moral Reform League left not a stone unturned nor did they spare expense in bringing the most famous temperance workers on the continent to the city, or in the use of printers' ink. They did all in their power to carry the movement as this was one of the most important fights ever undertaken in Ontario. Its success meant a great deal to the movement hence the strenuousness of the campaign.

The liquor interests also realized the importance of the contest and they brought to bear all the pressure possible. From early morning until the polls closed hundreds of rigs for both sides rushed to and fro carrying the voters and the excitement was at fever heat. Every man, woman and child in the city was anxious and hundreds waited up last night to hear the returns. The total vote polled was as follows:

P.S.D.	For	Against
1	124	94
2	140	124
3	167	136
4	80	88
5	79	140
6	108	87
7	204	104
8	181	116
9	112	89
10	177	96
11	185	101
12	166	89
13	94	104

Grimmason—Fowler.

A quiet wedding was celebrated at six o'clock on Saturday night at the residence of the bride's father, when Miss Heletia Fowler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fowler, 686 Concession street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. John F. Griminson, son of Mr. Thos Griminson, Sherbrooke street. The ceremony was performed in the drawing room by Rev. Mr. H. C. Coon of the Mark street Methodist church, and was witnessed by about forty relatives and friends. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ellie Fowler, and Mr. Leonard Patterson was best man. Miss Gladys Preston of Midland played the wedding march as the bridal party entered the drawing room. The bride was given away by her father. Guests were present from Port Hope, Lindsay, Bobcaygeon, Midland and Omemee, and about forty sat down to a sumptuous supper for which Mr. T. H. Hooper was caterer. Many beautiful gifts were received by the bride, attesting to the esteem in which she is held by a large number of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Griminson will reside on Sherbrooke street.

Geo. H. Duncan

To the Electors of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—I take this opportunity of thanking my friends and supporters for their well directed efforts on my behalf during the municipal elections of yesterday. This renewal of your confidence in again placing me in a position to serve you on the board of alderman is very gratifying, especially as the vote was so general from all parts of the city.

Wishing you all a Happy New Year.

I remain yours,

GEO. H. DUNCAN.

The Peterborough Poultry Show

What promises to be the most successful of its kind ever held in this city will be the Winter Poultry Show in the Market Hall on January 4, 5 and 6, under the auspices of the Peterborough Poultry Association. For a considerable length of time, the officers and directors have been at work perfecting every detail in connection with the holding of the show and they are grateful for the assistance and encouragement given by the citizens generally. The prizes to be offered for competition are many and valuable. The prize of $10 for dressed turkeys, has caused considerable interest among the farmers and there is every indication that there will be a large number of competitors. exhibits of fancy birds will be shown by poultry men from all parts of Ontario, and the association has gone to the expense of securing 1,200 coops. This means something in the line of a treat for those who attend. The prize lists also calls for exhibits in poultry, fowl and eggs, so that every farmer will have the opportunity to exhibit. A feature of the prize list will be the Grand Prize the nature of which will be announced later and every person who attends will have a chance of winning it. The one who guesses correctly the most popular exhibit will win this prize. There will be a lecture by an expert on one or more of the days and a capable superintendent will be in charge to see that every attention is given to the exhibitors in regard to the receiving and re-shipment of the birds or fowl as the case may be.

From a standpoint of education alone, the show is worthy of every support and the members of the association feel confident that the citizens and the farmers will not fail them.

The liquor license of the Cavanagh House was cancelled by the License Commissioners on Saturday night, the order going into effect at seven o'clock. The action was brought about as a result of a third conviction inside of two years for a breach of the liquor License Act According to the Provincial statute a third conviction makes a license null and void

ELECTION NOTES.

The local option people will demand a recount of the ballots. This will take place before his Honor Judge Huyeke. The demand will be made on the grounds that a large number of ballots were spoiled.

Mr. Mason and Mr. Morrow met in the city clerk's office last night about ten o'clock, and Mr. Mason was one of the first to extend congratulations to the new mayor.

The isolation hospital was the only one defeated and it got a bad trimming.

The deputy returning officers and their assistants found yesterday a very trying day. Their quarters in some cases were too small and this mixed with tobacco smoke, foul air and the close confinement played havoc with their stomachs.

The ward system next year.

Mr. Mason's Thanks.

Mr. E. F. Mason, the defeated candidate for mayor, wishes to express his thanks to all those who voted for and worked for his election. He was glad to receive so large a vote and especially does he feel grateful to the labor men who assisted him. He takes his defeat in good part and accepts the verdict of the people. He fought a good fight and has the best of feelings toward his opponent. He would liked to have won, but as the people chose otherwise he is satisfied.

Mayor Morrow's Thanks.

Mayor W. G. Morrow desires to extend to all those who voted for him his sincere thanks. He is deeply grateful for the handsome majority he received. Especially does the new mayor express his appreciation of the splendid support he received from the labor men who have always been good friends of his and who have always supported him in the past. He wishes to thank the ladies for their support. Mayor Morrow has only good words to say for his opponent, Mr. Mason, who fought a square fight. He believes Mr. Mason a good man. The people were asked to decide between them and they chose himself. Mr. Morrow will endeavor during 1910 to live up to all his promises, and even to do better.

Fatal Outcome of a Quarrel on a Street Car

St. Catharines, Jan. 2.—As a result of a dispute, arising practically from nothing, George Bulman, a young Englishman, twenty-eight years of age, lies dead at Grobb Bros.' undertaking rooms, and William Bradley, an industrious carpenter of Merritton, is held in the county jail on remand till Friday on the charge of murder. Both men were spectators at the annual ten-mile road race on New Year's afternoon, and left for home on the 5.20 trolley from this city. High Constable Boyle was among the passengers on the first car of the train. Chief Moffatt, Merritton, on the third, and the principals in the fight were on the second car. Bulman, Bradley, William O'Donnell and several others were standing on the rear platform.

JOSTLED ON THE CAR.

When some distance out from the city the jostling of the car threw Bulman over against O'Donnell, who gave him a light shove into Bradley, who in turn also gave him a gentle push, so the passengers say. This, it is alleged, the dead man resented, and called Bradley vile names. A clinch immediately followed, but other passengers seperated the two men.

When quiet was restored Bulman asked Bradley: "Do you live in Thorold?"

"No, I live in Merritton," was the reply.

To this Bulman is reported to have said: "Very well, I'll get off at Merritton to lick you."

"You had better stay on the car," said Bradley, "and go on to Thorold, for if you get off to lick me you might get kicked instead."

Nothing further was said, but lock nine on the old Welland canal was reached a few seconds later. Bradley lives a few doors from the lock, along Merritton street, and opposite A. E. Thompson's store, and when the car stopped he alighted from it. When he gained the store crossing leading to the street he looked around.

Bulman had left the car, too, and was close behind, and at once, it is alleged, made a pass at him. This was warded off, and in return Bradley hit Bulman once in the neck. The latter fell backwards to the crossing but immediately made an effort to rise. He had gained his feet when Bradley, it is charged, again struck him, and he fell backward once more, this time never to rise again. All this happened in a few minutes, while the car was stopped. Several passengers got off and picked Bulman up and carried him into the power house of the Wilson Carbide Company close by. High Constable Boyle and Chief Moffatt also left the cars and took charge of the injured man, and with others endeavored to restore him to consciousness. They were soon joined by Dr. J. F. Vanderburg, but all efforts were vain, and Bulman expired ten minutes after having been hit.

An examination of the body, made at the time of death, showed a wound on the back of the head, and a heavy lump over the jugular vein in the neck. Blood flowed freely from the ear for several minutes, and as soon as it stopped flowing the pulse stopped.

AN INQUEST ORDERED.

When the constables saw the man was dead they quickly notified Coroner J. M. Jory, who ordered the removal of the body to the undertaking room, and issued a warrant for an inquest, which will be opened tomorrow. In the meantime Bradley had gone to his home, no one offering any resistance. About an hour later, when Constables Boyle and Moffatt visited the house, they found him with his overcoat on, just ready to set out to give himself up to them. He was taken unhandcuffed to the police station in this city, where upon the instructions of Crown Attorney Brennan, the warrant charging him with murder was issued. Police Magistrate Campbell late last night remanded him to jail until Friday. A. C. Kingstone was present on behalf of the prisoner.

The dead man was married in England two years ago; eighteen months ago he came to St. Catharines, and settled on Geneva street, where he remained several weeks, then removing to Thorold, where he has since been employed in the Montrose Paper Mill. He is survived by a widow and one child, a boy, a year old. Examination of the pockets soon after death showed that his old country address had been 167 Cornwall road, Nottinghill. A case containing a number of very endearing letters written to him at that address by his wife previous to their marriage was found. A due book, also found in his pocket, showed him to have been initiated into the Canadian Order of Foresters on the 17th of last September, the policy being for one thousand dollars. Other articles found were a small pocket knife, a pair of folding scissors, a card containing "don't for young husbands," a letter from the Metropolitan Police, Nottinghill, notifying the deceased that the parcel found by him left with the police had been duly restored to the rightful owner. Friends of the deceased say he was not a quarrelsome man. Papers in the pockets show him to have come from a good family.

Passengers on the car assert that neither Bradley nor Bulman appeared to have been drunk, although both bore evidence of having been drinking during the afternoon. Bradley comes from a higly respected family. He has always borne a good character in Merritton, where he has always lived. He has a wife and one daughter, Marie, a smart little girl five years old, who last May suffered the loss of one leg and part of the other, by being run over by a Niagara, St. Catharines & Toronto Railway trolley on Merritt street, Merritton.

LOCAL OPTION LOSSES.

Despatches from Brantford, Port Hope, Cobourg and Lindsay, are to the effect that the local option by-laws were defeated. In Brantford, where an extremely strenuous campaign was carried on, the reformers lacked just 56 of the required three-fifths. In Port Hope the bylaw was defeated on an even vote.

If your stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organ must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 4, 1910.

ALL KINDS OF WEATHER.

Prof. Irl Hicks in his predictions for the first month of the new year asserts that sleet and rain will be mixed with the expected cold weather. January opens with a wet spell and winds up iwth a regular midwinter slump in the mercury's aspirations to climb the scale. In other words it will close with good, cold weather. His predictions are as follows:

A regular storm period covers the 1st to the 5th, being at the culmination of a Mercury disturbance. This period embraces Earth's perihelion point on the 1st, Moon's last quarter and passage over the equator on the 3rd, and apogee on the 4th. Jupiter and Saturn are also in quadrature with Earth and Sun. January will come in most likely, in the midst of Mercury sleet and snow storms, with change to warmer on and touching the 3rd. With the rise of temperature, look for falling barometer, probable winter lightning and thunder southward, with rain, turning to heavy sleet and snow generally on and touching the 3rd, 4th and 5th. A very marked and wide cold wave will follow from the northwest, progressively, behind these storms, spreading eastward and southward over most parts of the country from the 3rd to the 6th. Understand and heed this forecast. "Do not get left."

A reactionary storm period is central on the 7th, 8th and 9th. Saturn't quadrature with Sun and Earth is on the 7th, and Neptune's opposition with Earth and Sun is on the 8th. This period will bring return of rising temperature, falling barometer and more rain and snow. The Moon will be at extreme south on the 10th, impending northerly winds, but New Moon is on the 11th, preventing great cold and keeping barometric pressures down between this and the succeeding storm period. There are reasons to expect seismic rumours, during the first week in January, but the 7th to the 13th, taking the 11th as the central day, is a marked seismic period.

A regular storm period is central on the 14th, covering the 12th to the 16th. Moderate, threatening conditions will continue from the New Moon on the 11th, through the greater part of this period, but from about the 15th to 17th decided storms of rain, wind and possibly thunder need surprise no student of these forecasts. These storms will be rapid in their development and passage from west to east, with a cold wave pushing the heels of storms closely fro mthe northwest. The Moon being on the celestial equator on the 16th, and nearest the Earth on the 17th, with first quarter on the 18th, the disturbance of this period will naturally be prolonged out of its normal limitations. There is a fact that ought to be impressed upon ever reader's mind — whenever storms and weather do not conform strictly to the storm period there are special astronomic cause behind such irregularities. Le us hunt all such irregularities down — find their causes, and so perfect the science of storms and weather.

A reactionary storm period falls centrally on the 20th and 21st. On and part to these dates may be expected a change of wind currents to easterly and southerly, all ending in renewed rain and snow, and followed by rising barometer and clearing, colder weather. No successful student of meteorology can afil to know that the inception and oncoming of all storm periods are marked by more or less rise of the thermometer and fall of the barometer.

A regular storm period is central on the 25th, Full Moon falling on the same day. This period will change to warmer, southerly winds and falling barometer, followed by rain and snow from the 25th to 27th. Rising barometer and change to much colder will follow closely behind the storms from the west and north. Another seismic period is coincident with the storm period, 23nd to 27th, central on the 25th. Prepare for northwestern blizards, fololwed by extreme cold at the en dof this period.

A reactionary storm period extends from 30th to February 1st. Rain and snows will be in transit as the month goes out.

Prince Rupert.

One of the most comprehensive unbiased articles on Prince Rupert by a writer on the spot, is an article by Mary Markwell, famous for her writings on Alpine climbing. She pictures and paints so that you can see the thing through her description. To quote:

"We landed at Prince Rupert at 6 o'clock a.m., and the unloading merchandise will go on until 2 p.m. The army of dockers were disembowling the boat's hold as I walked over the gang way, and the dray men numberless were carrying stuff up the steep hill to the "town."

"I expected to find the morning showery, to see nothing but shacks, and up to ankle deep in slush, for it been snowing all night. But the reputation of Prince Rupert has been sadly maligned. Some of the private residences stand on fine stone foundations that cost upwards of $5,000, and it surprised me to learn that building lumber was sold at Vancouver prices.

"Real estate is dancing jigs in and around Prince Rupert; One purchaser of two lots paid $115 apiece and sold the same at $2,200 each. But this is fever heat prices and speculation only. Another man bought a double corner lot paying $6,800 and resold within a few weeks for $15,000 and the first payment had only been made. One has to judge for one's self as to the common sense of buying at fever heat prices; but there's certainly limited acres to this hillside town which has sprung into existence from a forest of firs.

To the north of Prince Rupert lies the Queen Charlotte groups of islands with a fabulous wealth of farm lands, timber and rich placer mines. Coal in abundance in there inexhaustible, while the fisheries are already being developed by eager capitalists, largely Americans, I understand.

"North again big mining camps already in active operations, mills, concentrators, trams, with assay valuations beyond belief. It is a new empire, drained by the Skeena and the great Naas rivers, whose output in fish alone reaches the figure of 1,250,000 annually."

"I would hesitate," the writer adds, "to advise working men and women to invest in Prince Rupert real estate at the present hour, but the possibilities for wage earners are large."

Clean Bread, Well Wrapped

Everyone who makes, handles, buys sells and eats bread, must realize the great danger from impurities to which bread is subjected from the time it leaves the oven until it reach es the mouth of the consumer, because of exposure to so frequent, and often careless handling.

Bread wrappers were first made in Canada by the Eddy Company for Wm. Fooley, a baker in Hull, P.Q., with such satisfactory results that they have since been adopted by leading bakers in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto and elsewhere, so that bread wrappers are coming into more general use.

From a clean wholesome sanitary point of view the advantage of bread wrapped immediately upon being tak en from the oven, appeals to every consumer, as it is an important mov consumer, as an important move in the direction of pure food.

When there are impurities in the water supply of any of our cities, the public immediately demand that the authorities do everything at any cost to prevent contamination, and to stay disease; it seems quite as important that our bread supply should be carefully guarded.

NOT GROWING COLDER.

Earth's Climate Has Not Changed Within Historic Times.

During the last few years the supposition that the earth is growing colder has received a setback from the consideration of the consequences which result from the discovery of radium in the earth's rocks. If radium exists throughout the interior of the globe in the same quantities in which it appears in the surface rocks, then each in the volume of heat which it would render up that the earth ought to be growing hotter instead of colder. If, furthermore, the earth were slightly increasing in temperature, the amount of rainfall precipitated from the atmosphere would become greater rather than less, and as at the same time the amount of water shut up in the earth's rocks would also be forced out in greater quantities by increasing heat it would not be possible to suppose that the earth's surface was becoming drier.

Therefore the supposition that the earth has exhibited within historic time any general drying up or any tendency to revert to a glacial epoch has been regarded with more and more suspicion, and the hypotheses have been substituted that either the apparent variations of climate are local or else that they are the results of some season of conditions, the causes of which remain to be discovered.

In short, whatever test be applied, it becomes extremely hard to show that the climate of any portion of the civilized world has appreciably changed within historic time.—London Post.

Fresh Air a Foe to Pneumonia.

Cold weather does not directly cause pneumonia, but it is an indirect cause. It causes injudicious people to shut themselves up indoors, closing windows and doors, so that they may be comfortably warm. Closed windows mean lack of proper ventilation, the indoor air soon becoming very foul. When this foul air is taken into the lungs it fails to impart the necessary health sustaining elements that inhaled air should; rather it poisons the body, lowers the natural resisting powers and creates fertile soil for the invasion and development of the pneumonia germ.

The thing to do is to stop lowering your resisting power. Quit poisoning yourself with foul air. Breathe good, pure air all the time, especially while sleeping. Keep your windows open day and night. Don't be afraid of cold air. Pure cold air does not cause pneumonia. It's dirty, foul air that causes the trouble.—Bulletin of Chicago Health Department.

Coffee Drinking in Switzerland.

The average annual consumption of coffee in Switzerland during the last three years has been about 52,500,000. Coffee drinking is general among all classes of people. This is especially true of the working classes, who drink coffee for breakfast, again at 10 o'clock in the morning, for dinner as an afternoon refreshment, and many of them for supper, which makes the consumption very large in proportion to the population. The retail price of coffee ranges from 16 to 36 cents a pound, but the greater part of the coffee sold in the country is below the average grade, as the majority of the consumers are of the laboring class. The majority of the people do not drink tea. While chocolate is consumed in large quantities in Switzerland, it is not much used as a beverage, the most of it being used as food.

The Harvest of Polar Research.

One of the results of this tremendous accomplishment (the discovery of the north pole) in the relief to many minds in the reflection that hereafter the explorations in that region of the earth will be conducted with less strain upon human endurance and in the quieter paths of scientific research. Perhaps now, for instance, the somewhat neglected magnetic pole will receive the attention it deserves. And yet the routine and costly quest of the boreal unknown is not to be counted waste of money, effort or life. The cultivation of an indomitable spirit and a herculean endurance has seen not less valuable to humanity than any result of the patient inquiries of science.—Century.

Chair to Prevent Seasickness.

Hoping to lessen seasickness, Mr. F. Andrack has invented an air cushioned chair and had four of them set up on the aft promenade deck of the Blucher of the Hamburg-American line. Mr. Andrack was a passenger and gathered some testimonials from his fellow travelers who had used the chairs during the rather rough voyage. The new device resembles a bather's chair and, according to its inventor, neutralizes the rolling of the ship so much that seasickness becomes practically unknown. He hopes that his invention will be so successful that it will be fitted in future to sofas and beds on vessels.—New York Herald.

Birthday Greetings.

The date of one's birth is not a matter of common knowledge, but few secrets of this sort are hidden from the solicitors for the life insurance companies. One of the more enterprising has been sending out, timed to arrive on the correct date, a neat card with the following inscription: "Mr. Richard Roe—On this your birthday I wish you many happy returns of the day and all joy, happiness and success for the years to come. Very sincerely yours, John Doe." One has to look closely to discover the fact that the sender is an insurance agent, and at that the good wishes are not entirely unwelcome.—New York Sun.

THE OLD TIME NAVY.

Treatment of British Jack Tars in Nelson's Day.

Jack tars in the British navy in Nelson's day were treated like dogs and worse. Imps of midshipmen, twelve or thirteen years old, were permitted to cuff and kick them with impunity, and none dared protest. Torture, under the guise of punishment, was part of the regular routine of the service. From one to five dozen lashes with the cat-o'-nine-tails could be inflicted at the whim of a commander, but the usual number was three dozen.

Such sentences were for trifling dereliections of duty. For really serious offenses, such as violence to a superior officer, desertion or mutiny, offenders were strung up at the yardarm or flogged round the fleet, the latter a punishment more dreaded than death itself. Other savage punishments, such as "starting," "running the gantlet" and the hideous one known as "keelhauling" were also frequently resorted to, although nominally they were illegal.

Nowadays, of course, a bluejacket, although subject to naval discipline, is in no more danger of being subjected to corporal punishment than is the average civilian.

His officers are courteous, kindly and considerate, and if his life is not a happy and comfortable one it is only because of his own fault.

Easily Explained.

An illiterate Polish servant girl sought to conceal her ignorance of the rudiments by always taking her prayer book with her when she attended services, although she knew all the prayers at heart. One day another girl looked over her shoulder and remarked in a surprised tone:

"Why, what's the matter? You're holding your book upside down!"

"Oh, that's all right," answered the other quite unembarrassed. "I always read that way. I'm left handed."

Not What She Meant.

"John," queried her husband's wife, "if some bold, bad man were to kidnap me, would you offer a reward?"

"Sure thing," replied the wife's husband. "I'd always reward those who do me a favor."—Chicago Daily News.

Probably.

Mrs. Fussy—It takes half of my time keeping our silver in shape. I wish I could find a polish that would last.

Mr. Fussy—Send for a burglar. He'll clean it up so that it won't bother you any more.—Detroit Free Press.

Still Belligerent.

Nell—She says she's ready to make up if you are.

Belle—Tell her I suppose I'll be ready to make up, too, when my complexion gets as bad as hers is.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

If Sick

Don't risk even one single penny!

And I will tell you why I say this—

It is because every penny of it, if sent in answer to advertisement, is absolutely free to sick people.

No one need risk even one single penny. Just think what this means to the suffering sick!

Why purchase any medicine when another does not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

Louis the Magnificent.

As soon as he rose he was dressed by his valet in a coat of blue cloth. Two little epaulets of gold cord were sewed to the cloth. Under the coat was a white waistcoat, which was almost entirely hidden by the ribbons and wide sashes of his orders. His satin breeches ended in a pair of high boots or gaiters of red velvet, which came above the knees and were more supple than leather, for the thickness of leather on legs that were often painful from gout would have created too much friction. He made a great point of these boots. He thought that they made him look like a general, ready at any moment to spring upon a horse, though this was a physical impossibility to him since he was much too fat and too infirm. He used powder with a view to hiding the white locks of age, and this gave his complexion an appearance of youth.—From "The Return of Louis XVIII.," by Gilbert Stenger.

Telling the Time.

His horse had lost a shoe, and as it was being replaced by a Somerset blacksmith he asked the time. "I'll tell 'ee presently, sir," said the man. Then he lifted a hind foot of the horse and, looking across it attentively, said, "Half past 11."

"How do you know?" asked Coleridge.

"Do 'ee think I have shed horses all my life and don't know by sign what time it is?"

The poet went away puzzled, but returned in the evening and offered the blacksmith a shilling to show him how he could tell the time by a horse's hoof.

"Just you get off your horse, sir. Now do 'ee stoop down and look through the hole in you pollard ash and you'll see the church clock."

Hard to Tell.

"If your mother bought four bunches of grapes, the shopkeeper's price being nine pence a bunch, how much money would the purchase cost her?" asked the new teacher.

INJURED FOOT CURED.

"I speak for Zam-Buk because it cured me of a terribly bad foot," says Mrs. Alice Berryman of 190 John St. North, Hamilton. She adds: "The injury was caused by a wagon wheel, and the sore was on my right foot. It became very inflamed and swollen and so painful that I fainted away. In spite of treatment, the wound got no better and the foot became more and more swollen until it was several times its usual size. The flesh was terribly bruised and blackened and it was quite impossible for me to walk. My husband's mother at last brought me a box of Zam-Buk. This was applied to the foot and it was surprising how soon I found relief from the severe pain. A further supply of Zam-Buk was obtained and I persevered in using this balm alone. In a couple of days the swelling had gone down considerably, the discoloration was less distinct and the pain was banished. In four days I could go about as usual; the bruised and injured foot had been thoroughly cured by the timely use of Zam-Buk."

Did you ever ask yourself: "How is it that Zam-Buk is so popular?" It is because it is superior and different to other salves. Contrast them! Most salves are nine-tenths animal oil or fat. Zam-Buk hasn't a trace of animal fat in it. Most salves contain mineral coloring matter. Zam-Buk is absolutely without! Many salves contain poisonous astringents. Zam-Buk doesn't.

Zam-Buk is actually more powerfully antiseptic than crude carbolic acid. Yet it stops instead of causing pain and smarting when put on a wound.

It heals more quickly than any known substance, abscesses, ulcers, cancer, blood-poisoning, cuts, scalp sores, chaps and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores sell at 50c a box or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Send 1c stamp for trial box.

POISONED FINGER HEALED.

Mrs. Frank St. Denis of 208 Thompson St., Winnipeg, speaks for Zam-Buk because it cured her of a poisoned finger, which had caused her days of agony. Hear her experience. She says:

"One morning, while washing, I felt a slight pain in the end of my finger. This gradually got more acute until by the evening of the next day the end of the finger had become swollen and hard and so blue I became alarmed.

"The pain from it was almost too much to bear. It made me turn quite sick! Poultices of first one kind and then another were applied, but seemed to give me no relief. My daughter-in-law, who had had some previous experience with Zam-Buk obtained a box for me. I anointed the sore place liberally with this balm, and in a few hours, the throbbing aching pains were subdued."

Further applications of Zam-Buk gave me such relief as to lead me to get a box of it myself. In three days the pain was entirely gone, and after that Zam-Buk worked wonders. In a few days the inflammation disappeared, the swelling went down, and in the end it had brought about a complete cure.

Sensation in Monaghan, Too Many Votes Polled

According to Mr. R. A. Dobbin, the defeated candidate for reeve of North Monaghan, there is room for a protest as well as quite a sensation in that township. He stated to The Times last night that in May's school house, where Mr. J. J. Bennett was deputy returning officer, three votes were polled that were not on the list. Mr. Dobbin says he protested against this but that his objection had no weight with the officer and two more votes that were not on the list were polled.

Asked whether he intended entering a protest Mr. Dobbin said he had not yet made up his mind.

The G. Walter Greene Co. Banquet the Employees

Owing to the election news on Monday night it was impossible to publish the following yesterday morning:—

The G. Walter Green Co., Ltd., is a flourishing manufacturing concern and that there is a spirit of loyalty existing between employer and employes was demonstrated Monday night, when about forty employes and the officers of the company gathered around the festive board at Hooper's and spent one of those pleasant evenings that is not soon forgotten. That the spirit of loyalty existed by no employer and employer was evidenced by the speeches at the gathering, and that the business of the company is increasing year by year was shown when the president, Mr. G. Walter Green, gave some interesting figures during his speech, when he responded to the toast of the employers. Those present included employes who had been identified with Mr. Green when he first started business in Peterborough, and those with others who have found employment as the company progressed had nothing but flitting words to say for the fair manner in which they had been treated.

After the gathering had done justice to the splendid repast prepared for them, the following toasts list was carried out, Mr. G. W. Green acted in the capacity of toastmaster.

The first toast to the King was honored by the singing of the National Anthem.

"The Employees" was responded to by Messrs. John Hardie and J. L. Maude, who remarked on the good feeling which had always existed between the employer and employes.

The toast to "The Employers" was proposed by Mr. George Woods and was honored by the president, and the secretary-treasurer, Mr. T. O. Donaldson.

In his speech Mr. Green said that it gave him no small amount of pleasure to meet all. While there was a large number present, there were still others who were unavoidably absent, but he felt that the gathering was a representative one of the company, and one that any employer might feel proud of. "We feel," said the speaker, "that we have around a body of men and women to look to for work, and if we have met with some success. I want the employes to fully understand that as head of the company, and me as foreman, realize that there could have been no success unless the men were behind us. It has been said that the men are secondary but is not so with us. We look after their interests, and therefore in Peterborough, but has stated that in the past year the pay roll was larger than in any other time. It was heartily applauded. The sales for 1909 showed an increase of 10 per cent. over the previous year, and from 1904 it had increased by 80 per cent. From 1898 to 1909 the increase was 135 per cent. It was in 1880 that business was begun in the old foundry, and at the present time the company was well equipped to carry on the work, the factories were better and everything was quite satisfactory. This success had not been brought about by those in the company alone by any means, but because of the loyal men behind them.

Mr. Donaldson, in a short speech, spoke of the good feeling shown, and emphasized the fact that the employes acted honestly with the company.

The toast to "The Ladies" was proposed by Mr. G. L. Hamilton, and responded to by Messrs. Donaldson and Andrews.

The toast to "The Press" was proposed by Mr. Hamilton, and responded to by representatives.

Short speeches were made by many of the employes, and vocal numbers by Mr. John Kennedy and several selections on the mouth organ by Mr. "Teddy" Andrews were well received.

The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and cheers for Mr. Green brought the affair to a fitting close.

G. H. Thompson Appointed Sec-Treas. of Board of Education

Mr. G. H. Thompson of the staff of the Toronto Savings & Loan Co. was the only applicant for the position of secretary-treasurer of the Board of Education, and as Mr. Morrow had resigned and as it was necessary to appoint a new officer at once, Mr. Thompson was appointed.

Mr. Thompson has for a long time done the greater part of the work in connection with the board and he is thoroughly qualified to fill the position. He was elected by the late secretary and will no doubt be a most efficient official. He will receive the same salary and the board will continue to use the Toronto Savings and Loan Co.'s room and vaults.

Several members of the board expressed their confidence in Mr. Thompson and believed that he would make a first-class official.

On motion of Mr. Fair and Dr. Burnham the thanks of the board were extended to the Toronto Savings & Loan Company for the use of their room and vaults.

Card from Mr. Mason

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough—

I desire to thank all those who favored me with their support, and those who personally exerted themselves on my behalf. Several reasons may be assigned for the result of the elections, some being the most unfair misrepresentations on the part of those who had no public object to serve. Personally I will retain the best of good feeling towards Mr. Morrow who with the assistance of the new Board of Aldermen, will guide the destiny of the city during the year 1910.

Yours respectfully,

E. F. MASON.

CARD OF THANKS

I desire to most cordially and gratefully thank the electors of Peterborough, who so generously endorsed my candidature, and secured my return as Mayor. I duly appreciate the very liberal support that was given me, and regard it as a most flattering compliment, and at the same time, as placing me under a heavy responsibility. This responsibility I shall give my best endeavors and most unremitting diligence to deserve in the largest way. With the co-operation of my colleagues on the Council Board, I shall strive to give Peterborough, my municipality, and the home of all my interests, such an administration as will justify the wish which I very heartily extend to every elector of the city. A Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Yours very faithfully,

W. C. Morrow

A SECRET OF THE PAST

Revived for Use of Modern Man.

For twenty centuries the secret of the wonderful balms with which the gladiators and charioteers of Ancient Greece and Rome healed their wounds, lay undiscovered. Zam-Buk is the modern counterpart of these balms, and owes its great success to the same root cause—it is purely vegetable. Since its discovery Zam-Buk has been welcomed in mansion and cottage.

The reasons for this triumph of science are simple and few. Taking a lesson from the Ancients, the proprietors of Zam-Buk first of all wisely decided that the ideal balm must be purely herbal and contain not the slightest trace of rancid animal fats or poisonous minerals. Thus Zam-Buk is made solely from rich and pure essences obtained from certain rare medicinal herbs. These juices and reliable first-aid for cuts, burns, by ingenious scientific processes and then so skilfully blended that a unique, effective, and yet perfectly natural skin healer is secured.

Zam-Buk has an affinity for the human skin such as no ordinary ointment or liniment can possibly possess. Besides soothing pain and allaying irritation, it possesses high antiseptic qualities, and solves the problem of always having handy at home or at one's work an ever-ready and reliable first-aid for cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, lacerations, scratches, etc. Zam-Buk is without equal for eczema, ulcers, piles, bad leg, ringworm, scalp sores, festering sores, sprains, stiffness, poisoned wounds of all kinds, face sores, chafing, chapped hands, cold sores, frost bites, sore feet, diseased ankles, and all itching irritation, and inflammation.

Zam-Buk is a daily medicine in every household, and is sold by all druggists and stores at fifty cents a box. Refuse harmful and dangerous substitutes sometimes "pushed" as be "the same as good." They are not!

CURED CONSTIPATION QUICKLY.

Tells of a Remedy That is Safe for Young and Old, for All Stomach and Bowel Troubles.

Writing from his home in Barcelona, Mr. Frederick G. Maver states: "I think no one ever suffered as severely from constipation as I did for nearly six months. So many serious symptoms were developing as a consequence of this evil condition of the system that I realized I must find a remedy. The strong pills of various kinds I tried seemed after their first effects were over to make their first effects were over to make me far worse and I did not know which way to turn for relief. I saw Dr. Hamilton's Pills advertised, and the first box used satisfied me. I found a true remedy. Instead of griping by undue activity, Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted as naturally as if physic had not been taken. I never had to increase the dose, and, indeed, within a month I reduced it and when the system finally acted of its own accord as a result of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I took a dose twice a week only, just to make sure the old condition would not come back.

No other remedy cures constipation and biliousness so easily or safely as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are an ideal family remedy for all diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels. Sold in 25c. boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Clean Bread, Well Wrapped

Everyone who makes, handles, buys sells and eats bread, must realize the great danger from impurities to which bread is subjected from the time it leaves the oven until it reach es the mouth of the consumer, because of exposure to so frequent, and often careless handling.

Bread wrappers were first made in Canada by the Eddy Company for Wm. Pooley, a baker in Hull, P.Q., with such satisfactory results that they have since been adopted by leading bakers in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto and elsewhere, so that bread wrappers are coming into more general use.

From a clean wholesome sanitary point of view the advantage of bread wrapped immediately upon being taken from the oven, appeals to every consumer, as it is an important move consumer, as an important move in the direction of pure food.

When there are impurities in the water supply of any of our cities the public immediately demand that the authorities do everything at any cost to prevent contamination, and to stay disease; it seems quite as important that our bread supply should be carefully guarded.

There is no Quinine, nothing whatever harsh or sickening in Preventics These little Candy Cold Cure Tablets act as if by magic. A few hours and your threatening Cold is broken. Candy-like in taste. Mr. Morrow Resigns as Sec-Treas. of the Board of Education

Mr. W. G. Morrow, Mayor-elect of Peterborough, and secretary-treasurer of the Board of Education for the past 23 years has resigned his position on the board. The members were all very deeply grieved to lose his very valuable services. He had been there so long that he knew all the details and he was always extremely courteous to all the members of the board and of great assistance to the chairmen.

Mr. Morrow's letter of resignation was as follows:

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education;

Gentlemen,—I hereby tender my resignation as secretary-treasurer of your board, and in doing so I wish to thank every member of the board for the kindness and consideration which I have at all times received at their hands.

I have held the office for nearly a quarter of a century and my relations with the members of the board will be amongst the most pleasant of my recollections and it is with great regret that I sever my connection with you.

W. G. MORROW.

Dr. Burnham moved the acceptance of Mr. Morrow's resignation and at the same time extended the congratulations of the board to Mr. Morrow on his election to the mayor's chair of Peterborough. Mr. R. Fair seconded the motion and it was carried, although all members expressed their regret at the loss of Mr. Morrow as secretary of the Board of Education.

Mayor-elect W. G. Morrow expressed his thanks to the board for the flattering remarks made to him. He said that it was a source of great regret for him to sever his connection with the board. He had always thoroughly enjoyed the work and his association with the members. When he was appointed secretary there were only 29 teachers on the staff while today there are 80. The demand of the board was $11,000 while this year it was $35,000. The monthly pay roll is now $5,200. He again thanked the board for their many courtesies.

Mr. D. W. Dumble is Still on Board of Education

Mr. D. W. Dumble is still a member of the Board of Education. He was re-elected by the board last night to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. E. F. Mason.

Mr. Dumble was asked to retire from the meeting for a few minutes. He did so and then Mr. Hall proposed that Mr. Dumble be appointed to fill the position caused by the resignation of Mr. E. F. Mason. Mr. Dumble was back a number of years ago, and as he was an old member of the board and understood the workings of the board and had always worked hard it would be only courtesy to give him the appointment.

Mr. Hall read the following letter from Mr. W. A. Peck.

Peterborough, Jan. 4th, 1910.

Mr. W. H. Hall, Esq., Peterborough.

Dear Sir,—In reply to your inquiry we beg to state, that the vacancy on the Board of Education caused by the resignation of Mr. E. F. Mason should be filled by the remaining members of the board at their first meeting. The matter is governed by section seven of the Board of Education Act (1909), which enacts that "Where the office of an elected member becomes vacant from any cause before the expiration of the term for which he was elected, the remaining members of the board shall at the first meeting after the vacancy occurs elect some duly qualified person to fill the vacancy, and the person so elected shall hold office for the remainder of the term for which his predecessor was elected.

Yours truly,

Dennistoun, Peck & Kerr.

Moved by Mr W. H. Hall, seconded by Dr Geo Burnham.

Whereas Mr Ernest F. Mason's resignation as member of this board was accepted by the board on the twenty-second day of December, and it is necessary that some other duly qualified person should be elected by this board to fill the office.

Therefore be it resolved that Mr D. W. Dumble be hereby elected member of this board in place of the said E. F. Mason and to hold office for the remainder of the term for which the said E. F. Mason was elected.

The chairman of the board presented the report of the board to Mr. Dumble.

Mr. Dumble said that this was really a surprise to him. He had thought that he would retire and he had allowed his name to go so he had allowed his name to go so the electors, but they saw fit to give him not enough votes to elect him. He came on the board when there was some little excitement over several big questions. These have been overcome and today Peterborough schools and teachers are in the front ranks. He had always enjoyed his associations with the members of the board and in face of that fact he would accept the election. This was received with applause.

Mother Saw Her Child Burned to Death

Westwood, Mich., Jan. 4.—Unable to rescue her seven-year-old daughter from their burning house, Mrs. E. Nelson was compelled last night to stand by the house and see her child burn to death. It is feared she will lose her mind. Her husband, a lumberman, is being searched for in a neighboring log camp. Mrs. Nelson was working in the cellar when she smelled smoke. She went upstairs and found the room was in flames. Rushing down she escaped through a window. The daughter was in the second storey pounding on the window pleading for her mother to save her. In a minute she dropped back from sight and was enveloped by the flames.

If your stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

Over 200 bars will be wiped out as a result of local option votes in Ontario Monday.

Two places went back to license, Grimsby and Bexhill, but in other 616 votes.

Sixty-one places were added to the "dry" districts. Sixty-five elected to stay "wet." In about fifty other places the returns are not in.

Of 886 municipalities in the province over one-half will be under local option when the figures are complete.

The three-fifths requirement prevented 48 municipalities from carrying local option, though in many cases large majorities were polled in favor. The most notable of these was Brantford, where a majority of 810 was secured out of about 6,000 votes.

Four People Burned to Death, Several Injured

Fort William, Jan. 3—In a fire which broke out in F. H. Hancock's boarding house early today, four persons were burned to death and many jumping from windows several more were seriously injured. They escaped in their night gowns with the thermometer around the 20 below zero mark.

The dead are J. Hopson, an employe in the Ogilvie mills; Anders Sorenson, railway laborer; Mina Clyde, a domestic, and a Chinese cook, whose name has not been learned.

The cause of the fire was a defective furnace and the flames when discovered, had made such headway

The men declared they have had quite enough of South or Central American revolutions and will go to Canada where they will farm.

The two are Samuel R. Parker and Hubert G. Kincaid, who were two of the nine men that sailed from New York on Nov. 4, 1907, on the steamer Byron to participate in a revolutionary movement against the Brazilian Government. Another of the party was George Vive of Hackensack, N.J., who was recently reported as released by the Brazilian Government, but who, according to today's arrivals, is still in prison, although he has been promised his freedom.

The party of nine men who left here was in command of Major Davies and Lieut. Geo. Gordon. On reaching Bahia, they chartered a tank and agreed for Africa, where they expected to pick up a band of insurgents who were planning to overthrow the government and bring about a new administration. Unfortunately for the party they had been watched in New York by detectives in the employ of the Brazilian government and all of their plans were known. BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT
He was surprised at how the sores healed—took your New Method Treatment from serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. Had consulted scores of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the eruptions would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, hoarseness of the throat, swellings of the glands, pains of the bones, aching, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago, and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I cordially can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish.

A boon to Stock Raisers

To Know How to Cure Colic, Distemper, Colds, Swellings, Etc—

Saves Thousands Each Year.

It is a matter of vital importance to every farmer, horse-owner and stock-raiser to know exactly what to do when one of his animals is taken suddenly sick.

The letter of Mr. Frank F. Fullerton, which we print below, gives information of inestimable value, and tells of his experience in curing ailing stock during the past thirty-eight years:

SAVED $1,000 BY NERVILINE

"Several years ago when my horses took colic I used to give them Cayenne Pepper in a few cases ohly did it help, and because I had no proper means at hand I lost several valuable animals. Some one told me of the success Mr. Wendling, of Brockville, Ont., had in his racing stables with "Nerviline," so I laid in a supply. It wasn't very long before Nerviline saved the life of a valuable stallion of mine, which was worth at least $1,000.00. This horse was taken with colic, and would have died, had it not been for Nerviline. I have used Nerviline for reducing swellings, for taking out distemper lumps, and easing a bad cough, and always found it worked well. I recommend every man who owns horses or cattle to keep Nerviline on hand.

Mr. Fullerton is one of the best known residents of Stormont, and his recommendation as an experienced and practical horseman proved beyond question how valuable Nerviline really is.

Give Nerviline a trial. It's good for man or beast, internally or externally. 25c per bottle or five for $1.00. At all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE VERDICT OF HISTORY.

When the wisdom and the folly, the honesty and the deception, of this crisis in Britain's economic history are weighed in the impartial balance, of the future it will be told to the credit of Mr. Balfour that he refused to be a party to the deception of the people. He has refused to say that protection will do what he knows it will not do. It is proclaimed from the housetops that protection will mean work for all. This is supported by the superficially plausible arguments that have deluded every other nation. Mr. Balfour says emphatically that protection will not do what the deluded and the designing claim for it. But he does say that the unemployment of really competent workmen in the prime of life "must be diminished by any national system." If he means a system of protection, he either lacks the clearness of economic vision suggested by his positive attitude, or he has been willing to practise a small deception, though positively halting at a large one. If he means nothing by the statement, it shows the influence of a time of political subterfuge. When the verdict of history is rendered on those honestly deluded, who thought there was in trade obstructions a magic power to bring something out of nothing, and on those who, knowing better, hurried along with the deluded crowd, helping to crystallize their innocence into a definite policy, it will be seen that moral and intellectual superiority are not always united. The late Sir John Macdonald saw as clearly as Mr. Balfour the weakness of protection philosophy, but he was less sensitive about making claims on behalf of the policy. His course resembled that of Mr. Chamberlain rather than that of Mr. Balfour.

In all such campaigning the verdict of history must separate the opportunists from the mistaken believers, with a place for those who drifted with the crowd solving their consciences by disclaiming protests. That verdict must be rendered in the light of the destructive economic logic which nothing schools try to discredit. Arguments for prudence cannot be obtained. Britain has prospered without protection as no nation similarly situated has prospered with it, but this in itself proves nothing. The protectionist can reply that with his system she would have prospered much more. Canada prospered and advanced at an unprecedented rate under the sweeping tariff reductions of the British preference. This, too, proves nothing in itself, for it can be argued that prosperity would have been still more marked if the old imposts had continued. Britain's worst commercial and industrial ills disappeared with the sweeping away of the myriad imposts on which many thot their success depended, but this, too, proves nothing. It can be urged that the change would have occurred had the tariff been continued. A new and rich country like the United States has developed under protection conditions often as bad as, or worse than those of an old settled country like Britain. To this it can be answered that the results might have been the same under different financial management.

MONSIEUR LEPINE.

With the collar of a shabby overcoat turned up and an old hat over his eyes, a little, spare, elderly gentleman was captured the other evening by a party of students roistering in the Latin quarter of Paris. They danced round him, made believe to "raise his hair" and altogether behaved badly toward him. A policeman sauntered up and after one look at the victim dashed into the party and rescued him. It was his chief, M. Lepine, prefect of police. His identity revealed, the students, not much abashed, made a remove by shouting "Vive Lepine!" and insisted on forming themselves into a bodyguard to see him home. M. Lepine rather enjoyed his evening. His great amusement is to play Haroun-al-Raschid by night. Almost every evening after dinner he puts on an old suit and shabby hat and goes out exploring on foot. He listens with the best, and there is no one more absorbed when a horse falls down or a cabman and a taxi driver have a few words. Nobody recognises him, but he keeps his eyes open and notes every policeman on duty. The next morning a constable may get a reprimand or a five franc piece, and then he wonders what invisible power detected him in remissness or saw him do a kind deed to punish or reward him afterward.

Recently a policeman found a newly born baby in a doorway, picked it up evidently and took it to the police station. Of course M. Lepine managed to be there at the moment. He followed the man into the station, sat on a chair in a corner and watched. The constable nurse did his best in the awkward circumstances, but his chiefs did not. The commissary of police was not over-busy, though he ought to have been on duty. The little elderly gentleman in the corner asked timidly whether monsieur, the commissary would come shortly.

"What's that to you?" replied the deputy.

"I should like to see him."

"Would you indeed? Then come again."

"When shall I come?"

"Don't ask questions! The commissary is not at your beck and call."

The little elderly gentleman was crushed and went out. But the next day the commissary and his deputy received notice of suspension.

On another night, a pouring wet one, M. Lepine, soaked through, bespattered with mud and umbrellaless, went up to a constable at the door of a police station and asked if he might go in and warm himself a bit.

"Come along in, old chap, and sit by the stove," said one policeman, and another poked the fire in the grate to make it burn up.

"I put your names down for a ten francs reward each," said M. Lepine, unbuttoning his coat and taking off his hat to the astonished constables.—Paris Letter.

Flying Machines and Animals.

When Zeppelin III. made the flight from Duesseldorf to Essen it was observed that horses and cattle ran wildly about the meadows as it approached, and sheep crowded with loud bleatings around their shepherd. From these facts Count Zeppelin concludes that the employment of airships of whatever type will have a disastrous effect on furred and feathered game. All animals show fear at their approach. Partridges, quail and other game birds cower and hide themselves, and domestic cocks utter wailing crows as if they perceived some gigantic bird of prey. Van Hoogten, the Swedish aeronaut, when at a moderate height, watched elk, foxes, hares and other animals take to flight and dogs rushed howling into the houses.—Deutsche Tager-Zeitung.

Piano Tuning in the Rent.

"Landlords are cursed up hill and down dale for neglecting the welfare of their tenants," said the man, "but heaven knows they promise to do enough. Anyhow, our landlord does. The circulars he issues every little while setting forth the advantages to be gained by living in one of his houses wind up with this alluring statement: 'Insects exterminated and pianos tuned free every three months.' It was the piano proposition that hitched us. All the other promises of providing comforts and conveniences have been made by a thousand other landlords, but the free tuning of pianos was new and worth investigating."—New York Press.

Adopted by England.

"Cool off" is an Americanism which has invaded England, but by no means the only one. The London Chronicle remarks: "In many shops one finds the word 'candy' being used familiarly, and it no longer means the jaw-breaking but wholly delicious sugar candy of one's youth. It is the same with 'cracker,' which used to convey to the English child's mind only something that belonged to Christmas time and could be pulled. The one surprise of today is that 'week end,' which ought to be an Americanism, is really a good old north Englandism."

Odd Names.

A New York paper is printing some very odd names that are brought to its attention. Among those contributed are the following, all said to be genuine: Etta Lotta Lamb, Ida Sweet, Bert R. U. Florian Goode, Mabel Eve Story, Edna Broker Legge, Marion English Earle, Nealen Pray Dailey, Daisy Sawyer. Miss Kitt Fox and Miss Carrie Coffey are two Kentucky names, and Constant Agony is a Canadian lumberman.

A FEW DEDUCTIONS.

Easy to Gauge a Family's Social Ambitions When You Know How.

"Ah, Mrs. Brown," said Mrs. Sherlock Holmes, "I observe that you love formality; that you own this house, although I am not certain about the mortgage; that you are not very well connected; that you do not care for books; that you are trying to make a grand stab at being recherche, while only succeeding in a poor four flush."

"Perfectly wonderful, Mrs. Holmes; quite as good as your husband. How in the world do you do it?"

"It is very easy," replied Mrs. Holmes as she deftly unstained her nose with a pocket powder rag. "When I came in you took special pains to ask me to remove my gloves and be informal, which showed that you have formality on the brain and that your remark was intended as an apology for anything which was not just so. If you were really informal you would have said nothing about it.

"You are not accustomed to good things or you would not have served that horrible cake with the tea. Then when you called the maid to replenish the cake, most of which you ate yourself, you said apologetically, 'We bought this house without a boll in the library,' a remark which, though awkward, proved conclusively that you owned your home, but proved nothing as to the size of the mortgage.

"Then you will recall your account of how your husband complained of having nothing to read and how you childishly by the reply that there were three large bookcases downstairs and two upstairs, all well filled. This proves that you look on books as household furniture of the junk type. Your whole demeanor proves that you are a very poor climber."

"Perfectly marvelous, Mrs. Holmes."

"It might seem so," replied the detective's wife, "but the real secret, after all, is that I have met so many like you before."—Ellis O. Jones in Life.

Hatching Chicks for Show Purposes was Subject of Address

Interesting and Instructive Address Given by Mr. Robinson of Ottawa—Many Valuable Suggestions

One of the features of the Poultry show this week was the address of Mr. Robinson of Ottawa, a young man who has had many years' experience in the business and who can talk chickens for a week at a time. He gave a very interesting talk on hatching chickens for show purposes, and several valuable suggestions were thrown out. Those who heard him were very much pleased.

Mr. R. H. Leary occupied the chair in the absence of the president, who was not able to get around so early. He then introduced Mr. Robinson of Ottawa, who gave a talk to the breeders present on the raising of poultry.

Mr. Robinson said he would not give an address, but a talk, and be invited discussion on the different points as he went along. He stated that he would deal with the hatching of chickens for show purposes. There is a big difference in hatching chicks for show and for market. If the latter is wanted he said use the incubator and brooder at once. But for show purposes there was no comparison with the hen. The first thing was to use a box sufficiently large to allow the hens lots of room. Put a shovel full of loam in the bottom and a handful of straw on top. Then put the hen on the nest at night and get her used to the nest before giving her the eggs. For February hatching he advised using less than 13 eggs, but in June 13 was all right. There should be a dust bath for the hens. Then he advised using hens of the lighter breeds because she has a hotter body and will produce better results. A big hen will make a better brooder because she can cover more chicks.

It is well to leave the chicks in the nest as long as possible after they are hatched. The first feed is chick grit mixed with chopped grains. Keep the chicks in a warm place for a few days until they get sufficient strength then they can go out in the coops. He showed a sketch of the coop he uses and which always proved satisfactory. After putting the chicks out he first feeds them dry bread and milk and milk and he finds it to the best of all. He feeds five times a day and very little at a time. There is always the chopped grain around where they can scratch for it at all times. After the chicks are a week old he lets the hens out with them and they gather grubs and worms. He also leaves hoppers full of grain in many parts of the field. He usually keeps them in the orchard or corn field.

An important feature is once a chick is culled the sooner it is killed the better. The others will grow very much faster. In reference to culling he said that a man, to a very large extent had to get accustomed to his breed. In culling black chicks look for one that shows purple and cull it at once, but never cull a black chick because he shows white feathers. The buff chicks are the easiest to cull for color as the first feathers will show pretty well what it will be.

As soon as chicks begin to roost then take the hen away from them as they will get along very well alone. Chicks in a small yard will mature faster physically than those having a free range, but the chicks that run at large will be larger in the end.

After Mr. Robinson had finished there was considerable discussion. Many questions were asked and answered and the evening proved very profitable.

Flynn Made Full Confession---Gave Up the Sum of $9,000

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Jan. 5.—Charles J. Flynn, who was arrested in connection with the robbery of the Canadian Express Company's office at Niagara Falls, Ont., on November 4th, was this morning released from custody on his own recognizance. It is not likely that he will ever be brought to trial on this side of the river.

District Attorney F. M. Ackerson appeared before County Judge Hickey this morning, and asked for the release of Flynn. He stated that Flynn had made a complete confession of his part of the affair, and had turned over $9,000, all that he had left from the proceeds of the robbery. The Canadian authorities would not let Dobson or Whistler go across the border to testify before the grand jury against Flynn, and there being no corroborative testimony, District Attorney doubted if an indictment could be obtained. He discussed the matter with the Canadian authorities, and obeyexpressed a willingness to pass Flynn up and devote their attention to the prosecution of Dobson abd Whistler, both of whom are consignes to Welland County jail.

Lewis—Hodgson.

The numerous friends in Peterborough of Miss Hilda Hodgson, will be pleasantly interested in some details of her marriage at Yonkers, N. Y., on Dec. 11, 1909. On that day Rev. Charles Ashmead, at St. Andrew's Episcopal church, performed the ceremony that united in the holy bonds of matrimony Hilda H. Hodgson, a former well known resident of Peterborough, and Paul K. Lewin of Yonkers, where he is a prominent and highly esteemed citizen. The many friends in this city of Miss Hodgson, the popular nurse, extend them the heartiest congratulations and best wishes for a long, prosperous and happy life.

GERMANY'S HAWKSHAW

WANNOWSKI IS NOW THE NATIONAL DETECTIVE HERO.

Young Artillery Officer Was a Man of Independent Fortune, But When He Lost It He Returned to Police Work and Has Pulled Off Some Sensational Coups—Made First Big Hit In 1908.

From farmer to detective is the unusual route by which Herr Wannowski, the German "Sherlock Holmes," has risen to fame. Herr Wannowski is the brilliant young Berlin detective who was chiefly responsible for unearthing the evidence on which the great Kiel dockyard "graft" exposures are based. It is due primarily to his adroitness that the Imperial Admiralty has run to earth the ring of contractors and dockyard officials who are alleged to have secured $2,250,000 worth of plunder during a period of ten years.

Wannowski, the son of a Posen lawyer, was born at Danzig in 1870. After passing the examination for one year volunteers and serving for a 12-month in the 18th Artillery, he became an officer of the 35th Artillery, a rank which he still holds.

With a fortune inherited from his father, Wannowski became a landed proprietor in his native province of Posen and chose the career of a gentleman farmer. Fate, however, seemed to decree that mysteries, not agriculture, were to be Wannowski's life work, for his farming adventure was not successful, and in 1900 he arrived in Berlin intent on becoming a police official.

Wannowski was assigned to the detective department, where he speedily won the title of commissary. His first great case was a mystifying railway wreck in East Prussia in 1903. A passenger train had been derailed, three persons killed, and a score more or less severely injured. The perpetrator of the outrage—the rails had been deliberately torn up—could not be traced by the traffic authorities. Young Wannowski was sent down from Berlin. By pure deduction Wannowski decided that the derailment was the work of a drunken man who did not live more than three miles from the railway line. Donning the garb of an itinerant cyclist, Wannowski proceeded to canvass all the taverns in the region for three miles on either bank of the line. Within twenty-four hours he had ferreted out the wrecker, a miller who had the week before unsuccessfully sued the Railway Administration, and in a fit of drunken desperation, had revenged himself by wrecking a train.

Just before the Kiel revelation Wannowski did a brilliant piece of work in tracking the murderer Heider, a Berlin "apache," who enticed a Jewish tailor's apprentice to his apartments, killed him and, after mutilating the body, hid the remains in the Tiergarten Park. The trunk, arms and legs were deposited in one part of the park, the head, cut and slashed beyond all recognition, was three hundred yards away. After the surgeons of Alexander Platz, Berlin's Scotland Yard, had with rare skill practically reconstructed the head, Wannowski's endeavors succeeded in identifying the youth on whose shoulders it had once rested.

Then began a long and heartbreaking search for the murderer. After spending ten days and nights in the local "Whitechapel" district, the detective convinced himself that a certain Heider was the culprit. A few nights later Heider was arrested by Wannowski himself in a crowd watching the garrison church fire. Heider made a full confession.

A few months later Berlin was terrified by a series of mysterious "Ripper" attacks on girls and women. For weeks local womankind was in a state of abject fear. Ladies were afraid to be seen in the streets of even the most fashionable residential districts, and mistresses experienced difficulty in getting servants to visit shops in broad daylight. Wannowski was prominently identified with the comprehensive "drive" organized by the police to wipe out "Ripper" attacks, which soon ceased after the arrest of a number of low-class men and boys, some of whom were caught in the act of stabbing girls or preparing to waylay them.

After the Admiralty authorities found themselves baffled in the attempt to elicit the source of dockyard "graft" at Kiel, the services of Wannowski were requisitioned from Berlin. The manner of his assignment to the case is interesting. His superior officers at Berlin sent him to Hamburg one night without orders, except to call next morning at the Hamburg G.P.O. for a letter which would contain his instructions. They were to the effect that he was to "mooch about" Hamburg among material contractors and then proceed to Kiel, where he was to worm himself into the confidence of suspected dockyard officials and employes. The arrest and indictment of Messrs. Frankenthal and Jacobsohn, dockyard officials Heinrich and Chrunst, and their respective alleged accomplices in defrauding the Government speedily followed. Wannowski is the crown's chief bulwark in the pending trial at Kiel. He has been bitterly attacked by the defence, but his testimony has not been undermined. The German "Sherlock Holmes" was decorated with the Prussian Order of the Red Eagle by the Kaiser a few months ago as a reward for his clever work on the Heider "Ripper" crime.

This extraordinary man is of medium build, broad-shouldered, and smooth-shaven. A particularly keen and piercing pair of steel-blue eyes are his—eyes which more than once, so the story goes, extracted a confession from guilty "crooks."

Germany, it must be remembered, has no detective schools and few Hawkshaw traditions. Until the advent of Wannowski there had never been a detective of national renown. His methods are now, however, held up to aspiring models, and on many cases on which he is not personally put to work his advice is sought.

What the Election Means

Some things to be learned as a result of the voting on Monday are:—

That the city is not yet quite ready for local option. That is, while the majority would favor it there are not quite enough in the eyes of the law to maintain that condition. A record vote was polled and hundreds were dragged to the polls who have not voted for years. The verdict is therefore a true one and while the local optionists no doubt feel greatly disappointed they will do well to accept it and await a more favorable opportunity.

That the ratepayers want more industries located in Peterborough, and that Mr. Morrow's position and connection in the financial world would secure them.

That the people will not vote for any more expenditures from which there is no prospect of a revenue. The taxes are too high now and luxuries will have to wait until the exchequer is replenished.

That any industrial or commercial enterprise that has any reasonable proposition to make will receive every consideration from the people. The Light & Power bylaw was a good thing and the people took it up.

That the people do not favor a general vote for the aldermen whereby a clique or an organization can elect one or more men. They believe that by the ward system every man has an equal chance.

That only unbiased and level-headed men are wanted in the council. Extremists in any particular get a cold shoulder.

Poultry Association's Second Exhibition is a Great Success

Peterborough's second annual Poultry Exhibition is now in full swing. The judging was completed yesterday afternoon, and so far as can be learned it was most satisfactorily done. There are over 1500 birds on exhibition, and practically the whole building is required. The quality of the birds is superior to anything yet shown in Peterbotough. Exhibits are here from many distant towns and cities and includes many birds that were shown at the Guelph Winter Fair and the Toronto Exhibition. An interesting fact, however, is that of the eight silver cups offered as prizes six of them were won by Peterborough birds. This speaks volumes for the local breeders who are comparatively new at the business. Until some three years ago pure bred birds had very little value here and practically no attention was paid to them except by a few. Today there are hundreds of show birds that will hold their own against all comers. Mr. R. J. Kidd, one of the best known breeders, has a hen three years old that has won eleven first prizes and never was beaten, a record that is hard to beat.

Many hundred local people visited the show yesterday afternoon and evening. The market hall is lighted by electricity at night, and the show is equally good at night. Today is the last day, and the outside exhibitors will be here to see the exhibition and it is expected that a lot of sales will be made.

The officers of the association deserve great credit for the success they have achieved. They have worked hard and deserve their success.

C. P. R. The World's Greatest Railroad

Montreal, Jan. 5.—With the 1,760 miles added last year, the C.P.R. is stated to have the greatest mileage of the roads on this continent. It has now 10,048 miles in Canada and nearly 5,000 owned or controlled in the States exceeding the next largest, the New York Central, by nearly 3,000 miles.

With 10,000 miles of steamship lines the C.P.R. has 25,000 miles of system, the greatest of all transportation companies in the world.

WARD SYSTEM BYLAW.

All the Aldermen to Be Re-elected Next Year.

Because the ward system bylaw was carried all the aldermen will have to go to the polls next January for re election. There will only be ten to be elected and two of the present council will be retired, as there will be only two men from each of the five wards. The electors will also vote on the full ticket in every ward in which they are assessed. This will not affect the two year system as the man getting the highest number of votes in his ward will serve a two-year term, and the second highest one year. In 1912 and thereafter only one alderman in each ward will be elected.

LIGHT AND POWER.

Management of the Company Greatly Pleased.

It was a great victory achieved by the Peterborough — Light & Power Company in getting their bylaw carried by nearly 600 majority. As a matter of fact the people should congratulate themselves for grasping the proposition in the way they did as it was one of the fairest that was ever presented. The people get quite a number of concessions from the company that will mean a large sum of money in the end. The company got what? Merely the right to do business in the city for thirty years, a privilege they would get anyway, only in shorter periods. The bylaw enables them to issue bonds to consolidate their liabilities and to put their finances on a proper basis so that they can go ahead and improve and enlarge their plant to meet all increases in business. The city gets control of the company, while the company, so far as the city's rights are concerned, remain exactly the same.

Mr. J. Hi Larmonth, the manager of the company, deserves great credit for the campaign he carried on. He is grateful to all those who supported the bylaw and especially to those who worked for it. He is more than pleased with the results and notified the head office in Chicago yesterday morning. An answer is expected at any minute.

Clean Bread, Well Wrapped

Everyone who makes, handles, buys sells and eats bread, must realize the great danger from impurities to which bread is subjected from the time it leaves the oven until it reach es the mouth of the consumer, because of exposure to so frequent, and often careless handling.

Bread wrappers were first made in Canada by the Eddy Company for Wm. Fooley, a baker in Hull, P.Q., with such satisfactory results that they have since been adopted by leading bakers in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto and elsewhere, so that bread wrappers are coming into more general use.

From a clean wholesome sanitary point of view the advantage of bread wrapped immediately upon being taken from the oven, appeals to every consumer, as it is an important move in the direction of pure food.

When there are impurities in the water supply of any of our cities, the public immediately demand that the authorities do everything at any cost to prevent contamination, and to stay disease; it seems quite as important that our bread supply should be carefully guarded.

Notice is hereby given that the annual general meeting of the shareholders of Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company, Limited, will be held at the head office of the company, 25 Aylmer street, in the City of Peterborough on Wednesday, the twelfth day of January, 1910, at three o'clock in the afternoon for the purposes following, namely: To receive and consider the statement of accounts and balance sheet and the report of the directors and auditor thereon; to elect directors, and to transact the other ordinary business of the Company.

By order of the board, Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company, Limited.

President.

Twelve Boats and Sixty Men Missing --Vessels Carried Off

Assistance Sent Out by the Department of Fisheries—Village of Whitehead is a Scene of Woe

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 5.—The Marine and Fisheries Department has received a request from Whitehead, Guysboro, N.S., today to send a steamer to assist in searching for 12 boats and 60 men missing since yesterday's gale. Assistance will be sent immediately.

The absence of the men and boats and fear for their safety make the village of Whitehead a scene of woe.

25 BOATS CARRIED OFF.

Twenty-five boats containing about one hundred men were carried off shore by the gale last night, but twelve boats have succeeded in reaching the shore while two, containing fourteen men, are known to have been lost with all hands.

One boat belonging to Port Felix, struck on Dogfish rock near the entrance to Whitehead harbor and all hands perished. Another was sighted with tattered sails, but before assistance could be rendered her she was lost to sight in a snow squall, and could not be made out again.

Four of the Canso fishing boats arrived back at Canso today. The Whitehead boats were some distance outside the Canso boats when the gale came upon them.

VESSELS TO ASSISTANCE.

The Marine and Fisheries Department may send the steamer Aronmore from here, the Lady Laurier being laid up, and the steamers Cabot at Goldboro, the D. H. Douglas at Sydney, and the Invernes and Thirty three at Canso have been ordered to assist in the search for the missing men.

ONLY 30 MISSING NOW.

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 5.—The collector of Customs at Canso telegraphs this afternoon that there are still thirty men missing.

More Returns of the Local Option Contests

Toronto, Jan. 5.—All the returns of the local option contests have not yet been received. At noon Rev. B. H. Spence gave out the following totals.

Contests	161

Defeated	18
Repeals	2
Places still to hear from	14

Beckwith, Grey, Holland, Mono, Renfrew, Sullivan, Sunnidale, Lobo, Brooke, Kincardine and West Luther townships and Brussels carried the bylaw, while it was defeated in Draper, Bradford and Hibbert townships, and in Meaford, Kemptville, Hilton, Chatsworth, Chapleau and St. Joseph.

Mr. Spence this morning referred to the records of three years ago, and stated, that in spite of the strenuous fight that was out up this year, out of 147 places heard from, there were not as many in which the bylaw carried as there were in that year under majority rule, when the vote was taken in but 85 municipalities.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnard, Bethune street, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding last night, about 35 persons being present, including all the children and grandchildren of the old and respected couple. A sumptuous supper was served and a very enjoyable evening spent.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnard were the recipients of many hearty congratulations.

CURED CONSTIPATION QUICKLY.

Tells of a Remedy That is Safe for Young and Old, for All Stomach and Bowel Troubles.

Writing from his home in Barcelona, Mr. Frederick C. Mayer states: "I think no one ever suffered as severely from constipation as I did for near y six months. So many serious symptoms were developing as a consequence of this evil condition of the system, that I realized I must find a remedy. The strong pills of various kinds I tried seemed after their first effects were over to mak their first effects were over to make me fag worse and I did not know which way to turn for relief. I saw Dr. Hamilton's Pills advertised, and the first box used satisfied me I found a true remedy. Instead of griping by undue setivity, Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted as naturally as if physic had not been taken. I never had to increase the dose, and, indeed, within a month I reduced it and when the system finally acted of its own accord as a result of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I took a dose twice a week only, just to make sure the old condition would not come back.

No otherremedy cures constipation and biliousness so easily or safely as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are an ideal family remedy for all diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels. Sold in 25c. boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Building Will Be Remodelled.

Having purchased the property comprising the premises occupied by themselves, the office of Mr. A. P. Poussette, the public library and fifteen feet to the south, with right to build, Messrs. Bennett and Goodwill will remodel the building, which is one of the best situated for the purpose in which it is now useding the until the new public library is opened and the present premises vacated. The purchase was made from Mr. J. R. Stratton. The property was the first home of the Ontario Bank, and Shaw, and his family the manager at that time, Mr. G. E. Shaw, and his family resided in the second storey.

When asked yesterday if any change would be made in the front, Mr. Bennett stated that there was nothing contemplated at present.

Dying of Cholera

Local Physician Says Thousands Dying in Europe Can Be Saved With Proper Medicine.

What is it that keeps down cholera, cramps, and summer complaints in America? Ask any doctor or druggist and he will tell you "Nerviline." Just fancy, a million bottles are sold every year to people who use Nerviline for stomach disorder, cramps, flatulence, and summer complaint. For fifty years in most Canadian homes no other pain-reliever, medicine but Nerviline is kept. Nothing stops the aches, pains and sickness of the entire family so quickly as Nerviline.

LETTER NO. 272

"As far back as I can remember, at least 50 years ago there was never a time that our household was without Nerviline.' In the summer time, when the children ate grass-apples and got sick with diarrhoea and cramps, it was Nerviline that cured them. Mr. father used Nerviline frequently to cure gas on his stomach and acute indigestion. There are but few minor ailments that Nerviline does not cure, and I know of no medicine so useful; in fact, so indispensable around the house as Nerviline."

This letter, written by Mrs. N. C. Butcher, a well known resident in Battersea, shows the high opinion entertained of Nerviline by those who have used it constantly for nearly half a century.

You'll never regret using Nerviline. Get it today, keep it on and for an accident or sudden case of sickness in your home. Refuse anything else offered you instead of Nerviline. 25c per bottle, or five for $1.00. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Her Brother's Wife.

Once there was a woman who had a married brother whom she took to task for his failure to contribute liberally to the support of their mother.

"It seems to me, John," she said, "that you might give a good deal more than you do to me. She needs a new set of furs, and there's a hat that she has set her mind on, but I can't afford to buy it for her."

"I'd like to give her more than I do," John replied, "but my wife would object."

"Why let your wife know anything about it? What she doesn't know won't hurt her."

"That's so. I might do it in that way. I suppose you would feel that your husband was doing the right thing if he contributed to his mother's support without letting you know about it. Every man owes more to his mother than he can ever"—

"Why do you suggest such a thing? If Henry did that, how could I ever trust him again?"

Moral.—Fix it to suit yourself.—Chicago Tribune.

No Quarrel on That Score.

"Norah, there are too many young men coming here to see you."

"Ye're right, ma'am. I've made up me mind to shake all of 'em exceptin' Mike. He wants me to marry 'im, an' I think I will. After next week, ma'am, ye'll be needin' another gurrl."—Chicago Tribune.

Felt Like the Comet.

"And this man's case is what?" we asked the attendant in the sanitarium.

"He imagines that he is Halley's comet," is the reply.

"Halley's comet?"

"Yes. He thinks he is growing brighter all the time."—St. Louis Star.

A Mistaken Proverb.

Heiress (signing her will)—It's just as well to take the precaution, as "only the good die young," you know.

Lawyer—Ah, I always think that there's a mistake in that proverb. It should be "only the young die good."—London Opinion.

Read Sociability.

Drummer—Wouldn't your horse go just as fast if you didn't swear at him so much?

Countryman—Yep, I guess he'd go just as fast, but he'd feel awful lonesome.—Boston Herald.

If your stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few days only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerves. When these nerves fail, the organ must diseased regret of necessity follows. The plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Dr. Shoop is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. THE WAY OF A GUARDIAN.

His Abrupt Selection of a Husband For His Ward.

By ALBERT FOSTER.

My friend Thatcher was very inconsiderate of my feelings in the time that preceded his departure for the next world. If he could only have waited until his daughter Ellen was a little better able to take care of herself I should have been saved a lot of worry and bother. As it was, I had to postpone my trip to Egypt for a whole month until I could get her settled with Thatcher's two maiden aunts, for of course he had made me her guardian. The fact that I was only thirty-five and she was fourteen, was of no importance in his eyes.

When once appetite for wandering has laid hold on a man he knows no rest or place to rest, and by year of travel dragged itself out to six. Letters came at intervals from one or the other of the aunts telling me that Ellen was well and happy. Once or twice in the earlier years I had a brief and very conventional note from the young lady herself thanking me for all that I had done for her. I suspected Ellen of symptoms of irony in these expressions of thankfulness, for the only thing that I had done was to take myself off to the ends of the earth and leave her to the care of Providence and her aunts, not always synonymous terms.

In the course of time I drifted back again to the land of the stars and stripes. My first days passed dreamily enough. I visited my old club, but the best chairs were occupied by men who had been striplings when I was last in the land of civilization. My old chums had drifted away or into matrimony and dropped into the club only now and then to shed a few drops of pity on their single brethren.

Finally I bethought me of my long neglected ward and determined for the sake of something better to do to pay the child a visit, so sent a note to the aunts to apprise them of my coming.

I have received many severe shocks in my life and have, I trust, borne them with Christian fortitude or at least with pagan stoicism. I have been turned out of my berth in an ocean liner in the middle of the night to shiver and scorch by turns in an open boat in the middle of a sailless ocean. I have been held up and courteously relieved of all my valuables by Greek brigands. I have even withstood with equanimity the charge of a brigade of Swiss hotel keepers, but all these were as a fall of dew compared with the surprise which I experienced when Ellen, my little ward, came into the parlor of the cottage to give me dutiful greeting. I had left behind me a scraggy little girl, awkward and frightened. I found myself shaking hands with a beautiful young lady, slender, erect, with a calmness and self possession infinitely greater than my own.

As the days that followed my wonderment only deepened. A French count marked genuine, the son and sole heir of a railway magnate, a mining baron from Denver of slightly advanced years, but undiminished ardor, and a newly risen but still rising politician with his eyes on the United States senate and his feet planted firmly on more valuable real estate than the dullest mind could well comprehend were the major planets which constantly revolved around Ellen. Then there was a countless number of satellites, young college fellows, bankers, lawyers and merchants. I was regarded as a fatherly old chap whose favor was worth having only by virtue of the relation in which I stood to the young lady in question. This was galling to me, as I was ready to take my oath that at least half of the idiots would never see my age again. I think Miss Ellen divined my resentment or else the quizzical twinkle playing about the corners of her eyes betrayed her thoughts.

I went prepared to stay three days. The end of a month found me still there. I had fallen head over heels in love with my own ward. When I had succeeded in disguising the case to my own satisfaction—and despair—I concluded that I must take myself out of the way of danger. Accordingly I announced my intention at luncheon one day. The aunts were politely sorry, and I could almost have sworn that Ellen looked sad for at least thirty seconds.

After luncheon the aunts cornered me in the library and asked me flatly what I thought about Ellen's matrimonial future. I protested that I hadn't thought about it, didn't know that she had to have one and didn't know that it was any concern of a guardian anyway.

"Of course it's some concern of yours," said Miss Henrietta, the elder, taking up the last point that I had made and going through my argument backward, woman fashion. "She must marry, naturally, and she must marry well," meaning, as I guessed, that she must induce Dan Cupid to lead her in the direction of a well grown bank account.

"Well, what do you think of the count?" asked Miss Angela, the younger. I replied that I would rather not think of him if she didn't mind. I didn't object to counts for people who liked to spend their money that way, but I preferred open fire myself. Miss Angela sniffed and then asked my opinion of the offspring of the railway magnate. I replied that I considered the whole clan to the respect and gratitude I intended to tie in the first that he was not twins. Two of a kind, of that kind at least, would have been altogether too much for a long suffering world to bear. The mining baron, as I informed the good ladies, might much better be preparing for the next world. The aunts sniffed in chorus.

"Then what do you say to Mr. Crowley?" inquired Miss Henrietta.

"Pallid light-red for a man if he is well shod and doesn't mind muddy roads, but the woman who travels with female are as apt as not splashed a tell." another maid from the canvas.

The other candidates were treated in turn, and all seemed to me equally undesirable. Apparently the aunts were vexatious, for after they had gone over the most likely of the applicants only to find that my opinion of them grew steadily more unfriendly Miss Henrietta turned upon me with as near a glare as her regard for the observances of polite society would permit and remarked in an icy tone: "Well, Mr. Crowley, it would appear that your regard for the other members of your sex in the capacity of husband for your ward and our niece is very low. Perhaps you are thinking of applying for the vacancy yourself."

This was a bombshell with a vengeance. I eyed her sternly for a at least ten seconds. Then I said, with polite emphasis, "Madam, it is little short of an insult to accuse me of so far presuming upon my relations with your niece as to fall in love with her," after which I bowed in my very best manner and went out.

In the hall I came face to face with Miss Ellen herself, apparently in a great hurry to get away from somewhere. I stopped and stared at her. She stared back and tossed her head.

"I wouldn't stop here if I were you," she said. "Some one might insult you by thinking that you were talking to me."

"Ellen, you heard?" I gasped. She nodded. "Then you—you—listened"—

"At the keyhole? Yes," she replied calmly. "Since it was my future that was being discussed it seemed to me that I had a slight interest in the matter. But I never expected"—here she began to bristle up again—"I never expected to hear a man say that it was an insult to be told—to have it thought—that he—that I"— Actually there were tears in her eyes. This would never do.

"But, my dear girl, don't you understand that I was only trying to conceal the fact that—well, that I am already your slave?" The last words came with a rush. "There it is. Now it's your turn to be insulted."

She looked down and then up at me. "If your love is an insult," she said very slowly, "I think that the best that I can do is to accept the insult, don't you?" And I agreed with her.

What's In a Name?

To a certain southern town, on legal business, came a most pompous young lawyer, who, notwithstanding his name was McNaughty had an excellent opinion of himself. He found it necessary to talk with Squire Gardner, an unpolished justice, who had no good opinion of anything and especially of any one who had a good opinion of himself. The squire had never heard of his visitor till he called, and he was a poor hand at remembering names, but he was an expert in human measurements. The young lawyer proceeded promptly to say what he had to say, the squire listening, but watching. Presently he thought it was time for him to say something.

"Hold on, Mr. McClipber," he began.

"My name is McNaught," the lawyer stiffly corrected him.

"Excuse me, excuse me," apologized the squire and finished his remarks.

It was not long until the squire again felt called upon to speak.

"Well, now, Mr. McZero," he started in.

"I said my name was McNaught," the lawyer interrupted sharply.

Again the squire apologized, apologized profusely, and the lawyer concluded his consultation. He was not feeling very kindly toward the squire, but he thought it wise not to manifest his feelings and said goodby with a fair degree of politeness.

"Goodby, Mr. McNothing," said the squire, as innocent as a lamb, and as the visitor walked pompously out of the office the squire chuckled.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Coincidence.

It often happens that you pause and say to yourself: "I remember this scene perfectly well. I have gone through all this before." But you cannot determine when. In these cases you are told that you are not exactly the victim of your imagination, but that one half of your brain works more quickly than the other. Parallel to this is the converse of it, as it were. You think of a man whom you have not met for years and whom you are unlikely to meet. You turn a corner and suddenly are confronted by him. This sort of thing happened to ourselves a few months ago when we spelled iridescent with two "r's." You did not notice it luckily. When we saw it in print we said to an acquaintance, "We have spelled iridescent wrong," and with a weary sigh took up a newspaper at random. The first word we saw was "iridescent." So today with potatoes. We chanced to read that a market gardener in Georgies or Stockport or somewhere had dug up a potato weighing thirty-six pounds and fourteen feet in diameter (the actual figures escape us), dly wondering what his feelings were, we took up a novel, "The Search Party," at chapter 21. "The turning up of the roots of any particular plant," we read, "may display an amazing wealth of tubers. It is always possible that a spade may slice a potato, leaving you face to face with two respectful earth soiled fat surfaces." This is most uncanny.—London Globe.

CRIME OF KIDNAPPING.

Some Queer Cases of Child Stealing In Britain and Europe.

Fourteen years' penal servitude—that is the punishment set by British law for the offence of child-stealing. Perhaps it is this severity, combined with the fact that judges have small mercy upon the offender, which has made the crime known as "kidnapping" so rare.

But that the crime of kidnapping is not extinct is proved by the recent Southend case, where a baby 14 days old was stolen from its parents.

So lately as last March the whole of America was stirred by a kidnapping crime of a most sensational kind. A ten-year-old boy named Willie Whitla mysteriously disappeared on his way home from school. His father, a well-known lawyer, employed scores of detectives. They discovered nothing.

Then came anonymous letters, demanding a ransom of $10,000, failing which the boy would be killed. The sum was at once handed over, but there was still no sign of the boy. The letters, however, gave a clue, and a man named James Boyle and his wife were arrested. The woman confessed, and was sentenced to 25 years' imprisonment, while the man got a life sentence.

In Italy there is a considerable traffic in unfortunate children stolen from their parents and taught to beg for

Will you tell some sick friend of this, any remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a remedy for rupture that will cure them in the privacy of their own home, without the loss of time it takes.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Liver ailments everywhere in America.

When the [illegible] of Dr. Sheop's Rupture Cure will cause them to call on Dr. Sheop's Instrument to that has quickly obtained, and strengthened, and brought those nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not care the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Sheop's Restorative goes direct to the cause of the ailment—the failing, disturbing, inside or controlling nerves. And herein lies the keynote to my success.

When those nerves are again in full and strong, then this is the end—and of all such sickness.

To me it is a great satisfaction that I am the only physician able to say to the sufferer, take my prescription for full 30 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours.

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, when maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the same identical "no pain, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescriptions or personal advice plan. My best efforts is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the medicine to some sick friend.

A friend will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist to whom you can conveniently go for this 30 day test.

Not first, not me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give this 30 day test.

So write me now and save all delays. Remember that tomorrow never comes. Address Dr. Sheop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

More Important Than Eyes.

The pretty young teacher was struggling to impart spelling book lore to a small Italian boy. "Chief" was the word under consideration. "Ch-e-f," spelled Tony laboriously. "Oh, now, Tony," she said, "you've left out one letter. Can't you think what it is?" Tony shook his shiny black head. "It's name is just the same as something you have," she went on, looking straight into his eyes. "I can see them looking at me this minute, right out of your head—two big brown ones." "Bugs!" shouted Tony triumphantly.

India's Jewels.

The precious and semi-precious stones mined in India are the diamond, ruby, sapphire, spinel, tourmaline, garnet, rock crystal, and various chalcedonic forms of silica, jadeite, and amber. The ruby and jadeite are the only stones produced in India of considerable value. Large quantities of turquoise come from Sikkim and Tibet, that from the latter country being harder and of darker blue, which gives it greater value.

What Jack Tar Means?

Mr. A. H. Blake, M.A., lecturing recently in London before the Photographic Society, said that few people know the reason why our sailors are so often called "Jack Tars." The name dates from the days of gossiping Samuel Pepys, and is an abbreviation of the word "tarpaulin." It came into use to distinguish the real practical seaman, who knew his business, from the "swell" officer, who did not always do so.

His Fatal Oversight.

He proposed to her by mail, and by letter she replied. He read her brief refusal, then committed suicide. Alas, he'd be alive to-day and she a happy bride had he but read the post-script on the other side.

"son," called the farmer as the aroma of eggs and ham came up through the trapdoor, "why don't you get up?"

"What's the use?" yawned the college boy as he turned over for another nap. "Don't believe in early rising."

"Don't, eh? Well, how about the early bird?"

"Oh, that's a chestnut. The early bird caught the early worm, and the early cat caught the bird, and the early dog caught the cat, and the early dog catcher caught the dog. So there you are. What's the use of getting up early? It doesn't pay."—Detroit Free Press.

Home Production.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Tertius, "I have done something I know you will approve of."

"Indeed?"

"You know how annoyed we've been about the expense of automobile tires."

"Yes."

"Well, I have bought a rubber plant."—Washington Star.

A BARGAIN IN OIL STOCK

20 Cents Per Share

THE LIBERTY OIL COMPANY

is offering a limited number of shares of the Treasury stock for sale, for the purpose of further development, at the ridiculously low price of 20c per share.

This property has one well pumping Oil, and is drilling Well No. 2. Bear in mind that two wells of 100 barrels each could pay dividends on our small capitalization.

Read the following Questions and Answers, and then fill in the Coupon at once:

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question—What is the Capital Stock of the Liberty Oil Company ?

Answer—Five Hundred Thousand shares of a par value of $1.00.

Q.—Is there any free stock, bonus stock, or promotion stock ?

A.—No. Every share of stock is placed in the Treasury for the benefit of the stockholders.

Q.—Is there more than one kind of stock ?

A.—NO. All Common Stock.

Q.—Is there any bonded indebtedness ?

A.—NO.

Q.—What acreage does the Liberty Oil Company control ?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company has a forty year lease on 125 acres of proven oil ground, on a royalty of one-sixth of the oil shipped.

Q.—Where is the property located ?

A.—Ventura County, California, nine miles from Nordhoff and twelve miles from Santa Paula. Both of these towns are on the Southern Pacific Railway. All supplies will come from Los Angeles, which is about seventy miles south, insuring prompt delivery.

Q.—Is it necessary to build a wagon road to the property from either of the above mentioned towns ?

A.—NO. There are good wagon roads from both cities, and an automobile can be driven to the property without difficulty.

Q.—How do you know this is oil-bearing ground ?

A.—Because we have one well on the property that is on the pump. This will furnish all the fuel required for pumping well No. 1, drilling Well No. 2, and a surplus beside. The Union Oil Co. has numerous producing wells one-fourth mile to the south of us and also just north of our property. Furthermore, we have some of the largest oil seepages in Ventura County.

Q.—What grade of oil is produced in Ventura County ?

A.—Most of the Ventura County oil is high gravity, suitable for refining purposes, and brings $1 per barrel upwards at the well. The oil on our property is high gravity oil.

Q.—What facilities have you for disposing of your oil ?

A.—The oil will be delivered to the Union Oil Company's pipe line one mile distant, through a gravity pipe line, which will soon be constructed.

Q.—What does the Liberty Oil Company agree to do if I subscribe for stock ?

A.—They agree to expend the money received from the sale of stock through their financial agents, Sagar & Loomis, for the general development of the property.

Q.—What development work does the Company propose to do ?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company proposes to sink additional wells from time to time until the property is fully developed, the estimated limit for maximum results being thirty wells. Well No. 2 is now being drilled, and sunk to a depth of 2,800 feet thereby cutting through all five of the oil-bearing sands referred to in the report of our Engineer and Field Manager, Mr. Edward F. Eastman. He estimates that Well No. 2 will produce steadily at least 100 barrels per day and possibly up to 200.

Q.—Is an investment in California Oil Stock a speculation, or a good business proposition ?

A.—It is said on good authority that 50 per cent. of the bankers of the State of California are interested in Oil. Bankers usually know how and where to invest their money. Take a property like the Liberty Oil Company and you have purely a business proposition. It is just a question of how many wells the Company sinks—the more wells the greater the dividends. Your stock increases in value from the day you purchase it. On completion of Well No. 2, we expect the Company's income will be at least $100 per day, and you can easily calculate what the dividends should be on our small capitalization of $500,000. Each succeeding well should average not less than one hundred barrels per day.

Q.—What assurance has the investor that Liberty Oil Company's stock will be a safe and profitable investment ?

A.—The Company is incorporated under the strict laws of the State of California, and the Directors are all capable business men of unquestioned integrity, and honest management of the Company's affairs is assured. The entire capitalization shares) is in the Treasury of the Company, and as there is no promotion bonus or free stock, every stockholder is on an equal basis. In all probability it will not be necessary to sell all of the Treasury Stock to put the Company on a dividend paying basis and to fully develop the property, in which event each stockholder's interest would be increased proportionately.

Q.—Has any money been expended on the property ?

A.—Yes. One well has been sunk to a depth of 2,000 feet and is now pumping oil. This well furnishes all the oil needed for fuel, thereby saving the Liberty Oil Company an expense of $500 per month for fuel and hauling same to the property.

Q.—What is the present price of the stock ?

A.—The par value is $1.00 per share. A small allotment of stock is being sold at 20c. per share, to sink Well No. 3 and finish Well No. 2, which is now being drilled. This allotment will doubtless be over-subscribed. Send in your order at once, as price will advance without notice.

Q.—What income can I expect from my stock ?

A.—The Company feels reasonably sure that a dividend can, and will be paid within one year, or as soon as there are three pumping wells on the property. They also believe that the dividends will be at least one (1c) cent. per share per month. That would be sixty per cent. per annum to the investor who buys at 20c. per share.

Q.—Will it be necessary for an investor to wait until the Company is paying dividends to realize a profit on his investment ?

A.—NO. You will be able to sell your stock within sixty or ninety days at an advance, if you take time by the forelock and buy at the present low price, 20c. per share.

Q.—Under what conditions can I visit the property ?

A.—Write us if you want to go and look over the property of the Liberty Oil Company at our expense, and tell us how much you will invest, providing you find it as good as we have represented. We are sure you will double the amount after a personal inspection.

AFTER TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted scores of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but could get temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicine the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, sunkings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspepsia, stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no sign of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." W. Board of Education is Organized for 1910

First Meeting of the Board was Held Last Night—The Chairmen of the Various Committees were Appointed

The Board of Education is reorganized for the year 1910. The meeting was held last night. The chairmen of the various committees are the same except that Mr. R. Fair takes the Property Committee and Mr. D. W. Rumble the Finance Committee.

Mr. G. H. Thompson, the newly appointed secretary, was present and before the business was proceeded with he made a very neat little speech in which he thanked the Board for his appointment and promised to do the very best he could to justify the confidence the board had placed in him.

CHAIRMEN ELECTED.

It will be learned with general good favor that Mr. Louis M. Hayes, K.C., was re-elected chairman of the Board of Education for the next year by a unanimous vote of the members. In replying to the motion Mr. Hayes heartily thanked the board for the confidence they had shown in him by again bestowing upon him the honor of chairman of the board for a second term. He congratulated the board upon the very harmonious and successful way in which the business had been carried on last year, and he congratulated the teaching staff upon the efficiency of its work. The chairmen of the various committees were also commended for the splendid manner in which they had brought in their reports during the year. Mr. Hayes extended congratulations to the new members, Colonel Miller and Mr. H. Adams, and welcomed them to the board.

STANDING COMMITTEES.

A committee was then appointed to strike the standing committees and a few minutes later they reported as follows:—

Property Committee—R. Fair, chairman; Messrs. Adams, Ackerman, Miller, Dumble.

Supervision—Messrs. Crane, chairman; Morrow, Hill, Burnham.

Finance—Messrs. Dumble, chairman, Ackerman, Crane and Fair.

Committee on Appointments — The Committee of the whole board with Mr. W. H. Hill as chairman.

A communication was received from Mr. H. C. Duff of Norwood, stating that under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture he would hold a three-day course of agricultural lectures on Jan. 24, 25 and 26, on Tuesday, January 25, President Creelman of Guelph, intended giving an address and they wanted the use of the Collegiate Assembly Hall for that occasion.

The matter was referred to the Supervision Committee with power to act.

George Long Passed Away very Suddenly Ill a Few Minutes

The community was shocked last night to learn of the sad and sudden death of George Long, proprietor of the American Hotel, who passed away about eight o'clock in the evening without a moment's warning. During the day he felt as well and strong as usual, and looked after his business and about seven o'clock he went down street to a barber shop. On his return he felt a little sick and went to his room to lay down and called to his wife. Medical assistance was called at once but the deceased passed away a few minutes afterward, the cause being heart failure.

The late George Long was a big, hearty, healthy man, who hardly knew what sickness was, and had not been confined to his bed for a long time and was never affected with his heart until Tuesday afternoon last. He was calling in Ashburnham and was on his way home from Rev. Dr. Longfeldt's when he fainted, but soon afterward revived and on Wednesday and Thursday appeared to be as well as ever.

He was born in Ireland some 53 years ago and came to this country with his parents when only ten years of age and settled in Ashburnham where his home has been ever since. For about 25 years he was engaged with lumbering firms and three years ago bought out the American hotel which he has conducted ever since. He was a life-long member of and a faithful attendant at St. Luke's church.

He leaves a wife and nine children as follows:— Robert, Ashburnham; Samuel, city; Mrs. W. Peace, Hamilton; Mrs. A. Bartly, Ashburnham; Mrs. B. Hopkins, Toronto; Miss Fanny, Fred, George and Miss Prudence at home. He is also survived by his mother who is in her 78th year, and who was with him when he passed away.

He is also survived by the following brothers and sisters; Mrs. H. Lindsay, Rochester; Mrs. T. Bysbe, Toronto; Mrs. J. White, Norwood; Mrs. Rourke, Fesmenden; Mr. Fred Long, Park Rapids, Minn.; Robert, Montana; Alex. of Sudbury; Samuel of Ashburnham.

This was the first break in his own family, and of his father's family only the father and one sister have passed away.

The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Wife Murderer to Hang.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 6.—The first of the year's hangings in Georgia is scheduled to take place in this city tomorrow. The condemned man is George Burge, who was convicted of murdering his wife last summer, from whom he was separated, by cutting her throat with a razor.

While it is often impossible to prevent an accident, it is never impossible to be prepared—It is not beyond any one's purse. Invest 25 cents in a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and you are prepared for sprains, bruises and like injuries. Sold by all dealers.

The Moral Reform League Organized

The Moral Reform Leaguers, while greatly disappointed with the result of the vote on the Local Option By-law, they do not intend to give up the fight. They have re-organized and are now preparing to continue their fight against the sale of liquor. The Leaguers are not at all satisfied with the way the campaign was conducted. Lots of things were done not exactly in accordance with the strict letter of the law, they claim and they feel that had the result been in their favor the liquor interests would have attempted to upset the election. The local press comes in for a lot of criticism from the same people, but the local press has no shirking conscience, nor yet has it any apologies to make to either side.

Just what course the newly organized Moral Reform League will pursue has not yet been made public. If not too impertinent it might be suggested that a course of moral training in the home would accomplish more for the boys and girls than any act of parliament that might be passed.

Annual Meeting of Local Centre

The annual meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, Peterborough Centre, will be held in the chemical room of the Collegiate Institute on the evening of Tuesday, Jan. 11th. After the installation of officers, the President, Rev. Dr. Marsh, will give an illustrated lecture on "Stellar Evolution," and will endeavor to show, as far as science has been able to outline, the manner of the origin of the heavenly bodies. The lecture will be shorn of technical terms and put in such form that the public will be able to follow it intelligently. It is expected that there will be a large audience.

A Hundred Tons of Coal Used

One of the big propositions for the Board of Education this year will be a new heating system for the old Collegiate. At a recent meeting of the board it was learned in a casual way that it required over a hundred tons of coal to heat the building at a cost of $500 per year, and at the present time only three rooms are in use. The system in use has been installed for many years and it is worth nothing except for scrap iron and the sooner it is deposited there the better. Such leakages as this is one cause of the great increase in the cost of running the schools.

ELEVATOR SHARES.

Western Farmers Elevator and Milling Co.'s Offer.

It is seldom the public is given an opportunity to secure an investment in a sure thing like the proposition offered by the Western Farmers' Elevator and Milling Company, Limited, of Lethbridge, Alberta. This company is formed for the purpose of erecting and maintaining elevators and flour mills within easy reach of the farmers in the West and thus cause a big saving in money to all parties concerned. It is proposed now to erect a mill with a 100 barrel capacity per day on Head Island where natural gas has been found in abundance and where they have arranged for a supply of gas to generate 100 horse power at $1.05 per day of 10 hours. This means a saving of no least $17 per day in fuel alone. Other advantages are equally as great. It is also proposed to erect two more elevators, one at Burdett and one at Vulcan, and thus complete their chain of elevators which will cover 80 miles of territory along the C.P.R., and in the best wheat country in the world. The profits from this enterprise is figured at at least 25 per cent., and their success is assured.

The future prospect of the Western Farmers' Elevator and Milling Company are of the very brightest. They have no competition with lots of business ahead.

At the present time 50,000 shares, the balance of the capital, are being offered at 90c. per share of $1 par value. It is a chance to make money fast and it is a sure and safe investment. See the big advertisement on another page.

BANQUET TENDERED.

To Mr. R. H. Leary by Agricultural Society Directors.

Mr. R. H. Leary, president of the Peterborough Agricultural Society, was tendered a banquet at the National Hotel on Tuesday night by the members of the directorate. He was also presented with an address expressing the directors' appreciation of the president's service and their confidence in his ability as the chief officer. The address was read by Secretary F. J. A. Hall, and was accompanied by a handsome oak library chair. Addresses were delivered by many of the directors and all were loud in their praise of Mr. Leary and gave him the credit of having infused the new life and enthusiasm in the association.

The banquet was attended by about 30 members of the association, and they thoroughly enjoyed the splendid spread prepared by Mine Host Denison.

Government Backs South Pole Trip

London, Jan. 6.—The Scott expedition in search of the South Pole is now assured, the government having promised today $100,000 towards the $200,000, which is the estimated expense.

Heretofore the public subscriptions have hung fire—a total only of between $55,000 and $60,000 having been raised, but there will be no difficulty now in procuring the small balance required.

The expedition will set forth in July.

Local Optionists May Make Another Appeal

Brantford, Ont., Jan. 6.—A recount of aldermanic votes in Ward three is being held before Judge Hardy this afternoon, in behalf of James Hurst, who was defeated by Alderman Waddington on Monday, by one vote.

Local legal advisers have advised local optionists that there are certain features of law which if they have sufficient evidence, may result in Monday's local option election being upset, on the ground that some voters voted more than once, or in two wards in which they were listed as property owners. In this case the advisers say another election could be brought on within a year, instead of three years, as is customary under the local option clause of the Liquor License Act. Local option supporters have not yet decided on the course to be taken.

Welsh and English Fought the Italians

Grand Forks, Jan. 6.—The fight between two sections of miners at Phoenix, B.C., on New Year's Eve was a most serious affair, though an attempt was made to hush it up.

At least 80 men were on sides in the fight, which took place near one of the hotels. The Welsh and English were against the Italians.

Three men are reported to have been killed outright in the fight, and a number of others are in the hospital as a result of the affair. This is denied at Phoenix, but a miner who arrived from Phoenix confirms the story. He was himself a participant in the fight, as his appearance amply demonstrated.

The row began in a small way, but some bad blood that had been rising for some time between the miners of different nationalities caused a general battle.

Most of the Fishermen Have Reported

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 6.—It is probable there will not be great loss of life among the Canso and Whitehead fishermen carried to sea by the gale, as several boats made shore last night, and others were spoken yesterday, while the crews of two are reported to have been picked up by a steamer on its way to Halifax.

OBITUARY.

S. M. THOMSON.

It will be learned with great regret by the many Peterborough people who knew him that Mr. S. M. Thomson of Brantford dropped dead on the street while going to his office last Tuesday. Zam-Buk Quickly Cures Chaps, Cold Sores and Rough Red Skin.

Icy winds often make ladies' faces rough, red and blotchy. Apply a little Zam-Buk, and this will smoothen the skin and end the soreness. It also takes away that coarse, red, rough look and "feel," which are so unpleasant. For more serious cases of chaps and cold sores apply Zam-Buk at night liberally.

Miss Hattie Bertrand, Galesburg, says: "I am troubled every year with cracked, chapped hands and arms, and nothing ever seemed able to prevent this until I found Zam-Buk. It healed the chaps and cracks, and occasional applications keep my hands and arms perfectly smooth."

Zam-Buk is not only a healer, but it is a skin food. Frequent use of it develops that soft, velvety skin which is so pleasant to see, and which is the expression of perfect skin health. Remember Zam-Buk is unique in containing no animal fat. For a balm this is peculiar; but just there lies Zam-Buk's superiority. Made purely of herbal extracts and juices 50c. a box. All druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Don't take any substitutes.

More Casualties as the Result of the Fierce Prairie Storms

Three Little Children Found Huddled in Snow —Cattle are Dying by the Hundreds —A Fuel Famine

Regina, Sask., Jan. 6.—News of toll exacted by last Friday's storm in death and suffering on the prairies continues to come to hand. The storm appears to have been very severe along the Soo line south of here, and many casualties are reported. These include a homesteader, who froze to death on New Year's Day, south of Rouleau, and a man named Clark, of Lang, who perished while driving a load of hay from his farm eight miles south of town.

BOY FROZEN, TOO.

Three little children living south of Yellow Grass, going from their father's place to the home of their grandparents, two miles distant, were also caught in the blizzard, and when found by a search party the boy was dead with his two sisters huddled in the snow beside him.

Fear is also entertained with regard to the safety of Sheriff A. V. Whitehead of Weyburn, who left to drive in the south country on New Year's Day, and has not since been heard from. The mounted police are now searching for him.

IN THE U.S. WEST.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 6.—The severest of winters is making through the North-west as the result of the blizzard, which has been sweeping that territory for 36 hours. From interior points today came details and reports of dead, injured and dying.

W. S. Campbell Leaves C. P. R.

Mr. W. S. Campbell, chief clerk in the C.P.R. freight offices, and one of the most valuable freight men in this district, has severed his connection with the C.P.R., and has accepted a position with the Canadian General Electric Works where he will have charge of the freight business of that firm. The position is an important one but Mr. Campbell is fully qualified to fill it. The C.P.R. regretted very much to lose him and they will have considerable difficulty to fill his position.

A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

Unparalled Growth of the North-West During 1909.

Winnipeg, Jan. 6.—Final summing up of the year's progress in the West shows that 1909 has been a year of unparalleled growth and development in Western Canada. Based upon the sure foundation of splendid crops, the progress of the West during the year just closed has not been only very great but of the soundest and most substantial sort. As the largest city in the West, Winnipeg naturally stands out prominently among the many cities and towns that have made phenomenal growth during the year. Winnipeg has grown remarkably in all possible ways.

Judge J. E. Bennett Makes a Report on Local Poultry Show

The second annual show of the Peterborough Poultry Association was held on January 4, 5, and 6, and was a decided success. There were upwards of 600 birds shown and while the management had counted on a larger entry from outside exhibitors, still when the fact is taken into consideration, that several others shows are being held during the same week, the entry was entirely satisfactory.

Light Brahmas brought out a fair entry with some nice birds, first cock and hen deserving special mention.

Wyandotts, golden, very good class, 1st cock nice colored bird and good shape, 2nd nice clean color, 1st and 2nd cockerels nice. 2nd loses to 1st on shape. Winning females good Silvers.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies have failed. Sold by all dealers.

Big Population Increase.

The directory figures covering the same territory are not completed for this year, yet.

"Nerviline" Cures Rheumatism

"If I had lived through my sufferings another year it would have been a miracle." This is the opening sentence of the declaration made by Mr. J. Emins Squires, member of one of the best-known families for twenty miles round Sydney. "My hands were drawn out of shape, even my fingers were gnarled and crooked—my lameness, stiffness and inability to get about all showed the havoc Rheumatism made with my health. The blessing of it all is that I have heard of Nerviline, and now I am able to tell and advise others how they got well, too. My system was so weakened that I had to build up with a good tonic, so I took Ferrozone at meals. But I never stopped rubbing on Nerviline—it had a magic influence on my stiff, painful joints, and bottle after bottle was rubbed on the painful parts. Nerviline cured me. I am well today—have been well for 4½ years."

CURED 4 1-2 YEARS.

You also can cure rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia or any pain or stiffness in the muscles or joints—to do so use Nerviline. Don't let your druggist substitute. Get Nerviline only; large bottles, 25c., or five for $1.00; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

The value of all field crops in Prince Edward Island is $9,213,000, in Nova Scotia, $23,219,300; in New Brunswick, $18,150,980; in Quebec, $96,071,000; in Ontario, $[illegible]; in Manitoba, $74,420,-[illegible]; in Saskatchewan, $97,677,500, and in Alberta, $20,741,000. In 1908 the value of the crops in Prince Edward Island was $9,466,000; in Nova Scotia, $20,668,000, and in New Brunswick, $18,042,000; in Quebec, $[illegible]; in Ontario, $185,308,-[illegible]; in Manitoba, $66,660,000; in Saskatchewan, $37,614,000, and in Alberta, $14,582,000.

The condition of the no wereot of fall wheat this year was 93.33 of a standard, as compared with 75 per cent. last year. In Alberta there is an increase of 21 per cent. of fall wheat seeding, and in Ontario an increase of 9 per cent. over the area sown last year.

This is certainly an excellent showing, revealing as it does, a mine of immense wealth in the soil of the Dominion, the returns from which are obtained by the application of scientific knowledge along agricultural lines, and the unsurpassed skill of the Canadian husbandman.

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share; payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Chin, thus giving us a chain of elevators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway, to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons. First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $18.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of our chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent. dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity: the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are cooperating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as reference of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 18.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 25.29 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in those concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

Clean Bread, Well Wrapped

Everyone who makes, handles, buys sells and eats bread, must realize the great danger from impurities to which bread is subjected from the time it leaves the oven until it reaches the mouth of the consumer, because of exposure to so frequent, and often careless handling.

Bread wrappers were first made in Canada by the Eddy Company for Wm. Feeley, a baker in Hull, P.Q., with such satisfactory results that they have since been adopted by leading bakers in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto and elsewhere, so that bread wrappers are coming into more general use.

From a clean wholesome sanitary point of view the advantage of bread wrapped immediately upon being taken from the oven, appeals to every consumer, as it is an important move in the direction of pure food.

When there are impurities in the water supply of any of our cities, the public immediately demand that the authorities do everything at any cost to prevent contamination, and to stay disease; it seems quite as important that our bread supply should be carefully guarded.

THE EAGLE'S EYE.

A Screen That Protects It Against a Too Brilliant Light.

The eagle that stares proudly at the sun has now been found to be no figment of tradition.

M. de Chardonnet, in a paper communicated to the French Physical society, has shown that the eagle's eye has a special apparatus adapted to this feat, though it seems probable that he is not the only bird with this useful possession.

The apparatus is not, however, the "substituting membrane" which all of us have perceived in looking even at the barnyard fowl. That is a mechanism designed merely to wipe the eye and to keep it clear of dust.

M. de Chardonnet's discovery was made while he was studying the transparency of the central part of the eyes of animals. He had already noticed that the eyes of night birds, such as owls, were more transparent than any other for ultra violet rays, and he had tried to push the experiments further by ascertaining whether they would be affected by ultra violet rays also.

These experiments failed because of the absence of responsiveness on the part of the birds, which did not appear to manifest any sensation in passing from darkness to light, whether this list was visible to human eyes or not. M. de Chardonnet's failure led him to inquire whether there was any organ of which he was ignorant in the bird's eye, such as would intervene in such circumstances.

While dissecting a bird's eye he was struck to find an organ to which French naturalists have given precisely the name of the peigne or comb. A better idea of its function would be obtained by calling it a parasol.

This organ is formed of a very thin membrane, black-opaque and situated in the eye where the optic nerve penetrates it. The structure of this membrane is such that the retina is completely masked when the "parasol" is open. It is reasonable to suppose that the parasol is therefore a screen to protect the eye against a too brilliant light, whether the light is visible to the ordinary sense or whether it consists of ultra violet rays.

FINLAND SUMMERS.

Effect of the Famous "White Nights" Upon Vegetation.

The famous "white nights" of the north are a most surprising phenomenon to the visitor from southern climes. It is a weird experience, declares A. M. Scott in "Through Finland," to sit for the first time upon a veranda at midnight and read a newspaper or to walk home from a restaurant at 1 o'clock in the morning and to see people still gossiping at the street corners or strolling along the promenades under a bright, clear sky.

A spirit of rest and peace is over all the earth. The sky is bright, not with the fiery brilliancy of noon, but with a tender, gentle radiance. The colors of the landscape have become softened, but not blended. There are no shadows save for a week or two in June, when the bright northern sky at midnight projects faint, ghostlike shadows toward the south. The sun just dips below the horizon and no more. There is no division between the sunset and the dawn. The same rosy flush serves for both.

Summer in Finland is, in fact, one long day. Never a star is to be seen, and when the first faint star glimmers in the south it is a sign that the summer is past and that the autumn frosts have arrived.

The long light has a marvelous effect upon vegetation, forcing its growth at hothouse pace. The "white nights" account both for the suddenness of the burgeoning and for the intensity of the heat. Land and water have no time to cool. One cannot fail to be struck with the enormous size of the foliage upon the oak and hawthorn trees as compared to that to which we are accustomed. Botanists have explained this as being due to the larger supply of light. It has sometimes been suggested that we may hasten the harvests by the use of artificial lights. Nature herself does this for the Finnish farmer.

The Broadax.

A city man who went out into the Ozarks to learn to make railroad ties was asked by a native whether he was right or left handed.

The city man replied: "I'm wise to this 'left handed monkey wrench' business. I'm from the city, but I know there is no such thing as a left handed broadax." But he was wrong. A broadax is beveled on one side only. A left handed man must have an ax with the bevel on the left side.—Kansas City Times.

All Against Him.

A tailor who was defendant in a case tried in court seemed much cast down when brought up for trial.

"What's the trouble?" whispered his counsel, observing his client's distress as he surveyed the jurymen.

"It looks pretty bad for me," said the defendant, "unless some steps are taken to dismiss that jury and get in a new lot. There ain't a man among 'em but owes me money for clothes."

A New Automobile Plant for Canada

In the last few months a number of American automobile companies seeing the great possibilities in Canada, have established Canadian plants. The latest arrival among the automobile manufacturers is the Regal Motor Car Company of Canada, which is building a large brick and stone factory on the seven acres of land which they have procured in Walkerville, Ont. The first building is ready for the roof, and the company expects to be in a position to make shipments in about five weeks. The new plant has exceptional shipping facilities and will be the best equipped automobile factory in Canada.

The product of this factory is to be entirely of Canadian manufacture. The automobile is the duplicate of the Regal "30" of the American market; the original thirty-horse power four cylinder car to be sold for less than $1,500. This car will sell for $1400 in Canada, fully equipped. Regal Motor Car Company of Canada will handle the British Colonial business. Mr. N. E. Richards of Windsor, Ont., the general manager of the new plant, has received to date innumerable inquiries from all over the British Empire concerning the car and the agency proposition. In the spring this company will also have ready for market twenty and forty horse power Regals.

Poultry Show a Huge Success

The second annual exhibition of the Peterborough Poultry Association came to a close yesterday afternoon after a very successful show. A large number of visitors were present and appreciated the display of feathers. The birds were a great attraction and more beauty was never seen in one place in Peterborough before. The judge, Mr. J. J. Bennett of Toronto, was well pleased with the show and his report will be found elsewhere in this issue. The finances the association are in good condition and all parties are well satisfied.

The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainous shrub, give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its marvellous curative properties. Tight tickling or distressing coughs, quickly yield to the healing, soothing action of this splendid remedy—Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so safe and good for children, as well. Containing no opium, chloroform, or other harmful drugs, mothers should in safety always demand Dr. Shoop's. If other remedies are offered, tell them No!. Be your own judge. Sold by all dealers.

Mr. Wm. Bell of Calgary, Alta., a former resident of Peterborough, is home on a visit to friends. He left here four years ago for Calgary. Mr. and Mrs. Miller of 340 Aylmer street, entertained the firemen to lunch last night.

A BARGAIN IN OIL STOCK

20 Cents Per Share

THE LIBERTY OIL COMPANY

is offering a limited number of shares of the Treasury stock for sale, for the purpose of further development, at the ridiculously low price of 20c per share.

This property has one well pumping Oil, and is drilling Well No. 2. Bear in mind that two wells of 100 barrels each could pay dividends on our small capitalization.

Read the following Questions and Answers, and then fill in the Coupon at once:

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question—What is the Capital Stock of the Liberty Oil Company ?

Answer—Five Hundred Thousand shares of a par value of $1.00.

Q.—Is there any free stock, bonus stock, or promotion stock ?

A.—No. Every share of stock is placed in the Treasury for the benefit of the stockholders.

Q.—Is there more than one kind of stock ?

A.—NO. All Common Stock.

Q.—Is there any bonded indebtedness ?

A.—NO.

Q.—What acreage does the Liberty Oil Company control ?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company has a forty year lease on 125 acres of proven oil ground, on a royalty of one-sixth of the oil shipped.

Q.—Where is the property located ?

A.—Ventura County, California, nine miles from Nordhoff and twelve miles from Santa Paula. Both of these towns are on the Southern Pacific Railway. All supplies will come from Los Angeles, which is about seventy miles south, insuring prompt delivery.

Q.—Is it necessary to build a wagon road to the property from either of the above mentioned towns ?

A.—NO. There are good wagon roads from both cities, and an automobile can be driven to the property without difficulty.

Q.—How do you know this is oil-bearing ground ?

A.—Because we have one well on the property that is on the pump. This will furnish all the fuel required for pumping well No. 1, drilling Well No. 2, and a surplus beside. The Union Oil Co. has numerous producing wells one-fourth mile to the south of us and also just north of our property. Furthermore, we have some of the largest oil seepages in Ventura County.

Q.—What grade of oil is produced in Ventura County ?

A.—Most of the Ventura County oil is high gravity, suitable for refining purposes, and brings $1 per barrel upwards at the well. The oil on our property is high gravity oil.

Q.—What facilities have you for disposing of your oil ?

A.—The oil will be delivered to the Union Oil Company's pipe line one mile distant, through a gravity pipe line, which will soon be constructed.

Q.—What does the Liberty Oil Company agree to do if I subscribe for stock ?

A.—They agree to expend the money received from the sale of stock through their financial agents, Sagar & Loomis, for the general development of the property.

Q.—What development work does the Company propose to do ?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company proposes to sink additional wells from time to time, until the property is fully developed, the estimated limit for maximum results being thirty wells. Well No. 2 is now being drilled, and sunk to a depth of 2,600 feet thereby cutting through all five of the oil-bearing sands referred to in the report of our Engineer and Field Manager, Mr. Edward F. Eastman. He estimates that Well No. 2 will produce steadily at least 100 barrels per day and possibly up to 200.

Q.—Is an investment in California Oil Stock a speculation, or a good business proposition ?

A.—It is said on good authority that 50 per cent. of the bankers of the State of California are interested in Oil. Bankers usually know how and where to invest their money. Take a property like the Liberty Oil Company and you have purely a business proposition. It is just a question of how many wells the Company sinks—the more wells the greater the dividends. Your stock increases in value from the day you purchase it. On completion of Well No. 2, we expect the Company's income will be at least $100 per day, and you can easily calculate what the dividends should be on our small capitalization of $500,000. Each succeeding well should average not less than one hundred barrels per day.

Q.—What assurance has the investor that Liberty Oil Company's stock will be a safe and profitable investment ?

A.—The Company is incorporated under the strict laws of the State of California, and the Directors are all capable business men of unquestioned integrity, and honest management of the Company's affairs is assured. The capitalization (500,000 shares, is in Treasury of the Company, and as there is no promotion, bonus or free stock, every stockholder is on an equal basis. In all probability it will not be necessary to sell all of the Treasury Stock to put the Company on a dividend paying basis and to fully develop the property, in which event each stockholder's interest would be increased proportionately.

Q.—Has any money been expended on the property ?

A.—Yes. One well has been sunk to a depth of 2,000 feet and is now pumping oil. This well furnishes all the oil needed for fuel, thereby saving the Liberty Oil Company an expense of $500 per month for fuel and hauling same to the property.

Q.—What is the present price of the stock ?

A.—The par value is $1.00 per share. A small allotment of stock is being sold at 20c. per share, to sink Well No. 3 and finish Well No. 2, which is now being drilled. This allotment will doubtless be over-subscribed. Send in your order at once, as price will advance without notice.

Q.—What income can I expect from my stock ?

A.—The Company feels reasonably sure that a dividend can, and will be paid within one year, or as soon as there are three pumping wells on the property. They also believe that the dividends will be at least one (1c) cent. per share per month. That would be sixty per cent. per annum to the investor who buys at 20c. per share.

Q.—Will it be necessary for an investor to wait until the Company is paying dividends to realize a profit on his investment ?

A.—NO. You will be able to sell your stock within sixty or ninety days at an advance, if you take time by the forelock and buy at the present low price, 20c. per share.

Q.—Under what conditions can I visit the property ?

A.—Write us if you want to go and look over the property of the Liberty Oil Company at our expense, and tell us how much you will invest, providing you find it as good as we have represented. We are sure you will double the amount after a personal inspection.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 6 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, SATURDAY JANUARY 8, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

A Hot Time Promised for the New Council

A scout around the streets last night revealed the fact that there is a whole lot of speculation as to the outcome of the council meeting on Monday morning. One of the chief topics of interest is who will be chairman of the Board of Works. Ald. Phelps has been head of that department for two years and he is still in the council. The natural supposition would be that he would be offered that committee again, but there are rumors of stiff opposition and the probability is that a vote will have to be taken. There are two other men in the council who have occupied that position in the past and there are one or two others who have ability to take almost any committee.

Aside from the selecting of the chairmen of the committees there promises to be a bunch of big fire crackers to let off during the year and especially the first part. There is the police investigation promised by his Honor Judge Hayeke and the council will have something to say about it also.

The next cannon will be the license question. That is by no means a dead issue and the aldermen feel that at an early date a demand will be made for a substantial reduction as a result of the local option vote a days ago.

Fixing the appropriations and striking the rate for 1910 will be another hot proposition. There does not appear to be anyway out of a 21 or 22 mill rate and then the strictest economy must be practiced.

A new member of the council is given credit for the statement that he will endeavor to have the press excluded from all committee meetings. That alderman can hardly be serious for such a move would create an awful howl from all parts of the city. The only way the public has of learning anything of how their business is being transacted is through the press.

Mr. and Mrs. Healy Celebrate 50th Anniversary

A little more than fifty years ago James Beal came to Peterborough at the age of 17 years from his home within the shadow of Queen's Castle on the Isle of Wight. He had ventured to Canada, the land of promise to young manhood, to make his fortune and to build up a home, thus fulfilling the hopes and desires every normal youth entertains upon leaving his teens. Young Beal remained in Peterborough a short time and upon obtaining work with a farmer in Otonabee accepted it. In the natural course of events he met Margaret Fife, the daughter of one of the best known and prosperous farmers of the township. The old story was repeated. It was not long afterwards that they were married in the Methodist parsonage at Keene and determining to make his way in the world the young husband rented a farm nearby and after seven years of industry and care began to see his dreams taking actual forms. They moved to Percy township, Northumberland County, where they resided until seven years ago, when they retired to Peterborough. While a farmer in Percy he was a member of the township council for 21 years and in many ways identified himself with movements that aimed at progress and improved conditions.

Such is the brief outline of the history of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Beal who celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding Thursday. Five long decades, a half a century slipped by with many changes, but to the young man of fifty years ago nothing had arisen to disappoint his hopes. They were present at their home, 179 Dublin street, yesterday, their sons, John R. and William of Peterborough, Alex. J., of Perth, North Dakota, and daughters, Mrs. (Drs. Bryce, Kingston, Mrs. J. L. Young of Prince Edward, Mrs. Chas. Kemp of Prince Edward, Mrs. Ed. Wandy, Toronto, Mrs. J. S. Ferguson, of Williston, N.D., was unable to be present. The relatives of Mrs. Beal in attendance were; brothers, Mr. John Fife, ex-Reeve of Otonabee, George Fife, Otonabee, her sister, Mrs. R. McConnell of Cavalier, N. Dakota, and her only surviving aunt, Miss Jane Ramon of Otonabee.

As customary at affairs of that kind there was a splendid dinner and supper, the occasion being a most happy one for Mr. and Mrs. Beal and those who joined with them. They received many congratulations and wishes for the future.

Mrs. Beal was born in the house in which Mr. John Fife now resides in Otonabee.

Council Meets to Choose Chairmen

The inaugural meeting of the City Council will be held Monday morning at 11 o'clock when the organization will take place. As usual there is a lot of scoring for position. Aldermen may be seen with their heads together in almost any part of the city and their conversation is invariably about the chairmanships. His Worship Mayor Morrow has got some good material and he should be able to secure good chairmen for all his committees. It would be a good move on his part, or on the part of some of the aldermen to suggest that the number of committees be cut down to four and thus save a great deal of time in transacting the city's business. Six or seven committees means that some of the aldermen are at the city hall nearly every night in the week and they get extremely tired of it and work lacks interest. Four committees will handle the work satisfactorily and in less time and in all probability at less cost. So far as the chairman is concerned he needs to be a man with a strong personality who can say and will say yes or no when it is in the best interests of the city and who will not permit one man privileges for allowed to others. There are such men in the council and there should be no difficulty in picking them out.

The Short Route to Gowganda

Commencing January 3rd, through service has been inaugurated to the Gowganda country, via the Canadian Pacific Railway to Sudbury, thence Canadian Northern Railway and ginger line, which eclipses all other modes of transportation to this country.

Passengers may now leave Toronto 10.10 p.m. by Canadian Pacific Railway, arriving Sudbury 6.05 p.m. following morning; Canadian Northern train leaves that point 7.00 a.m., arriving Gowganda Junction 10.15 a.m., where connection is made with the Gowganda Transport Company, and passengers leave there at 11.00 a.m., arriving Gowganda 9.00 p.m. Stops are made at Phoenix for lunch and Elkhorn for dinner. The one way rate from Toronto to Gowganda Junction is $9.70 and round trip rate $16.25. This rate includes transfer in Sudbury from Canadian Pacific to Canadian Northern. One way rate from Gowganda Junction, by the Stage Line, to Phoenix is $2.00; to Elkhorn $4.00, and Gowganda, $6.00. Round trip rates are $4.00 to Phoenix; $8.00 to Elkhorn, and $10.00 to Gowganda.

The above provides the shortest, most direct and cheapest route from Toronto and Ontario points. Sudbury sleeper is carried on the Owl, due Pacific train leaving Toronto 10.10 p.m. evening, and the Canadian Northern train from Sudbury to Gowganda Junction, carries dining car in which breakfast is served.

If your stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of naturally falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

The United States Must Move Slowly

She is on Delicate Ground When She Interferes in Manchuria—Demands Neutralization of All the Manchurian Railroads

What will Russia and Japan Say?---Is on Ticklish Ground

St. Petersburg, Jan. 7.—The Foreign Office has taken no action on the memorandum presented by the United States Government relative to the neutralization of the Manchurian railroads, which has been submitted for careful examination conjointly by the Ministers of Finance and War.

The ultimate attitude of Russia will depend largely upon the reception of the proposals by the other powers, and the developments in the matter will necessarily consume a great deal of time.

As Russia's policy in the Far East is defensive and not aggressive, certain features outlined in the memorandum are decidedly advantageous, but the success or failure of the proposals will be determined largely by the attitude of Japan, whose portion of the railroads is vital to the scheme.

The move made by the United States is of the utmost importance to the trade of the world. Japan and Russia both declared for the "open door" policy which they agreed on peace terms, but between them they divide control of the railways running through the vast and rich Province of Manchuria. These give special attention to Russian and Japanese goods, while foreign shipments are left to rot on the sidings. The result is the abolition of outside competition.

Japan went to war with Russia to "guarantee the independence of Korea and compel the evacuation of Manchuria."

The war is over now and Japan governs Korea herself and virtually controls one-half of Manchuria, while Russia controls the other half.

The United States is on ticklish ground in making her present move. She is still anxious to convince Pekin that she is the friend of China. It will be interesting to see what Britain does. The ally of Japan, her own trade interests are similar to those of the United States.

To Ask Legislation for Option by Wards

Toronto, Jan. 7—The Ontario Moral and Social Reform Council has decided to apply for legislation providing for local option by wards and districts in the larger cities, and for local option by counties, including cities up to 25,000 inhabitants. The idea is that the vote in the county will more than make up for the lack of votes required by the three-fifths clause polled in cities.

The legislature will also be asked to make the laws relating to the naturalization of foreigners more stringent, as in many instances local option has been defeated by this vote.

Hubert Latham Rose to a Tremendous Height

Hubert Latham today established a new record for height when he sent his monoplane to an altitude of 3,300 feet, beating by more than 1,000 feet the previous height record, the exact figures of which are disputed.

Louis Paulhan is credited with a height of 2,600 feet, over the same course that Latham followed today.

Latham used an officially controlled barometer and there is no question of the height he attained.

Latham began his flight at 2.30 o'clock by circling over Mourmelon. At 3 o'clock he was 300 feet in the air, when he pointed the monoplane upward and in ten minutes had attained the dizzy height of 3,300 feet. From this height he made a rapid descent, the drop of the monoplane resembling the downward sweep of a giant bird.

When Latham alighted he was smoking a cigaret as usual. He declared that he could easily have gone several thousand feet higher, as the conditions

Many Americans are Flocking to Canada

Rochester, Jan. 8.—Western Canada appears to be enjoying a boom. Thousands of Americans are emigrating yearly to the North-Western Provinces and are settling on the Government lands. These settlers almost without exception appear to have a good quantity of cash with which to purchase the cheap land. Many have sold expensive farms in the United States and have taken the same money and purchased large sections of Canadian land. A gentleman traveling through Rochester this week is authority for the statement that the people are literally flocking to the new territory and that, in spite of the severe winters, they are making good in the raising of grain, which has for several years been bring a good price.

Mr. Ferguson Hurt Result of a Fall

Mr. W. G. Ferguson, president of the Otonabee Power Co., is wearing his arm in a sling, the result of a severe fall which he met with in front of his residence, Stewart St., yesterday morning. In his effort to save himself, his hand was so severely sprained as to wreak the nerves of the hand and rupture a small blood vessel. It is to be regretted that the nature of the injuries are such as will require a considerable time to heal. Mr. Ferguson, however, is able to be in his office, as usual.

A Hint to Ladies When Shopping

If you wanted anything badly, and when you got to the store were persuaded to take something else instead, when you came away wouldn't you feel a little disappointed? As if somebody had "got one over you"—and not for your benefit, mind, but for their own profit.

And when you proved that the something which was presented in being "just as good" as what you asked for was so good—was not to be compared even with the real thing—wouldn't you feel still worse?

This is just the case about Zam-Buk. Like all good things it has many imitations. When buying, just ask for Zam-Buk, and see that you get it. The genuine is protected by law, and is clearly seen on each packet. Don't have anything else! Then you won't feel that somebody has made a few extra cents out of your lack of firmness.

London, Jan. 7.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Toronto address is much quoted. Nearly All Returns in 211 Bars to be Cut Off

Toronto, January 7.—The local option returns from all over Ontario are practically all in now. There are five townships still to be heard from, small places of little account, according to Rev. H. H. Spence, General Secretary of the Dominion Alliance. This morning 151 municipalities had been heard from. Of these 78 carried the by-law, 78 defeating it. This year 211 licenses will be cut off.

Had a straight majority been all that was necessary to localize liquor selling the vote would have been favorable in 130 municipalities and 434 licenses would have been cut off.

Mr. Spence compares these figures with those of the vote taken in 1906, before the three-fifths regime began. In that year 70 municipalities voted, the by-law was carried in 59 of them and 167 licenses were cut off.

Mr. Spence says the comparison makes his hair stand on end.

Plead Guilty to big Express Robbery

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 7.—The youthful self-confessed express robbers were up before Magistrate Fraser this morning, and their case was nearly as rapidly disposed of as the robbery of the money package Nov. 6th last.

There were two charges against both prisoners. County Crown Attorney Cawyer appeared for the Crown, and W. [illegible] Gervais, K.C., for the prisoners.

The first charge against the prisoners was that they did on November 4, steal from the Canadian Express Co. $14,000. Through their counsel they elected to be tried by Magistrate Fraser, and pleaded guilty to the charge.

A Lively Race for the South Pole

New York, Jan. 7.—A report sent out from Washington that an Antarctic expedition is to be launched shortly, under the auspices of the National Geographical Society is taken here to mean that the end of the year will see three great nations—England, France and the United States—engaged in an exciting race for the South Pole.

France already is represented somewhere within the Antarctic zone by Dr. Jean Charcot, who sailed south from Rio Janeiro, on October 22, 1908. Nothing has been heard from him since April 17, last, when his wife received a letter from Deception Island.

England is about to send two expeditions. Yesterday it was announced in London that the British Government would jointly [illegible] ($100,000) for the expedition to be commanded by Captain R. F. Scott, a veteran Antarctic traveler. Lieut. Ernest H. Shackleton, who reached the southern point on January 9, last, is also preparing to lead a party which will follow that of Captain Scott.

According to the plans which only await the execution until sufficient funds have been raised, the American party will sail south aboard the Roosevelt, the same ship which enabled Commander Peary to reach the North Pole.

It also appears probable that at least three of Peary's most efficient men will be leaders in a search for the earth's southern pole. They are Capt. Robert Bartlett, Professor Donald B. MacMillan and George Borup.

Deathly Cramps, Stomach was Bloated

A Bad Case That Proves Cramps and Stomach Disorders are Cured Fast By Nerviline.

"The distress I suffered from cramps last summer was so severe I thought it meant death," writes P. L. Emerson, of Guys Hill P. O. In five minutes I was well and my stomach derangements disappeared entirely."

NOT INVINCIBLE.

When Art Experts Are Taken In by Crooked Dealers.

All "antiquities" are not antique. The art of the art-faker is an art that conceals itself, and often enough it is almost impossible of detection.

The doubt, for instance, that has been cast by art experts generally upon the wax bust attributed to Leonardo da Vinci—pronounced Layonardo da Vinchi—purchased by Dr. Bode for the German Government for £8,000, is by no means an isolated incident in the history of art collecting.

It has yet to be decided whether this bust is the work of the great and versatile Leonardo or Mr. Cockle Lucas, the recently deceased wax modeller; but it is an undeniable fact that there is hardly a public collection that does not contain several items, the authenticity of which would not bear investigation.

At the Victoria and Albert Museum, the Louvre, and elsewhere, it has more than once been discovered that treasures that had been long venerated as unique are most flagrant forgeries.

Some years ago, a Parliamentary commission was held upon the contents of the museum at South Kensington, and very early in the evidence it transpired that the predecessor of the then curator had removed over fifty objects, as either forgeries or as absolutely worthless, which had been considered of great importance and value.

For instance, the authorities purchased three items at the famous Hamilton Palace sale in 1882, all of which proved to be other than was supposed. Those were the Agate Cup, purchased for £2,500; the Cardinal Wolseley chair; and a Vernis Martin cabinet, which cost the nation no less than £4,600.

The cup proved to be a made-up piece, worth, at the most, £250; the chair, which was supposed to be English fifteenth century work, turned out to be Cingalese work of the eighteenth century; and the cabinet, though partly genuine, was discovered to contain panels made by a man who later, upon obtaining employment at the museum, readily recognised his handiwork.

There is also at South Kensington a statue attributed to Michael Angelo which many claim to be a made-up piece; whilst a terra-cotta bust of Savonarola in the same collection, purchased in the middle of last century as a genuine example of fifteenth century work, was later discovered to be of quite modern manufacture.

In the National Gallery there is more than one work, the attribution of which does not meet with general acceptance.

In 1850, when the portrait of Ariosto by Titian, was acquired for the nation for the huge sum of $150,000, there were many who claimed—and, in fact, still do so—that the portrait was not by Titian; and, moreover, that it was not a portrait of the famous Italian poet.

Another remarkable instance of experts being hoaxed is that of the purchase of a picture, reputed to be by the great French landscape artist Corot, for the New Dublin Gallery of Modern Art, a few years ago.

The sensational discovery at the Picture Gallery that, of the 250 pictures labelled with the greatest names in the history of art, only seventy were genuine, is still fresh in the memories of most readers.

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Chin, thus giving us a chain of elevators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $18.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of our chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent, dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. Those sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as reference of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 18.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 25.29 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in those concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

Unparalled Growth of the North-West During 1909.

Winnipeg, Jan. 6.—Final summing up of the year's progress in the West shows that 1909 has been a year of unparalleled growth and development in Western Canada. Based upon the sure foundation of splendid crops, the progress of the West during the year just closed has not been only very great but of the soundest and most substantial sort. As the largest city in the West, Winnipeg naturally stands out prominently among the many cities and towns that have made phenomenal growth during the year. Winnipeg has grown remarkably in all possible ways.

BEHIND SEALED DOORS.

How the British Admiralty Guards Its Secrets.

Officially, it has been stated that some of the plans of the celebrated mystery ship, the Indomitable, have disappeared. These consist of confidential drawings supplied to the contractors, and they should now be in the possession of the Admiralty. While the very closest search has been made, the First Lord of the Admiralty has stated that it is not expected the possession of them will be regained.

Some little time ago, the Admiralty decided that all new ships should be built with the greatest secrecy, every effort being made to avoid letting any information at all reach foreign Governments. Every man connected with the work has to take an oath that he will not reveal anything which comes to his knowledge. No longer is any outsider allowed near the building warship. Yet, despite all precautions taken, confidential plans of the greatest value have disappeared.

It is well known that certain foreign Governments will pay almost any sum to obtain possession of some of our closely guarded secrets. It is also the case that many foreigners are employed in the drawing offices of some of the warship-building contractors.

As evidence of the big sums which are paid, it may be mentioned that some time ago it was discovered that a traitor in the Russian army, Col. Grim, had received no less than £80,000 from Germany and Austria for the sale of confidential information.

In our great warship-building yards, such is the secrecy observed, that even workmen are not allowed in certain departments unless provided with a special pass. Any man attempting to enter such a department will be dismissed instantly.

It is frequently the case that the entrances to some of the workshops are guarded by special armoured, fireproof doors, and entrance and exit can only be made when the doors are specially unlocked by the official having charge of the key. These keys are retained in the head office, and cannot be removed without the express sanction of high officials. In all cases an entry has to be made in a book, stating who has had possession of the keys, and the reason, the exact time of removing and replacing the keys being noted.

Then, the men employed in these confidential departments are especially picked, and are subject to heavy penalties in the case of the slightest dereliction of duty. The men are not chosen until the strictest investigation has been made with regard to their history and habits.

Cosgrave's Beer

Wordsof praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discriminating and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered.

Its self-evidenthonesty of purpose, purity, brilliancy, body, and every other attribute that goes to make a perfect beer are ever in evidence

Get the Choice Oranges of Our 5,000 Groves

We pick, pack and ship 60% of the California Orange crop. These are of varying grades. The choicest selections are packed under the "Sunkist" label. To get the finest oranges you must insist on fruit that is wrapped in tissue paper with the word "Sunkist" printed thereon.

"Sunkist" Navel Oranges Are Seedless

They are delightfully sweet, juicy and fleshem. They are firm, thin skinned and deep tinted.

"Sunkist" oranges and lemons are picked by gloved hands, wrapped in "Sunkist" tissue paper, packed carefully so as to eliminate chances of becoming bruised or soft. No bruised fruit or fruit that falls to the ground is put in a "Sunkist" wrapper.

Mr. Paul Caron's work as staff artist of Le Presse of Montreal, always attracted very favorable attention, and his pictures at the annual spring exhibitions of the Royal Canadian Academy have been among the most creditable of the many good pictures shown on these occasions. Mr. Paul Caron has shown special aptitude in his "child studies," and critics claim that in this particular sphere of art, he has few equals in Canada.

PE-RU-NA CHEERFULLY RECOMMENDED FOR COLDS AND CATARRH.

A Prominent Canadian Gives His Experience With the World-Famous Remedy For Catarrh.

Chronic Catarrh Always Begins With An Ordinary Cold.

So Says Dr. Hartman, the Greatest Living Authority On Catarrhal Diseases.

THE first effect of a cold is a thickening of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat.

This gives rise to a discharge, or at least a stuffiness of the nasal passages. Sometimes fever accompanies the first attack, also a feeling of languor, dullness and aching of the bones.

If no attention is paid to it, the mucous congestion is liable to spread down into the larynx, producing hoarseness and into the bronchial tubes, producing a cough.

Even when this occurs, many people pay no attention to it.

Under such circumstances, the condition is liable to become chronic, producing a condition of the mucous membranes known as catarrh. Catarrh lasts an indefinite time. Catarrh is essentially a chronic condition and does not heal except something is done to relieve it.

CURE COLDS—PREVENT CATARRH.

What should be done when a person catches cold is to take a few doses of Peruna.

But, even in cases where the cold has been neglected and hoarseness or a cough has developed, Peruna can be relied upon to give prompt and permanent relief.

The frequency of coughs and colds in the winter makes Peruna a popular remedy for these ailments.

A number of the best people of various countries have given testimonials as to the value of Peruna in such cases.

Followed Dr. Hartman's Advice—Restored to Health.

Mrs. Samuelle Vigneau, Avre au Berd, Isle de La Magdaline, Canada, writes:

"I write to tell you that I am perfectly well. I took only three bottles of your Peruna according to your advice and the directions in your book and it restored my health."

Ask your dealer for a free Peruna Almanac for 1910

C. H. Parker, Ex-Warden of Compton Co., Quebec, has been mayor of Scotstown for a number of years. He is an influential resident in Scotstown and widely known.

He writes concerning Peruna. Read his letter below:

C. H. PARKER

"I had several attacks of colds from time to time and finally a severe attack developed into catarrh.

"I was advised to use your celebrated catarrh remedy, and after taking three bottles I find myself completely cured, and I no longer suffer from catarrh or colds.

"I can cheerfully recommend Peruna for colds and catarrh."

Mr. Wm. Heal of Calgary, Alta., a former resident of Peterborough, is home on a visit to friends. He left here four years ago for Calgary. He is greatly pleased with the West and would not care to return East to reside. Calgary, he states, is going ahead rapidly, and everyone there is prospering.

A BARGAIN IN OIL STOCK

20 Cents Per Share

THE LIBERTY OIL COMPANY is offering a limited number of shares of the Treasury stock for sale, for the purpose of further development, at the ridiculously low price of 20c per share.

This property has one well pumping Oil, and is drilling Well No. 2. Bear in mind that two wells of 100 barrels each could pay dividends on our small capitalization.

Read the following Questions and Answers, and then fill in the Coupon at once.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question—What is the Capital Stock of the Liberty Oil Company?

Answer—Five Hundred Thousand shares of a par value of $1.00.

Q.—Is there any free stock, bonus stock, or promotion stock?

A.—No. Every share of stock is placed in the Treasury for the benefit of the stockholders.

Q.—Is there more than one kind of stock?

A.—NO. All Common Stock.

Q.—Is there any bonded indebtedness?

A.—NO.

Q.—What acreage does the Liberty Oil Company control?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company has a forty year lease on 125 acres of proven oil ground, on a royalty of one-sixth of the oil shipped.

Q.—Where is the property located?

A.—Ventura County, California, nine miles from Nordhoff and twelve miles from Santa Paula. Both of these towns are on the Southern Pacific Railway. All supplies will come from Los Angeles, which is about seventy miles south, insuring prompt delivery.

Q.—Is it necessary to build a wagon road to the property from either of the above mentioned towns?

A.—NO. There are good wagon roads from both cities, and an automobile can be driven to the property without difficulty.

Q.—How do you know this is oil-bearing ground?

A.—Because we have one well on the property that is on the pump. This will furnish all the fuel required for pumping well No. 1, drilling Well No. 2, and a surplus beside. The Union Oil Co. has numerous producing wells one-fourth mile to the south of us and also just north of our property. Furthermore, we have some of the largest oil seepages in Ventura County.

Q.—What grade of oil is produced in Ventura County?

A.—Most of the Ventura County oil is high gravity, suitable for refining purposes, and brings $1 per barrel upwards at the well. The oil on our property is high gravity oil.

Q.—What facilities have you for disposing of your oil?

A.—The oil will be delivered to the Union Oil Company's pipe line one mile distant, through a gravity pipe line, which will soon be constructed.

Q.—What does the Liberty Oil Company agree to do if I subscribe for stock?

A.—They agree to expend the money received from the sale of stock through their financial agents, Sagar & Loomis, for the general development of the property.

Q.—What development work does the Company propose to do?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company proposes to sink additional wells from time to time until the property is fully developed, the estimated limit for maximum results being thirty wells. Well No. 2 is now being drilled, and sunk to a depth of 2,500 feet. A cable outfit is through all flowing oil sands, and proposed to in the report of our Engineer and Field Manager, Mr. Edward E. Eastman. He estimates that Well No. 2 will produce steadily at least 100 barrels per day and possibly up to 200.

Q.—Is an investment in California Oil Stock a speculation, or a good business proposition?

A.—It is said on good authority that 50 per cent. of the bankers of the State of California are interested in Oil. Bankers usually know how and where to invest their money. Take a property like the Liberty Oil Company and you have purely a business proposition. It is just a question of how many wells the Company sinks—the more wells the greater the dividends. Your stock increases in value from the day you purchase it. On completion of Well No. 2, we expect the Company's income will be at least $100 per day, and you can easily calculate what the dividends should be on our small capitalization of $500,000. Each succeeding well should average not less than one hundred barrels per day.

Q.—What assurance has the investor that Liberty Oil Company's stock will be a safe and profitable investment?

A.—The Company is incorporated under the strict laws of the State of California, and the Directors are all capable business men of unquestioned integrity, and honest management of the Company's affairs is assured. The capitalization (500,000 shares), is in Treasury of the Company, and as there is no promotion, bonus or free stock, every stockholder is on an equal basis. In all probability it will not be necessary to sell all of the Treasury Stock to put the Company on a dividend paying basis and to fully develop the property, in which event each stockholder's interest would be increased proportionately.

Q.—Has any money been expended on the property?

A.—Yes. One well has been sunk to a depth of 2,500 feet and is now pumping oil. This well furnishes all the oil needed for fuel, thereby saving the Liberty Oil Company an expense of $500 per month for fuel and hauling same to the property.

Q.—What is the present price of the stock?

A.—The par value is $1.00 per share. A small allotment of stock is being sold at 20c. per share, to sink Well No. 3 and finish Well No. 2, which is now being drilled. This allotment will doubtless be over-subscribed. Send in your order at once, as price will advance without notice.

Q.—What income can I expect from my stock?

A.—The Company feels reasonably sure that a dividend can, and will be paid within one year, or as soon as there are three pumping wells on the property. They also believe that the dividends will be at least one (1c) cent. per share per month. That would be sixty per cent. per annum to the investor who buys at 20c. per share.

Q.—Will it be necessary for an investor to wait until the Company is paying dividends to realize a profit on his investment?

A.—NO. You will be able to sell your stock within sixty or ninety days at an advance, if you take time by the forelock and buy at the present low price, 20c. per share.

Q.—Under what conditions can I visit the property?

A.—Write us if you want to go and look over the property of the Liberty Oil Company at our expense, and tell us how much you will invest, providing you find it as good as we have represented. We are sure you will double the amount after a personal inspection.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 7 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, MONDAY JANUARY 10, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

THE CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC CO. TO DOUBLE THEIR WORKING STAFF

Around the World In Just 26 Days

London, Jan. 8.—Speaking after the launching at Wallsend of the liner Prince Rupert, built for the Grand Trunk Pacific Ry. Co., Mr. Hunter, chairman of the building firm, made in his speech an interesting calculation, showing how it should now be possible to go around the world in twenty-six days.

With steamers crossing from Liverpool to Canada at the rate of twenty-knots, and allowing for an average speed of forty miles an hour on the Canadian Pacific Ry., the journey from England to Yokohama should be reckoned be done in sixteen and a half days. Returning to England by Vladivostock and the Siberian Railway in ten days, one could be back twenty-six and a half days after departure from England, thus beating Jules Verne hollow."

Hockey Season is on First Junior O. H. A. Game Played Tonight

The Junior O.H.A. series will open in the Brock street rink tonight with two local sevens lined up against each other. This will be a winner as local teams in a big league are always keen rivals. The Collegiates and Peterborough Colts will put up the first exhibition and they will line up as follows:—

Colts.		Collegiates.
Halpin	Point	Richardson
Munroe	Cover	Geale
Heffernan	Rover	Dennison
Pratt		Crane
Hall	Right Wing	Burritt
Sherrit		Cobroy

CITY LEAGUE.

The second game of the City League Hockey will be seen in the Brock street rink on Wednesday night, from eight o'clock until ten, or after. If the last games were a sample of the exhibitions to be put up this season the city league teams will make the O.H.A. teams hustle. The first game will be between Keene and the West Ends at eight o'clock and the second game between the T.A.S. and Strathconas. The High Commissioners are out to win this year. Their colors were allowed to droop last season but Bill Metheral says he has got the proper dope this year.

MERCANTILE LEAGUE.

The Auburns and C.G.E. teams will meet in a Mercantile League game tonight after the junior O.H.A. contest between Collegiates and Colts.

PRESS CLUB.

The members of the Press Club are getting into shape for the hockey season. They will practice shooting "hot air" almost any night, or every night this week. President McRae of the Tame Bunties has already declared himself in the field for a position some place along the boards preferably in the press box alongside the time keepers. Josh Craig will be satisfied with anything inside the door, but not too close to the scene of action. Curtis and Theobald will peek through the windows if they cannot get inside. They have their pencils in good shape and are taking long breaths regularly. The air is warming up but look out when they begin to shoot the real hot stuff. It is said the Press Club's Hockey seven will challenge Galt for the next chance at the tin can or the Stanley Cup. Arrangements to be made and announced later.

PRACTICE TONIGHT.

Only the following players are asked to turn out to practise this evening, the above being selected by the executive on Saturday night;

Derocher.
McDougall.
Dusty.
Rose.
Ray
Westberstone.
Dobson.
Seymour.
McMillan.
Glover.

TAME BANTIES WON.

The Tame Banties won their second annual game at Brock street rink Saturday evening, when they defeated the Auburn Mercantile League team by 6—5.

Bill Sherrit has been elected to captain the Peterborough Colts.

Special Meetings in Methodist Churches

Commencing tonight a month of special revival meetings will be held in the Methodist churches of the city. For the first two weeks the services will be held in George street and St. James' and for the next two in Charlotte street and Mark street.

The meetings will be held each week night of the month except on Saturdays.

The ministers of the Methodist churches in which the meetings are being held will conduct the services and the pastors of the other Methodist churches will be the speakers.

Anniversary Services.

Large crowds filled All Saints' church both morning and evening yesterday. The occasion was the anniversary, and probably the last one to be celebrated in the old church. Rev. L. E. Skey, M.A., rector of St. Anne's church, Toronto, was the special preacher and he delivered two powerful and eloquent sermons which were appropriate to the occasion. Mr. Skey is one of the best speakers the Church of England in Canada, and his addresses here were greatly appreciated.

At Hastings.

Rev. J. G. Potter took the services in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Hastings, yesterday, and Rev. F. A. Thompson of that village, occupied St. Andrew's pulpit here.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all dealers.

Ald. Gillespie Home.

Ald. Gillespie has returned from Belleville, where he has been attending the annual meeting of the Eastern Dairymen's Association, which has been in progress since Friday. Mr. Gillespie is greatly pleased with the educative advantages afforded by the many sessions and the various and practical talks that are given on dairy subjects.

At Present Time Some 1,100 Hands are Employed

Will Mean a Great Boom to Business of Every Kind in this City—Will Employ About 2,500 Men

The Toronto Star on Saturday night contained an advertisement for men wanted by the Canadian General Electric Company, which has a most important bearing on this city. The Canadian General intends to double its capacity and they are beginning to gather the men together now. At the present time some 1100 hands are employed and to double that would mean anywhere from 2000 to 2500. It will mean a great boom to business of every kind in this city, and it is better than getting another newindustry.

It has been known for a long time that the Canadian General was filled up with orders and that the staff had been working night and day, and it was felt several months ago that the staff could be doubled in order to turn out thework. The step was however put off until the management of the company was perfectly satisfied that the business development of the country would justify their move. That time has now come.

To accommodate the large addition to their staff means an immense increase in the capital invested in both machinery and buildings and it is understood from outside sources that work will begin at once to provide the necessary accommodation. The property just outside to the south of the present plant, it is understood will be built on in the spring as the company acquired that property a year or so ago.

When The Times called up Mr. Patterson yesterday it was learned that he wasout of the city. Other members of the management had nothing to say as to the plans. They would only admit that the advertisement in the Star was correct. The intentions of the company were not yet ripe to give to the public.

Roads Spending Millions to Make Travel Safer

W. L. Park, of Omaha, general superintendent of the Union Pacific, in an address before the New York and New England Association of Railway Surgeons, at the Academy of Medicine, described in an interesting way the evolution of railroads in this country. His topic was "Conditions Necessary for the Safe Operation of the Railroad From a Constructive View, Individualized, Example of Best Organized Railway."

He opened his address by stating that "the casualty report of any of our largest railroads is akin to that of the commanding general of an army in time of war, except that on the railroad there is no cessation—a steady grinding and crunching of human flesh and bones under the juggernaut of modern car wheels. It is indeed a subject fraught with much interest and no little concern, both to the railroad and the public—one requiring careful analysis and plans ready to bring about a lessing of unnecessary suffering and waste of economic forces."

Mr. Park then pointed out the great outlay that is now being made to secure conditions for safe operation and to correct the hastily constructed lines of the era during which as many as 70,000 miles of rail was laid in one decade.

There followed then an outline of a well organized railway, stipulating conditions which if carried out should make the management of the particular property immune from even unbiased and just criticism from the public or railroad expert. That the example he had in mind was the Harriman system would seem to be evident in that he told of the "Publicity for Accidents" inaugurated by and in the early nineties by which accidents involving serious personal injuries, loss of life or heavy property loss are investigated by boards of inquiry, which, in addition to the railroad officials, are composed of United States army officers, state governors, mayors along the route, business men, farmers and other prominent citizens whose integrity is undisputed. Obviously then Mr. Park feels that the Union Pacific has adopted such methods of operation on lines so as to make them feel perfectly safe in having those methods carefully scrutinized by an inquisitive and criticising public without being accused or employing shoddy, unsafe or loose management. He further stated that "Publicity for accidents removes from the officials the taint of alleged mercenary suppression, nullifies yellow journalism and enlists the assistance of public sentiment to enforce a closer observance of rules and laws."

Another requisite of a well organized railroad was stated to be the automatic block signals. These are employed extensively on the Harriman lines, which have the notable reputation of possessing over 25 per cent. of all the milage automatic block signals in service on all the railroads in the United States.

In conclusion, Mr. Park said:

"I wish to reiterate that the progressive achievement of American railroads is the marvel of the age. To this must be credited our commercial supremacy. The railroads are an integral part of our body politic—the arteries through which our commercial life flows. To poison and coagulate this by the imposition of unreasonable or unfair laws must always, as recently occurred, make the whole national body sick. If guaranteed their constitutional rights and exemption from emotional impulses, or political plundering, the American railroad man will, with his fine perception and great energy, make them the safest and most magnificent highways on the face of the earth."

Splendid Addresses at the Farmers' Institute Meeting

Splendid addresses were given at the meeting at Central Smith Temperance Hall on Saturday night under the auspices of the Farmers' Institute. Mr. Duff of Norwood, spoke on "The Market End of Farming," and referred to the excellent results the Farmers' Clubs were accomplishing. Mr. John Guardhouse's topics were the "Care and Management of the Farm," and "How to Interest the Young People in the Farm:" and Mr. H. B. Cowan, editor of Farm and Dairy, gave an address on "The Single Tax Question."

Mr. J. H. Garbutt was in the chair.

ALWAYS FEARS DEATH.

Czar's Life Continually In Danger—The Persian Shah's Belief.

Wherever he is, wherever he goes, the Czar of Russia is surrounded day and night by police and troops or by battleships and police patrols, says an English writer.

Nor is the precaution unnecessary. Without this strict guard his life would not be worth an hour's purchase. There is always at least one plot on foot for his assassination, and numerous attempts upon his life have been made. But so far the keen and restless watch over him has been so successful that he has never actually come face to face with violence.

It is for this reason perhaps that he has that personal fear of death from which so many rulers are conspicuously free. The German Emperor, for example, goes about continually without any very effective escort and has consequently looked the would-be assassin in the face over and over again. Whatever may be his faults, the Kaiser has no lack of personal courage.

But even his iron nerve may break down on occasion. When he came to England on the death of Queen Victoria a photographer managed to get close to his carriage window, and the loud click of the camera sounded so like the cocking of a revolver that the Kaiser for a moment changed color.

One who saw the attempt made in Paris on the life of the late Shah of Persia says: "The would-be assassin jumped upon the step of the Shah's carriage and levelled a revolver straight at the head of his victim, pulling the trigger twice, but ineffectually. The Shah himself, looking directly into the barrel of the weapon, was the only spectator of the incident who was wholly unaffected. As motionless as a graven image, the only expression upon his face was one of a slightly contemptuous amusement, and when his assailant was removed he dismissed the congratulations of the officials with an airy wave of the hand, as though the matter were too insignificant for notice."

Answering the more formal felicitations that followed later on, the Shah remarked that if his death were not ordained by fate he could not walk unscathed among the united assassins of Europe, while if it were so ordained all the soldiers in France could not save him.

Bunyan's Memorial In Abbey.

Subscriptions are being raised to placed a stained glass window in Westminster Abbey in memory of John Bunyan. The dean has placed at the disposal of the executive committee one of the largest windows in the north transept of the abbey, and designs for the window have been approved. The cost is placed at £7,000, of which only half has been raised.

John Bunyan is read by millions of people all over the world. One might almost confine the statement to Canada. There are hundreds of thousands at all events here who have derived from Bunyan's great Dream their finest lessons in literature, and all that it implies. Many of the leading writers now rank Bunyan as the greatest writer of English prose, his strong, earnest simplicity, and dramatic imagination standing practically unrivalled.

Not In Love.

The cashier of a French bank enters the private office of the president nervous and agitated.

"Sir," he says, "I have something on my mind which I feel myself compelled to disclose, though for months I have striven to conceal it." The president turns pale. "The fact is I love your daughter!"

The president breathes more freely. "Ah, you love my daughter! Do you ever make any errors in your books or in counting your cash, find yourself abstracted, eh?"

"Never, sir," with pride.

"Then, sir, I must decline to encourage your suit. You are not really in love."

Kept Dodging.

There was a chicken to be killed for Sunday dinner at the Cranes. Mr. Crane did not like to wring its neck; likewise he shrank from using an axe.

"I have it," he finally decided. "I'll shoot it. So, armed with his trusty gun, he took the chicken to the woodshed. Little Robert, anxious to be in at the death, followed. By and by Robert's mother, hearing no sound, stepped to the back porch and called, "Robert, hasn't your father killed that chicken yet?"

"No," Robert called back. "It won't get in the way."

A Curious Dish.

The favorite dish at Egyptian harem feasts is a curious one. It appears to be a lamb roasted whole, and it is, but there is much more to it than appears on the outside, for inside the lamb is a turkey, and inside the turkey is a chicken; the chicken is stuffed with a pigeon, the pigeon with a quail, and a becafico, said to be the smallest bird known, except the humming bird, is at the heart of this curious toast.

Transmigration of Souls.

First Johnnie—What caused him to relinquish the ecophyx? The last time I saw him he was claiming to be the reincarnation of his grandfather.

Second Johnnie—Yes. He firmly believed that he was the reincarnation of his grandfather, but people began dunning him for money they had lent the old gentleman fifty years ago, and he dropped the theory like a hot potato.

Good at Learning.

Mrs. Post—Do you think you'll smoke when you're older, Johnnie? They say it makes one awfully sick at first.

Johnnie (aged ten)—I don't expect my brother ever'll smoke. It was'nt the slightest effort for me to learn.

Wasn't Necessary.

"Our family is awfully exclusive," said one little girl to another who had just moved into the adjoining flat. "Is yours?"

"Oh, no!" replied the other. "We haven't anything to be ashamed of."

United States is at Commencement of Great Political Fight

The United States is at the commencement of a great political struggle, next to the civil war the greatest in its history. It turns on the People against the Interests, and it involves the reputation and policy of President Taft and of the Republican party. It brings Roosevelt again into the limelight. The particular issue on which the struggle for the moment turns are two: (1) President Taft's message of Friday to Congress dealing with proposed legislation for the regulation of corporations doing interstate service (railways, telegraphs, etc., eventually all the big trusts and interests); (2) the removal also on Friday of Mr. Pinchot from the office by President Taft. Pinchot, having been at the head of the new federal organization for the preservation of the natural resources of the country.

For weeks now there has been a growing suspicion that Taft was falling into the hands of the corporations; that any measure he might propose would not be very drastic when it got through Congress and came to him for signature. The news below will throw more or less light on this phase of the question.

LOOKS LIKE BIG SPLIT.

The Taft-Pinchot incident looks like a big split in the Republican party. Mr. Pinchot was picked out by Theodore Roosevelt as the permanent official to organize the movement for the preservation of the natural resources of the United States, and he has been fitting himself for this office for years. Mr. Pinchot is a wealthy man, and only takes office from a sense of public duty, and has shown himself ready for any sacrifice in the service to which he has devoted his life.

International Race Between England, France and U.S.A. To Capture South Pole

United States' Ambition Fired by Fitting Out of Two British Expeditions—Charcot, Bartlett and Scott the Leaders

New York, Jan. 8.—A race for the South Pole with England, France and the United States, all struggling to reach the goal from different sides of the earth is now promised as the result of an official announcement yesterday that an American Antarctic expedition is to be launched under the auspices of the National Geographic Society of Washington.

Never before was there such an international fight for Antarctic fame. Until Peary planted his flag at the North Pole, this country had never been regarded as a probable rival in the search for the earth's southernmost point. The danger is now acknowledged by Britishers as adding to their desire to get to the southern goal, with all possible speed.

France already is represented somewhere within the Antarctic zone by Dr. Jean Charcot, who sailed south from Rio Janeiro on October 22, 1908. Nothing has been heard from him since April 17 last, when his wife received a letter from Deception Island.

Fully nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism is simply rheumatism of the muscles, due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment. All that is needed to afford relief is the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. Give it a trial. You are certain to be pleased with the quick relief which it affords. Sold by all dealers.

Great Britain Takes a Hand in This

Washington, Jan. 8.—Great Britain has taken a hand in the Nicaraguan situation, demanding that both the Estrada and Madriz forces protect British property at Greytown, and stating that the British cruiser Seylla will permit no fighting at that port.

"If any does take place," the commander of the Seylla says in his statement, "I shall consider myself at liberty to land a strong armed party and guns to stop it."

The purport of the British ultimatum came as a surprise to officials here, despite the fact that Commander Shipley of the cruiser Des Moines, had taken somewhat similar action at Bluefields. But the commander of the Seylla makes his demand in much stronger terms than was expected.

BRITISH OWN HOUSES.

There is no definite information here of contemplated military activities at Greytown, but the presence of one-time supporters of General Zalaya, near Greytown, where, under General Toledo, they were surrounded by the insurgents, lead to the belief that the insurgents may be planning to force their surrender before proceeding against Managua. General Toledo some weeks ago abandoned his troops and turned up suddenly in Mgnagua, having left another officer in charge.

The majority of houses in Greytown are owned by British subjects and it is for this reason that the British feel called upon to act. The Scylla is a British cruiser of 3400 tons stationed at Esquimalt. She carries an armament of two 6-inch guns, six 7.4 inch, eight 6 pounder, one 3 pounder, one field gun and four machine guns. She is also equipped with four torpedo tubes and carries twelve torpedoes.

ACUTE DYSPEPSIA.

Restoration of Stomach Power Comes Quickly With the Right Medicine.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.O. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended, and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend, who had been cured of a similar condition advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvellous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon glowed within me. I can now eat, sleep and live like a live man."

Be advised—Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. 25c. per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Big Population Increase.

Winnipeg, Jan. 6.—Winnipeg has grown greatly in population. Last year's census figures showed a population of about 130,000. According to the census in the directory that is taken each year, Winnipeg's population—including the close-lying suburbs—was 167,383. The directory figures covering the same territory are not completed for this year, yet.

Mr. George B. Fleming, accountant of the Merchants' Bank, Lethbridge, Alta., is the guest of his brother, Mr. D. R. Fleming, 569 Gilmour street.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Heaviness at Pit of the Stomach

Nearly everyone gets an occasional attack of indigestion and knows just what that heavy feeling means in the stomach. "I was subject to stomach derangements and my health was seriously hampered on this account. After meals I belched gas, had a wishy sensation in my stomach and over my left side. The first relief I got was from Nerviline—I used it three times a day and was cured. I continue to use Nerviline occasionally, and find it is a wonderful aid to the stomach and digestive organs."

The above letter comes from Mrs. P. E. Stetson, wife of an important merchant in Brockton, and still further proof of the exceptional power of Nerviline is furnished by A. E. Roseman, the well-known upholsterer of Chester, who writes: "Let everyone with a bad stomach use Nerviline, and I am sure there will be few sufferers left. I used to have cramps, rumbling noises and sour stomach and severe fits of indigestion. Nerviline was the only remedy that gave me relief, and I found it so entirely satisfactory that I would like to have my letter of recommendation published broadcast in order that others may profit by my experience."

LANES OF OCEAN TRAVEL

Steam Vessels Can Pursue an Almost Unvarying Route.

Although the oceans of the world have no visible streets or crossings or signposts, in the eye of the navigator they are just as distinctly marked. No railway train accomplishes so direct a line between points as does the steamship. No locomotive engineer knows more exactly where he is at all times than does the sea captain.

Vessels operated by steam can pursue an almost unvarying line. Their movements accordingly prescribe courses between various ports, known as "lanes," over which practically all the shipping moves. In case of a derelict down the vessel is much more likely to run up on a spot that is less frequented parts of the sea. There, too, rocks, dangers and other obstructions may be more carefully charted and watched on the highly traveled courses. There is usually an east as well as a west lane, a few miles apart, to lessen the danger of collision.

In the matter of inland navigation it may be pointed out that on the great lakes there is a four track line from Duluth, two of the routes for passenger steamers and two for freighters.

Sailing vessels responsive to winds tides and currents go about more at random. Yet there are immense areas of the sea where no sail or smokestack is ever seen.

It has been pointed out that the completion of the Panama canal will have some marked effects upon the great lanes of ocean travel. While it is true that vessels have for many years gone into Panama and Colon for the transshipment of their cargoes across the isthmus by rail, yet it is thought that the opening of the new canal will create something like a revolution in the matter of the lines now used regularly.

The canal when completed may, as some one has said, be likened to the substitution of a strong bridge at a convenient place for crossing a river for a mere ford or less uncertain ferry. Such a bridge, of course, attracts wagon roads, etc., in like manner it is believed, the canal will draw toward it the commercial highways of this hemisphere.—New York Tribune.

Scarcity of Leather.

When the scarcity of hides and skins is referred to it is hardly understood by the layman, who perhaps does not know that the world is being scoured in all corners for all available skins and hides. More races are constantly becoming civilized, and the increase of our hide and skin supply is not in proportion to that of the human race. The amount of leather used in the manufacture of novelties of all kinds has increased to a great extent within the last few years, says the Shoe Retailer, but in no line has the use of leather broadened so extensively as in automobile manufacture. Any one who is at all familiar with an automobile knows that there is a considerable amount of leather used in its construction, in upholstery and otherwise. This means a large draft on the leather market, which is perhaps more noticeable in the high price of upready steers, the hides of which are extensively used for that purpose.

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Chin, thus giving us a chain of ele-vators at towns for a distance of 90 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $18.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of our chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent. dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as reference of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 16.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 25.29 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in those concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

Unparalled Growth of the North-West During 1909.

Winnipeg, Jan. 6.—Final summing up of the year's progress in the West shows that 1909 has been a year of unparalleled growth and development in Western Canada. Based upon the sure foundation of splendid crops, the progress of the West during the year just closed has not been only very great but of the soundest and most substantial sort. As the largest city in the West, Winnipeg naturally stands out prominently among the many cities and towns that have made phenomenal growth during the year. Winnipeg has grown remarkably in all possible ways.

The Nickel Fisher.

"The up to date American newsboy can learn something in Berlin," writes a New Yorker from that city. "One of the regular sellers of newspapers in this town is a gray haired, tall, soldierly looking man who has adopted an original method. He has the papers attached, one copy of each publication, to a long fishing rod, on the top of which there is a little pocket for coins. People on omnibuses and at upper windows are served by means of the rod. They help themselves to the paper they desire, deposit their money in the little bag, and the sold paper is replaced by another from the stock which the old man carries in a bag slung over his shoulder. The children in the district where he does business call him the 'nickel fisher.'"

Naming Men-of-war.

The big battleships of the United States navy have thus far been named after the states of the Union and the cruisers for the cities. But the department has a good rule by which the names of men who in the past distinguished themselves in the service can be bestowed on the smaller craft. Thus the memory of five naval heroes has just been honored in the designations of the five new torpedo boat destroyers authorized by congress. Twenty-six such names of famous officers have already been used, and to these the department has added those of Rear Admiral Daniel Ammen, Lieutenant John Trippe, Captain Daniel T. Patterson, Rear Admiral Henry Wetke and Ensign John R. Monaghan.—Buffalo Commercial.

Iron Cyclone Cellar.

An iron cyclone cellar is a novelty described in Popular Mechanics. It says that a metal covers in one of the cyclone states is manufacturing the cyclone cellar of extra heavy galvanized corrugated iron. It has a cylindrical shape and is provided with stairway, seats, shelves and bins. Under ordinary conditions it is used for the keeping of fruits and vegetables. The whole is anchored solidly in the ground and thoroughly braced.

Bavarians and Beer.

Bavaria remains easily ahead in its consumption of beer for last year. We are told it drank 248 quarts for every man, woman and child in the kingdom. Though the ladies assist, we may set aside the children and conclude that the average Bavarian man is not far outside a gallon a day.—Westminster Gazette.

THE EAGLE'S EYE.

A Screen That Protects It Against a Too Brilliant Light.

The eagle that stares proudly at the sun has now been found to be no figment of tradition.

M. de Chardonnet, in a paper communicated to the French Physical society, has shown that the eagle's eye has a special apparatus adapted to this feat, though it seems probable that he is not the only bird with this useful possession.

The apparatus is not, however, the "nictitating membrane" which all of us have perceived in looking even at the barnyard fowl. That is a mechanism designed merely to wipe the eye and to keep it clear of dust.

M. de Chardonnet's discovery was made while he was studying the transparency of the central part of the eyes of animals. He had already noticed that the eyes of night birds, such as owls, were more transparent than any other for ultra violet rays, and he had tried to push the experiments further by ascertaining whether they would be affected by ultra violet rays alone.

These experiments failed because of the absence of responsiveness on the part of the birds, which did not appear to manifest any sensation in passing from darkness to light, whether this fist was visible to human eyes or not. M. de Chardonnet's failure led him to inquire whether there was any organ of which he was ignorant in the bird's eye, such as would intervene in such circumstances.

While dissecting a bird's eye he was struck to find an organ to which French naturalists have given precisely the name of the peigne or comb. A better idea of its function would be obtained by calling it a parasol.

This organ is formed of a very thin membrane, black-opaque and situated in the eye where the optic nerve penetrates it. The structure of this membrane is such that the retina is completely masked when the "parasol" is open. It is reasonable to suppose that the parasol is therefore a screen to protect the eye against a too brilliant light, whether the light is visible to the ordinary sense or whether it consists of ultra violet rays.

FINLAND SUMMERS.

Effect of the Famous "White Nights" Upon Vegetation.

The famous "white nights" of the north are a most surprising phenomenon to the visitor from southern climes. It is a weird experience, declares A. M. Scott in "Through Finland," to sit for the first time upon a veranda at midnight and read a newspaper or to walk home from a restaurant at 2 o'clock in the morning and to see people still gossiping at the street corners or strolling along the promenades under a bright, clear sky.

A spirit of rest and peace is over all the earth. The sky is bright, not with the fiery brilliancy of noon, but with a tender, gentle radiance. The colors of the landscape have become softened, but not blended. There are no shadows save for a week or two in June, when the bright northern sky at midnight projects faint, ghostlike shadows toward the south. The sun just dips below the horizon and no more. There is no division between the sunset and the dawn. The same rosy flush serves for both.

Summer in Finland is, in fact, one long day. Never a star is to be seen, and when the first faint star glimmers in the south it is a sign that the summer is past and that the autumn frosts have arrived.

The long light has a marvelous effect upon vegetation, forcing its growth as in hothouse pace. The "white nights" account both for the suddenness of the burgeoning and for the intensity of the heat. Land and water have no time to cool. One cannot fail to be struck with the enormous size of the foliage upon the oak and like trees as compared to that to which we are accustomed. Botanists have explained this as being due to the larger supply of light. It has sometimes been suggested that we may hasten the harvests by the use of artificial lights. Nature herself does this for the Finnish farmer.

Low Tax Rate!

The City of Toronto will this year have a tax rate of about 17 mills. That figure looks good and seems almost incredible when Peterborough's rate this year will be in the 20's. Still in Toronto they have a [illegible] which handles all the important work and plus the [illegible] is more or less a figure head. It is a Board of Control or a commission that is wanted for Peterborough.

ELEVATOR SHARES.

Western Farmers Elevator and Milling Co.'s Offer.

It is seldom the public is given an opportunity to secure an investment in a sure thing like the proposition offered by the Western Farmers' Elevator and Milling Company, Limited, of Lethbridge, Alberta. This company is formed for the purpose of erecting and maintaining elevators and fiber mills within easy reach of the farmers in the West and thereby make a big saving in money to all parties concerned. It is proposed now to erect a mill with a 100 barrel capacity per day on Steel Island where natural gas has been found in abundance and where they have arranged for a supply of gas to generate 100 horse power at $1.65 per day of 10 hours. This means a saving of at least $17 per day in fuel alone. Other advantages are equally as great. It is also proposed to erect two more elevators one at Burdett and one at Chin, and thus complete their chain of elevators.

ZAM-BUK

We want every person who is suffering from any skin injury or disease to personally prove the merits of Zam-Buk.

Read the experience of these three persons—possibly one of them may be well known to you—and then make it a personal matter. If you cut out this advertisement, write across it the name of this paper and mail it to us with a 1c stamp (to pay return postage) we will send you a trial box of Zam-Buk free!

Zam-Buk is a proved cure for eczema, ulcers, abscesses, poisoned sores, ringed hands, cold sores, eruptions, cuts, bruises, burns, scalp sores, bad legs, chapped or cracked hands, and all skin injuries and diseases. It also cures piles. All druggists and stores 50c. or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

What Followed a Scratch.

Mrs. Brown 7 Oakmont Ave., Montreal, says:—"While busy in the kitchen one day the cook dog fell off, striking my right leg and inflicting a nasty scratch. While this was painful, I never thought it would become a serious wound, but to my surprise it became very much inflamed and very painful. I found that the dye from my stocking had got into it and poisoned it. The pain and inflammation got worse and the wound discharged freely. At this stage someone advised me to try Zam-Buk and I obtained a supply. This balm seemed to draw out the poisonous matter, reduced the inflammation and soothed the wound. I naturally persevered with Zam-Buk and within a few weeks the wound was quite healed."

Eczema Banished.

To be covered with sores which sometimes itch and burn, and then, when rubbed, cause acute agony—sores which look repulsive as well as cause pain—sores which have defied all remedies that have been applied to them—what could be worse? Yet this is the lot of scores of people to-day who suffer from that terrible disease, Eczema. To all such sufferers we will send trial box of Zam-Buk free! Write us, sending 1c stamp to pay return postage.

Mr. Wm. Dangerfield, 928 Lipton St., Winnipeg, says:—"Last winter I suffered from Eczema. After trying lotions, salves and powders given me by the doctor, which failed to do me any good, I tried Zam-Buk. This proved equal to my case and cured me."

Use as a Household Balm.

Mrs. W. Blair, 91 St. Catharine St., Hamilton, speaks of the value of Zam-Buk as a household balm. She says:—"I one day slipped and fell against a Morris rocker, knocking my knee very badly. The knee turned black and blue and was very painful. I rubbed Zam-Buk well into the injured member and it was indeed surprising how quickly I found relief. The swelling soon reduced and pain and discolouration banished. By perseverance with Zam-Buk my injured knee was well again in a couple of days.

"I have since proved it to be the handiest and best balm for household purposes. A few applications of Zam-Buk gave me ease from rheumatism also."

A BARGAIN IN OIL STOCK

20 Cents Per Share

THE LIBERTY OIL COMPANY

is offering a limited number of shares of the Treasury stock for sale for the purpose of further development, at the ridiculously low price of 20c per share.

This property has one well pumping Oil, and is drilling Well No. 2. Bear in mind that two wells of 100 barrels each could pay dividends on our small capitalization.

Read the following Questions and Answers, and then fill in the Coupon at once:

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question—What is the Capital Stock of the Liberty Oil Company?

Answer—Five Hundred Thousand shares of a par value of $1.00.

Q.—Is there any free stock, bonus stock, or promotion stock?

A.—No. Every share of stock is placed in the Treasury for the benefit of the stockholders.

Q.—Is there more than one kind of stock?

A.—NO. All Common Stock.

Q.—Is there any bonded indebtedness?

A.—NO.

Q.—What acreage does the Liberty Oil Company control?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company has a forty year lease on 125 acres of proven oil ground, on a royalty of one-sixth of the oil shipped.

Q.—Where is the property located?

A.—Ventura County, California, nine miles from Nordhoff and twelve miles from Santa Paula. Both of these towns are on the Southern Pacific Railway. All supplies will come from Los Angeles, which is about seventy miles south, insuring prompt delivery.

Q.—Is it necessary to build a wagon road to the property from either of the above mentioned towns?

A.—NO. There are good wagon roads from both cities, and an automobile can be driven to the property without difficulty.

Q.—How do you know this is oil-bearing ground?

A.—Because we have one well on the property that is on the pump. This will furnish all the fuel required for pumping well No. 1, drilling Well No. 2, and a surplus beside. The Union Oil Co. has numerous producing wells one-fourth mile to the south of us and also just north of our property. Furthermore, we have some of the largest oil seepages in Ventura County.

Q.—What grade of oil is produced in Ventura County?

A.—Most of the Ventura County oil is high gravity, suitable for refining purposes, and brings $1 per barrel upwards at the well. The oil on our property is high gravity oil.

Q.—What facilities have you for disposing of your oil?

A.—The oil will be delivered to the Union Oil Company's pipe line one mile distant, through a gravity pipe line, which will soon be constructed.

Q.—What does the Liberty Oil Company agree to do if I subscribe for stock?

A.—They agree to expend the money received from the sale of stock through their financial agents, Sagar & Loomis, for the general development of the property.

Q.—What development work does the Company propose to do?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company proposes to sink additional wells from time to time until the property is fully developed, the estimated limit for maximum results being thirty wells. Well No. 2 is now being drilled, and sunk to a depth of 2,600 feet thereby cutting through all five of the oil-bearing sands referred to in the report of our Engineer and Field Manager, Mr. Edward F. Eastman. He estimates that Well No. 2 will produce steadily at least 100 barrels per day and possibly up to 200.

Q.—Is an investment in California Oil Stock a speculation, or a good business proposition?

A.—It is said on good authority that 50 per cent. of the bankers of the State of California are interested in Oil. Bankers usually know how and where to invest their money. Take a property like the Liberty Oil Company and you have purely a business proposition. It is just a question of how many wells the Company sinks—the more wells the greater the dividends. Your stock increases in value from the day you purchase it. On completion of Well No. 2, we expect the Company's income will be at least $100 per day, and you can easily calculate what the dividends should be on our small capitalization of $500,000. Each succeeding well should average not less than one hundred barrels per day.

Q.—What assurance has the investor that Liberty Oil Company's stock will be a safe and profitable investment?

A.—The Company is incorporated under the strict laws of the State of California, and the Directors are all capable business men of unquestioned integrity, and honest management of the Company's affairs is assured. The capitalization (500,000 shares), is in Treasury of the Company, and as there is no promotion, bonus or free stock, every stockholder is on an equal basis. In all probability it will not be necessary to sell all of the Treasury Stock to put the Company on a dividend paying basis and to fully develop the property, in which event each stockholder's interest would be increased proportionately.

Q.—Has any money been expended on the property?

A.—Yes. One well has been sunk to a depth of 2,000 feet and is now pumping oil. This well furnishes all the oil needed for fuel, thereby saving the Liberty Oil Company an expense of $500 per month for fuel and hauling same to the property.

Q.—What is the present price of the stock?

A.—The par value is $1.00 per share. A small allotment of stock is being sold at 20c. per share, to sink Well No. 3 and finish Well No. 2, which is now being drilled. This allotment will doubtless be over-subscribed. Send in your order at once, as price will advance without notice.

Q.—What income can I expect from my stock?

A.—The Company feels reasonably sure that a dividend can, and will be paid within one year, or as soon as there are three pumping wells on the property. They also believe that the dividends will be at least one (1c) cent. per share per month. That would be sixty per cent. per annum to the investor who buys at 20c. per share.

Q.—Will it be necessary for an investor to wait until the Company is paying dividends to realize a profit on his investment?

A.—NO. You will be able to sell your stock within sixty or ninety days at an advance, if you take time by the forelock and buy at the present low price, 20c. per share.

Q.—Under what conditions can I visit the property?

A.—Write us if you want to go and look over the property of the Liberty Oil Company at our expense, and tell us how much you will invest, providing you find it as good as we have represented. We are sure you will double the amount after a personal inspection.

If your stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal endorsement. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 8 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, TUESDAY JANUARY 11, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Craham won Appeal Against Magistrate's Conviction Recently

Mr. G. N. Graham, proprietor of the Oriental Hotel, won his appeal against the conviction in the police court by Magistrate Dumble some time ago on the charge of selling liquor after hours on a Friday night. Chief Roszel laid the information, and his chief witnesses were P. C. Mahaffy and P. C. Newhall, who also figured very prominently in the perjury charges laid as a result of the liquor case. The police were also the main witnesses yesterday and their evidence was similar to what they gave before.

Messrs. O'Connell and Gordon represented Mr. Graham, and Mr. A. P. Ponsettee acted for the Crown. His Honor Judge Huycke heard this appeal case, as he also heard the perjury charges. The taking of evidence occupied the whole day, but before adjourning last night about half-past six o'clock, his honor gave his decision in favor of the appelant and quashed the magistrate's conviction, stating at the same time that he did not think the evidence was sufficient for a conviction against Graham.

This closes the fourth chapter of the disturbance caused by the police officers who watched Graham's hotel for several hours for several nights. The fifth chapter, and it is to be hoped the closing chapter, will be the investigation of the police force by the Police Commissioners, which his Honor Judge Huycke declared was necessary as a result of the cases referred to. This investigation will take place in the near future.

Mayor Morrow's Inaugural Address

Mayor Morrow officially signed his name yesterday for the first time, when the minutes of the last meeting of the old year were confirmed and adopted. The Mayor and Aldermen made their declarations of qualifications and office at eleven o'clock and shortly afterwards met in the Council chamber when His Worship assumed the red plush, upholstered chair on the dais that overlooks all the aldermen and called his first meeting to order by a dignified knock with his gavel and the civic year of 1910 was under way. City Clerk Armstrong announced that all the preliminary declarations had been made and Mayor Morrow addressed the Council as follows:

Gentlemen of the Council.—It affords me a great pleasure to congratulate you on your election and welcome you as members of the City Council.

As you are no doubt aware the by-law providing for the election of aldermen by the Ward system will necessitate the election of all the members again next year and the reduction of the number of aldermen to ten. There will still be the two year term and the alderman in each ward who receives the highest number of votes will hold office for two years, and thereafter one alderman will be elected annually from each ward.

In regard to the by-law to provide for borrowing $19,000 for the erection and equipment of an Isolation Hospital, although it was defeated by a small majority I think indicated that the electors desire a hospital for that purpose, but consider that the amount asked for was larger than should be expended upon it. It would be well for the Property committee to give the matter their immediate attention to see if the views of the electors cannot be met and an adequate building erected and equipped for a sum well within the amount the Council is authorised to expend.

The passing of the by-law granting a thirty year franchise to the Peterborough Light and Power Company will, I am informed, lead to the immediate extensions of the street railway system within the city limits and consequent increased accommodation for the citizens and also to the extension and improvement of the light and power system, this I am sure will be good news to the citizens generally.

The Board of Works has always a lot of important work on its hands, and I think that they should at once take up the report of Mr. Chipman in reference to providing sewer accommodation for the south-western part of the City, this is one of the most pressing questions to be dealt with. Another important matter of the consideration of the Board of Works is that of permanent roadways in the business sections of the city, where the heavy traffic is concentrated, and at which I am anxious to see a start made this year.

The question of electric power is an important one for the city, and the completion of the waterworks dam will, on the information that has been furnished me, render available in the neighbourhood of one thousand horse-power, after providing for the requirements of the waterworks system. It will be about four years before the expiration of the contract with the Peterborough Light and Power Company for street lighting, and it will be the duty of the Council in consultation with the Water Commissioners to consider how this power can be used to best serve the interests of the citizens. The Council should vigilantly endeavour to acquire additional power.

The request of the Canadian Pacific Railway made to the city some time ago for part of the water front for their freight business and closing of certain streets for the purpose of an entrance to the City of their new road from Victoria Harbour to Peterborough should be taken up by Council and discussed at as early a date as possible. The completion of this road will place Peterborough on the shortest and most direct route between Montreal and Winnipeg.

The continued growth of the City depends to a very large extent on the securing and locating of new manufacturing industries and it will be the duty of the Council to give serious consideration to the best means of making known the city's advantages and of achieving the desired result of securing such new industries. This I think is one of the most pressing and important duties this Council will have to deal with, and should receive the very earliest consideration.

Another matter of first importance will be the laying down of a financial policy, which will while providing for an efficient service be economical and safe, and results in improving even the present financial position of the municipality.

During the election on Monday last, I had occasion to visit the different polling booths, and heard a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed on the part of the ratepayers with the large number of issues to be voted upon. I think that in the future the Council should endeavour to see that there would not be so many questions before the ratepayers at any one time. I also think that in some of the Wards there should be more polling sub-divisions.

I feel confident that the members of the Council will work together pleasantly and harmoniously, and I trust that this year will be a record one in the growth and prosperity of the city.

STOLE HIS CLOTHES

Toronto, Jan. 10.—An old army veteran, named McNaught, who was taken ill in a boarding house some time ago, and was removed to St. Michael's Hospital, found, when able to leave that institution that all his clothing had been stolen from his lodgings. Through the good offices of the St. Vincent De Paul Society, he was provided with a suit of clothes and transportation to Peterborough, where his mother, aged one hundred years, is living.

It's Better To Drink POSTUM NOW

FOUND OUT.

A Trained Nurse Made Discovery.

No one is in better position to know the value of food and drink than a trained nurse.

Speaking of coffee, a nurse of Wilkesbarrie, Pa., writes: "I used to drink strong coffee myself, and suffered greatly from headaches and indigestion. While on a visit to my brother's I had a good chance to try Postum Food Coffee, for they drank it altogether in place of ordinary coffee. In two weeks after using Postum I found I was much benefited and finally my headaches disappeared and also the indigestion.

"Naturally I have since used Postum among my patients, and have noticed a marked benefit where coffee has been left off and Postum used.

"I observed curious fact about Postum when used among mothers. It greatly helps the flow of milk in cases where coffee is inclined to dry it up, and where tea causes nervousness.

"I find trouble in getting servants to make Postum properly. They most always serve it before it has beenboiled long enough. It should be boiled 15 to 20 minutes after boiling begins and serve with cream, when it is certainly a delicious beverage. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

OVER ONE THOUSAND MEMBERS FOR THE TENTH ANNIVERSARY

St. Peter's T. A. S. Held Beautiful Celebration—Have Accomplished a Great Work—Address and Presentation to Rev. Dr. O'Brien—Many Eloquent Speeches

One of the grandest celebrations ever held in this city was the celebration last night of the tenth anniversary of St. Peter's Total Abstainance Society. The Grand Opera House was crowded from the ground floor to the gods and every seat was occupied by some one who had been benefitted either directly or indirectly by the influence of the society and members. The T.A.S. began in 1900 with 75 members and with stiff opposition and anything but a bright outlook. Today, however, with a total Catholic male population of 1200 the T.A.S. has 1035 members, a most remarkable accomplishment. Members are taken in who sign the pledge for six months, one year, or for life, and Rev. Father McColl says that while some have broken their pledges the percentage of violations would not exceed 2 per cent.

The T.A.S. has accomplished a wonderful good. It has raised up hundreds of men to a higher plane, it has made hundreds of homes happy and prosperous, and it has raised the standard of the working classes far above other cities and towns. There are lots of men too low to be admitted to other societies, but those are the very men the T.A.S. goes after especially. Thus has the society prospered and thus will it continue to prosper and be blessed.

Aside from the many flattering and eloquent addresses, musical numbers were given, much to the delight of the audience by Mr. W. Mellroy, Mr. W. S. Davidson, Mr. Osborne and Miss Haliban.

Rev. Father McColl, the new spiritual adviser of St. Peter's T.A.S. occupied the chair, and after a few preliminary remarks, he called upon Ald. Jos. Duffus, president of the T.A.S.

President Duffus gave a short history of the society, which had been started by Rev. Father O'Sullivan, now parish priest of Port Hope. He then extended a hearty welcome to all present including the ladies especially. He did not intend to make a temperance address as that subject had been well debated here recently. He paid a high tribute to Rev. Dr. O'Brien, who had done so much for the society, and he hoped that when the 20th anniversary was celebrated the membership would reach the 2,000 mark.

THE PRESENTATION.

An address beautifully prepared, was read by Mr. Jos. Maher, to Rev. Dr. O'Brien, on behalf of St. Peter's T.A.S. and Mr. Jos. Picard presented him with a purse of gold containing $200 in gold.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien, in expressing his thanks and appreciation, said he hardly knew what to say. He was not prepared for such a presentation. He was glad, however, that his work as spiritual adviser had been appreciated and he was well rewarded by the success of the society and of the individual members.

Other addresses were delivered by Rev. Father John O'Brien of Sault Ste. Marie, his Worship Mayor Morrow, his Honor Judge Huycke, Mr. Jos. Bagley, on behalf of the members; Mr. T. F. Matthews, Mr. Jas. Kendry, Mr. W. H. Denham, Rev. Father McGuire of Downeyville, Mr. J. H. McClellan, Rev. Father Neill, of Belleville; ex-Mayor Rush, D. O'Connell and his Lordship Bishop O'Connor, Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mr. Hollands.

The celebration closed with the National Anthem.

Collegiate Seven won Their First O. H. A. Game from Colts

The O.H.A. season opened here last night in Brock street rink with a game in the junior series between the Collegiates and the Peterborough Colts, and resulted in a win for the former by a score of 5—3.

The half-time score was 3—1. The attendance was small, on account, no doubt, of the many other attractions on. The game, however, was a good clean exhibition of the national winter sport. The teams were very evenly matched, although the school boys were a little better stayers and they were good finishers.

RACE MEET.

A big entry list is looked for at the Peterborough Driving Club's annual ice meeting on January 20—21. The races will take place at the Driving Park, where great preparations are being made for the big two days' meet. Peterborough this year is on the circuit, and the different events will be good. Keep this in mind and watch for further particulars.

Miss Lizzie A. Reid has arrived home from New York, and will spend a few days with friends and relatives here.

Annual Meeting of Knox Y. P. S.

The annual meeting of Knox Young People's Society was held last night when the officers for the year were elected. Rev. H. J. Keith occupied the chair and the attendance was large.

After devotional exercises the following officers were elected for the new year:

Hon. President—Rev H. J. Keith.
President—Mr. J. W. Patten.
Vice presidents of the following committees are Devotional—Mr. Wm. Lorimer.
Missionary—Miss Ella Warren
Literary—Mr. Roy Loring
Membership—Miss Maud Bartley
Secretary—Mr. A. C. Davenport
Treasurer—Miss Haven
Organist—Miss Lottie Chiles.
Assistant Organist—Miss E. Williamson.
Mr. A. G. Graham—Pianoforte solo.
Master F. Montgomery—Song.

Refreshments were then served. Speeches were made by the new officers, promising their loyalty. The president was pleased with the past year, and urged the loyalty of all in the coming year of work. An enjoyable time was spent.

DISASTROUS FIRE.

Sturgeon Falls, Ont., Jan. 10.—This town was visited by a big fire last night, which swept out the Windsor Hotel, Cockburn block, post office, and damaged a number of buildings. The total loss will amount to seventy-five thousand dollars with small insurance.

The fire broke out about seven o'clock Sunday evening in the upper flat of the Windsor Hotel. It is a four-storey structure, and despite the firemen's efforts, spread with stubborn persistence, threatening the entire town. The baggage of the guests and part of the furniture and fixtures were saved from the hotel. The fire spread to the Cockburn block, a frame building adjoining, licking up the Cockburn Mercantile Company's store, the post office, and the town clerk's office, doing serious damage to the building and dry goods store of H. Lefeovitz, also the Imperial block across the street, and the Kirkup House.

The Chairmen were Shaken Up Nearly All New Men were Chosen

Ald. Phelan and Ald. Buller are Both Without Chairmanship.

Members of the Various Committees

To Ask Legislature for Authority to Appoint an Industrial Commissioner.

The inaugural meeting of the City Council was held yesterday morning and when the business was completed, an adjournment was made for the purpose of selecting the chairmen of the various committees. This created not a little surprise as the whole organization was upset, and new men will head every committee except the Manufacturers and it remains with Ald. Gillespie. Ald. Phelan of last year's Board of Works, and Ald. Buller of the Fire, Water & Light, are without a chairmanship at all.

The report as presented to the council last night was as follows:

The Committee of the Whole Council beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

That the standing committees for the year 1910, be composed as follows:

Board of Works — Ald. Hicks, (Chairman), Ald. Phelan, Metheral, Gillespie, Duffus and Duncan.

4. That a grant of $75 be made to the Peterborough Poultry Association towards the expense of their exhibition.

5. That the city solicitor be instructed to give notice of an application for legislation to give the city authority to appoint and pay a commissioner of industries.

A MAIL PACKAGE FROM EAST AFRICA.

On Saturday a package came through the local Customs House that has a somewhat interesting history attached. It came from Rhodesia, B.E.I., consigned to Mr. Herb. Nicholl of the Crystal. Mr. Nicholl has a brother at Bamboo Creek, in Portugese East Africa, who is station master on the Beira Mashonaland and Rhodesian Railroad. Bamboo Creek, is situated right in the heart of the African jungle. The place only boasts of some fifty white inhabitants, mostly Portugese. The roar of the lion and tiger and the scream of the man-killing leopard as well as the trumpeting of wild elephants are to be heard nightly. Negros are the main part of those who trade at Bamboo Creek. These traders who bring in ivory, lion, tiger, leopard and panther skins, are true denizens of the aneplored forest.

The package received by Mr. Nicholl came by mail from Rhodesian, the postage stamps representing in Canadian currency about $4. The export of skins of wild animals from Portugese is practically forbidden by an almost prohibitive duty. However, by sending such goods by mail, "sub rosa" to British East Africa, people in the Portugese possessions in East Africa, are enabled to send them abroad. The goods received by Mr. Nicholl yesterday included a perfect skin of a beautifully marked leopard shot by a friend of Mr. Nicholl's brother, near Bamboo Creek. The skin measures exactly six feet eleven inches from the end of the nose to the tip of the tail. Attached to the skin of the head is part of the skull, including the teeth. The canine teeth are fully an inch and a half to two inches in length. In the package were also a few mahogany beans taken from the mahogany trees. They are about an inch and a half long, black as jet, but the end of the beans nearest the stalk, for about three-quarters of an inch in length, is a brilliant crimson wax-like appearance.

In this connection it might be noted that Bamboo Creek is situated about 60 miles from Victoria Falls. In the package were a number of what are known as "Victoria Beans." These are small beans almost the size of garden peas. The beans are hard as ivory, of a bright scarlet for the greater part with jet black tips. Messrs. Frank Clark & Sons, are at present setting up the beans referred to above. The mahogany beans are being made into hat pin ornaments, and the Victoria beans set as jewels in pendants from brooches. These interesting relics from Africa will be on view in Messrs. Clarke & Sons' window next week.

LOSS OF $45,000.

The closing of over 200 bars as a result of the local option victories will mean a loss of nearly $45,000 to the Province and municipalities from the cutting off of license fees.

In some ridings the revenue will be so reduced that it will not pay the expenses of the inspectors and commissioners, and in several cases there is likely to be a doubling up of license districts.

City Council's First Regular Session was Very Harmonious One

The first regular meeting of the City Council was held last night at seven o'clock when Mayor Morrow occupied the chair. The report of the Committee of the Whole Council on the standing committees for the year was adopted. A lot of communications were read and referred to their various committees.

On motion of Ald. Gillespie and Turner, the Peterborough Light and Power Company's bylaw was given its third reading and the mayor and clerk were ordered to sign and seal the same. So far as the city is concerned this closes the deal with the Light and Power Co., and it is now up to the company to get busy and there is no reason to believe but that they will do so.

On motion of Ald. Morgan and Duncan, the ward system bylaw was given its third and final reading and next year it will go into force.

This motion caused a little discussion and as a result it was moved by Ald. Turner and Gillespie that the city solicitor's opinion be secured as to the effect of the adoption of the ward system bylaw in view of the fact that six of the aldermen were ected on January 3rd for a term of two years.

A bylaw was passed appointing Dr. Burnham and Dr MacNulty as members of the Board of Health for the year. These two men were retiring this year so that they were really only reappointed.

On motion of Ald. Morgan and Duncan, Ald. Graham's name was added to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

On motion of Ald. Morgan and and Phelan, the Property Committee was instructed to take up at once the matter of selling the old Hall building on Simcoe street, and to report back to the council before taking action.

Edmonton Hockey Team will Practice Here Tomorrow Night

City League patrons this week will receive an unusual treat in addition to the regular bill-of-fare, as the Edmonton Stanley Cup team will have an hour's practice at Brock St. Rink on Wednesday during the City League games. President Graham of the City League, received a telegram from Fred Whitcroft this morning, asking him to arrange a practice for the cup team, and this is being done so in addition to the two scheduled games the fans will have a chance to get a line on the Edmonton team, who play Ottawa for the Cup, at the same time. This will be the biggest night's programme that the City League has ever offered and there will no doubt be a record-breaking crowd present.

The people of Peterborough are naually interested in the Westerners, inasmuch as three of the team come from this district—Fred Whitcroft and Walter Miller, of Peterborough, and Jack (Hay) Miller, from Keene. In addition Jack Winchester, the goal keeper, is well known here, having played here with Belleville and Lindsay. It will be a great opportunity to judge the calibre of the Edmonton team and the fans of Peterborough will not let it slip by. Whitcroft, Miller and company will get a great reception when they skate out on the ice at Brock street rink on Wednesday, as in addition to the regular big City League crowd there will likely be many people attracted by the presence of the Edmonton team. It looks like a big night Wednesday night.

CITY LEAGUE HOCKEY.

West Ends vs. Keene, and T.A.S. vs Strathconas.

The City League games on Wednesday night will bring together the West Ends and Keene in the first game and the T. A. S. and Strathconas in the second, and the combination should bring about some of the best hockey of the season. There is considerable speculation among the fans as to the results and there is great diversity of opinion as to just what will happen when the teams get together. Keene is rather fancied in some quarters in the first game on account of the fact that they have already defeated the West Enders twice this season, once in Keene and the other time at the Auditorium Rink. However, it must be remembered that Manager Oldham's team was not nearly up to full strength on either of these occasions, and that there is quite liable to be a different story to tell on Wednesday night, when the West Ends will send out their hardest team. It will be a battle royal that much is certain, with neither team lacking supporters, and from this distance the bout looks worth travelling much farther than Brock Street rink to see. The Keene fans say that their team will make a much better showing than they did last week. They point out that they were considerably at sea on the big ice surface and that furthermore they were troubled with a little attack of stage fright, thus rendering them in bad shape to do their best. "Why, said a Keene man, who was in town today, "we were way off in the first half and you saw what happened when we found ourselves in the second. We outscored the Strathconas in the last period, but we started too late." There may be a great deal in that argument, too, and the West Ends, while reasonably sure of victory, are not any too confident, and will not take any chances.

It is just as hard to get a line on the second game, which brings together the T. A. S. and Strathconas. The Abstainers made a grand fight last week against the West Ends, who are fancied by most of the City League fans, as a faster and stronger team than the Strathconas, and then added to their laurels by going down to Keene on Friday night and beating the Villagers by 5 goals to 4 on their own ice. It kept the Strathconas going all the time to nose out Keene last week, and with the Abstainers holding West Ends down and beating Keene at home there seems to be a snag in front of the Commissioners on Wednesday night. A victory for the T. A. S. would not surprise a considerable section of the fans, especially as the Strathconas are rather reticent in discussing their chances. "We will have our strongest team on and will do our best," was all that one of the Club's officers would say to-day, when asked for an opinion. The Strathconas learned the danger of over-confidence in a distressing manner when they met Lakefield last year so that this season, with a different line-up they are not too hopeful of the result.

Both games on Wednesday night should be fast and exciting, as there will be hockey from the drop of the hat. With the interest shown in the opening games and the two grand games of hockey that we played, a games of hockey that were played, a at this week's double-header.

The programme:
West Ends vs. Keene, 8 o'clock.
Strathconas vs. T. A. S. at 9 o'clock.
Referee—S. W. Rose.

DO YOU VALUE HEALTH.

Regulate and Cleanse Your System.

Spring cleaning does not answer the body! The prime element in the maintenance or in the recovery of health is activity of liver, kidneys and skin. Not occasionally but only by weekly stimulation of these functions can poisons, waste matter, and accumulations within the body be drawn out so that the blood and inward parts be purified and kept wholesome. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the mildest laxative medicine known; they purify the blood, fortify the acetity of liver and kidneys, increase the eliminating power of the skin and create a general feeling of well being—the outcome of wholesale conditions within. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a general tonic to the digestive system; they restore functional effectiveness to all the organs of secretion and contribute in this way enormously to the stability of health.

For general family use in all cases of biliousness, bad blood, indigestion and disorders of the stomach, Dr. Hamilton's Pills have no equal. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c. all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Martin Schabacker.

Mr. Martin Schabacker, died at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Robt. Stuart, 557 Water street, Sunday, Jan. 9th, 1910, aged 81 years, 11 months. Service will be held at the above residence today at 10.30 a.m., and the body will then be taken to the G.T.R. station for interment at Ingersoll, Ont.

John Hunter.

Word has been received in Peterborough of the death in Millbrook of Capt. John Hunter, a well known resident of that village, and father of Mr. Sam Hunter, the famous cartoonist of the Toronto World. The deceased who was eight-two years of age, had lived in Millbrook the greater part of his life and was widely known and respected in the district.

The funeral will take place today at Millbrook.

If your stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A trial will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

THE WEATHER.

Fine; stationary or a little higher temperature.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Horse's Leg Swelled

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Marshison, from his home, Crofts Mill, P.O. I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore and swollen. I applied Nerviline, and it worked like a charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

NERVILINE IS A TRUSTY LINIMENT

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

We have received nearly five thousand letters recommending Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an all-round cure for aches and pains. One million bottles used each year. Try it yourself. Large 25c. bottles of Nerviline, five for $1.00. All dealers or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

FAMOUS STAMP COLLECTION.

One of the largest private stamp collections ever sold has just been acquired, for the sum of £24,500, by W. H. Peckitt, a London stamp dealer, from the executors of the late Sir William Avery of Birmingham. Collected throughout a long life from the age of eight, it is generally considered to be the largest general collection of postage stamps next to that in the British Museum. It is rich in all the great rarities, comprises from 90,000 to 100,000 stamps, and represents almost completely the postal systems of every country in the world.

Two "gems" are unused Postoffice Mauritius stamps engraved by a local watchmaker in Mauritius in 1847. The Prince of Wales paid £1,450 at auction for the two-penny stamp unused. Only two copies of the penny stamp in this state are known. Recently in Paris a collection of Swiss stamps of the millionaire banker M. Paul Mirabaud was sold for approximately £5,000, but in the Avery collection there are several unique pieces lacking in the Mirabaud [illegible] the double Geneva stamp, of which there are seven and a half in existence, [illegible] £75 each. So rare is the whole top two rows of the five centimes Eagle stamp of Geneva that its value can hardly be estimated.

The Avery collection of three-cornered issues of Cape of Good Hope is in many respects is superior to the Vernon Roberts collection, sold to Mr. Peckitt in 1907 for £4,000. The original stamps were engraved in London, but during a temporary shortage in the colony a local engraver had to provide an imitation. These are excessively rare. There are a unique block of four of the penny brick-red stamp and a pair and a single of the fourpence unused and five superb used pairs. Among the stamps of Ceylon the unwatermarked ninepence lilac-brown stamp is valued at £195. The collection also includes a copy of the three-lire stamp of Tuscany unused, worth about £100.

The pair of the twenty-seven parus Moldavian stamp are priceless, and in no other collection will there be found so large a number of the rare first stamps of Moldavia, for which Sir William Avery had a penchant. On one day he bought three complete sets, twelve stamps, for £2,000—a record deal in any single class of rarity.

The collection includes many rare stamps of Great Britain, among them being some of the Parliamentary envelopes issued in January 1840, some five months before the issue of the first stamp and the Mulready envelope. There is a part sheet of twenty of the rare penny black V.R. stamp, worth about £10 a piece singly, and of almost priceless value in a large block as in this instance. Sir William has also an experimental stamp showing the first attempts to perforate postage stamps by Mr. Henry Archer.

There are of the famous circular British Guiana stamps of 1850 the four cents on orange paper, another on yellow paper, two copies of the eight cents on green paper, and five of the twelve cents on blue paper, some being valued at over £100. Of the 1856 series the one cent black on magenta stamp is missing, the only copy in existence being in the possession of a French collector. Of the companion rarity, the four cents on blue paper, Sir William possessed a superb copy valued at over £200. Of the next series of 1862 the four cents black on blue is shown in a complete reconstructed sheet, including seventeen unused and unsigned copies, each lacking the signature of the postmaster. Only three examples of such sheets are known, the others being in the British Museum and in the French collection referred to.

Unique again is the only word which will describe the beautiful unused pair of the 12D black stamp of Canada, of which the collection contains five copies in all. This stamp is worth £600 a copy.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS—J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, W. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER—R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY—C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Chin, thus giving us a chain of elevators at towns for a distance of 60 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $18.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of our chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and [illegible] farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 60c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent. dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Tennessee, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as reference of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 18.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 25.29 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in those concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

FILIPINO WOMEN.

Their Cares Begin Early, and They Win Husbands by Hard Work.

"Filipino women know how to win husbands," says an American woman who is living at Manila. "It is a common thing in the islands to see a girl, young and brown and strong, crushing rice with a heavy wooden mallet, while around her sit a number of admiring swains, looking on, but never dreaming of offering to help. And the girl doesn't expect it. She pounds cheerfully away, and by and by her reward comes in a husband to work for.

"Life accustoms the Filipino woman to labor at a very early age. As a tiny girl she is rarely seen without an appendage in the shape of a baby brother or sister perched on her little brown hip. When she grows a few inches taller and a few degrees stronger she is pressed into service as a water carrier, bearing heavy jars of water poised gracefully on her head from the river to her home. Now, too, she works in the fields, and a vivid bit of color she makes as her short filled scarlet skirt [illegible] she becomes a [illegible] woman at fifteen or before—she may have a small child to tend, and there is the rice to beat and much other work to do.

"Marriage brings no vacation. She is pretty sure to have many children to care for. She tends the fields, cooks and frequently has a stall in the market for several hours a day. But when the women are really old then their rest time comes. They sit quietly by, looking on as life goes past them, but taking part no more. In spite of the hard labor they have had there is generally a very peaceful look in the brown, wrinkled faces of these old women."—New York Tribune.

A ROYAL BED.

The Magnificent One That Was Used by Queen Elizabeth.

An interesting description of the magnificence of a bedstead ordered for Queen Elizabeth's use is found in a "wardrobe warrant" dated 1581 and quoted in "Gleanings After Time." It was of walnut tree, richly carved, painted and gilded. The celure, tester and valance were of cloth of silver, figured with velvet, lined with changeable taffeta and deeply fringed with Venice gold, silver and silk.

The curtains were of costly tapestry curiously and elaborately worked, every seam and every border laid with gold and silver lace, caught up with long loops and buttons of bullion.

The headpiece was of crimson satin of Bruges, edged with a passamayne of crimson silk and decorated with six ample plumes containing seven dozen ostrich feathers of various colors profusely decorated with gold spangles.

The counterpoint was of orange colored satin quilted with cutwork of cloths of gold and silver and of satins of every imaginable tint embroidered with Venice gold, silver spangles and beautifully colored silks fringed to correspond and lined with orange sarsenet.

This was a queen's bed, but almost equally gorgeous ones were common for several centuries. In the reign of Queen Anne a bedstead put up as a prize in a lottery was reported to have cost over £3,000.—London Family Herald.

Graft in the Household.

The tipping system has become acute now that graft is boldly recognized as "business," and the world has no shame for the majority of workers in the vineyard. A charming young matron exclaimed the other day that graft had even invaded her household. She was asked how that were possible and replied, "I have discovered that my most trusted and faithful maid has been approached by some one who shall be nameless to advise the cook, who is another treasure, to leave me." "But she did not?" "Yes, she did," said the young matron, laughing. "Yes, she did, and I don't blame her for the price. My niece Julia was paid $20 to sell me out, and the cook's wages are about double what I can pay." "A case of bribery." "Not at all—plain, unvarnished graft," was the philosophic response.—Boston Herald.

One of Field's Jokes.

Edward Everett Hale greatly enjoyed a joke which was perpetrated on him by Eugene Field. Field celebrated one of Dr. Hale's visits to Chicago by giving a luncheon in his honor and inviting a number of prominent persons to meet him. "Field was a wag," said Dr. Hale, "that I was a temperance man, and therefore I was somewhat surprised to see that the table to which the luncheon was served was very abundantly supplied with bottles labeled 'Whisky,' 'Brandy' and 'Champagne.' But when these bottles came to be uncorked they were all found to contain nothing but water!"

Effective.

A Chicago judge recently rebuked a person who was sitting in the courtroom with his feet placed upon the table by sending him, through a bailiff, a piece of paper on which he had written the following query: "What shoe brush do you wear?" The feet were at once withdrawn.

No Panic.

"We had a bad fire scare in church today."

"Good gracious! Was there a panic?"

"Not to notice. The minister preached on the infernal regions."—New York Journal.

Prodigal.

"That fellow seems to be extravagant."

"Hopelessly. He spends his own money just as if it were the government's."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Scarcity of Leather.

When the scarcity of skins and skins is referred to it is hardly understood by the layman, who perhaps does not know that the world is being scoured to all corners for all available skins and hides. More rares are constantly becoming civilized, and the increase of our hide and skin supply is not in proportion to that of the human race. The amount of leather used in the manufacture of novelties of all kinds has increased to a great extent within a few years, says the Shoe Retailer, but in no line has the use of leather broadened so extensively as in automobile manufacture. Any one who is at all familiar with an automobile knows that there is a considerable amount of leather used in its construction, in upholstery and otherwise. This means a large draft on the leather market, which is perhaps more noticeable in the high price of spready steers, the hides of which are extensively used for that purpose.

TO DOUBLE OUTPUT.

Peterborough Lock Co. to Make Additions to their Buildings.

The Board of Directors of the Peterborough Lock Co., decided some weeks ago to adopt a more vigorous policy and have decided to make additions to the buildings, and add new machinery to enable the Company to double its output. To this end work has been commenced to re-arrange the plant, extend the building, add new and improved machinery, so that the plant will be made more up-to-date, and that the quality and quantity of the goods manufactured will be excelled by none. Mr. C. W. Caley, formerly superintendent of the Russel-Erwin Co., New Britain, Conn., one of the largest companies in the United States, has been engaged as works manager and assumed his position about a month ago. Mr. Jas. Montgomery has the contract for the extensions to the buildings and the new addition to the plating room will be completed this week. Machinery has been ordered and during the next two or three months increased machinery will be installed. The new additions completed to the extent of between $20,000 and $40,000. This further development will also necessitate the employment of a considerable number of additional employees. The business done by the Peterborough Lock Co. during the past year was the largest in the history of the company, and the directors expect and hope that during the coming year the business of the company will justify the expectations of the Board of Directors.

The Times joins with the other citizens of Peterborough in hoping that the business will grow to such an extent that the improved premises will shortly have to be further extended so as to necessitate the Company's building an entirely new plant to another portion of the city.

Master Chas. Rose of Peterborough who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Overton of Otn. left for home last evening.—Lindsay Post.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 9 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY JANUARY 12. 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

The Annual Meeting of the Peterboro' Y.M.C.A. last Night

Officers were Elected at the Y.M.C.A. Annual Meeting Last Night

The annual meeting of the Y.M.C.A., was held in their parlors last night when a large number of the members as well as the officers were present. The meeting was a most harmonious one, and everything passed off very nicely. The new constitution was adopted and will go into effect at once. One of the main features of this was that the Board of Directors will in future be composed of twelve members and they with the other officers were elected at this meeting.

The auditors' report was a most encouraging one and showed that the year 1909 had been a year of progress. There was a deficit, however, of $20, and the association should endeavor, with all their advantages and assistance to at least wind up the year even of with a surplus.

The reports of all the committees were most encouraging and will be found in part below.

The Young Men's Christian Association will start off the year 1910 with everything in their favor and their reports next year will no doubt show a marked increased over other years.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

MEMBERSHIP.

Membership Committee reports at the end of the year the following:

Full privilege members	169
Limited privileged members	93
Boy members	134
Total	396

Which is a net increase of eight during the year.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE.

In the spring it was decided to instal new gymnasium equipment to the value of $200, and in the fall an opportunity was presented of securing, at a very advantageous figure, 100 steel lockers, which were placed in position in the dressing rooms.

The Ladies' Auxiliary has assisted this committee in the purchasing of ordinary supplies, and in providing decorations for the windows.

One dormitory was cut off for the purpose of providing a class room, and the remaining eleven dormitories have contributed to the revenue of tent, even more than was estimated at the beginning of the year. At least 50 different men have occupied the dormitories during the year, while some of these men have been in the building the greater part of the year and a few all through the year.

SOCIAL WORK.

The spirit of sociability has permeated all the departments of the association, and an endeavor has been made to make every member feel that he has a personal responsibility in making the association a real home, for the young men who are away from home, and a place of social intercourse for all members.

Special features have been introduced during the year, including the usual New Year's Day reception, in which the Ladies' Auxiliary were "at home" to members, subscribers and friends of the association.

In October the members' banquet was held, at which the Howden and Eastwood trophies, and other prizes won during the summer were presented, and an outline of the season's work was given.

The addition of a billiard table to the equipment, the gift of the Peterborough Club, towards the end of the year, proves an attraction to the members, and contributes to the social atmosphere of the building.

EDUCATIONAL WORK.

In the early part of the year the matriculation class conducted by the association, was continued, and out of the six different men who enrolled five continued through to the end of the term, and two of these wrote on the examination in July. Which either of these were successful in the examination, both who wrote got through of their work off to enable them to go forward and complete it later. One of these is now in a mission field in the West. In the fall this matriculation class was continued, and 12 different men enrolled at the beginning of the season. It seems, at the end of the year, that nine of them will continue the work up to examination time.

The reading room has become much more used department than ever before, owing to additional periodicals being placed there. There are now 6 daily, 15 weekly, and 23 monthly periodicals on file in the two reading rooms at a cost of $100.

PHYSICAL DEPARTMENT.

Senior men—62 sessions, total attendance 770, aver. 11.

Business men—29 sessions, total attendance 199, aver. 7.

Collegiate boys—45 sessions, total attendance 468, aver. 10.

Junior school boys—45 sessions, total attendance 923, aver. 20.

Senior leaders—25 sessions, total attendance 210, aver. 4.

Total — 269 sessions, attendance 3325, aver. 12.

BOYS' DEPARTMENT.

Under the direction of Mr. George T. Evans in the early months of the year, the work of the Boys' Department was effective, but during the latter part of the year became somewhat handicapped, owing to the fact that from the middle of July until after the middle of December the association was without a member of its staff to give special attention to this department. However, several older boys had received enough training to take a great deal of responsibility, and in the fall a boys' cabinet was elected by the boys themselves to be responsible for the work of the department. Under the supervision of Mr. Laing, the Boys' Department is being put into good working order.

RELIGIOUS WORK.

Four different Bible classes conducted for men, have held 27 sessions, total attendance 189.

Three men's meetings were held, with a total attendance of 1300. As a result of these meetings, 65 men took a definite stand for the Christian life, and many others manifested an interest in Christian service and Bible study. Out of these 65 who entered the Christian life, a number are known to have united with some church.

Under the direction of the Religious Work Department, a special committee has cared for the raising of funds to assist in the support of Mr. Farquhar of Calcutta, India, who represents the North American Association there, in his work among the students. The following statement shows the amount raised and expended on this account, and indicates an increase of $50 in the contribution over that of the preceding year.

Outlaw was Killed After a Smart Duel

Moose Jaw, Sask., Can. 11.—The notorious cattle thief, "Dutch Henry who has scourged the border country for eight years, is reported to have been shot at Big Muddy River, sixty miles south, by a mounted policeman, being hit after a smart duel, in which the policeman had his horse shot under him. The constable came on the outlaw unexpectedly. Henry instantly fired, killing the constable's horse and throwing the policeman to the ground, whence he fired twice, killing Dutch Henry at the second shot. The police on both sides of the line have been after this notorious cattle rustler for several years, but he has so far evaded them by continually shifting across the line, and being protected by persons he had intimidated. Many of his confederates have been captured and sentenced, but so far Dutch Henry the recognized leader, has escaped.

Heiress Elopes with Her Own Chauffeur

New York, Jan. 11.—The family of G. Howland Leavitt, banker and railroad financier, confirms the announcement that his daighter, Margaret Howland Leavitt, 25 years old, and heir to a million dollars, was married "without the consent of her parents" to Joseph F. Smollen, her chauffeur. Miss Leavitt's father purchased for her a six cylinder motor car last summer, and engaged Smollen, who was formerly James J. Corbett's chauffeur, to teach her to operate it. Last Thursday he and Miss Leavitt went to Jersey City and were married, according to the statement issued by her family. The bride's parents have not announced their forgiveness.

President's Message at Annual Meeting

The president's message to the Y.M.C.A. at its annual meeting last night was in part as follows:

We close the year 1909 with mingled feeling of satisfaction and disappointment.

Relying on the assurances we had in pledges from our citizens we endeavored to equip the association with a competent staff of executive officers, which increased our salary account over $200, and added some new gymnasium equipment at a cost of $200.

We also paid the balance on the bowling alleys, $304.89, and $120 on account of new steel lockers—making a total of over $800 paid out of current revenue over that of the preceding year.

We are deeply grateful to our many friends for their hearty and liberal responses as subscribers, although we are obliged to close the year with about $400 unpaid pledges, and there fore find that instead of having a surplus, our liability to the bank has increased $325, which is a matter of regret.

The president also stated that the building needed repairs, and spoke of the disappointment that the membership had not increased as it was hoped, and that greater benefit would result if the young men and boys would take more interest in educational classes. The present year, he said, however, showed signs of a more favorable outlook.

BODY COVERED WITH ECZEMA.

Yet Zam-Buk Cured Him.

Mr. A. M. Brooks of Wellington street, Stealton, says:

"Ten months ago I contracted eczema, which at first appeared on my neck, later spreading to my chest and body. The doctor thought this was caused by the irritation of my shirt collar and the poison and steam from the pulp, as I was then employed in the Pulp Mill. I began doctoring, but instead of the disease being checked it showed signs of becoming worse, and my neck, chest, and my whole body was soon in a frightful condition. The skin actually peeled off, leaving the flesh raw.

"I suffered cruelly from the terrible itching and soreness, and was completely confined to the house. Not seeing or feeling any improvement, I next resorted to the ordinary salves and ointments recommended for skin diseases, but although I gave each preparation a fair trial, none seemed powerful enough to bring about a cure until I began using Zam-Buk.

From the first application of Zam-Buk I had some relief, and as I persevered with it's use daily the soreness was by degrees drawn out and the intense itching and aching completely vanished. Scabs or scales formed over the raw flesh, but Zam-Buk soon cleared away all these, and although the cure was naturally gradual, it was complete.

If you suffer from any skin disease don't make the above mistake, and try all sorts of things before Zam-Buk. Get Zam-Buk first! Eczema, ulcers, abscesses, poisoned wounds, cuts, cold sores, scalp sores, face eruptions, chaps, red, rough patches—all are healed and cured by Zam-Buk. Best balm for babies' rashes. All druggists and stores at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

NORTH COUNTRY IN A FERMENT

Rush to the Porcupine is Now on With the Same Old Fever.

FREE GOLD IS SHINING

Population Grows Hightly — New Field Sole Topic of Conversation.

North Bay, Jan. 11.—Gold and Porcupine are the two magic words which have set the entire north country in a ferment and the rush is on—the same old feverish stampede to the latest strike, which has led thousands in the past to fortune or penury. The rush to Porcupine gold field is reasonable and amply justified by the stories of prospectors who have been filtering into the country for some months. Men of the north country are "from Missouri," and it took solid facts backed up with substantial samples of the shining free gold to stampede the seasoned mineral hunters of Cobalt, Elk Lake, Gow Ganda, and Larder Lake experience, but the North believes now, and from Temagami to Cochrane Porcupine is the greatest ever, and the sole topic of conversation on the trains and in hotels. If only half or less of the stories are true Ontario has a Klondike overshadowing everything in the mineral belt but Cobalt.

WITH THE CURLERS.

Mellroy Scores 10 Points in Two Ends and Won Out.

Only three scheduled games were played at the Curling Rink last night, but there was a bunch of fun furnished by Mellroy and Yates' rinks. When the 12th end was started, the former was 5 up. When it finished they were tie, 14-all. An extra end was played, and Mellroy scored 5 points more and won the game. He made 10 points in the last two ends or nearly as many as Yates' rink fought hard for all the game.

The scores were as follows:

W. T. Hall	Rev. Pogue
G. J. Bowes	Rev. Henderson

GERMANY GETS WARNING FROM THE U.S.

Supposed Dead Man Walked Into House

New York, Jan. 11.—John Smith walked into his dining room last night and found his table set for one, his wife in mourning and signs of a recent funeral around the house. Indeed, a body supposed to be his had been buried by the family after identification at the morgue by the wife, his married daughter and his son-in-law. A scar on the right leg and a crooked finger of one hand seemed to make the identification positive, although the clothing was of different quality.

Smith disappeared on January 5th. He says he went to the Bellevue dispensary for treatment and was there sent to the City Hospital on Blackwell's Island, after having been assured that his family would be notified. He was astonished to receive no visits and did not know that they were searching the hospitals and police stations for him in vain.

This Edmonton Team Looks Good

Of the eight hockey players who are now traveling eastward from Edmonton in quest of the Stanley Cup, seven are natives of Ontario, and have played at one time or another in the Ontario Hockey Association before turning professional. The other two are from Winnipeg. Peterborough should be highly interested in the coming series at Ottawa next week, as two of the members of the Edmonton Club were raised in the Electric City, while another, Hugo Ross, hails from Smith's Falls. Toronto interest is also assured, as Jack Winchester is well known there, having played with the Marlboroughs and other local teams.

Three of the Westerners have had Stanley Cup experience, and taken altogether the Edmonton septette are hot to be held cheaply. They played together last winter, so it can hardly be said that they are a patched-up seven. They can surely make a much better showing than the Galt champions, with whom the Ottawa fans were so disgusted. The sketches of the Edmonton players are:

Jack Winchester, goal tender, is a Brockville boy. He played with Belleville and Lindsay intermediates before going to Pittsburg. Next with Winnipeg Maple Leafs, thence to Edmonton.

Billy Fields, point, has played with none other than western teams, namely, Winnipeg and Edmonton. Weighs 178 lbs.

Hugo Ross, cover-point, weight 180. Started with Smith's Falls in 1901. Then with Portage la Prairie, and played after that with Edmonton.

Fred Whiteroft, rover, 165. Born in Peterborough, he played with O.H.A. teams in that city in 1901 to 1904. With Midland in 1905, and then jumped into pro. ranks, playing with Kenora in Cup series, 1907, 1908 and 1909 with Edmonton.

Harold Deeton, centre, 155 lbs., comes from Galt, where he played until 1902. Was spare man with Patrick's team which went after the Cup. Has played with Edmonton for the last five years.

Bert Boulton, left forward, 155, is a Winnipegger, as far as hockey is concerned, although he was born in Sarnia. Went to Edmonton in 1907.

Hay Miller, right forward, was born at Keene, Ont. After leaving the game there he went to Midland, thence out West, where he was a rancher for three years. Started playing with Edmonton agaon in 1907.

Walter Miller, spare man, 160, was raised in Peterborough, and has had experience with the Brantford pros.

John E. Belcher Nominated for Council of Ontario's Architects

Toronto, Jan. 11.—The annual convention of the Ontario Association of Architects commenced at one o'clock in the association rooms. The president, Mr. C. W. Gouinlock of Toronto, read his address, and various reports were received. The annual banquet will be held tonight and tomorrow the convention will be continued The question of the education of the student architect will be brought up at the convention.

Mr. John E. Belcher of this city, has been nominated for council.

STARVATION AMID PLENTY.

Not Uncommon Today—The Reason is Explained.

"For a period last summer the thought of food excited feelings of nausea," writes Mrs. C. A. Dodges, of Bloomsbury. "The heat had made me listless and the distaste for food reduced me to a condition of semi-starvation and brought me to the the verge of nervous collapse. Tonics were useless to restore an active desire for food. The doctors told me my liver and kidneys were both at fault, but the medicines they gave me were too severe and reduced my strength so that I had to abandon them. At the suggestion of a friend who had been cured of blood and skin trouble, I began the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The difference I first noticed was, that while they cleansed the system, instead of feeling weaker I felt better after taking them. Indeed their activity was so mild it was easy to forget I had taken them at all; they seemed to go right to the liver, and in a very brief time not only did all sources of nausea disappear but I began to crave food and I digested it reasonably well. Then I began to put on weight until within three months I was brought to a condition of good health. I urge Dr. Hamilton's Pills for all who are in poor health."

THE WEATHER.

Moderately cold.

11 MILLS IN GUELPH.

Royal City Finds Its Civic Owned Utilities Bring In a Lot of Spare Cash.

Guelph, Jan. 11.—At the last meeting of the 1909 City Council of Guelph, yesterday morning, the Finance Committee brought in a final report, presenting the financial statement of the city at the close of the year, which showed that after meeting all the regular expenses of the year, the city had a tax rate of 14 4 mills on the dollar, been able to declare a surplus of nearly $1,000 on hand.

This is a most remarkable showing, when it is taken into consideration that the city's share of the expenses of the new winter fair building came to $25,000, or $5,000 more than was expected.

MANY AMERICANS

Rochester, Jan. 11.—The Western Canada appears to be enjoying a boom. Thousands of Americans are emigrating yearly to the North Western Provinces and are settling on the Government lands. These settlers almost without exception appear to have a good quantity of cash with which to purchase the cheap land. Many have sold expensive farms in the United States and have taken the same money and purchased large sections of Canadian land. A gentleman traveling through Rochester this week in authority for the statement that the people are literally flocking to the new territory and that in spite of the severe winters they are making good in the raising of grain, which has for several years been bring a good price.

Mrs. Bruce Law will return from Cornwall, where she was called by the death of her sister, in the course of a couple of weeks.

Deathly Cramps, Stomach was Bloated

A Bad Case That Proves Cramps and Stomach Disorders are Cured Fast By Nerviline.

"The distress I suffered from cramps last summer was so severe I thought it meant death," writes P. E. Emerson, of Guys Hill P. O. "I was doubled up with pain and in such a bad shape I couldn't walk a hundred feet. I remembered having Nerviline on hand and took half a teaspoonful in sweetened water. In five minutes I was well and my stomach derangements disappeared entirely."

For cramps, flatulence, diarrhoea and disorders of the stomach and bowels, Nerviline knows no equal—one million bottles used every year—fifty years on the market, that's proof enough of its merit. Large 25c. bottles, five for $1.00. All dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

Oil Bathing.

Oil bathing is a regular institution among the Hindoos. An experienced masseur rubs the oil on his patrons, friends or relatives generally once a week. And it is a fact that moles, warts and such points of the surface of the skin are very rare among them. The newborn infant gets the oil bath daily for forty days. The intervals are then gradually lengthened, but he will be considered a very naughty boy who during his school days tries to shirk the oil bath at least once a week. As a youngster he rests at the time he is being bathed. Perhaps it is good for his lungs. Anyhow, nobody thinks of finding fault with the nurse for the ballooning of her charge, and generally speaking it may be said that Indians have better lungs and better pectorals as compared to the body weight than the Europeans, and the feminine bust is decidedly fuller and more perfect.—C. N. Bantindale in Lancet.

How to Carry Books.

The Philadelphia Free library permits patrons to take out six books at a time during certain months.

"If you are not going to wrap those books up let me show you how to carry them," said one of the assistants at the library recently.

Then the young woman slipped a cover of one book inside of a cover of one she placed on the top of it, building up a pile of six books in an fashion, and the man addressed, who was carrying the volumes home to please his wife, the reader of the family, found his difficulties were much lessened.—Philadelphia Press.

Too Much Like Work.

The happy mother of a seven-months old baby, whose chief business seems to be making a noise in the world, was paying her sister a visit, and the other evening young Master Harry, aged seven years, was delegated to care for the baby while his elders were at dinner. So he wheeled it back and forth, forth and back, the length of the library, giving vent to his sentiments by singing, much to the amusement of the family:

"Sic shin, I'm glad I'm free!
No wedding nets for me!"

Domestic Note.

"Give the devil his due," he said.

"I'm willing to," she snapped, "but you're in pretty good health, and he'll have to wait."—Atlanta Constitution.

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 50c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Chin, thus giving us a chain of six elevators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $16.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of our chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent. dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as reference of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 16.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 26.39 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in those companies to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

THE CAT AND THE BABY.

A Medical Opinion as to the Tradition of a Feline Danger.

Several physicians have investigated the ancient story that cats suck the breath of babies, and Dr. J. Rice Gibbs declares that the theory is ridiculous. Cats occasionally kill children, he declares, but they do it in a different fashion.

"It has been stated that a cat's nostrils are so formed as to make a perfect juncture with the nose of a baby," said Dr. Gibbs, "and that a little pressure would push them upward and make them a perfect fit. Then the cat's chin would rest over and below the baby's mouth, preventing it from opening to relieve the strangulation while the cat sucked its breath. That is all rot. The manner in which little children are killed by cats is this: A cat looking for a warm place to curl up and sleep lies down upon the chest of a little child, and, being quite heavy—many cats are as heavy as little babies—simply crushes the breath out of the child's lungs, and strangulation takes place, but not through sucking of the child's breath.

"The idea that only black cats kill little babies is equally ridiculous. It is simply because black cats are considered unlucky in former times the black cat was considered the very genius of witchcraft. In those days when a baby died the blame was often fixed upon some hag who, the judges said, had sent a black cat to suck the baby's breath. And often hag and cat suffered death at the stake.

"Evil omen is still the cry in many parts of the world wherever a black cat approaches a cradle. Many persons are so superstitious that the appearance of a black cat in a sick room is considered equivalent to an announcement of approaching death. What could be more absurd?

"Mothers need not be afraid of cats, black, white or green, sucking their babies breath and murdering them. It is time that this popular fallacy should be exploded."—New York World.

THE BASEBALL UMPIRE.

Very Different From the Fight Referee or the Race Judge.

Good umpires are rare. In the whole country there are not more than ten first rate ones. The combination of the keen eye, nimble brain and cold nerve is not a common one.

The umpire in the chain lightning of baseball. His decisions are rendered in the fifth part of a second. He renders them knowing that he must stand by them afterward, no matter what happens. Every man inside the fence, whether blinded by prejudice or loyalty to the home team, sees the same things and therefore feels that he has a right to his own opinion, but the umpire is the one man who is paid to know what he sees.

The prize-fight referee sometimes has to decide which boxer won a hard battle. He has had time to which to review the situation. The whole moving picture of the fight stretches backward in his memory. Should the choice prove a difficult one there is always the comfortable middle ground—the draw decision, in which neither man wins or loses. The baseball umpire can render no draw decisions. The man is safe or he is out.

When two race horses come nodding down to the wire and two noses flash by the post so close together that a finger breadth means thousands of dollars to the backers, the race track judge may fall back on the dead heat. The baseball umpire has no dead heats. Watching foot and ball, he must know which one was first. He can confer with no one. Right or wrong, the judgment must be made in the twinkling of an eye.—C. H. Van Loan in Munsey's Magazine.

The Piano Virtuoso's Hands.

Contrary to popular belief, the piano virtuoso as a rule has extremely unattractive hands. "The artistic hand" is a phrase peculiar to the hysterical young woman who haunts musical recitals, but in reality the hand of the pianist is not at all artistic or beautiful when judged by the usual standards of the artist, the painter or the sculptor.

Constant, vigorous practicing overdevelops the hand and makes it actually ill shaped. The fingers do not taper, but are blunt and round, ending often in what appears to be a cushion of hard flesh.—New York World.

Aggravating.

When the late General Edward M. McCook lived in Pike's Peak he once presided at a dinner in honor of a famous Indian fighter.

Mr. McCook, as he then was, concluded his introduction of the Indian fighter with the words:

"I can find but one fault with the colonel's methods. I allude to his well known custom of enlisting in his regiment only baldheaded men. To aggravate the Indians' feelings so cruelly as that is carrying war too far."

Cheerful.

A certain philosopher used to thank God when he had the gout that it was not the toothache, and when he had the toothache he gave thanks because he had not both complaints at once.

Error of the Types.

The editor wrote that the speaker's address was "notable," but the printer spaced it wrong and it read "not able."—Kansas City Star.

Cool.

Diner (disgustedly)—See here! Everything on this table is stone cold. Waiter—Try the pepper and tobacco sir.—Boston Transcript.

Felt Like the Comet.

"And this man's case is what?" we asked the attendant in the sanitarium.

"He imagines that he is Halley's comet," is the reply.

"Halley's comet?"

"Yes. He thinks he is growing brighter all the time."—St. Louis Star.

A Mistaken Proverb.

Heiress (sighing her will)—It's just as well to take the precaution, as "only the good die young," you know.

Lawyer—Ah, I always think that there's a mistake in that proverb. It should be "only the young die good."—London Opinion.

Road Sociability.

Drummer—Wouldn't your horse go just as fast if you didn't swear at him so much?

Countryman—Yep, I guess he'd go just as fast, but he'd feel awful lonesome.—Boston Herald.

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do me one act of kindness?

Will you tell some sick friend of this, my remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine (or system, that is rather deep cut in the case) which absolutely and unconditionally cures HEADACHE.

And you can double, should many of Dr. Shoop's tablets not end his popularity.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Blood ailments everywhere in America.

When the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has gratefully vitalized, and strengthened and toned those nerves and caused health to return.

I do not dose the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's restorative goes direct to the cause of these ailments—the feeble, starving, sickly or unstrung nerves. And herein lies the rationale to my success.

When these nerves are again made well and strong, then (and in the certain end of all sick ailments.

It is a great satisfaction then, if you the only physician able to say to the sinking sick: "Take my prescription for full 21 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours."

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the same identical "No help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the matter to some sick friend.

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist to whom you can look confidently go for the 21 day test.

But first, ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 21 day test.

So write me now and may all Calvin, remember that tomorrow never comes. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

Talk on India.

The people of Knox church will have an unusual treat this evening at the mid-week service, when Miss Herdman, who has recently returned from India, will give an account of missionary work in that interesting land. It is expected there will be a large attendance, as the people of Knox church will no doubt avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing Miss Herdman.

THREE DEPUTATIONS

Waiting to Interview the Council Next Monday Night.

Next Monday night's meeting of the City Council bids fair to be a busy one so far as deputations are concerned. There will be at least three. One from the Board of Trade in connection with the appointment of an industrial commissioner, one from the Moral Reform League asking for a reduction in the number of licenses. To this there will be some opposition as many of the aldermen believe that the License Commissioners are the proper authorities to undertake that position, and they have every confidence in their ability to do it, if necessary. The third deputation will be from the Agricultural Society.

If your stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so wonderfully successful. Its success is watched by druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

Womanly pains, head pains, in fact any pain anywhere can be completely stopped in 20 minutes with one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets. Ask your Doctor or Druggist about the formula. It is printed on the box—and it can't be bettered. Try one dose and be convinced. Box 25c. Sold by all dealers.

MADE PRESENTATION

A delightful event took place Monday evening at the C.P.R. station, when Mr. W. S. Campbell, who has severed his connection with the Canadian Pacific Railway, to take a position with the Canadian General Electric Company, was honored by the employes of the C.P.R., by being presented with a very handsome Morris chair, while there was a lady's companion for Mrs. Campbell. The presentation was made by Mr. W. S. Dodd, while an appreciative address was read by Mr. W. H. Douglas.

Mr. Campbell first became attached to the employ of the C.P.R., on Oct. 10, 1898, and has been with the company continuously up to the first of this year. He was absent from Peterborough for one year as contracting freight agent at Hamilton but returned here in 1904, to take charge of the Peterborough freight office. He has always been most popular with the employes at the local station and his departure is regretted.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 10 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY JANUARY 13, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Murray Street Baptist Sunday School Officers

The annual meeting of the teachers and officers of the Murray street Baptist Sunday school was held last night in the lecture room of the church. Mr. W. J. Dunlop occupied the chair. Mr. Elcome led in a most suitable prayer of thankfulness for the past year and guidance for the the work upon which we are entering. The reports of the past year were read and adopted. These showed the school to be in a most flourishing condition. The splendid contributions of this school to missions is always a matter of satisfaction to all connected with the work, and the year 1909 proved to be no exception. In addition to other contributions, the school last night voted $20 to the Children's Aid Society and a generous amount to be expended in prizes for about 25 of the scholars who were most faithful in their attendance and work. The officers for the new year were elected and are as follows:

Supt.—W. J. Dunlop.
Asst. Supt.—Dr. Browett.
Asst. Supt.—J. P. Cunningham.
Asst. Supt.—C. B. Routly.
Secretary—Miss Mae Garbutt.
Asst. Secretary—Miss Barnard.
Cor. Secretary—Oscar Matchett.
Treasurer—S. Cottingham.
Librarians—H. Webber and W. Cochrane.
Supt. of Cradle Roll—Mrs. O. Matchett.

The Bible class is taught by Mr. E. Elcome, and the Young Men's Class by the pastor. The primary work is in good condition, being in charge of Miss Rose, Miss Hardill and Miss Emily Walker.

The meeting closed with prayer by Pastor Webb seeking great blessing upon the officers and teachers just appointed, especially upon those who enter their offices for the first time in connection with the Bible school.

Local Man Heads the Poll at Cochrane

It seems as though a Peterborough man cannot be downed. Peterborough breeds the class of men who succeed even though they leave their native town and settle elsewheres. A correspondent of The Times living at the flourishing and rapidly growing town of Cochrane, New Ontario, advised us yesterday that Mr. D. Porter headed the polls at the first annual election for aldermen held in that burg. Mr. Porter it will be remembered originated and for some time carried on that grocery and meat market on George street, between Hunter and Brock streets, known as "Porter's Delicatessen." This store is now conducted by Mr. A. L. Talbot. About two years ago Mr. Porter sold his local business to Mr. Talbot and built the Hotel Cochrane at the town of that ilk. Since entering upon this enterprise, Mr. Porter has made an eminent success of his new business. The good citizens of Cochrane, have, for months, considered the advisability of having the town incorporated. As a first means of accomplishing this laudable intention, an election was held at the beginning of the present year to enable the citizens to choose men to govern the newly launched municipal ship. As a result of this election, this former Peterborough citizen, Mr. Porter headed the poll by a large majority, the next selected aldermen being Messrs. L. Bovin, H. Lamont, R. Herbeckers, and B. Rothchilds. In choosing these councilors the citizens of Cochrane have selected good progressive men in whose charge the municipal affairs will be well and efficiently managed. The Times congratulates Mr. Porter in his election and feels confident that Cochrane will advance her growth and interests rapidly under her present councillors.

How Did Those Lindsay Girls get to Buffalo?

Lindsay, Ont., Jan. 12.—The parents of Marion Workman, Helen Balwin, and "Tommy" Clendennan have been anxiously awaiting news of their daughters ever since Monday evening, when the three maidens were missed from the three family circles at supper time. When they failed to return home at all that evening, the aid of the police was secured, and it was ascertained after much enquiry that the three had boarded the C. P.R. afternoon train, and that they were last seen at Burketon Junction.

Communication was immediately established with the Toronto and Peterborough police, who in turn wired other cities to detain the girls if they were noticed.

When it was learned by telegram Tuesday afternoon that the girls had succeeded in crossing the border the anxiety of the parents was increased but later a message came to the effect that they had been detained at Buffalo.

How the girls ever reached Buffalo is a mystery to their parents, for they were practically peenniless and only wore the clothes they had on their backs, although it was stated that one of the three carried off a sister's suit case which contained some finery.

As the runaways have at different times manifested a desire to follow the histrionic art it was thought that they might have joined some show troupe. The girls are well known and their departure for other lands was not entirely unlooked for. The girls were not in the habit of attending school and have been, it is thought, practically beyond control.

(Special to The Times.)

London, Jan. 13.—The 7,705,717 electors in Great Britain today began to express their political preferences and on their verdict depends the fate of the Liberal Government and other things that are regarded as of even greater importance, such as the proposed curtailment of the power of the House of Lords and the future tariff policy of the nation. The political struggle which originated last November with the unprecedent action of the House of Lords in refusing its consent to the Government's budget, is in many respects the most interesting in the parliamentary history of England.

Although this was the first polling day, the battle of the ballots will not be in earnest until Saturday, when the voting is to take place in London, Parliamentary London is regarded as the vortex of the struggle. The metropolis sends sixty-two members to the House of Commons. As a consequence the question of the hour is, will London vote Tory or Liberal? The Tories have waged a campaign of unprecedented vigor and outside the centers of Radical politics it appears to be generally felt that London will vote for tariff reform and the House of Lords.

In addition to London several other large centers are to have their elections on Saturday. Among these are Manchester and Salford, which in 1906, under Winston Churchill's personal championship, gave Radicalism a tremendous start. By the first of the week it is believed that the general result will be pretty clear, although the whole of the seven and a half million electors will not finish polling until two weeks hence.

The political prophets are busy estimating the likely losses and gains, though there never was an election, it is probable, in which such estimates were more likely to be upset.

A point on which most politicians are agreed is that the Unionists stand a good show of materially improving their position. They cannot fail to have many victories, and they are likely to have few defeats. The question is whether they will make sufficient gains to place them in power.

At present the state of parties is as follows: Ministerialists, 385; Labor members, 31; Nationalists, 82; Unionists, 166. As the Nationalists and Labor members are regarded as the allies of the Government, the Unionists, in order to obtain a bare majority, must win as many seats as they now hold, namely, 168.

Since the injection of the Home Rule issue into the campaign Ireland regards the present election as the most important since 1886. The struggle has acted as a vigorous incentive to the cause of Irelandis independence. Ireland will cast 700,000 votes, which is only a little less than the number of Scottish electors.

Canadian Navy will Consist of Eleven Warships Instead of Seven

Sir Wilfrid Makes Important Announcement in Regard to Canadian Navy.

Britain May Use Them in Any Emergency

Term of Service Will Be Three Years, Six Months at a Time.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 12.—It was twenty-five minutes past two o'clock when Sir Wilfrid Laurier rose to introduce the long-promised bill which stands on the motion paper as "An Act respecting the naval service of Canada."

Probably half the members of the House were in their seats when the premier rose. Sir Wilfrid referred to the unfortunate illness of Mr. Brodeur, whom he hoped would be able to move the second reading and give all details. He would confine himself today to the salient features of the bill.

Sir Wilfrid then ran over the points of the bill. He explained that the bill followed closely the lines of the Militia bill, but differs in one important respect. The Militia bill provides that the whole male population over 18 is liable to service. There is no such provision in this Act. There is no suggestion of compulsion or conscription of any kind.

When Sir Wilfrid explained that the navy would be placed at the disposition of the British Government in time of emergency, Mr. Foster asked for an explanation of the term "emergency." Sir Wilfrid explained that it would have the same meaning as in the Militia Act, viz., that an emergency would mean war, invasion, or insurrection, real or apprehended.

Leaving the big details of the bill, Sir Wilfrid came to discuss what it was proposed to do. He made the important announcement that the government had decided to adopt a program of eleven ships instead of seven. The present plan contemplates the building of four armored cruisers of the Bristol class.

The bill provides that the service will be under the control of the Minister of Fisheries and Marine, with the command vested in the King. The service will have for its object the defence of the Canadian coasts as the government may direct. The director of the navy will have the rank of rear admiral, and he will be assisted by a naval board. Condition of service and terms will be under the direct control of the government.

The bill provides that in times of emergency the Canadian navy will be placed under and at the disposal of his Majesty's Government. If the Canadian Parliament is not in session to give its sanction to such a proceeding, it will be called within fifteen days to give its sanction.

The bill provides for the establishment of a naval reserve, a naval volunteer militia, and a naval college upon lines of the military college at Kingston.

Length of service of volunteers in navy will be for a term of three years. They may be called upon to serve for six months at a time.

Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier

Who Made the Important Announcement in regard to Canadian Navy.

WOMAN TO PLEAD SELF-DEFENCE

(Special to The Times.)

London, Ont., Jan. 13.—The second trial of Mrs. Martha Scott, charged with the murder of her father-in-law, Harvey Scott, at Thorndale, is scheduled to begin tomorrow. A plea of self-defence will be made, and Mrs. Scott is confident of acquittal.

Stage Struck Lindsay Girls were Caught in City of Buffalo

Buffalo, N.Y., Jan. 12.—Confined to the Juvenile Deation Home, waiting for their parents, are three runaway girls from Lindsay, Ont. They are Helen Baldwin, 13 years old, and Marion Workman and Wilhelmina Clendennan, both aged 15. All are stage-struck, and ran away from home and came to this city in the hope of joining a troupe on securing engagements at the Nickelodeons. They were without a cent when taken into custody by the detectives last night.

Five Scheduled Games Played Last Night

One of the biggest nights of the season so far as the schedule games are concerned, was last night. Five games were pulled off according to the draw. The scores were as follows:

There was a lot of talk last night after the games as to holding the bonspeil. The season is pretty full and it is hard to secure a date. The most favored time appears to be the first week in February. If the club intends to hold a bonspeil in which outside rinks may compete it is time the arrangements were being made and the dates announced. Other towns are likely to be as busy as Peterborough.

A number of visitors to the city have taken advantage of the Peterborough Curling rink this year and they are delighted with it. The rink is a good thing for the town.

Strathconas Defeated the T.A.S. West Ends Won from Keene

West Ends Used the "Stick" Freely and Other Questionable Tactics That Were Uncalled for.

Strathconas Played a Clean, Fast Game—Only Two Penalties Were Handed Out—T.A.S. Lacked Combination.

A big crowd saw a very poor, in fact a dirty, exhibition of hockey in the first game last night when the West Ends met the Keene team in the City League series. Nearly 1500 people were present and the majority were there at 7.30 to see the start. The West Ends won by a score of 10—3, but there victory is nothing to brag of. They put up a very dirty and unsportmanlike game, using the stick freely, and tripping every opportunity. Where the real dirt came in was that Keene, with a crippled team, came down like a good bunch of sports and played a clean game. They had three scrub players on. The West Ends had them beaten from the very start and there was no call for rough house. As a matter of fact if the West Ends could shoot on goal they could have scored 20 goals. Referee Ross had his hands full, and there was hardly a full minute period that a West End man was not on the fence.

McDougall, the Keene cover point, came in for most of the abuse. The local boys were out after him, as one of the West Ends boasted, and with no cause whatever, as he is a good clean player.

The goals were scored as follows:
West Ends—Crane in 10 mins.
West Ends—Short, 3 mins.
West Ends—Crane, 5 mins.

Keene—Weir, 1 min.

STRATHCONAS WIN.

Strathconas won a beautiful game from the T.A.S. last night. The score was 11 to 3, but the exhibition was very fast and very clean. Only two penalities were registered against the Commissioners, Dusty was laid off twice, the first time was unfortunate but the second offence was for slashing. Six penalties were registered against the Abstainers for various offences. The Strathcona nas went on the ice to show the public that they could play almost a perfect game, so far as infractions of the criminal code was concerned, and they did it. They devoted all their time to chasing the puck and they went after it hard and furious. Their combination was good and

Zam-Buk Quickly Cures

Chaps, Cold Sores and Rough Skin.

Icy winds often make ladies' faces rough, red and blotchy. Apply a little Zam-Buk, and this will smoothen the skin and end the soreness. It also takes away that coarse, red rough look and "feel," which are so unpleasant. For more serious cases of chaps and cold sores apply Zam-Buk at night liberally.

Miss Hattie Bertrand, Galesburg, says: "I am troubled every year with cracked, chapped hands and arms, and nothing ever seemed able to prevent this until I found Zam-Buk. I healed the chaps and cracks, and occasional applications keep my hands and arms perfectly smooth."

Zam-Buk is so much healthier, but it is also food. Frequent use of it develops that soft, velvety skin which is so pleasant to see, and which is the expression of perfect skin health. Remember Zam-Buk is unique in containing no animal fat. For a balm this is peculiar, but just here lies Zam-Buk's superiority. Made purely of herbal extracts and juices. 50c. a box. A WOMAN DOCTOR

Was Quick to See That Coffee Was Doing the Mischief.

A lady tells of a bad case of coffee poisoning and tells it in a way so simple and straightforward that literary skill could not improve it.

"I had neuralgic headaches for 12 years," she says, "and endured untold agony. When I first began to hate them I weighed 140 pounds, but they brought me down to 110. I went to see many doctors and they gave me only temporary relief. So I suffered on, till one day a woman doctor told me to use Postum. She said I looked like I was coffee poisoned.

"So I began to drink Postum and I gained 15 pounds in the first few weeks and continued to gain, but not so fast as at first. My headaches began to leave me after I had used Postum about two weeks—long enough to get the coffee poison out of my system.

"Since I began to use Postum I can gladly say that I never know what a neuralgic headache is like any more, and it was nothing but Postum that made me well. Before I used Postum I never went out alone; I would get bewildered and would not know which way to turn. Now I go out alone and my head is as clear as a bell. My brain and nerves are stronger than they have been for years."

A boon to Stock Raisers

To Know How to Cure Colic, Distemper, Colds, Swellings, Etc.—Saves Thousands Each Year.

It is a matter of vital importance to every farmer, horse-owner and stock-raiser to know exactly what to do when one of his animals is taken suddenly sick.

The letter of Mr. Frank F. Fullerton, which we print below, gives information of inestimable value, and tells of his experience in curing ailing stock during the past thirty-eight years:

SAVED $1,000 BY NERVILINE

"Several years ago when my horses took colic I used to give them Cayenne Pepper in a few cases only did it help, and because I had no proper means at hand I lost several valuable animals. Some one told me of the success Mr. Wedding, of Brockville, Ont., had in his racing stables with "Nerviline," so I laid in a supply. It wasn't very long before Nerviline saved the life of a valuable stallion of mine, which was worth at least $1,000.00. This horse was taken with colic, and would have died, had it not been for Nerviline. I have used Nerviline for reducing swellings, for taking out distemper lumps, and easing a bad cough, and always found it worked well. I recommend every man who owns horses or cattle to keep Nerviline on hand.

Mr. Fullerton is one of the best known residents of Stormont, and his recommendation as an experienced and practical horseman proved beyond question how valuable Nerviline really is.

Give Nerviline a trial. It's good for man or beast, internally or externally. 25c per bottle or five for $1.00. At all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Gentle Rebuke.

It was late in the year for strawberries, but Mrs. Beacon was determined to have some for Sunday dinner. Over the telephone came the news that they were "very fine, ma'am; very fine indeed." Being, however, a cautious housekeeper, she decided to look over the fruit herself, as the grocer was not always to be trusted.

"They don't appear very good," she said some time later, examining carefully a basketful. "They look"—here she extracted one and tasted it—"they look a little green. I don't know. Just let me try one." She took another. "I guess I'll take one box, please. You don't put very many in a box, do you?" she inquired.

"There was," said the grocer respectfully, "but there's been so many ladies looking 'em over that there ain't"—

"You may give me two boxes," said Mrs. Beacon.—Youth's Companion.

Lincoln's Religion.

I have never united myself to any church, because I have found difficulty in giving my assent without mental reservation to the long complicated statements of Christian doctrine which characterize their articles of belief and confessions of faith. Whenever any church will inscribe over its altar as its sole qualification for membership the Saviour's condensed statement of the substance of both law and gospel, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself," that church will I join with all my heart and all my soul.—Abraham Lincoln.

Queer Friends.

On board the Union Castle R. M. S. Goth on a voyage from the Cape to Tenerife was a little monkey belonging to one of the stewards. It was very fond of sitting on the back of a tortoise, another ship's pet, while the latter crawled about the deck. Although rather ill tempered and snappish with people, the monkey was always friendly with the tortoise, which made no objection to being used as her steed.—Wide World Magazine.

"What sort of role does Rounder take in the new drama?"

"An emotional one. In the big scene he is offered a drink which he has to refuse."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Chin, thus giving us a chain of six elevators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $18.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of our chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day; or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent, dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as reference of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 16.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 25.29 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in those concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of. For any further information address the Secretary.

11 MILLS IN GUELPH.

Guelph, Jan. 11.—At the last meeting of the 1909 City Council of Guelph, yesterday morning, the Finance Committee brought in a final report, presenting the financial statement of the city at the close of the year, which showed that after meeting all the regular expenses of the year, the city had a tax rate of 14 mills on the dollar, been able to declare a surplus of nearly $1,000 on hand.

This is a most remarkable showing, when it is taken into consideration that the city's share of the expenses of the new winter fair building came to $25,000, or $5,000 more than was expected.

TRICKING A BANKER.

Ingenious Fraud Was Worked on a London Manager Recently.

Shortly after the audacious fraud perpetrated by the then famous "D. S. Kindell," it was announced that additional safeguards had been devised by bank authorities to prevent that class of fraud. How necessary is illustrated by the following story.

A customer having a fairly good balance, even though below large figures, at a branch of a well-known bank, called on one morning not so long ago, according to The Pall Mall Gazette, and asked to see the manager.

The usual civilities were exchanged, and the caller explained that he was making a rather good investment, and had promised to pay $5,000 the next day.

"Well," said the manager, "there's no difficulty about that." "Precisely," was the rejoinder; "but will you do me a small favor?" "What is it?" queried the manager. "I want my friend to see that my paying him $5,000 will not exhaust my resources. Will you, therefore, oblige me by instructing all the pay clerks (and they were numerous) to cash my check, when it is presented, without referring to the ledger to see how my account stands? It will make a good impression on my man, and it cannot do you any harm, as you know what my balance is." It was a little over $5,000.)

"Certainly, if you particularly wish it," replied the unsuspecting manager, for his customer's name had been long on the books, and there had never been any trouble with him.

When the check was presented the next day at a particular desk the clerk, without going through the formality of referring to the customer's account, pleasantly inquired, "How will you take it?" and handed over the amount without ado.

In the meantime the same little ceremony was being gone through at four other pay desks, each clerk, acting upon instructions, cashing Mr. ——'s check for $5,000, making $20,000 in all, or nearly $20,000 in excess of the wily customer's balance!

And, of course, when Mr. —— received a polite note requesting him to call at the bank, he was not to be found.

Absent-Minded.

When the Bishop of Truro, Dr. Gott was Dean of Worcester, his absent-mindedness was so notorious that he earned for himself the sobriquet of "Dean Forgott." On one occasion he had invited some friends to dine with him, on their arrival a short time before the dinner-hour he suggested that in the interval of waiting his friends would perhaps like to walk through the grounds. After spending about a quarter of an hour in admiring the flowers, herbs, and greenhouses, they suddenly came upon a

When Bribery Prevailed.

English Parliamentary elections are not altogether free from corruption. Worcester was for a time disfranchised after the last General Election, on account of the irregularities found to have been prevalent, and other constituencies had a rough time before they were secure of their respective members.

But the old-time elections were altogether different. The popularity of the Reform Bill, which purposed the abolition of bribery, was by no means universal. In The Times of May 10, 1831, there is a story of a London police-constable who asked his inspector for leave to go into the country to vote for an anti-Reform candidate. He explained that he would get $50 and his expenses for his vote; but complained that it was not then as in former times, when he had had as much as $200, and never less than $125. "And if that Reform Bill passes it will be a sad loss to me and my brother freemen," he added.

King George III had his own methods as an election agent. On the eve of an election at Windsor, in which Admiral Keppel was the Whig candidate, the King strolled into a silk-mercer's shop in the town and called out, "The Queen wants a gown—wants a gown. No Keppel? No Keppel?"

FLY ON GLADSTONE'S NOSE.

The Grand Old Man Showed to Poor Advantage in the Lantern.

I remember once (says Harry Furniss in The Strand Magazine), when I was giving a lecture on "Portraiture past and present," and illustrating the portraits on medals with the aid of a lantern, I came to some near the bottom of the screen. "Here," said I, "we have the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of London, 1900 A.D." At that moment, the mayor and mayoress of the town, who, for effect I suppose, had come in a quarter of an hour late to the seats reserved for them in the centre of the hall, walked past the rays of the lantern, and were, of course, shown on the screen, and, as can be supposed, caused an effect that had not been anticipated.

On another occasion a fly was an offender, whilst I was giving a lecture, with the aid of a lantern. I was showing some portraits of Mr. Gladstone in my entertainment, "The Humors of Parliament." I was telling my audience as I pointed to the pictures on the screen, that one moment he looks like that, when there was a great burst of laughter. I proceeded to speak about Gladstone's flashing eye and noble brow, and by the time I mentioned something about his aquiline nose my audience seemed in hysterics. Thinking that by some mischance the wrong picture was being thrown on the screen, I turned round, and was at first horrified to see a gigantic fly apparently walking on the nose of the Grand Old Man. It appears that the fly had got into the lantern, had been caught between and was being magnified a hundredfold on the screen.

HUGO AND THE YOUNG POET.

Praise For His Verses Which the Master Had Not Read.

A Paris contemporary tells a story of Victor Hugo and a young unknown poet. The poet, hailing from the provinces, sent to the author of "Notre Dame de Paris" a copy of his work, which he had just published in the form of a book of poems. Hugo replied in most sympathetic terms, and the young man was delighted with the letter, as well he might have been.

His joy, however, was but short lived, for a day or two later his servant announced that the package containing the volume of poems had come back through the post unopened. The package bore the legend, "Refuse par le destinataire—affranchissement insuffisant" (refused by the addressee on account of insufficient postage.

Hugo's letter was hyperbolic and in these terms: "Your work has given me a proud pleasure, under the impression of which I hasten to congratulate you. Your fame is young and radiant; mine is declining. It is the salutation of the night which departs at the rising of the dawn. You are shining, and I am dying. You emerge from oblivion; I return there.

"The heart either grows hard or breaks forth. Your sentiments have come forth, and you have written numerous and superb poetry which consecrates you as a poet as well as affirming you as man. You are thus 'deux fois mon frere' (twice my brother). Accept my admiration as great as my esteem."

WANTED TO VOMIT.

A Condition Involving Both Liver and Stomach That Was Quickly Cured By Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"The doctors told me my sickness was caused by complications of the stomach and liver," writes Mrs. E. P. Fourraine, well known in William's port. "The least little error in eating would cause nausea, and after a time actual vomiting was easily excited. I grew very thin, pale, with dark lines under the eyes; my strength so failed that even light housework quite exhausted me. Of course with a large family, I could not afford a doctor all the time, and when in deepest despair, I tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills. From the very first they acted wonderfully, and I experienced a desire for food and ate my meals with a relish. After a while my system became quite regular, and that horrid sick feeling only came now and again. This made me persevere, and it was a good thing I did so, because the continuation of Dr. Hamilton's Pills was the means of giving me my health again, and I am now the happiest woman I know."

Laymen's Missionary Meeting.

All Laymen of Peterborough, city and county, interested in missions, are requested to meet at the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday evening, January 15th inst., at eight p.m.

If your stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

Barrett, at center, although only a youngster, 15 years old, is a star. He is fast and sure. He stays in his position and has a fine shot on goal. He got seven of the eleven tallies last night. Ben Dusty at cover was in fine form, and did a lot of very effective work, and scored one goal. Weatherstone at left was wide awake and got two goals. Ray was not in the best of condition and did not shine as usual.

For the T.A.S., Giroux in goal, put up a fine game and stopped a great many warm ones. His support in front was weak. The T.A.S. forwards are speedy, but they lack combination or else they could not get settled down and as a result the puck was in T.A.S. territory most of the time.

FIND OUT

The Kind of Food That Will Keep You Well.

The true way is to find out what is best to eat and drink, and then cultivate a taste for those things instead of poisoning ourselves with improper, indigestible food, etc.

A conservative Mass. woman writes:—

"I have used Grape-Nuts 5 years for the young and for the aged; in sickness and in health; at first following directions carefully, later in a variety of ways as my taste and judgment suggested.

"But its most special, personal benefit has been as a substitute for meat, and served dry with cream when rheumatic troubles made it important for me to change diet.

"Served in this way with the addition of a cup of hot Postum and a little fruit it has been used at my morning meal for six months, during which time my health has much improved, nerves have grown steadier, and a gradual decrease in my excessive weight adds greatly to my comfort."

"Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

A BARGAIN IN OIL STOCK

20 Cents Per Share

THE LIBERTY OIL COMPANY

is offering a limited number of shares of the Treasury stock for sale, for the purpose of further development, at the ridiculously low price of 20c per share.

This property has one well pumping Oil, and is drilling Well No. 2. Bear in mind that two wells of 100 barrels each could pay dividends on our small capitalization.

Read the following Questions and Answers, and then fill in the Coupon at once:

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question—What is the Capital Stock of the Liberty Oil Company?

Answer—Five Hundred Thousand shares of a par value of $1.00.

Q.—Is there any free stock, bonus stock, or promotion stock?

A.—No. Every share of stock is placed in the Treasury for the benefit of the stockholders.

Q.—Is there more than one kind of stock?

A.—NO. All Common Stock.

Q.—Is there any bonded indebtedness?

A.—NO.

Q.—What acreage does the Liberty Oil Company control?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company has a forty year lease on 125 acres of proven oil ground, on a royalty of one-sixth of the oil shipped.

Q.—Where is the property located?

A.—Ventura County, California, nine miles from Nordhoff and twelve miles from Santa Paula. Both of these towns are on the Southern Pacific Railway. All supplies will come from Los Angeles, which is about seventy miles south, insuring prompt delivery.

Q.—Is it necessary to build a wagon road to the property from either of the above mentioned towns?

A.—NO. There are good wagon roads from both cities, and an automobile can be driven to the property without difficulty.

Q.—How do you know this is oil-bearing ground?

A.—Because we have one well on the property that is on the pump. This will furnish all the fuel required for pumping well No. 1, drilling Well No. 2, and a surplus beside. The Union Oil Co. has numerous producing wells one-fourth mile to the south of us and also just north of our property. Furthermore, we have some of the largest oil seepages in Ventura County.

Q.—What grade of oil is produced in Ventura County?

A.—Most of the Ventura County oil is high gravity, suitable for refining purposes, and brings $1 per barrel upwards at the well. The oil on our property is high gravity oil.

Q.—What facilities have you for disposing of your oil?

A.—The oil will be delivered to the Union Oil Company's pipe line one mile distant, through a gravity pipe line, which will soon be constructed.

Q.—What does the Liberty Oil Company agree to do if I subscribe for stock?

A.—They agree to expend the money received from the sale of stock through their financial agents, Sagar & Loomis, for the general development of the property.

Q.—What development work does the Company propose to do?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company proposes to sink additional wells from time to time until the property is fully developed, the estimated limit for maximum results being thirty wells. Well No. 2 is now being drilled, and sunk to a depth of 2,800 feet thereby cutting through all five of the oil-bearing sands referred to in the report of our Engineer and Field Manager, Mr. Edward F. Eastman. He estimates that Well No. 2 will produces steadily at least 100 barrels per day and possibly up to 200.

Q.—Is an investment in California Oil Stock a speculation, or a good business proposition?

A.—It is said on good authority that 50 per cent. of the bankers of the State of California are interested in Oil. Bankers usually know how and where to invest their money. Take a property like the Liberty Oil Company and you have purely a business proposition. It is just a question of how many wells the Company sinks—the more wells the greater the dividends. Your stock increases in value from the day you purchase it. On completion of Well No. 2, we expect the Company's income will be at least $100 per day, and you can easily calculate what the dividends should be on our small capitalization of $500,000. Each succeeding well should average not less than one hundred barrels per day.

Q.—What assurance has the investor that Liberty Oil Company's stock will be a safe and profitable investment?

A.—The Company is incorporated under the strict laws of the State of California, and the Directors are all capable business men of unquestioned integrity, and honest management of the Company's affairs is assured. The capitalization (500,000 shares, is in Treasury of the Company, and as there is no promotion, bonus or free stock, every stockholder is on an equal basis. In all probability it will not be necessary to sell all of the Treasury Stock to put the Company on a dividend paying basis and to fully develop the property, in which event each stockholder's interest would be increased proportionately.

Q.—Has any money been expended on the property?

A.—Yes. One well has been sunk to a depth of 2,000 feet and is now pumping oil. This well furnishes all the oil needed for fuel, thereby saving the Liberty Oil Company an expense of $500 per month for fuel and hauling same to the property.

Q.—What is the present price of the stock?

A.—The par value is $1.00 per share. A small allotment of stock is being sold at 20c. per share, to sink Well No. 3 and finish Well No. 2, which is now being drilled. This allotment will doubtless be over-subscribed. Send in your order at once, as price will advance without notice.

Q.—What income can I expect from my stock?

A.—The Company feels reasonably sure that a dividend can, and will be paid within one year, or as soon as there are three pumping wells on the property. They also believe that the dividends will be at least one (1c) cent. per share per month. That would be sixty per cent. per annum to the investor who buys at 20c. per share.

Q.—Will it be necessary for an investor to wait until the Company is paying dividends to realise a profit on his investment?

A.—NO. You will be able to sell your stock within sixty or ninety days at an advance, if you take time by the forelock and buy at the present low price, 20c. per share.

Q.—Under what conditions can I visit the property?

A.—Write us if you want to go and look over the property of the Liberty Oil Company at our expense, and tell us how much you will invest, providing you find it as good as we have represented. We are sure you will double the amount after a personal inspection.

Memory Returning Slowly After a Blank of Over 20 Years

Toronto, Jan. 13.—There is a man in the city today whose memory is just emerging from beneath a cloud which has obscured it for 21 years. As returning consciousness allows his mental faculties to pick up the scattered threads of the past, the fingers of his brain are weaving strands to bridge the gap between the long ago and the present. A part of his mind has been dormant; it is slowly waking to a new lease of life.

This man is Archibald McLean, who left the town of Perth, Ont., to seek his fortune in the West 30 years ago.

DROPPED FROM SIGHT.

In 1888 his mother wrote to him at Fort William telling him of the death of his father. To her surprise no answer came, and from that time Archibald McLean dropped out of the sight of his family as completely as though he had been swallowed alive. years passed; the other members of the family married and moved away and with the progress of time the name of the missing man only a memory.

Two weeks ago his sister, the wife of the Rev. Daniel Scott, Pease, Sask., was walking down a street in Regina, when she noticed a sign, "Archibald McLean, painter." Instantly there rose in her mind's eye the face of her long-lost brother and she entered the shop. A strangely young man with grey hair came to meet her. As she looked at him with half affectionate curiosity this new person began to fuse gradually with the brother who had disappeared thirty years ago. She began to question him, but was disappointed by the vagueness of the answers she received.

INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK.

In 1888 McLean was injured in a train wreck near Fort William, in which several people lost their lives. After recovering from his injuries and a severe attack of typhoid fever he left the hospital and was horrified to find that his mind was a perfect blank. A piece of bone pressing in upon the brain cavity had bruised some of the sensitive cells so that they refused to perform their important office. He remembered only his name and that he was a painter by trade. His education had taken wings and he found himself unable to read or write. After taking a course at a night school he overcame this handicap.

From Fort William he drifted west and visited many places, hoping that the lost faculty would be restored by accidentally running into familiar scenes. Finally, he settled in Regina and went into the business of painting and decorating with such success that he built up a trade of his own and was also employed by the government. His hands remembered, although his brain forgot.

DIM RECOLLECTIONS.

Mrs. Scott, after skilfully referring to some of the more outstanding events of his earlier life, found that he remembered something about the location of his father's house in Perth and the name of one man. Encouraged by this clue she wrote to the other members of the family; Mrs. G. G. Publow, Kingston; Mrs. J. M. McKinnon, Toronto; Mr. Walter McLean, Toronto; and Mr. Robert McLean, Perth. After some correspondence it was decided that the lost brother had been found.

His mother is 84 years of age, and strange to say has been living with her daughter, Mrs. Scott, only four miles from Regina. As a result of a lingering illness the aged woman has been in a semi-conscious condition for nearly three years. The son was taken out to his mother's bedside, and in a moment he recognized her. But this time the mother's memory failed and she looked at him as though he were a stranger. After a number of visits, however, on a day when she was especially bright she suddenly knew him and called him by name.

Twenty-Nine Out of a Crew of Thirty Drowned on the Pacific Coast

Big Ocean Belies Its Name and Sends Crew of Czarina to Death —Only One Survivor—Vessel Broke in Two in Sight of People on the Shore

Marshfield, Ore., Jan. 13.—Rushing through the heavy fog that enshrouds the coast, in response to a wireless appeal for help that came too late, the steamship Queen, is now reported to be close to the wreck of the Southern Pacific Czarina, which broke in two on North Spit Coos Bay late yesterday afternoon. Twenty-nine out of the crew of thirty of the Czarina's company are believed to have been drowned, while one man, Assistant Engineer Harry H. Kentzel, is in the local hospital suffering from exposure, having been washed ashore, following a vain attempt to swim. He was picked up unconscious, but thanks to his strong constitution he will recover.

IN THE TEETH OF A GALE.

The Czarina put out yesterday evening in the teeth of a howling gale. She had reached the point of North Spit Coos Bay when it was noticed that she was laboring in the sea, and a signal was set, indicating that her engines had broken down.

The observers on shore, whose attention had been attracted to the laboring craft, suddenly saw her twist around in the trough of the sea, and then, carried by the monster waves, which are unusually high at this particular point, she began to drift toward the Spit. It was plain that not only were her engines disabled, but that the steering gear was out of order, and the hand gear was refusing to work properly.

For a few minutes the wireless operator on board had been in communication with the shore calling for help, but he with all of the crew, finally took to the rigging as the steamer sank far enough to become fast on the rocks. Giant waves were sweeping over the wreck, and although the crew were lashed to the rigging as it became too dark to see further, it was plain that most of them would soon be dead from exposure.

One of the watchers on shore who tried time and again to aid the life savers was C. J. Mallin, agent for the line. His son Harold was a passenger on board, the only passenger in fact. He was en route to San Francisco to attend the University of California, but although the frantic father did everything human could, it was found there was absolutely no means for reaching the doomed ship's company.

HUGE BONFIRES LIGHTED.

When it became dark huge bonfires were lighted on the beach to encourage any of those who were still in the rigging and the fires were kept up all night. At daylight today the steamer Queen could be seen approaching the wreck, whose rigging was all that remained in sight and wireless advices stated that the revenue cutter Manning was also in the neighborhood, and that both vessels will try to get close to the wreck as soon as the sea goes down.

Just after dawn today a body was washed ashore, which led the life savers to believe that there was absolutely no hope for anyone and that all that the vessels that are standing by can accomplish will be to recover the bodies of those still in the rigging.

According to Assistant Engineer Kentzel, the only survivor, the boilers of the Czarina were torn from their foundations by the pounding received from the sea and the vessel's entire bottom must be torn out.

Threatened Her Twice before She Shot Him

London, Jan. 13.—That old Harvey Scott had threatened her twice before she secured the revolver with which she shot him a few minutes later, was the story told by Mrs Wesley Scott, charged with his murder, when she took the stand in her own behalf this morning. The old man came to her house on the morning of the tragedy, she said, and proceeded to attack her little dog, then he turned on her. She did not intend to shoot him, but he came at her with a big club and struck at her. Then she fired.

"What did you think he was going to do?" asked her counsel, Mr. Meredith.

"Kill me if he could," she replied.

Relating events prior to the day of the tragedy, Mrs. Scott declared that the old man had struck her several times, robbed her house and had "done many dirty tricks." Once she was disabled after he had struck her. There had been trouble over chickens. Once the old man came to her place with a gun and fired it off. She had seen him with the barrel of the gun stuck through a knot hole of her woodshed. Once he had fired it off and the bullet had whizzed past the corner of the house. This sort of abuse had continued for twelve years.

Manitoba to Fight for Provincial Rights

Toronto, Jan. 13.—That the Province of Manitoba is quite prepared to wage a vigorous battle for Provincial rights and Provincial autonomy is clearly evident according to an interview given this morning by Hon. Colin Campbell, attorney-general of Manitoba, who spent some time in conference with Sir James Whitney, at the Parliamentary Buildings this morning.

"The question of a conference is a matter which concerns the Provincial Premiers, Sir James Whitney and Sir Lomer Gouin have the matter in charge, and whatever time they decide to be suitable for a meeting will I have no doubt be satisfactory to Manitoba," said Mr Campbell, when he had finished his call on Sir James and Hon. J. J. Foy.

"The whole question of Provincial rights is a most important one, and by reason of the attack on its power policy, the Province of Ontario is now leading the way in this all important propoganda. We are all together on the matter of Provincial rights, and Manitoba's 'amen' is subscribed to every point along the line submitted by Sir James Whitney and Sir Lomer Gouin, on the occasion of the last conference. The Provinces regard their rights and autonomy as of paramount importance, and are prepared to line up absolutely to cope with unconstitutional Federal aggressions."

"I gave Sir James my assurance of this this morning, although it was hardly necessary."

Hon. Mr. Campbell stated that they had also spoken of the question of interprovincial internal economy. He is on his way west after some time spent in Bermuda, and said that he just dropped off at Toronto to wish the Premier of Ontario a Happy New Year.

Real Temperance Reform

To every man, woman and child in Peterborough who is at all interested in the uplifting of humanity and the general improvement in the conditions of the homes, the celebration of the 10th anniversary of the St. Peter's T.A.S. in the Opera House on Monday night should be an inspiration. No one can say anything but what is good of the principles of the T.A.S., and of the work they have done. In 10 short years they have enrolled over a thousand men in their ranks as total abstainers, some for six months, some for a year and many for the rest of their lives. The methods employed by the T.A.S. are sound. They take the individual man and reform him, not by threats, nor by flattery, but by simply taking him into new and attractive surroundings, giving him new associates, pointing out to him the folly of his old life and finally he is induced to sign the pledge and begin the battle against his arch enemy. The T.A.S. does not stop there. They stay with that man and they keep him right if he falls by the wayside, a weakness of humanity the world over, he is picked up again and returned to the fold and started off fresh. Thus the work goes on and scores, if not hundreds of homes in Peterborough have been made happy and comfortable and prosperious, in spiritual goods as well as worldly goods.

The T.A.S., however, only treats with Catholics. Protestants are not taken in as members. It is therefore up to the Protestants to look after their own unfortunate. Mr. J. Harris McClellan, superintendant of the Trent Valley Canal, struck the key note while speaking at the T.A.S. gathering. He referred to the great joy it gave him to address that body of Catholic temperance men and women, but he added, it would be a far greater joy if he could, from the same platform, address a similar audience of Protestant temperance men. "Why can we not have a Protestant society with a thousand men enrolled, living temperance lives?" he asked. There is no excuse, and nothing would give him more pleasure than to address such a gathering.

In this respect it would appear that the Y.M.C.A. should do the work. It is a Christian organization supported by the people by free will offerings. It has all the advantages of a building, equipment, privileges and everything else to make it a success.

All the Players Have Worked Together on the Ice—"Witty" the Fastest of 'em All.

Fred Whitcroft and Walter Miller of the Edmonton Hockey team, were in the city for a few hours last night. They arrived on the 5.30 train, and left again on the midnight when they joined the rest of the team which passed through on their special car. Both boys are looking fine and feeling in the best of spirits and have not the least doubt but that they will be successful in lifting the cup this time.

When the Westerners arrived here they were extended the glad hand on all sides. They were warmly welcomed by a big crowd of admirers and those who were anxious for Edmonton to lift the cup. Miller spent a short time with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Miller, Water street, and then went out to see his friends, Whitcroft did likewise.

The Edmonton team has traveled all the way in a private car. There are eight members of the team and about a dozen supporters, most of whom are monied men, and they are giving the boys a good time. When Whitty and Miller went to the station last night they were accompanied by a number of the old guard, who wished them all success.

Toronto, Jan. 13.—Fred Whitcrofts Edmonton team of Stanley Cup chasers, consisting of Miller, Deeton, Whitcroft, and Ross of last year's Stanley Cup team, Hert Boulton, William Fields, Jack Winchester, the ex-Toronto boy, and Walter Miller of Peterborough, arrived this morning from the West. They were delayed twenty hours by bad train connections. They are at the Grand Union. The team had a workout at Mutual street rink at noon, and will go on to Ottawa tonight. Accompanying the team are "Deacon" White, manager of Edmonton's ball team, and founder of the Western Baseball League; Zack Bagley, John I. Mills, Fred Parney, the Alberta 220-yard champion, and J. H. Morris. Several ladies, the wives of members of the party, including Jack Winchester's bride of five days, accompany the party.

Fred Whitcroft, the popular Peterborough boy, who captains and manages the team, and Jack Winchester, the Toronto boy, received the glad hand from many friends here today, and the other players were not neglected either.

Toronto fans would be tickled half to death if Edmonton cleaned up the silverware. One feature of this trip is the fact that not one of the players is under salary. Edmonton gave $1,500 toward the trip, believing that it would be a good advertisement, and any additional expenses will be defrayed by the players themselves, and anything they receive at Ottawa will be split up.

"We have a nice team and will give a good account of ourselves," said Whitcroft today, "We have the same team, with the exception of our goal keeper, which won the Pitt-Reform Cup at Winnipeg last season."

At the practice the entire team showed a lot of speed, although Whitcroft was the fastest man on the ice. Walter Miller, the ex-Peterborough boy, who is spare man with the team, collided with an electric arc light which had been lowered. Though he shattered the globe with his head he escaped uninjured.

Spanish Soldiers go back to the Fighting

Madrid, Jan. 13.—To the intense anger of thousands of families which had been anticipating the early return of their bread winners from service in Morocco, the vigor with which the Riffs have resumed fighting against the Spanish troops has compelled a complete cessation of the withdrawal of soldiers, commenced a few weeks ago.

Among the women who have been working in the vineyards there are murmurings of trouble and sorrow.

There are already indications of the return to the conditions of semi-anarchy which prevailed before the Maura Cabinet's fall, and it is recognized in government circles that the repressive measures which Maura adopted cannot be resorted to again without the gravest dangers.

Chief Mussian of the Beni Burriara district has succeeded the late Chief Chaldy as leader of the Moroccan forces, with Chaldy's son, Ismail, as his chief lieutenant.

THE CITY TAXES.

Will Separate General and School Taxes on Tax Slip.

Aldermen are busy mapping out plans to be adopted or at least advocated in the council this year. One idea, although it was introduced last year, is the printing of the Public school rate separately on the tax slips this year so that the people will see just what they are paying for the maintenance of their schools. The council gets all the blame for the increased taxes and the aldermen do not feel that they deserve it as the Board of Education requires eight mills or more, or nearly half of the total.

CURED CONSTIPATION QUICKLY.

Tells of a Remedy That is Safe for Young and Old, for All Stomach and Bowel Troubles.

Writing from his home in Barcelona, Mr. Frederick G. Mayer states: "I think no one ever suffered as severely from constipation as I did for many six months. So many serious symptoms were developing as a consequence of this evil condition of the system, that I realized I must find a remedy. The strong pills of various kinds I tried seemed after their first effects were over to make me far worse and I did not know which way to turn for relief. I saw Dr. Hamilton's Pills advertised, and the first box used satisfied me I found a true remedy. Instead of griping by undue activity, Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted as naturally as if physic had not been taken. I never had to increase the dose, and, indeed, within a month I reduced it and when the system finally acted of its own accord as a result of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I took a dose twice a week only, just to make sure the old condition would not come back.

No other remedy cures constipation and biliousness so easily or safely as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are an ideal family remedy for all diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels. Sold in 25c. boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

CONQUER THE WORLD

LAYMEN'S MOVEMENT GAINING GREAT POWER.

The World to be Christianized During the Present Generation.

(Special to The Times.)

New York, Jan. 14.—Thousands of earnest supporters of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, which aims at Christianizing the entire world during the present generation, have arrived here to attend the conference in support of the movement which is expected to culminate in a monster rally in May next in Chicago. The idea behind the movement is that the history of the world is moving in such a way as to open the door to missions, and that if the opportunity is not seized at once no such favorable opening may again be offered. A campaign of education on a national scale is conducted by the Laymen's Missionary movement, with the indorsement of the Foreign Missionary Boards of America. The movement is not connected with any church, and is entirely in the hands of laymen. One of the objects of the campaign is to raise a fund of $30,000,000 for the purpose of Christianizing the world. The conference, which will open here tonight with a dinner for 3000, at the Hotel Astor, will continue through tomorrow and will close on Sunday with a big mass meeting at the Hippodrome.

This is district No. 2, and the teams entered are: Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Peterborough, Bobcaygeon, Beaverton, Port Hope and Canning-ton, with Mr. Flavelle as umpire. Each team will have two rinks, and those to represent Peterborough will be G. H. Giroux and J. H. Connal.

Farm Laborer Taken with Farmer's Wife

Toronto, Jan. 13.—Edward Norris, the farm laborer from the neighborhood of Bradford, Ont., who was arrested in a Toronto hotel last night, was handed over to Chief of Police Simpkins of Bradford, by the Toronto authorities, and departed for that town at 1.30 today. When arrested he was accompanied by Mrs. Kate Breeze, the wife of a farm laborer, also from the neighborhood of Bradford, and her two children, aged six and three years. Norris and Mrs. Breeze had registered as man and wife, and had been in the hotel only a short time before the arrival of Detectives Guthrie and Murray. Norris was locked up, and Mrs. Breeze and her children were cared for in the police court station last night and this morning given over to the Salvation Army.

"Norris took advantage of the absence of Breeze from his home," said Chief of Police Simpkins today. "He procured a sleigh and drove up the door. Mrs. Breeze and her children were bundled in and driven to Bradford. They took the train for Toronto, and we telephoned the detective department there. Norris intended to go to Saskatoon."

Jessie Thompson Has Served 16 Years in the Penitentiary

Toronto, Jan. 13.—Jessie Thompson, a notorious pickpocket, was sent to jail by Magistrate Denison this morning for three months. This woman has been one of the most difficult cases encountered by the police. She has spent 16 years in Kingston Penitentiary for picking pockets, in addition to serving shorter terms on minor offences. She seems to have a mania for this especial crime.

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by all dealers.

WRIT ISSUED.

Local Woman Interested in a Contested Will Case.

Toronto, Jan. 13.—A writ has been issued against James Scott of Waterloo, at the instance of Matilda Neil, of Peterborough; Alice Ward, of Brampton; Lillie and John Scott, of Chicago, on behalf of themselves and all other heirs and next of kin of John Scott of Galt, cattle dealer, who died July 4, 1908, claiming to set aside as fraudulent and void an alleged will dated March 7, 1903, declared by defendant to be the last will and testament of his father, the deceased. The plaintiffs also claim a declaration that the alleged will is not in reality deceased's last will, and was procured through the alleged fraud or undue influence of defendant.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a very valuable medicine for throat and lung troubles, quickly relieves and cures painful breathing and a dangerously sounding cough, which indicates congested lungs. Sold by all dealers.

SUCCESSFUL SALE.

Farm Stock Brings Good Prices at a Cavan Auction.

On Wednesday last Mr. J. H. Gardner, the well known auctioneer, conducted a sale of farm stock and implements at the farm of Mr. Wm. Sisson, Cavan, which was very successful, and was attended by the farmers of our counties. The sale netted in the neighborhood of $2500, and although it was advertised as a credit sale yet a marked feature was that practically no credit was asked, the buyers paying cash for their purchases.

Horses sold from $150 to $217.50 each, a two-year-old colt $170, and a yearling at $147. Cows brought from $33 to $50 each. Mr. Sisson is giving up farming and is coming to Peterborough to reside. The sale is one of many which Mr. Gardner has conducted during the past season and all have been phenominally successful.

Dying of Cholera

Local Physician Says Thousands Dying in Europe Can Be Saved With Proper Medicine.

What is it that keeps down cholera, cramps, and summer complaints in America? Ask any doctor or druggist and he will tell you "Nerviline." Just fancy, a million bottles are sold every year to people who use Nerviline for stomach disorder, cramps, flatulence, and summer complaint. For fifty years in most Canadian homes no other pain-relieving medicine but Nerviline is kept. Nothing cures the aches, pains and sickness of the entire family so quickly as Nerviline.

LETTER NO. 4272

"As far back as I can remember, at least 50 years ago, there was never a time that our house was without 'Nerviline.' In the summer time, when the children ate green apples and got sick with diarrhoea and cramps, it was Nerviline that cured them. Mr. father used Nerviline frequently to cure gas on his stomach and acute indigestion. There are but few minor ailments that Nerviline does not cure, and I know of no medicine so useful; in fact, so indispensable around the home as Nerviline.'

This letter, written by Mrs. N. C. Belcher, a well known resident in Battersea, shows the high opinion entertained of Nerviline by those who have used it constantly for nearly half a century.

You'll never regret using Nerviline. Get it today, keep it on and for an accident or sudden ease of sickness in your home. Refuse anything else offered you instead of Nerviline. 25c per bottle, or five for $1.00. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

VOTE FOR WOMEN

In a letter to the London Morning Post Lord Cromer gives his reason for opposing the extension of the franchise to women. It would expand the British electorate of 7,500,000 to one of 20,000,000, and giveR women a great preponderance over men at the polls. Thus their ballots would govern the conduct and decide the fate of the nation. Moreover, it is certain that the bestowal of the suffrage would be followed by a demand for seats in Parliament and for the appointment of women to the cabinet.

Lord Cromer denies that in the existing system of government the opinions of women are unrepresented. He declares it to be true in ed. He declares it to be untrue in every sense that their interests are appreciably disregarded. The most largely-signed petition ever presented to the British Parliament was sent up by women who objected to having the vote imposed upon them. Amongst those opposed to the innovation are many highly intellectual women engaged in different forms of public work, and many thoughtful women of the working class.

The Post's correspondent continues: "Little light is yet thrown upon the subject by the experience of the States which have adopted female suffrage. The experiment has not been made for long, and it has been confined to small States where there have been as yet not very complicated social questions to determine, and where there have been no imperial questions at all. It is, however, most significant that in the United States of America, where a few States adopted female suffrage some long while ago, there appears to be no tendency, whatever, for their neighbors to follow their example." Judging from the small number who appeared at the polls in the recent municipal elections the women of Toronto do not appreciate their limited franchise, but that is not saying that they would not properly value a complete enfranchisement.

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Chin, thus giving us a chain of ele-vators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $18.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of one chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent. dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as referents of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 16.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 25.20 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in these concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

11 MILLS IN GUELPH.

Guelph, Jan. 11.—At the last meeting of the 1909 City Council of Guelph, yesterday morning, the Finance Committee brought in a final report, showing the financial statement of the city at the close of the year, which showed that after meeting all the regular expenses of the year, the city had a tax rate of 14 mills on the dollar, been able to declare a surplus of nearly $1,000 on hand.

This is a most remarkable showing, when it is taken into consideration that the city's share of the expenses of the new winter fair building came to $25,000, or $5,000 more than was expected.

TRAVELERS' TALES.

The Blunders in Books That Describe Foreign Countries.

A lively article on the amusing mistakes to be found in books appears in the London Academy. The author in referring to the blunders often made in books that describe foreign countries notes that a traveler's ignorance of the manners and customs of strange peoples or deliberate imposition by his informants are both supposed to have given a somewhat fabulous character to some parts of the writings of Herodotus. He quotes these lines, which he found written on his desk when he was attending lectures at Oxford:

Herodotus, Herodotus,
You could not spell, you ancient cuss.
The priests in Egypt gammoned you.
It was not very hard to do.
But don't you think you'll gammon us,
Herodotus, Herodotus.

The author adds: "The second line is presumably a reference to the spelling of Ionic Greek. What follows alludes to the story of the Nile issuing from between the mountains Crophi and Mophi, which certainly sounds like a nursery tale. In justice, however, to the historian we must remember that recent investigations have discovered that many of his narratives once regarded as mythical have been found to have some foundation in fact.

"This is more than can be said of most mediaeval travelers' tales. Some, however, admit of explanation, as, for instance, Othello's account of 'men whose heads do grow beneath their shoulders.' Raleigh is convinced that the wonder is true, because every child in the provinces of Arromain and Canuri affirms the same.' The origin of the belief in such prodigies has been found in the account given by Olearius of the Samojeds of northern Muscovy, whose 'garments are made like those that are called cossques, open only at the necks. When the cold is extraordinary they put their cossques over their heads and let the sleeves hang down, their faces being not to be seen but at the cleft which is

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do an act of Humanity?
Will you tell some sick friend of this, my remedy?
Tell him to-day. Once you have learned of a remedy you can bless him for ever after. It is absolutely and unconditionally free to all.
And you, my dearie, already heavy of limb, through disorder and its popularity.
For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Kidney and Bladder disorders, Nervousness and Stomach disorders.
When the "misfits" or compelling agents of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that helps them, and repairs the lost tissue. Nerves and organs built to health again.
I do not dose the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.
Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the cause of these ailments—the failing, inactive nerves or starving nerves. And builds them the strength to say commend.
When these nerves are again made well and strong, then this is the certain end of all such disorders.
Terms it is a great satisfaction then, I am the only physician able to say to the sufferer this: Take my prescription for full 30 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire charges to nothing—not yours.
Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, when the maker does not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?
I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the above identical "No help, no pay" protective plan.
Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.
Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is freely yours for a simple postcard.
So let me send you an order at once. Take the message to some sick friend.
A postal will bring the opportunity.
I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist in your town can spare you for the 30 day test.
But first, ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 30 day test.
So write me now and save all delays. Remember that tomorrow never comes. Address

FREAK CATALOGUING.

British Museum Has a System That Few Can Fathom.

It may seem ungrateful in an old reader who has reaped so many benefits from the great library in Bloomsbury to find fault with the arrangements, and if I stood alone in this complaint I would retain my isolation, but the grievance is ventilated by many.

In the first place, I and J are treated as the same letter, as U and V are. That was all right when the catalogue was begun and was in manuscript, but now that printing has superseded handwriting the obsolete fashion of cataloguing Jones and Ives under the same letter or Vale and Darwin as having the same initial might be discontinued and the modern usage adopted.

In the second place, anonymous works are catalogued according to a bewildering system, the object of which seems to be to hide the identity of the work.

Take the case of the valuable little book with the following title: "An Account of the Origin of Steamboats, in Spain, Great Britain and America and of Their Introduction and Employment Upon the River Thames Between London and Gravesend to the Present Time"—i. e., 1831. One would think that it would be catalogued under "Steamboats," that being the main subject, but no—it is catalogued under "Spain." I am told the rule is to take the first proper name.

That rule, however, is not applied in the next case. A well written little book published in 1907 is entitled "Devon, the Shire of the Sea Kings." "Devon" would seem to be the natural heading, but no—in the catalogue it will be found under "Great Western Railway."—London Notes and Queries.

Broke the Combination.

The father of Judge W. H. Wadhams had a chicken coop and a dog and a stable hand. It began to look to Mr. Wadhams as though some one had discovered the combination. So he kept the coop and the stable hand, but he got a new dog. Next day the best old Negro who groomed the Wadhams horses came to him.

"You los' you affection foh me, boss?" he asked.

"No, Scipio," said Mr. Wadhams. "I like you as well as ever."

"Then," asked Scipio pointedly, "w'y'n't you tie old Rover in de chicken coop stid of dat new dorg?"—Argonaut.

The "Worthy" Fuller.

Intimately connected with the County of Northampton is that "stout Church and King-man," Fuller, who speaks with a peculiar love of the great corn county, its fruitful earth and plentiful water; and "if that country esteem me no disgrace to it, I esteem it an honor to me." At Aldwinkle St. Peter's—his father was "the painful preacher" of that place—his early boyhood was passed, until he was sent, at the early age of twelve years, "a boy of pregnant wit," to Queen's College at Cambridge. He was preferred to the rectory of Broadwindsor, in Dorset, where he began his history of the Crusades, under the title of the "Historie of the Holy Warre," marked by his peculiar humor, for wit was the salt and substance of Fuller's intellect, which with his deportment, "according to the old English guise," made him popular in the "voiced pulpits" of London, when he was called thither in the memorable convocation of Canterbury, and which won him, when lecturer at the chapel of St. Mary Savoy, crowded audiences which extended far into the chapel yard. A partisan of peace, a preacher of ardent loyalism, when London was well-nigh abandoned by active royalists, Fuller was obliged to make his way secretly to the "home of lost causes," where he became chaplain to the regiment of Lord Hopton, and was considered one of the great cavalier parsons, but where, for the last five years of the war, he "had little list or leisure to write, leaving to be made a history. All that time to collecting materials for his work from old buildings and ancient gossips, which were afterwards made use of in his "Church History" and the "Worthies of England."

Remarkable Song Service.

A remarkable service was held one Sunday recently in the chapel of Pentonville Prison, England, when over a thousand prisoners attended and listened to the singing of a male voice choir from London. A large prison chapel, crowded with the prisoners—men of all ages and sizes, clad in their khaki-colored prison garb, and wearing their identification badges on their chests—presented a remarkable sight. Here and there the yellow was relieved by the blue uniforms of the warders. The men listened with manifest interest to the singing of favorite hymns by the choristers, and as the strains of touching pieces reached their ears, one could see hard faces perceptibly softening, and now and again a head would bury itself in a big blue prison handkerchief. The hymns sung included "Fight the good fight," "O, love that will not let me go," and "Lead, kindly light," and among the choruses rendered were "The comrades' song of hope."

Royal Christmas Cards.

The Christmas cards which will be sent out this year by the King and Queen have been specially painted for Their Majesties.

King Edward's Christmas card recall the knightly days of King Arthur and the Round Table. The scene is laid in King Arthur's great hall in the palace of Camelot.

Queen Alexandra has chosen a scene for her Christmas card in which another Queen of England played a part in which our present Queen excels. It is in showing the tenderest feelings for the helpless and the oppressed. The scene is the well-known incident when Queen Philippa pleaded for the lives of the citizens of Calais who had conducted its defence for twelve months against the forces of King Edward. The greatest of the Plantagenets stands with a purple robe thrown over his armor, while his gracious Queen kneels at his feet and implores him to show the greatest of all royal prerogatives—mercy.

The Prince of Wales has selected the incident in the Temple Gardens when the scions of the Houses of York and Lancaster plucked each a red and white rose to wear as their badges in the coming struggle. The Princess of Wales has chosen Sir Howard Davies' picture of Alfred the Great being taught to read by his mother, Queen Osburga. The German Emperor, as usual, comes to London and Messrs. Tuck for his greeting card. This year the Kaiser's thoughts are evidently on the sea, as his Christmas card is a reproduction of the scene when Henry VIII. set off on the Great Harry for the Field of the Cloth of Gold. The Empress of Russia, the Queen of Spain, and the Queen of Italy, have all three chosen a Madonna and Child.

A Spelling Obstacle Race.

To test the spelling capabilities of fifty applicants for junior clerkships in the offices of the Sydney Water and Sewerage Board, they were called upon to write from dictation this paragraph:

"This celibate was a licentiate in medicine, and held other scholastic diplomas. His characteristics were idiosyncrasies personified — one day taciturn, the next garrulous. To-day his facile pen evolves a sapient dictum in piquant satire of some literary genius; to-morrow an encomiastic effusion on an illiterate voluptuary. His studies on concrete science were exotic; his researches in natural history esoteric, if not chimerical."

No fewer than forty-three out of fifty candidates came to grief in this artfully-designed spelling obstacle race.

At the next meeting of the board a member doubted whether ten out of fifty Oxford M.A.'s, if suddenly called upon to write out the same, would succeed in negotiating every one of the words successfully.

A Marquess's Eccentricities.

The announcement that the Marchioness of Anglesey is to marry again recalls the eccentricities of the late marquess, who found an income of $566,000 insufficient to maintain his extravagant fads. He change his dress every hour of the day, and always changed his jewels to match his attire. His servants were dressed in rich, barbaric garb, his chauffeur being attired as an Indian Prince. The marquess wore a pink dress-suit for dinner, and bought jewels indiscriminately. He was often taken in, many paste baubles being foisted upon him by unscrupulous dealers, who persuaded him that they were genuine stones.

If your stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

There will be a demand for years to come for the beautiful picture "The Soul's Awakening," issued by the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal. There will also be many sorely disappointed when very soon they are told that another copy can be had. It is a wonderfully charming picture. It touched the heart of mankind. But there is no reason for being without a copy in your own home. The publishers positively guarantee that for some weeks yet they will mail a copy to every person who remits a dollar for a year's subscription to the Family Herald and Weekly Star. A BARGAIN IN OIL STOCK

20 Cents Per Share

THE LIBERTY OIL COMPANY is offering a limited number of shares of the Treasury stock for sale, for the purpose of further development, at the ridiculously low price of 20c per share.

This property has one well pumping Oil, and is drilling Well No. 2. Bear in mind that two wells of 100 barrels each could pay dividends on our small capitalization.

Read the following Questions and Answers, and then fill in the Coupon at once:

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question—What is the Capital Stock of the Liberty Oil Company?

Answer—Five Hundred Thousand shares of a par value of $1.00.

Q.—Is there any free stock, bonus stock, or promotion stock?

A.—No. Every share of stock is placed in the Treasury for the benefit of the stockholders.

Q.—Is there more than one kind of stock?

A.—NO. All Common Stock.

Q.—Is there any bonded indebtedness?

A.—NO.

Q.—What acreage does the Liberty Oil Company control?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company has a forty year lease on 125 acres of proven oil ground, on a royalty of one-sixth of the oil shipped.

Q.—Where is the property located?

A.—Ventura County, California, nine miles from Nordhoff and twelve miles from Santa Paula. Both of these towns are on the Southern Pacific Railway. All supplies will come from Los Angeles, which is about seventy miles south, insuring prompt delivery.

Q.—Is it necessary to build a wagon road to the property from either of the above mentioned towns?

A.—NO. There are good wagon roads from both cities, and an automobile can be driven to the property without difficulty.

Q.—How do you know this is oil-bearing ground?

A.—Because we have one well on the property that is on the pump. This will furnish all the fuel required for pumping well No. 1, drilling Well No. 2, and a surplus beside. The Union Oil Co. has numerous producing wells one-fourth mile to the south of us and also just north of our property. Furthermore, we have some of the largest oil seepages in Ventura County.

Q.—What grade of oil is produced in Ventura County?

A.—Most of the Ventura County oil is high gravity, suitable for refining purposes, and brings $1 per barrel upwards at the well. The oil on our property is high gravity oil.

Q.—What facilities have you for disposing of your oil?

A.—The oil will be delivered to the Union Oil Company's pipe line one mile distant, through a gravity pipe line, which will soon be constructed.

Q.—What does the Liberty Oil Company agree to do if I subscribe for stock?

A.—They agree to expend the money received from the sale of stock through their financial agents, Sagar & Loomis, for the general development of the property.

Q.—What development work does the Company propose to do?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company proposes to sink additional wells from time to time until the property is fully developed, the estimated limit for maximum results being thirty wells. Well No. 2 is now being drilled, and sunk to a depth of 2,800 feet thereby cutting through all five of the oil-bearing sands referred to in the report of our Engineer and Field Manager, Mr. Edward F. Eastman. He estimates that Well No. 2 will produce steadily at least 100 barrels per day and possibly up to 200.

Q.—Is an investment in California Oil Stock a speculation, or a good business proposition?

A.—It is said on good authority that 50 per cent. of the bankers of the State of California are interested in Oil. Bankers usually know how and where to invest their money. Take a property like the Liberty Oil Company and you have purely a business proposition. It is just a question of how many wells the Company sinks—the more wells the greater the dividends. Your stock increases in value from the day you purchase it. On completion of Well No. 2, we expect the Company's income will be at least $100 per day, and you can easily calculate what the dividends should be on our small capitalization of $500,000. Each succeeding well should average not less than one hundred barrels per day.

Q.—What assurance has the investor that Liberty Oil Company's stock will be a safe and profitable investment?

A.—The Company is incorporated under the strict laws of the State of California, and the Directors are all capable business men of unquestioned integrity, and honest management of the Company's affairs is assured. The capitalization (500,000 shares, is in Treasury of the Company, and as there is no promotion, bonus or free stock, every stockholder is on an equal basis. In all probability it will not be necessary to sell all of the Treasury Stock to put the Company on a dividend paying basis and to fully develop the property—in which event each stockholder's interest would be increased proportionately.

Q.—Has any money been expended on the property?

A.—Yes. One well has been sunk to a depth of 2,000 feet and is now pumping oil. This well furnishes all the oil needed for fuel, thereby saving the Liberty Oil Company an expense of $500 per month for fuel and hauling same to the property.

Q.—What is the present price of the stock?

A.—The par value is $1.00 per share. A small allotment of stock is being sold at 20c. per share, to sink Well No. 3 and finish Well No. 2, which is now being drilled. This allotment will doubtless be over-subscribed. Send in your order at once, as price will advance without notice.

Q.—What income can I expect from my stock?

A.—The Company feels reasonably sure that a dividend can, and will be paid within one year, or as soon as there are three pumping wells on the property. They also believe that the dividends will be at least one (1c) cent. per share per month. That would be sixty per cent. per annum to the investor who buys at 20c. per share.

Q.—Will it be necessary for an investor to wait until the Company is paying dividends to realize a profit on his investment?

A.—NO. You will be able to sell your stock within sixty or ninety days at an advance, if you take time by the forelock and buy at the present low price, 20c. per share.

Q.—Under what conditions can I visit the property?

A.—Write us if you want to go and look over the property of the Liberty Oil Company at our expense, and tell us how much you will invest, providing you find it as good as we have represented. We are sure you will double the amount after a personal inspection.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 13 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, SATURDAY JANUARY 15, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Night Classes May be Established in Peterboro' Collegiate Institute

Night classes in the Collegiate Institute for working boys has been introduced into the Board of Education by a letter from the Education Department at Toronto. Mr. D. W. Dumble, Col. Miller and several other members of the board are quite enthusiastic over the proposition. Mr. Dumble pointed out that the city has spent many thousands of dollars in buildings and equipment and are spending $20,000 a year for maintenance of the Collegiate for the benefit of a comparatively few boys whose parents can afford to keep them at school while there are hundreds of boys compelled to work in the day time and many of them would be very glad to avail themselves of the opportunity to get some assistance from the night classes. The only expense additional would be for light and extra salary for the teacher. He believed that the most encouraging results would be obtained.

The matter is now in the hands of the Supervision Committee, and will be dealt with by them at an early date.

Board of Education Wants $60,500 for Expenses During This Year

Mr. D. W. Dumble, Chairman of the Finance Committee, Presented His Budget—Collegiate will Cost $20,000, and Public Schools $40,500 with Government Grant Added

The demand of the Board of Education upon the City Council for 1910 will be $60,500. The Board met last night and received the estimates prepared by the Finance Committee and presented by the chairman, Mr. D. W. Dumble. The estimates were based largely upon last year's expenditure.

The figures furnished in the report which will appear in Monday's issue are of the utmost importance to every Public school ratepayer in the city and should be gone over carefully.

During the past year the board received $80,942.34, and expended $83,278.04.

Of the receipts the Ontario Government contributed by several grants $6,942.02. Sale of Collegiate debentures amounted to $10,000.

The expenditures included the payment of a balance due the bank of $11,944.48, and salaries, $56,271.89.

The expenditure for the Collegiate Institute was $30,103.94 or $2,353.36 more than the receipts.

The receipts for the Public schools was $53,191.76 or $17.66 more than the expenditures.

ASKED FOR ALLOWANCE.

J. C. Smith, who taught in the schools here for 19 years, and who retired in 1908, applied to the board for a retiring allowance as he had taught at a very low salary for most of the nineteen years and was unable to save anything.

Mr. Hill stated that unless a teacher taught for at least twenty years the board could not make any grant legally to Mr. Smith, as he had not taught twenty years. The communication was received.

A number of accounts were received and ordered to be paid.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Thos. Gordon.

The citizens of the village were shocked to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. Thomas Gordon, which occurred on Sunday morning last, the cause of death being heart failure. deceased lady had retired Saturday night seemingly in her usual good health, and about three o'clock Sunday morning, without any warning whatever suddenly passed away. The late Mrs. Gordon, whose maiden name was Sarah Sophia Down, was well known throughout this section, and was very highly respected. She was a consistent member of the Baptist Church, and her faithful work in that congregation will be greatly missed. Deceased, who was born in Smith Township, was 61 years of age, and 44 years ago she was united in marriage to Mr. Thos. Gordon. There are left to mourn her loss a husband and ten children, seven daughters and three sons, as follows—Miss Eva, Toronto; Mrs. Wm. Baker, Lakefield; Mrs. A. W. Record, Toronto; Mrs. Chas. Pentz, Morris, Man.; Mrs. J. Blewett, Summerland, B. C., Miss Nellie, Griswold, Man.; Miss Beatrice, Lakefield; Gilbert G., Bobcaygeon; William R. and Charles, of Lakefield. She is survived by her mother, Mrs H. Down, who resides in Peterborough, and three sisters and one brother Mrs. Wm. Yelland, Mrs. E. Stubbs and Mrs. E. Mann, all of Peterborough, and Mr. W. H. Down, of Douro. The remains were interred in the Lakefield cemetery on Tuesday afternoon, the funeral being very largely attended.—Lakefield News.

STARVATION AMID PLENTY.

Not Uncommon Today—The Reason is Explained.

"For a period last summer the thought of food excited feelings of nausea," writes Mrs. C. A. Dodges, of Bloomsbury. "The heat had made me listless and the distaste for food reduced me to a condition of semi-starvation and brought me to the verge of nervous collapse. Tonics were useless to restore an active desire for food. The doctors told me my liver and kidneys were both at fault, but the medicines they gave me were too severe and reduced my strength so that I had to abandon them. At the suggestion of a friend who had been cured of blood and skin trouble, I began the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The difference I first noticed was, that while they cleansed the system, instead of feeling weaker I felt better after taking them. Indeed their activity was so mild it was easy to forget I had taken them at all; they seemed to go right to the liver; and in a very brief time not only did all source of nausea disappear but I began to crave food and I digested it reasonably well. Then I began to put on weight until within three months I was brought to a condition of good health. I urge Dr. Hamilton's Pills for all who are in poor health."

Cutting Ice.

Ice cutting has been started and quite a staff of men are engaged at various points. The quality is of a high standard this year.

Police Investigation.

The majority of citizens are asking when the police commissioners will open the investigation into the police force. His Honor Judge Huycke, chairman of the commission is at the present time very busy, but he will call the commissioners together as soon as possible.

THE WEATHER.

Fair and cold.

The Mansion of Life

WHEN you have had an "awful night, or a hard day," say nothing about it. Refuse absolutely to carry burdens. Throw off what you do not want, and cease to remember what you would rather forget. To continue to think or speak of an unpleasant experience is to make it a part of your mind, and you cannot afford to place defective bricks in the mansion of life.

Many a structure that was otherwise perfect has fallen to the ground because there were too many bricks of that sort in its walls.

The day is done; it may have been a hard day; but to go to sleep brooding over its rough places will not tend to make the morrow more smooth.

Forget the day that is done, and prepare to make the coming day the best you ever knew. Expect the new day to be the best day you ever knew, and you will do your best to make it so. Meet the new day in this attitude, and whatever the day may bring forth will serve you well.

Messrs. Snowden and Tooley Granted Pawn Broker's License

A meeting of the Finance Committee was held yesterday afternoon for the first time this year. Ald. Bradburn occupied the chair, and all the members were present. It was decided after some discussion to have a bylaw prepared for the granting of pawn brokers' licenses to Messrs. Wm. Snowden and M. Tooly. The license fee is fixed by law at $60.

The committee recommends that the city renew its membership in the Ontario Municipal Association.

DR. YOUNG'S ACCOUNT.

Dr. Young has an account for a couple of hundred dollars against the city for professional services during the outbreak of smallpox last summer. Dr. Young claims to have looked after several cases just before the change was made in the medical health officer. It was just about that time that smallpox was first discovered. He sent his account to the Board of Health and that body sent it on to the council. The Finance Committee decided, that, as the council had nothing to do with engaging Dr. Young, the account be sent back to the Board of Health to deal with.

ST LUKE'S CHOIR.

Entertained at the Home of Miss Cora Pakenham.

St. Luke's choir was pleasantly entertained on Thursday evening at the home of Miss Cora Pakenham, Aberdeen Ave. A very enjoyable time was spent with cards and music. During the evening a presentation was made to Miss Electa Strong, a member of the choir, who left to-day for Toronto, where she intends to reside in the future. On behalf of the choir, in a few well-chosen remarks, expressing regret at Miss Strong's departure, Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., presented the young lady with handsome prayer and hymn books in a case. Miss Strong made a fitting reply, expressing her appreciation of the choir's kindness.

At the conclusion dainty refreshments were served and a very happy time was brought to a close by a vote of thanks passed to Miss Pakenham for her kind hospitality.

If troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or feel bilious, give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by all dealers.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Homesteader Loses His Wife and Two Children in a Fire

Saskatoon, Sask., Jan. 14.—As the result of a fire which broke out this morning shortly after seven o'clock in the shack of a homesteader named Henderson, situated on the west side of the town, his wife and her two children, together with the two children of a man named Alexander, Reid, are dead.

Reid himself, was so terribly burned trying to save the children that the lower part of his body is stripped of flesh and his condition is hopeless.

Henderson retirned to his homestead yesterday, bringing Reid with him, as the two children of the latter board with the Hendersons.

Mystery surrounds the tragedy but the fire is supposed to have been caused by an overheated stove.

The fire department only reached the scene in time to draw out the charred remains. The coroner will hold an inquest.

Later reports state that Henderson only came home from his homestead last night to enjoy a few days with his family. All retired as usual last night and nothing unusual was noticed until the fire broke out early this morning while the family were still asleep.

The Chinese and the "Black Rice"

IT is difficult to estimate how many of the Chinese have acquired the use of opium. Various estimates, according to E. W. Thwing, secretary of the international bureau, claim that a moderate figure would be between 10 and 20 per cent. of the male population, or 2½ to 5 per cent. of the total population. It is said that in some places 80 per cent. of the adult males use opium, and at least one-tenth of the women. Before the present anti-opium campaign began there were over a thousand opium dens registered in the city of Foo Chow alone. The Chinese often call opium the "black rice."—Dundee Advertiser.

English Arrogance Disliked in Canada

London, Jan. 14.—In connection with the proposed Public School League of the Empire, Field Marshal Lord Roberts has written a meeting of head masters at the Guild Hall to the effect that while in Canada, attending the Tercentenary in 1908, he noticed with painful surprise that the Canadian did not always view the Englishman with unalloyed satisfaction.

"It must be remembered," wrote the observant Bobs, "that Canadians cannot put up with the arrogance shown in the English belief that young men with Colonial ways are not so good as the English."

Forty Killed and Injured in a Wreck

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 14.—According to a report which has reached the police department here, forty persons were killed and injured when train No. 14 on the Vandalia railroad was wrecked at Effingham, Ill., early today.

Reports also say that the entire train is burning.

Railroad officials admit that there has been a wreck, but aside from saying that three persons were injured refuse to discuss the report.

According to a report at the railroad offices here, Conductor Felam, of Indianapolis, a brakeman, and a woman passenger, whose names are not learned were injured.

Canada Buys Over 60 Per Cent. of Imports from United States

Washington, Jan. 14.—The highest record ever made in trade between Canada and the United States was that of the last calendar year, according to official figures of the bureau of statieties, department of Commerce and Labor.

During the last ten years this trade has more than doubled. In no former year have either imports from or exports to Canada equalled the record of 1909.

Imports from Canada in 1899 aggregated $36,500,000, while in 1909 they increased to $83,000,000. In the same period the exports from the United States to Canada increased from $66,000,000 to about $190,000,000.

Canadian official statistics show that in 1909, 60.4 per cent. of all Canadian imports were from the United States compared with 46.08 per cent. in 1899.

While it is often impossible to prevent an accident, it is never impossible to be prepared—it is not beyond any one's purse. Invest 25 cents in a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and you are prepared for sprains, bruises and like injuries. Sold by all dealers.

Government of Japan Sure to Annex Korea

Tokio, Jan. 14.—The possible annexation of Korea to Japan continues to excite wide interest and discussion. It may be stated upon the most reliable authority, however, that the Government of Japan has no immediate attention of taking steps looking to the annexation of Korea.

That annexation is very probable at some time in the not very far distant future is certain, but the policy of the Japanese Government, it is said, is the same as it was when Prince Ito was the resident-general of Korea, which means that if the Koreans lend themselves to the Japanese protectorate in such manner as to enable Japan to develop the resources of Korea and make of Korea a valuable ally, actual annexation will be indefinitely postponed, otherwise it is the only step remaining.

The leading newspapers of Tokio are divided on the question.

TO OPEN PORT ARTHUR

Tokio, Jan. 14.—The decision of the Japanese Government to open Port Arthur as a free commercial port of entry has been under consideration for a considerable time, and while no official announcement has been made upon the subject, it is learned from very reliable sources that the plan will be consummated in a very short time.

Lives of Children were in Peril

Toronto, Jan. 14.—The lives of 140 little children were in peril this morning from a fire that filled the doorway of St. Clair avenue Public school with sheets of flame, blocking the exit of the pupils and creating momentary confusion in the school.

One class of thirty boys and girls the senior class, darted out the door to safety running the fiery gauntlet without harm, though it looked like a desperate chance.

Some ten children who were in the upstairs rooms were dropped out the windows by their teachers, falling a distance of some thirty feet to the ground.

Two of them were slightly injured. Luckily there were drifts of snow on the ground and the fall of the youngsters were broken by the snow.

The five are:

Clayton Patterson, aged 8, living at 2239 St. Clair avenue, spine injured.

Harold Taylor, aged 8, living at 2044 St. Clair avenue, ankle sprained.

Eva Patterson, shaken up.
Kenneth Taylor, leg sprained.
Tom Margery, shaken up.

The cause of the fire is a mystery. Miss Ward, the 20-year-old caretaker had left the school and gone across the street to her father's home to have breakfast when the fire broke out.

It started at the cold air register just inside the front vestibule door and immediately in front of the door of Principal Gray's class room.

The theory of the firemen is that the cold air had been shut off and the heat had come up the flue from the furnace finally setting fire to the woodwork.

When it was discovered the blaze had gained great headway, and a fiery wall stood between the children and the big front door. One boy decided to take a chance and run the gauntlet of the flames. He darted through and the rest of the class followed like a flock of sheep. Luckily their clothes did not catch fire as they passed through. In the sudden confusion they overlooked the fact that it would have been safer to throw up the windows and jump out.

"Nerviline" Cures Rheumatism

And Here is the Proof—A Solemn Statement from a Four-years' Cripple, Who Says "Nerviline" Did It.

"If I had lived through my sufferings another year it would have been a miracle," This is the opening sentence of the declaration made by Mr. J. Eccles Squires, member of one of the best-known families for twenty miles round Sydney. "My hands were drawn out of shape, even my fingers were gnarled and crooked—my lameness, stiffness and inability to get about all showed the havoc Rheumatism made with my health. The blessing of it all is that I have heard of Nerviline, and now I am able to tell and advise others how they get well, too. My system was so weak-ened that I had to build up with a good tonic, so I took Ferrozone at meals. But I never stopped rubbing on Nerviline—it had a magic influence on my stiff, painful joints, and bottle after bottle was rubbed on the painful parts. Nerviline cured me. I am well today—have been well for 4½ years."

CURED 4 1-2 YEARS.

You also can cure rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia or any pain or stiffness in the muscles or joints—to do so use Nerviline. Don't let your druggist substitute. Get Nerviline only; large bottles, 25c., or five for $1.00; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 15, 1910.

JANUARY THAW.

While patriots praise the crisp, sparkling, cold winter days, the January thaw is neglected, if not despised. The true lover of nature, however, loves all kinds of weather, and finds pleasure in the mild days that intervene between the darkness of December and the fierce cold of February. There is a promise of spring in the air—a smell of the earth and of trees and grass, a sound of dripping water. Nature stirs in her long sleep, says it is not time to get up yet, and turns over for another nap, as the seven o'clock man does when he hears the six o'clock whistle blow in the dark morning.

After the thaw, the next event is a perceptible lengthening of the day. Of course, the day is always lengthening from December to June, but there is one psychological moment for saying the "days are getting longer." It is usually in late January or early February. There is some landmark of progress; you have daylight enough to eat breakfast or to dress, daylight as you leave your shop or office for home, then some one quotes the proverb; "As the days begin to lengthen the cold begins to strengthen," and the optimist reverses the proverb—as the cold begins to strengthen the days begin to lengthen. After February blasts comes the seed catalogues, the bloom on whose covers is the real beginning of spring.

Positive Guarantee.

There will be a demand for years to come for the beautiful picture "The Soul's Awakening," issued by the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal. There will also be many sorely disappointed when very soon they are told that another copy can be had. It is a wonderfully charming picture. It touched the heart of mankind. If placed in a show window almost every passerby will stop at first sight of it, study it, and go away feeling better for having seen it. But there is no reason for being without a copy in your own home. The publishers positively guarantee that for some weeks yet they will mail a copy to every person who remits a dollar for a year's subscription to the Family Herald and Weekly Star. Those who have already subscribed are sure of it. Those who have not should do so now, and be sure, for they will certainly want a copy if they ever see it.

SUFFRAGETTE ATTIRE.

Women Who Would Vote Now Carry Walking Sticks.

Now that women here and there are wearing a little pin with "Votes For Women" on it, suffragette fashions may be expected to boom.

Several of them have already appeared, but they were classed among the freaks because they weren't really practical. Thus the divided skirt with the long train is seen only on the stage, and you don't have to go and see it there unless you want to, so sensible women are spared the spectacle of seeing others of their sex maneuver in these bifurcated and most inartistic garments.

Some other suffragette fashions have been equally short lived, but here are two novelties which because they serve a distinct purpose are expected to last at least throughout the strenuous suffrage season.

The first is the walking stick.

The second is the hat that stays on without pins.

Any woman with the vaguest suspicion of a limp has an excuse to get a walking stick and to carry it constantly, or she may adopt the Marquise de Pompadour's excuse—very high heels and carry a long cane to help her over the treacherous cobblestones. No matter for what reason she carries it—tight shoes or manly principles—the walking stick is distinctly effective, and since men have carried it for centuries in some form or other it has uses other than the display of vanity.

As Mme. de Pompadour well knew, nothing shows off a costume so effectively as the grand gesture produced by the graceful use of the walking stick.

It is a long cry from suffragette fashions to evening gowns, but even the shrieking sisterhood condescend to array themselves in the most stunning of frocks upon occasions. The costume illustrated is a Parisian creation of oyster white satin. A noticeable feature of the design is the great fullness that is brought into the skirt at the back. Over the satin fourreau is a close fitting tunic made of a latticework of silver cords and opals, an opal being set wherever the cords cross each other. The tunic falls in a deep point almost to the feet in front. The upper part of the bodice is very original. It gives the fichu effect of being merely a draped affair of pale rose chiffon and old lace which is all in one with the gathered sleeves that barely reach the elbow. The corselet is a very high one, and the folds of the fichu bodice are tucked into it. There are no bretelles to continue the line over the shoulders.

A Few Don'ts.

Don't, if you have performed a kind act, talk about it afterward.

Don't, when calling on friends, keep saying, "Well, I really must be going," and then stay on and on. When you are ready to go get up and go as speedily as possible after saying goodby.

Don't ever try to snub people. Snubs have a disconcerting habit of coming home to roost. In addition to which, it is ungenerous to try and put any one at a disadvantage.

Don't speak slightingly or unkindly of a girl your brother obviously admires or run her down in any way. Many girls make this mistake and bitterly regret it when estrangement with the brother follows, as it very often does.

Don't ever speak disparagingly of his relatives to the man you care for, more especially of his mother.

Don't think that smart hats and gowns will atone for shabby shoes and gloves. They won't. But well made shoes and nice gloves will go a long way toward making you look well turned out, even if your gown is a little shabby.

Colored Girl Becomes a Dentist.

Gertrude E. Curtis of Bradford, Pa., is the first colored woman dentist. She passed the final examination in the College of Dental Surgery in Philadelphia with high honors and intends to begin active practice without delay. She believes dentistry is one of the best professions for women and has encouraged several colored girls to take up the study.

If your stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organ must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

Don't think even a penny—until health returns. And I mean just exactly that.

I am the one physician who says to the sick, "Try it, out of my own pocket, pay for your medicine if it fails to bring you help."

And for 30 years Dr. Shoop's medicines have been used and recommended in every city and hamlet in America. They are positively sound and in every community—and everywhere. Then why pay the cash, and at your risk, for other unwarranted and uncertain medicines? Thousands upon thousands have in the past successfully used Dr. Shoop's Restorative. When the Stomach is weak, or the Heart nerves fail, or how Shoop's Restorative quickly Dr. Shoop's Restorative quickly Dr. Shoop's Restorative will bring them back to health again. But best of all, they positively take no money risk whatever. They know that when health fails to return Dr. Shoop will himself gladly pay the druggist for that test. And for that test a full 30 day treatment is freely granted.

But write me first for an order.

This will save delay and disappointment.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative and Dr. Shoop's Pain Relief. But if not convenient to buy that way, send me a postal and I will send an honest and responsible druggist's order to any community, everywhere, to allow my "Get Well, No Pay" medicines to the sick.

Tell me also which book you need.

The books below will gladly open up new and helpful ideas to those who are not well. Besides you are not obliged to pay for the remedy you need. Your word is sufficient. Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

THE CRISIS.

A Loving Mother Guides Her Girl at the Fateful Moment.

"Your whole future life depends upon it."

The mother, her face tinged with sympathy which we must ever feel in the presence of an immaturity that is hesitating between right and wrong, laid her hand over that of her beautiful daughter.

"Yes, dear," she continued, "into every life there comes at one time or another a supreme temptation. If the crisis is passed all is safe, but if you yield at the fatal moment you cannot retrace your steps. You are then committed to a fatal policy."

"But, mother, father says he cannot afford it."

"Exactly. Fathers from time immemorial have always said that. It is their way of imposing on youth and innocence. Go forth at once and buy the gown. Do not forget that I am with you, that I will stand back of you with all the feeble strength I can command."

So saying, the proud woman folded into her arms the weak creature, who even then, if it had not been for her timely rescue, would have been betrayed into a humiliating and shameful surrender.—Success Magazine.

A Stage Manager's Woes.

The house bill of the Imperial theater of La Roche-sur-Yon announced for the evening performance "La Tour de Nesle," a five act melodrama, and "La Soeur de Jocrisse," a one act farce. The drama had been disposed of, but the low comedian was missing and could not be found. What was to be done?. A luminous idea finally entered the manager's mind. The orchestra played an overture, then another, then a third, then a polka and finally a quadrille. At last, when the audience had grown quite obstreperous, the stage manager appeared. He addressed the three conventional bows to the spectators and said: "Ladies and gentlemen, you are anxious, I know, to listen to 'La Soeur de Jocrisse.' The piece has just been acted, but through an unaccountable oversight on the part of the stage hands they forgot to raise the curtain."

Saw It in a Dream.

For many years ivory manufacturers were trying to devise a machine for turning out a billiard ball as nearly perfect as possible and at the same time avoiding waste. Among those who strove to perfect such a machine was Mr. John Carter of the firm of John Carter & Son, well known ivory manufacturers. One night, after Mr. Carter had been striving to solve the problem for some time, he suddenly awoke his wife by shouting out, "I have got it," and rushed downstairs into his study, where he made a drawing of the last knife for the want of which he had been so long waiting in order to complete his machine. It appears that he had fallen asleep and dreamed about the machine, and in the dream the solution of the difficulty was revealed to him.—London Answers.

Still There.

Peckham (meeting an old friend)—Why, Dingley, is this you? I haven't seen you for ten years. How are you anyhow? Dingley—Oh, I'm just like I used to be. By the way, Peckham, how's your wife? You used to say you had the best girl when you were single. Peckham (coldly)—She's still here.—Life.

A Bunch of Kicks.

"The world wipes its feet on me," said the doormat.

"And every hand is against me," said the push button.—Kansas City Star.

"I am continually being sat on," complained the soft cushion.

"And I get beaten hard for the lightest thing," the egg groaned.—Boston Transcript.

A Gastronomic Feat.

"Ah, I've seen some rough times, sir!" said an old salt. "Once we were wrecked and we'd eaten all our provisions. Then we ate our belts, and then the ship turned turtle, and we ate her too!"

There can be no profit if the outlay exceeds it.—Plautus.

ROYAL BANK OF CANADA.

Annual General Meeting—Very Satisfactory Financial Statement.

The annual statement of the Royal Bank of Canada out today, makes a very interesting exhibit, and should prove very satisfactory to the shareholders of the Bank.

This year the statements of all the leading financial industries have been attracting more than the usual interest owing to the fact that as the money rates were, for a great part of the year, very low as compared with previous years, many of the Banks found it difficult to make anything like as good a showing as they had in the past.

The Royal Bank figures indicate that the Bank must have been particularly fortunate in the class of business it handled during the year, as the net profits which amounted to $838,306, showed an increase of close to $100,000 as compared with the previous year. This was equal to 1868 per cent. on the average paid up capital of the Bank for the year of $24,636,000.

As indicating the rapid progress the Bank is making throughout the country, very large increases are shown in all classes of deposits, those bearing interest have increased during the year by over $11,000,000 from $24,300,725 to $33,456,626, while the deposits not bearing interest advanced from $13,000,264 to $16,955,930, making an increase for the year in the total deposits of over $14,000,000.

A very strong feature as indictated by the statement, is that notwithstanding this large increase in deposits, there was also a marked increase in the percentage of quick assets, these now being equal to over 56 per cent. as compared with 52.63 per cent. at the close of the last fiscal year. This large increase in the deposits naturally resulted in very substantial gains, not only in the current, but more especially in the call loans. These call and short loans on stocks and bonds at the close of the present fiscal year, amounted to $9,638,309.62 as compared with $3,286,141.29, an increase of over $6,000,000 for the year, while the current loans now stands at $33,644,705.10 as against $26,736,164.99 at the close of the last fiscal year.

An issue of stock made with a very substantial premium during the year, has resulted in an increase in both the paid up capital and reserve fund, the paid up capital now standing at $5,000,000 and the reserve fund at $5,700,000, an increase for the year of $1,100,000.

THE KING'S ORDER.

It Was Obeyed, and Yet the Monarch Was Not Happy.

When King Gustavus III. of Sweden was in Paris he was visited by a deputation of the Sorbonne. That learned body congratulated the king on the happy fortune which had given him so great a man as Scheele, the discoverer of magnesium, as his subject and fellow countryman.

The king, who took small interest in the progress of science, felt somewhat ashamed that he should be so ignorant as never even to have heard of the renowned chemist. He dispatched a courier at once to Sweden with the laconic order, "Scheele is to be immediately raised to the dignity and title of a count."

"His majesty must be obeyed," said the prime minister as he read the order, "but who in the world is Scheele?" A secretary was told to make inquiries. He came back to the premier with very full information. "Scheele is a good sort of fellow," said he, "a lieutenant in the artillery, a capital shot and a first rate hand at billiards." The next day the lieutenant became a count, and the illustrious scholar and scientist remained a simple burgher.

The error was not discovered until the king returned home. His majesty was indignant. "You must all be fools," he exclaimed, "not to know who Scheele is!"—Argonaut.

COURT CHEMONG I.O.F.

Installation of Officers—Banquet and Program.

The installation of the officers of Court Chemong, I.O.F., proved a enjoyable affair Thursday night. The evening was opened by a short business meeting, during which six new members were initiated. A large assembly marked the occasion, which was featured by the presence of J. C. Morgan, Superintendent of the I. O. F. Orphans; W. H. Lowrie, H.C.R., Russell, Ont., G. L. Dickenson, H. S. Manotick; J. Simmons, H. P. Frankford, G. N. Brown, D. H. C. B., Belleville; Jas. Glendenning, D. S. C. B., Belleville; Jas. Glendenning, D.S.C.R., Sunderland. The officers of Court Chemong were installed by the High Court Officers.

Afterwards the members, with their wives and daughters, sat down to a sumptuous banquet, prepared by Bro. E. P. Clarke. The decorations were pretty and tasteful, the flowers being loaned by Jordan Bros. When full justice had been done the good things a toast list was duly honoured and the different addresses were interspersed with musical numbers. Bro. Wm. Madill fulfilled the duties of chairman and toast master in a most satisfactory manner. The first toast was that of the King, proposed by Bro. Madill, and honoured in the usual way.

"I hardly know how to thank you for the good Peruna has done me.

"I suffered five years with pain in the stomach. About a year ago it became so bad I could hardly bear it. I coughed day and night and grew weaker and weaker. The pain extended through my body and I also had difficulty in breathing, which made me cough. Everyone thought I had consumption.

"My husband heard of Peruna and bought five bottles. This treatment virtually cured me and now I recommend Peruna to every one who is suffering.

"I thank Dr. Hartman for this excellent remedy."

Ste. Julie de Vercheres, P. Q., Canada. —Mrs. Mois Pariseau.

A NEGLECTED cold is generally the first cause of catarrh.

Women are especially liable to colds. These colds occur more frequently during the wet, sloppy weather of winter and spring than any other time of the year. Often they are not considered serious and are allowed to run on, or they are treated in such a way as to only palliate the symptoms, while the cold becomes more deep-seated and the patient finally awakens to the fact that she has a well-developed case of catarrh.

WOMEN SHOULD BEWARE OF CATCHING COLD.

By reason of their delicate structure, the lungs are frequently the seat of a cold, especially if there is the slightest weakness of these organs. The treatment of catarrh of the lungs is also more difficult and discouraging than catarrh of any other organ of the body.

It would be wise therefore, to guard against it by every precaution possible.

Ask your druggist for a free Peruna Almanac.

Peruna has been found the most reliable of all remedies for coughs, colds and catarrh, by reason of the fact that it goes at once to the very seat of the trouble.

It searches out every crevice, every duct of the body. It quickens and equalizes the circulation of the blood, thus relieving the congested mucous membranes. It exercises a healing and soothing effect upon the mucous membranes, no matter whether they are the more exposed membranes of the head and throat, or whether they line the remotest cells of the lungs.

PE-RU-NA THE REMEDY FOR CATARRH OF THE LUNGS.

Mrs. Jaschob, 1021 Hicks St., Toledo, Ohio, writes:

"When I wrote to you for advice, I had been sick for three years. I had trouble with my throat. Often I could not breathe through my nose. I also had pains in my chest and a cough. I took Peruna according to directions and it has cured me."

A BARGAIN IN OIL STOCK

20 Cents Per Share

THE LIBERTY OIL COMPANY is offering a limited number of shares of the Treasury stock for sale, for the purpose of further development, at the ridiculously low price of 20c per share.

This property has one well pumping Oil, and is drilling Well No. 2. Bear in mind that two wells of 100 barrels each could pay dividends on our small capitalization.

Read the following Questions and Answers, and then fill in the Coupon at once:

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question—What is the Capital Stock of the Liberty Oil Company?

Answer—Five Hundred Thousand shares of a par value of $1.00.

Q.—Is there any free stock, bonus stock, or promotion stock?

A.—No. Every share of stock is placed in the Treasury for the benefit of the stockholders.

Q.—Is there more than one kind of stock?

A.—NO. All Common Stock.

Q.—Is there any bonded indebtedness?

A.—NO.

Q.—What acreage does the Liberty Oil Company control?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company has a forty year lease on 125 acres of proven oil ground, on a royalty of one-sixth of the oil shipped.

Q.—Where is the property located?

A.—Ventura County, California, nine miles from Nordhoff and twelve miles from Santa Paula. Both of these towns are on the Southern Pacific Railway. All supplies will come from Los Angeles, which is about seventy miles south, insuring prompt delivery.

Q.—Is it necessary to build a wagon road to the property from either of the above mentioned towns?

A.—NO. There are good wagon roads from both cities, and an automobile can be driven to the property without difficulty.

Q.—How do you know this is oil-bearing ground?

A.—Because we have one well on the property that is on the pump. This will furnish all the fuel required for pumping well No. 1, drilling Well No. 2, and a surplus beside. The Union Oil Co. has numerous producing wells one-fourth mile to the south of us and also just north of our property. Furthermore, we have some of the largest oil seepages in Ventura County.

Q.—What grade of oil is produced in Ventura County?

A.—Most of the Ventura County oil is high gravity, suitable for refining purposes, and brings $1 per barrel upwards at the well. The oil on our property is high gravity oil.

Q.—What facilities have you for disposing of your oil?

A.—The oil will be delivered to the Union Oil Company's pipe line one mile distant, through a gravity pipe line, which will soon be constructed.

Q.—What does the Liberty Oil Company agree to do if I subscribe for stock?

A.—They agree to expend the money received from the sale of stock through their financial agents, Sagar & Loomis, for the general development of the property.

Q.—What development work does the Company propose to do?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company proposes to sink additional wells from time to time until the property is fully developed, the estimated limit for maximum results being thirty wells. Well No. 2 is now being drilled, and sunk to a depth of 2,800 feet thereby cutting through all five of the oil-bearing sands referred to in the report of our Engineer and Field Manager, Mr. Edward F. Eastman. He estimates that Well No. 2 will produce steadily at least 100 barrels per day and possibly up to 200.

Q.—Is an investment in California Oil Stock a speculation, or a good business proposition?

A.—It is my [illegible] good authority that 50 per cent. of the bankers of the State of California are interested in Oil. Bankers usually know how and where to invest their money. Take a property like the Liberty Oil Company and you have purely a business proposition. It is just a question of how many wells the Company sinks—the more wells the greater the dividends. Your stock increases in value from the day you purchase it. On completion of Well No. 2, we expect the Company's income will be at least $100 per day, and you can easily calculate what the dividends should be on our small capitalization of $500,000. Each succeeding well should average not less than one hundred barrels per day.

Q.—What assurance has the investor that Liberty Oil Company's stock will be a safe and profitable investment?

A.—The Company is incorporated under the strict laws of the State of California, and the Directors are all capable business men of unquestioned integrity, and honest management of the Company's affairs is assured. The capitalization (500,000 shares, is in Treasury of the Company, and as there is no promotion, bonus or free stock, every stockholder is on an equal basis. In all probability it will not be necessary to sell all of the Treasury Stock to put the Company on a dividend paying basis and to fully develop the property, in which event each stockholder's interest would be increased proportionately.

Q.—Has any money been expended on the property?

A.—Yes. One well has been sunk to a depth of 2,000 feet and is now pumping oil. This well furnishes all the oil needed for fuel, thereby saving the Liberty Oil Company an expense of $900 per month for fuel and hauling same to the property.

Q.—What is the present price of the stock?

A.—The par value is $1.00 per share. A small allotment of stock is being sold at 20c. per share, to sink Well No. 3 and finish Well No. 2, which is now being drilled. This allotment will doubtless be over-subscribed. Send in your order at once, as price will advance without notice.

Q.—What income can I expect from my stock?

A.—The Company feels reasonably sure that a dividend can, and will be paid within one year, or as soon as there are three pumping wells on the property. They also believe that the dividends will be at least one (1c) cent. per share per month. That would be sixty per cent. per annum to the investor who buys at 20c. per share.

Q.—Will it be necessary for an investor to wait until the Company is paying dividends to realize a profit on his investment?

A.—NO. You will be able to sell your stock within sixty or ninety days at an advance, if you take time by the forelock and buy at the present low price, 20c. per share.

Q.—Under what conditions can I visit the property?

A.—Write us if you want to go and look over the property of the Liberty Oil Company at our expense, and tell us how much you will invest, providing you find it as good as we have represented. We are sure you will double the amount after a personal inspection.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 14 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, MONDAY JANUARY 17, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Bulletin London, Jan. 15—David Lloyd George, in closing His campaign with a speech at Crimbsy this afternoon, referred to the Invincibility of the British navy and declared: "If the German fleet in a moment of madness ever attacked Great Britain, it would be at the bottom of the German Ocean in a few hours."—This news is of gravest import.

Big Dipper Gold Mine and Star of the East Mine are in Good Locality

Peterborough people holding stock in the Big Dipper and Star of the East Gold Mining Companies, will rejoice to hear something encouraging from Mr. J. C. Peters, a man knows. He states that there is as good and as much gold in the vicinity of those mines as there is at Poosepine. In speaking of the yellow metal in Frontenac, Mr. Peters said:

"The whole difficulty," he remarked, "lies in the fact that the district is too near advanced civilization. If the gold bearing quartz were situated in an almost inaccessible spot, hundreds of miles from a railroad, prospectors from all over the world would rush in overwhelming numbers but because the mineralized section is within thirty miles of transportation facilities and in the midst of a settled community, people will not credit the marvellous stories of the riches there found.

"I don't want anyone to think that this is a new discovery by any means. For years it has been known that the whole northern part of the county of Frontenac, and in fact all that section of the province was heavily mineralized and gold has been known to exist there in paying quantities. In fact, just across the lake from where I made my best discovery is the Big Dipper Mine, where good values are being realized and where an excellent plant is in operation. Adjoining this property is the Star of the East Mine, where the main shaft has been sunk 200 feet and a 10-stamp mill is in operation. From this you will see that it is not by any means a new prospect.

"Gold is everywhere present in paying quantities and in places the showings are most spectacular. I fully believe that when the wealth of this section of the Province is fully realized there will be a great rush to stake out the country which will fully equal that into the Porcupine and I am confident that subsequent developments will prove the district to be one of the richest in gold mineralization Canada will ever experience."

Lloyd-George Hands Out Some Really Hot Stuff

York, Eng. Jan. 15.—In the course of his address last night in support of Hamar Greenwood the chancellor of the exchequer, Lloyd-George said:

"I object to five hundred irresponsibles coming from heaven knows where (laughter and cheers), not even attendants of the house of lords know, some of them appearing probably in the house almost for the first times in their lives, knowing nothing of legislation, knowing nothing of finance, with no mandate from any one (cheers), representing no one and nothing (laughter), with no experience, capacity or qalification. I object to these men suddenly turning up, saying, 'I am my father's eldest son, but that is not why I am in the house of commons or chancellor of the exchequer. (Cheers). The peers now say, 'Give us a chance, and we will reform. (Laughter). Everybody says that the morning after a spree. (Laughter). There is no man who does not say he will never touch it again. (Laughter). The peers have had four years of debauch (laughter), smashing crockery, flinging things out of the window, trampling on the furniture, and tearing everything to bits. Now the Liberals come in and say, 'Here, you clear out, gentlemen, please. We will not have this sort of thing going on in a decent household.' (Laughter). They reply that perhaps they did go a little too far, and they have a splitting headache. (Laughter and cheers). The Liberals say you had plenty of chance; we are now going to reform you. Pick the best men among them, each of them will tell you his neighbor is no good but he is (laughter) if left to each man to make out who was to be left. That would be the best way of settling the house of lords, because there would not be one left." (Laughter and cheers.)

A Brilliant Future

After a long sleep of two or three years Peterborough is today face to face with a great awakening. Those who take the pains to scrutinize the commercial horizon see the mighty host marching towards us and can feel in the air a sprit of advance and prosperity. Not for many years has the hand of bounty been so near, nor yet did it ever appear so full. At the opening of 1910 there is promise in fact assurance, of great activity in all walks of life. The poorest will benefit with the rich inasmuch that there will be lots of work and at good wages. There will be for a time a scarcity of labor, both skilled and unskilled. Men, women, boys and girls will have an opportunity to work overtime and thus replenish their exhequers and lay aside some for the next slack season which, let us hope, will be many years hence. The factories will soon all be working full time and over time and some working a double shift. Orders are already pouring in to some of the industries so fast that it is impossible to keep pace with them under present conditions. Changes have to be made at once. Additions must be added and more help is being secured. The first imigration ships from the Old Land will carry scores of good mechanics for Peterborough factories as well as the usual and increased number of rough laborers. Canada cannot supply the demand as the whole country is experiencing a similar awakening and development that has just begun to be felt here. Peterborough's population twelve months hence will be 19000 or more, or a gain of about 2000. Empty houses will be rapidly filled and many new ones will be erected. New builds will be built upon. The few old fields and playgrounds will be covered with houses and the business district will see more buildings. Real estate values will advance and those who have felt the coming of prosperity have already withdrawn their property from the real estate agents' hands, or have advanced the prices. Those who sold at a sacrifice will in a few months see the rashness of their action and will be among the first to re-invest in Peterborough's real estate.

Already The Times has announced, or given a small idea of, the wide sweeping and important plans of the Canadian General Electric Company, the firm that is now employing 1100 hands and whose future developing is almost limitless. A staff of 2500 hands is not only a possibility but a probability.

At tonight's council meeting another of the leading industries will unfold its plans for surprising additions. The C.P.R. proposition is by no means a dead issue. On the contrary it is very much alive, and will be taken up by the council at an early date, and those on the inside predict important acquisitions. The Street Railway Company is preparing to carry out their plans of extension in the early spring. The Purity Ware concern is still a possibility and it represents as large an affair today as it did a few months ago.

On the whole Peterborough never faced so bright and cheerful a future and those who have capital invested, even though it be only in a small home, can hold up their heads and smile. The opportunity is at hand. It depends on the people themselves to accept it or reject it. It depends on the council and the Board of Trade. It depends upon the manufacturers and the business men. In short, this is the time for every man woman and child in Peterborough to put their shoulder to the wheel and push. Those who push the hardest and the most consistently will benefit the most. Awake up slumberers Take off your coats and throw up your hats and yell for Peterborough and your own betterment.

ACUTE DYSPEPSIA.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.O. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended, and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend, who had been cured of a similar condition advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvellous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon glowed within me. I can now eat, sleep and live like a live man."

Be advised—Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. 25c. per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

A Defi That brings Two Angry Peoples to the Brink of War

Utterances of Lloyd-George at This Time Unnecessary and Ill-Advised---Touched Match to Magazine

Rt. Hon. Lloyd-George on Saturday, at Grimsby, touched a match to a magazine that may explode at any minute by practically hurling defiance at the German Empire.

It is safe to say that not since the present Anglo-German situation assumed the proportions of international concern has anything happened to so inflame the Germans as the utterance made at Grimsby by the chancellor of the exchequer of the in to government.

The utterance, if made for political advantage, was ill advised, and will call for the immediate application of diplomas, from the nation's most influential sources.

At the hour of writing tonight it has cast the gloom of uncertainty and concern over the British Empire that cannot, or will not, be allayed until news of a reassuring character is received of the effect of the news received from Germany.

Japanese Publication Sneers at the United States' Proposal

Tokio, Jan. 15.—The Hochi, discussing the ability of America to enforce the Knox proposal, sneers at the American army and navy, and says. "We are familiar with the absence of discipline in the troops in the Phillipines and Cuba and the existence of white war ships with guns red with rust. We cannot imagine them sending an army and navy competent to overpower Japan and Russia.

Left Wealth to Employes

Chicago, Jan. 15.—One of the most remarkable wills ever written disposing of almost a million dollars gathered through the course of a life spent in labor and enterprise, was admitted to probate in this city this week. It was the will of Clarence W. Marks, president of the Marks Shoe Company, who left his estate in small parcels to 125 employes, servants and friends, as he thought that would do the most good. The will dictates in detail where each $100 or each corner lot is to go, who is to get it and why, and he even made provision in his will for the cremation of his own body.

Marks had no immediate relatives and when he came to die every one who knew him well thought that he would leave it in bulk to some worthy institution, and great was the surprise when his disposition of the property became known.

Every employe is to receive from $200 to $10,000, according to his or her station in life and his or her particular needs! Some of the employes got blocks of stock in the Marks Shoe Company.

The principal beneficiaries are Chas. B. Corser, manager of the shoe company, for twenty-five years one of the confidential employes, and his wife Jeanette Howieson Corser. The first provision of the will gives Jeanette Howieson $5,000, with which she is to have the body of Mr. Marks cremated, select a suitable burying place, erect a monument, and pay $1000 for the perpetual care of the grave. A year ago, when she and Corser were married, Mr. Marks gave up his home at No. 2963 Michigan avenue and loaned to the newly married young people. By the will read this week the gift is made to Mrs. Corser of the house, $50,000 in money and all the furnishings without conditions. Mr. Corser gets four hundred shares of the shoe company's stock.

Brutal Murder of Child

Shot Down without Motive

Appals New York City

New York, Jan. 15.—This city is shocked by one of the most merciless and unnecesary murders in its criminal history.

Robert Lomas, six years old, of No. 434 West One Hundred and Sixty fourth street, son of Thomas T. Lomas, and Arthur Shibley, Jr., of the same age, son of Arthor Shibley a chemist, were shot by an undetected man Wednesday afternoon, while they were coasting down a hill on Speedway Park, near One Hundred and Sixty fifth street. The Lomas child was shot through the heart and killed. The Shibley boy was seriously wounded, but may recover. The Lomas child was noted for his great hair. The man who shot them made his escape.

The case is surrounded in mystery as to the motive for the killing, but the police are working on the theory that it is a case of Syrian vengeance. The Shibleys are Syrians.

The shooting occurred shortly after 3 o'clock on Adeduct lane in Speedway Park. This park is bounded on the west by Edgecombe Ave., and on the east by the Speedway. Last night, besides more than a hundred policemen and plain clothes men, there were hundreds of citizens throughout Washington Heights looking for the murderer.

DESCRIPTION OF THE SLAYER.

The best description of the man was given by Lawrence Casey, of No 2520 Eighth avenue, a park foreman, who had seen the man lingering about the neighborhood for several days. He saw him pass One Hundred and Sixty-third street Wednesday afternoon, just before the shooting, and recalled having seen him on previous occasions. Casey did not hear the shots, however. This description, borne out by several others who recall the man, is as follows:

Age, about forty years; height about 5 feet 6 or 7 inches; hair jet black; about four weeks' growth of scraggly beard, large black slouch hat and a short, lightweight tan overcoat. He appeared to be a foreigner but not an Italian.

Mr. Shibley says that he does not believe that he is a victim of a plot. He says that his family had no enemies, and that although Syrians might take revenge on grown persons they would not injure children. But the police bear in mind that Nasaib A. Shibley, the Syrian attorney who killed his wife and took his own life in 1908 because he thought the wife of Rigo, the gypsy violinist, had become between them, was a brother of the wounded boy's father.

After the death of the couple the brother adopted their four-year-old baby Nestor. The police are inclined to believe that there is considerable significance in this and that the assassin, perhaps, thought both his child victims belonged to Mr. Shibley. His determined effort to murder them both is adduced in support of the theory. The dead lawyer is said to have incurred enmity in a fight he made against certain of his people several years ago when a bitter church war was waged.

OFF FOR MERRY AFTERNOON.

Little Robert Lomas was the son [illegible] a coachman [illegible] Rector street [illegible] Hundred and Sixty-fourth street. On the same [illegible] Hundred and Sixty-fourth street [illegible] with [illegible] Arthur Shibley [illegible] attending school last fall and [illegible] Robert had just had his long golden curls trimmed, for he was to have gone to kindergarten soon.

All four went to One Hundred and Sixty-fifth street, and Arthur proposed a ride. Robert agreed, but Willie Seidel became frightened and begged his older brother not to go; the latter to please the little one, remained at the top of the hill.

SHIBLEY BOY STAGGERS HOME

With a merry shout the other two youngsters started down the crooked "Aqueduct Lane." Their laughter floated back to the two at the top as the sled disappeared around a turn and was hidden by bushes. The next thing the other children recall was three sharp cracks, like those of a revolver, followed by wild screaming. They became frightened and ran home.

Several minutes later Arthur Shibley staggered in his home holding his hand over his side and mumbled to his mother: "A man shot me and he shot Robert." Then he fell in a faint from loss of blood.

Instantly doctors were called and the police were notified. Captain Kreuscher, of the West One Hundred and Fifty-second street station, got word to Patrolman Isador Piser and Detective Hutchinson, and word was sent to Inspector James E. Huffy, of the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station, and Captain Barnett, of Harlem, and two score policemen were soon hunting the murderer.

It was while threshing through the park in search of the man that the policemen came upon the body of the Lomas child. The little fellow lay at the bottom of the hill. The snow about him was red, and his clothing showed where the bullet had entered. In one hand he held the rope of his sled, which was headed up hill. The police believe he was drawing the other boy up when killed. In the other hand he grasped a child's handkerchief.

Liberals Hold Own in First Elections

ELECTION FIGURES

Liberal losses	4
Unionist losses	1
Seats reported	25
Ridings voting today	66
Seats for ridings	74
Unopposed members, so far	17
Unionists unopposed	11
Liberals unopposed	1
Nationalists unopposed	5
Non-partisan speaker opposed	1
Total seats in house	670

In the last parliament the seats voting today were represented by 48 Liberals, 17 Conservatives and 9 Laborites.

London, Jan. 15.—The Liberals are holding their own in the first contests held today. The first three returns from the 66 constituencies voting today showed Liberal victories and gains.

In the north division of Salford, W. B. Byles, Liberal, won over his Unionist opponent, I. Malcolm.

G. Toulmin, Liberal, was returned to parliament from the Lancashire division of Bury, beating E. L. Hart ley, Unionist.

The Liberals have won on the first heat; it is likely they will win the others. The country as far as it voted yesterday (76 seats) has declared (1) confidence in the Asquith administration and its budget policy, (2) for lords' reform, (3) for social reform, (4) for educational reform, (5) for license reform.

We believe that tariff reform—and it is one of the most momentous and more or less aside by th[illegible] pressing questions—has been crowded more or less aside by the issues named above. It will be an issue by itself and will be the next big issue of the mother country. But it was not presented at the right time nor in the right way. If was offered as an offset; it must be fought on its own points. So must Irish Home rule.

Nurse Throttled by an Infatuated Coachman

Mill Brook, N.Y., Jan. 15.—While a score of detectives and reporters were today searching for the murderer who last night entered the home of Millionaire Barnes Compton, and strangled Sarah Breymer, a nurse, who was sleeping with one of the Compton children, Frank Schermerhorn, the coachman on the place, crept under a bed and slashed his throat with a razor.

Schermerhorn was discovered by Chief of Police McCabe of Poughkeepsie, and was taken to Vassar Hospital. He is still alive and stoutly declares not he, but the Japanese butler, Sotaro Chashi, employed by the Comptons, committed the crime.

The authorities place no stock in this story and have not made any move to arrest the Japanese. They are convinced that Schermerhorn committed the crime alone, with the double motive of robbery and attack upon the girl.

A note found on a table in the quarters where the coachman was discovered slowly bleeding to death was addressed to his wife, who is ill in a Poughkeepsie hospital. It read:

"Dear Wife—I am not guilty."

"Frank."

The writing of the note is supposed to have been the last thing Schermerhorn did before cutting his throat and crawling away, expecting to die. As a further evidence of his guilt, a number of articles of wearing apparel, including several silk dressed, the property of Mrs. Compton, were found hidden in a barrel of potatoes in the coachman's house. Silverware valued at $700, taken from the house, has not been located. Mr. Compton's revolver, which was among the things taken, was found about one hundred feet from the coachman's house in the weeds.

Mr. and Mrs. Compton were not at home when the crime was committed having gone to New York Wednesday night to attend the opera. At the time the house was entered Sarah Breymer, the murdered girl, occupied a sleeping pazza with Polly Compton, baby daughter of the Comptons. The other occupants of the house were Mary O'Farrel, a servant, who was aroused, and gave the alarm, and Ida Dutcher, a maid, and the butler.

The house in which Schermerhorn lived was nearly an eighth of a mile distant.

The maid's wrists had been tied with a cord, and this had been loosened later, leaving distinct marks. She had struggled, but had not thrown off all the bed clothing. An autoosy performed early in the day, revealed that there was a motive for the crime aside from robbery.

The Compton child is said to have slept quietly through all the commotion, and this leads to the belief that chloroform was used.

The O'Farrel girl was the only servant aroused by the murderer. She told Chief McCabe she was awakened by the flash of a light in her face.

"By means of the light I saw there was a man in the room and I screamed," she said. "In the confusion of the next few minutes I don't know what I did but as soon as I saw the butler running around, trying to find what was wrong, I pulled the rope which rings the big bell that summons the coachman. I remember that I pulled the bell several time before Schermerhorn answered.

There were black stains around the bed where the murderer had struggled with Miss Breymer. This, coupled with the statement of other witnesses that there were similar marks on the face of Shermerhorn when he first appeared on the scene, leads to the belief that he had blackened his face to prevent recognition.

A Hint to Ladies When Shopping

If you wanted anything badly, and when you got to the store were persuaded to take something else instead, when you came away wouldn't you feel a little disappointed? As if somebody had "got one over you"—and not for your benefit, mind, but for their own profit.

And when you proved that the something which was represented as being "just as good" as what you asked for was as good—was not to be compared even with the real thing wouldn't you feel still worse?

This is just the case about Zam-Buk. Like all good things it has many imitations. When buying it just ask for Zam-Buk, and see that you get it. The name is protected by law, and is clearly seen on each packet. Don't have anything else! Then you won't feel that somebody has made a few extra cents out of your lack of firmness.

Invaluable to Every Farmer

Its Wonderful Power in Curing Sick Cattle and Colicky Horses Makes "Nerviline" Worth its Weight in Gold.

The stockman or farmer that doesn't know of the thousand and one uses of Nerviline around the stable, has a great deal to learn. Why, I wouldn't think of locking my stable door at night without knowing I had a supply of 'Nerviline' on hand. I always get a dozen bottles at a time from my druggist.

"To cure colic, indigestion and bad stomach in a horse or cow there is no remedy on earth the same class as 'Nerviline.' Last summer I had a $250 horse that got the scours, and I would have lost him if I hadn't been able to give him Nerviline. I poured a full bottle of Nerviline in a pail of water down his throat and saved his life. I know of neighbors who have saved many heads of valuable stock stricken with colic, just by using Nerviline. It is equally good as a rub-on liniment; and I know from my experience that for man or beast, internally or externally, 'Nerviline' is worth a dollar a drop."

James E. Mc Cullough,
Stock Breeder, etc.

You will not regret using Nerviline—but see you get it and not some thing else. 25c. per bottle, or five for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

NOT INVINCIBLE.

When Art Experts Are Taken In by Crooked Dealers.

All "antiquities" are not antique. The art of the art-faker is an art that conceals itself, and often enough it is almost impossible of detection.

The doubt, for instance, that has been cast by art experts generally upon the wax bust attributed to Leonardo da Vinci—pronounced Layonardo da Vinchi—purchased by Dr. Bode for the German Government for £8,000, is by no means an isolated incident in the history of art collecting.

It has yet to be decided whether this bust is the work of the great and versatile Leonardo or Mr. Cockle Lucas, the recently deceased wax modeller; but it is an undeniable fact that there is hardly a public collection that does not contain several items, the authenticity of which would not bear investigation.

At the Victoria and Albert Museum, the Louvre, and elsewhere, it has more than once been discovered that treasures that had been long venerated as unique are most flagrant forgeries.

Some years ago, a Parliamentary commission was held upon the contents of the museum at South Kensington, and very early in the evidence it transpired that the predecessor of the then curator had removed over fifty objects, as either forgeries or as absolutely worthless, which had been considered of great importance and value.

For instance, the authorities purchased three items at the famous Hamilton Palace sale in 1882, all of which proved to be other than was supposed. These were the Agate Cup, purchased for $2,500; the Cardinal Ximenes chair; and a Vernis Martin cabinet, which cost the nation no less than $6,000.

The cup proved to be a made-up piece, worth, at the most, $250; the chair, which was supposed to be Eighteenth century work, turned out to be Cingalese work of the eighteenth century; and the cabinet, though partly genuine, was discovered to contain panels made by a man who later, upon obtaining employment at the museum, readily recognised his handiwork.

There is also at South Kensington a statue attributed to Michael Angelo which many claim to be a made-up piece; whilst a terra-cotta bust of Savonarola in the same collection, purchased in the middle of last century as a genuine example of fifteenth century work, was later discovered to be of quite modern manufacture.

In the National Gallery there is more than one work, the attribution of which does not meet with general acceptance.

In 1904, when the portrait of Ariosto, by Titian, was acquired for the nation for the huge sum of $150,000, there were many who claimed—and, in fact, still do so—that the portrait was not by Titian; and, moreover, that it was not a portrait of the famous Italian poet.

Another remarkable instance of an article being boaxed is that of the purchase of a picture, reputed to be by the great French landscape artist Corot, for the New Dublin Gallery of Modern Art, a few years ago.

The sensational discovery at the Louvre Picture Gallery that, of the 250 pictures labelled with the greatest boldness in the history of art, only seventy were genuine, is still fresh in the memories of most readers.

ELECTION ABSURDITIES.

The British Voters Act Abounds in Funny Situations.

The British Parliament cannot be dissolved until it has been prorogued. The prorogation is effected through the Privy Council, which, summoned by the Sovereign at the advice of his ministers, advises him to prorogue Parliament—in other words, to declare the existing session at an end.

This procedure must be scrupulously carried out before any Parliament can cease to exist, and during the interregnum between the dissolution of one Parliament and the assembling of the next the executive power is vested in the Privy Council and the Lord Chancellor.

The royal proclamation dissolves, not the Commons only, but also the Lords; and it is interesting to note that, while the twenty-eight Irish peers sit for life, the sixteen representatives which Scotland sends to the Upper House are freshly elected at each general election.

The absurdities of Britain's registration laws are numerous. While the complicated machinery of a general election has been greatly simplified of late years, the qualification which enable a man to vote, or the restrictions which prevent him from so doing, are in many cases amazingly absurd.

Take, for instance, the case of a lodger who has qualified for a latchkey vote. He marries his landlady. At once he loses his vote, and it takes him possibly about two years to qualify for a vote as householder. And yet he has been living in the same house the whole time.

The unfortunate lodger's treatment at the ruthless hands of the registration law is positively brutal. If he moves from one house to the next door, he loses his vote, and, until he regains it, has no more say in the government of his country than a convicted criminal. The tenant occupier, on the other hand, when he moves, may claim a succession, and never lose his vote at all. He is also obliged to claim his vote afresh every year.

Again, take the case of a man who owns two cottages, or even two fields—one in one Parliamentary division, the other over the border in another. If each is worth forty shillings a year, he gets two votes. Another man who has fifty fields, but all in one division, is forced to content himself with one vote, although his holdings is worth twenty times that of his neighbor who has two votes.

The most absurd provision of this anomalous act applies when a man happens to occupy premises through which runs the boundary-line between two Parliamentary divisions. Assuming that each part is sufficient in value to give him two votes, his qualification is determined by the boundary-line in his bedroom. He votes in the division in which his head lies.

Voters have been disqualified for the most trivial causes. In one case a London tailor, a keen politician, lost his vote because the overseers, by a mere blunder, described his property as "dwelling-house" instead of a "shop."

Again, during the process of polling ballot papers are disqualified for reasons which seem absolutely trivial to the unprejudiced observer. In the famous Stepney election petition, the judges held that a circle instead of a cross opposite the candidate's name rendered the ballot paper bad.

It is worth mentioning that, after a general election, all the documents connected with the various elections, as well as the writs themselves, must be returned to the Clerk of the Crown. For days and weeks sacks of electoral papers pass through Palace Yard, and are stored in cellars below the House of Lords.

There they are kept for "a year and a day," and then, in official parlance, are "dealt with"—in other words, are chopped up and pulped.

Forgot His Own Poem.

That poets, like other folk, sometimes forget their own creations is shown by an incident related by Sir Frederick Pollock. At a dinner where Thomas Campbell and Lord Nugent were present the conversation drifted from the use of Latin words in English monosyllabic verse. Someone expressed a doubt whether two consecutive lines composed of words of one syllable could be found in our language. Lord Nugent at once quoted:

By that dread name we wave the sword on high,
And swear for her to live—with her to die.

Campbell said he did not believe in the lines, and asked where they came from.

Lord Nugent said, "From your own 'Pleasures of Hope.'"

"How do you know that?" asked the poet.

"I know it all by heart," replied Nugent.

"I'll bet you a guinea you can't repeat it," said Campbell.

The bet was taken, and Nugent started declaiming. The poet soon got tired, and said, "I see you know the poem; don't go any further."

The other insisted upon repeating the whole poem or claiming double stakes, and Campbell paid the extra guinea in order to be spared the recital of the poem which had made him famous—the words of which he had forgotten.

IF SICK--WHY PAY

Unless Health First Returns.

Here is what should and can be done!

Now you would not willingly pay for food that was worthless—would you?

Then why pay for medicine until first result shows that power to give health is present?

Positively knowing what Dr. Shoop's Restorative can do for the sick, I say to all "pay only unless health first returns." And I back my faith in Restorative with a signed and sealed 30 day "no health, no pay" contract.

I positively pledge to the sick everywhere that "Dr. Shoop's Restoration is absolutely free if it fails". Let others do the same—or else pass their prescriptions by.

If you need more strength, more vitality, more vigor or more vim, use my Restorative a few days and note the immediate improvement.

Then the stomach, Heart, or Kidneys go wrong, then test Dr. Shoop's Restorative. For these the Stomach nor otherwise the Heart or Kidneys, for that is wrong. You need to test the medicine's ideas in selections. The books herein will tell you how I am using them.

The books also tell why they seldom "disagree" no more than a sixteen thread. They tell how that nerve, until it fails, constantly gives to the Heart its power, its tone, its nerve-force, calling or impulse.

Those books will open up new and helpful things to those who are sick. They will tell of the stomach and Kidneys' relation to the Heart, and how to treat them. They will tell why Dr. Shoop's Restorative was especially made to reach and revitalize that weak or failing inside nerve. All of these they will tell you about. And why I can afford to say, "If it fails, it costs you nothing."

This is why I say "Take no chances on a medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer".

So write me today for the order.

I have appointed honest and responsible druggists in nearly every community to know my conditions to the sick.

But write me first for the order.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day test. So drop me a line personally that I may safeguard interests and delays. Tell me also which book you need.

A postal will do.

Besides, you are free to consult me as you would your home physician. My counsel and the book you need are entirely without charge.

Address me personally, Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

If your stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. Add here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organ must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal endorsement. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

A Curious Superstition.

Why is it that superstitious persons have always seen a subtle connection between a clock and the duration of human life? The stopping of an old clock has always been held to point to death or disaster, and there are thousands of people, who, even in this age of aviation and women's rights, believe implicitly that the stopping of Big Ben would herald something unpleasant. At a recent meeting of the Finnish Senate — at which the Russo-Finnish situation was being discussed — the clock suddenly fell from the wall and, of course, stopped. The superstitious Finns are now expecting trouble.—Black and White.

The average walking pace of a healthy man or woman is said to be twenty-five steps a minute.

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTOR

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Chin, thus giving us a chain of elevators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $18.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of our chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent, dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as reference of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 18.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 26.29 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in those concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

CHANCELLOR INTERRUPTED.

How Mr. Lloyd-George Had to Yield to the Upper House.

It was afternoon, a day or two ago. There was a little quiet stir in the House as usual as the usher and the Bar of the British Commons. The sergeant-at-arms, sword-girt, reached for his white gloves, and slowly put them on. An official at the swinging doors flitted about. On his hands unwonted white gloves, on his face a look of something-is-going-to-happen. An opening and closing of doors very quickly. Something was in the air.

A superdignity suffused officials, M.P.'s glanced up at the clock and out through the doors. A distinguished member was addressing the House. He was arguing a point in favor of one of the countless details of the budget. Argument on argument, quiet, gentle explanation across the table.

He stood, a slim spare figure, dark-haired and bright-eyed and small-featured, by the big end of the Mace. Suddenly there was a rumble of sound out of sight in the distance. Then the glass doors were flung back, and and a stiff-built messenger came in, gazed at the speaker, drew himself to attention, and shouted in long solemn tones, "Black Rod!" The arguer and explainer was still arguing and explaining. Then in came Black Rod, a delightful admiral in the British navy in black official garb, holding his black rod perfectly horizontal close to his right shoulder, bowing three times and gently commanding the House of Commons to come up to the House of Lords and hear the Lords Commissioners signify the royal assent to various bills passed by the wicked peers, although sent to them by the Commons.

The slim man by the Mace had to break off his speech in the middle when the command came from the House of Lords. If applied figure-speaking, dropped it obediently in to his seat on the Treasury bench. The wicked peers had cut into the speech of Mr. David Lloyd-George.

All the M.P.'s rose in silence and stood reverently in their places while Mr Speaker, his long robe over his arm, his full-bottomed wig splaying about his shoulders, the great Mace borne by his side on the shoulder of the sergeant-at-arms, passed down the floor of the House and out along the road to the House of Lords. Then the Minister who [illegible] and M.P.'s trooped pell-mell [illegible]. This was the House of Commons [illegible] Lords.

The Magic of "Bow Bells."

A few days ago the famous "Bow Bells" rang out their welcome to London's new Lord Mayor.

At present there are in England only two important foundries devoted exclusively to bell-making — one at Loughborough and the other in the Whitechapel Road, London. In the latter were born the "Bow Bells." The present "tenor," as the deepest bell of a peal is called, was cast there in 1738. It [illegible] 2 1-2 tons, and replaced a bell which was also founded in Whitechapel in 1667. The foundry was established in 1570.

There is a peculiar magic in the tones of a bell, due to the fact that it strikes, not a single note, but a chord. The lip gives out the "fundamental note," its next must sound a third higher, the shoulder a fifth higher, and the top the exact octave, thus completing a perfect chord. From which it will be seen that bell-casting is by no means the work of an ordinary mechanic, but the art of a highly-trained specialist.

INSTALLING THE MAYOR

English Towns Have Ritual Peculiar to Each.

The mayor of Lincoln, for instance, is duly elected by placing upon his finger an ancient ring, which for centuries his predecessors have worn. Should his worship send his ring to any school in the city the master is bound to give his pupils a day's holiday.

At Chichester the mayor is armed with a gold-mounted malacca cane; while at York his worship is equipped with a silver-mounted oak stave, which has marked his authority for hundreds of years.

From time immemorial, the mayor of Brightlingsea has been elected in the parish church belfry; and the retiring chief magistrates of both Bournemouth and Hanley imprint a loving kiss on the countenance of the incoming mayor.

The mayor of Grantham is tapped on the head with the town clerk's hammer; and at Dunstable the time-honored custom of "bumping" is observed.

Weighing is the less trying ordeal to which the mayor of High Wycombe has to submit, and he is better off, perhaps, than the lord mayor of Birmingham, who has to assume his sweetest smile and face the camera immediately after his election.

A public holiday is observed at Newcastle-under-Lyme, where the newly-elected mayor is publicly proclaimed from the famous Market Cross—a custom observed for 754 years.

A mayor's duties are numerous, and, in many cases, curious. He has to refrain from taking a too prominent part in politics—though this is only an unwritten law; he has to preside over meetings of the council, open bazaars, entertain and be entertained at public dinners, give receptions, and preside at the local police court.

In some places he receives a salary, and in others he pays dearly for his year of honor. The mayoralty of an aristocratic London suburb cost its possessor over $7,500; while Mr. John Webster, who was mayor of Sheffield in 1866-7, spent only $25.

The lord mayor of London gets a salary of about $50,000, but always spends a great deal more; whilst the lord mayor of Liverpool has $10,000, and the lord provost of Edinburgh $5,000.

During her year as mayoress of Portsmouth, Miss Doris Foster celebrated her sixth birthday; and when she occupied a similar position at Cardigan, Miss Gwyneth Bowen had seen four summers.

On the Gas and Oil Lands But Will Be Renewed.

A meeting was held recently of all the farmers who had leased their lands, or at least had given an option of one year, to Mr. Dittman for the purpose of drilling for oil and gas. The first year's option has run out and as the tests so far made had not been satisfactory and as the company had lost considerable money and time it was desirous that the farmers give another year's option on the promise that a thorough test would be made this coming spring. All the farmers who had given an option expressed a willingness to renew with the exception of two who claimed that they could dispose of their lands to another party for more money. Mr. Dittman is expected in the city in a short time and will make arrangements for renewing the work.

Croup positively stopped in 20 minutes, with Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. One test alone will surely prove this truth. No vomiting, no distress. A safe and pleasing syrup—free. Sold by all dealers.

Q.—What acreage does the Liberty Oil Company control?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company has a forty year lease on 125 acres of proven oil ground, on a royalty of one-sixth of the oil shipped.

Q.—Where is the property located?

A.—Ventura County, California, nine miles from Nordhoff and twelve miles from Santa Paula. Both of these towns are on the Southern Pacific Railway. All supplies will come from Los Angeles, which is about seventy miles south, insuring prompt delivery.

Q.—Is it necessary to build a wagon road to the property from either of the above mentioned towns?

A.—NO. There are good wagon roads from both cities, and an automobile can be driven to the property without difficulty.

Q.—How do you know this is oil-bearing ground?

A.—Because we have one well on the property that is on the pump. This will furnish all the fuel required for pumping well No. 1, drilling Well No. 2, and a surplus beside. The Union Oil Co. has numerous producing wells one-fourth mile to the south of us and also just north of our property. Furthermore, we have some of the largest oil seepages in Ventura County.

Q.—What grade of oil is produced in Ventura County?

A.—Most of the Ventura County oil is high gravity, suitable for refining purposes, and brings $1 per barrel upwards at the well. The oil on our property is high gravity oil.

Q.—What facilities have you for disposing of your oil?

A.—The oil will be delivered to the Union Oil Company's pipe line one mile distant, through a gravity pipe line, which will soon be constructed.

Q.—What does the Liberty Oil Company agree to do if I subscribe for stock?

A.—They agree to expend the money received from the sale of stock through their financial agents, Sagar & Loomis, for the general development of the property.

Q.—What development work does the Company propose to do?

A.—The Liberty Oil Company proposes to sink additional wells from time to time until the property is fully developed, the estimated limit for maximum results being thirty wells. Well No. 2 is now being drilled, and sunk to a depth of 2,800 feet thereby cutting through all five of the oil-bearing sands referred to in the report of our Engineer and Field Manager, Mr. Edward F. Eastman. He estimates that Well No. 2 will produce steadily at least 100 barrels per day and possibly up to 200.

Q.—Is an investment in California Oil Stock a speculation, or a good business proposition?

A.—It is said on good authority that 50 per cent. of the bankers of the State of California are interested in Oil. Bankers usually know how and where to invest their money. Take a property like the Liberty Oil Company and you have purely a business proposition. It is just a question of how many wells the Company sinks—the more wells the greater the dividends. Your stock increases in value from the day you purchase it. On completion of Well No. 2, we expect the Company's income will be at least $100 per day, and you can easily calculate what the dividends should be on our small capitalization of $500,000. Each succeeding well should average not less than one hundred barrels per day.

Q.—What assurance has the investor that Liberty Oil Company's stock will be a safe and profitable investment?

A.—The Company is incorporated under the strict laws of the State of California, and the Directors are all capable business men of unquestioned integrity, and honest management of the Company's affairs is assured. The capitalization (500,000 shares, is in Treasury of the Company, and as there is no promotion, bonus or free stock, every stockholder is on an equal basis. In all probability it will not be necessary to sell all of the Treasury Stock to put the Company on a dividend paying basis and to fully develop the property, in which event each stockholder's interest would be increased proportionately.

Q.—Has any money been expended on the property?

A.—Yes. One well has been sunk to a depth of 2,000 feet and is now pumping oil. This well furnishes all the oil needed for fuel, thereby saving the Liberty Oil Company an expense of $500 per month for fuel and hauling.

name to the property.

Q.—What is the present price of the stock?

A.—The par value is $1.00 per share. A small allotment of stock is being sold at 20c. per share, to sink Well No. 3 and finish Well No. 2, which is now being drilled. This allotment will doubtless be over-subscribed. Send in your order at once, as price will advance without notice.

Q.—What income can I expect from my stock?

A.—The Company feels reasonably sure that a dividend can, and will be paid within one year, or as soon as there are three pumping wells on the property. They also believe that the dividends will be at least one (1c) cent. per share per month. That would be sixty per cent. per annum to the investor who buys at 20c. per share.

Q.—Will it be necessary for an investor to wait until the Company is paying dividends to realize a profit on his investment?

A.—NO. You will be able to sell your stock within sixty or ninety days at an advance, if you take time by the forelock and buy at the present low price, 20c. per share.

Neither Side Over Pleased with Saturday's Vote----Great Interest Throughout Canada

What Party Leaders Say

LLOYD GEORGE: We are winning. England is emphatically against government by peer and beer. The north is overwhelmingly with us.

JOHN BURNS—We have done very well indeed. Saturday was our worst day, seats fought being specially favorable to the enemy. Wait till Scotland, Ireland, and Wales exhibit their united strength.

WINSTON CHURCHILL—The battle was well maintained; in Manchester it was magnificent, and in London steadfast. If every Liberal and Labor man fights with unflinching resolution we shall gain a good majority in the English constituencies. There is no hope for the House of Lords in Scotland.

JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN, in speaking of Birmingham—Well, we have done our share towards upsetting the Socialist coach.

Majority Liberals look For

London, Jan. 17.—Today is recognized as the turning point in this historic election. Both parties are straining every nerve, specially in London. The Unionists deep down in their hearts are surprised that they did as well as they did on Saturday. The Liberals are confident that the Unionists cannot keep up Saturday's rate of gains and that today's polling will ensure a working majority for Mr. Asquith over all possible combinations in the new parliament.

Hon. Sydney Buxton, postmaster general, wires the Canadian Associated Press as follows: The interest of the colonies in this important election is much appreciated. The election involves, as we Liberals believe, representative control of social reforms, equitable taxation, free trade with its ism, and Naval Military defence in which Canada gives such practical help.

Citadel of Free Trade Trembling in Wake of Tariff Reform Movement

Radicalism is Losing Its Grip Even in Manchester, the Birthplace of Cobdenism.

An Analysis of the Voters on Saturday Gives No Lasting Encouragement to Liberals.

London, Jan. 17.—Voting took place in 66 constituencies on Saturday, for which 74 representatives were returned. In 60 of the 74 the Unionists improved their position, as compared with the last election, while the Liberals' position was improved in only eight.

In London the government did better than in the provinces in holding their former vote, although they lost 3 out of the 12 seats in which elections were held. Birmingham again went solidly Unionist, increasing its popular majority by nearly 8,000. Manchester, while leaving the net result the same, decreased its Liberal and Labor majority by over 5,000 votes. In free trade Lancashire the cause of tariff reform made only one gain. This was a severe disappointment to the Unionists, who had concentrated upon this county.

The vote in 1906 in the 74 ridings divided as follows; Liberals 302,149; Unionist, 309,777; Labor, 76,504; Socialist, 9,584.

On Saturday the Unionist vote increased to 369,817; the Liberal to 368,244; Labor dropped to 70,394, and the Socialist was stationary, as the Liberal at 9,514.

In the Midlands the Unionists gained 5; in the South of England and in Lancashire, Yorkshire and the North three.

The general result indicates that the government will be returned, but must depend upon a portion of the Labor and Nationalist vote for a majority. The Unionists are confident that the Nationalists will hold the balance of power.

BIG CROWD

At the Council Meeting Re License Reduction.

It is not often that the City Council chamber presents a spectacle such as it did last night. The place was jammed and that is the only word to describe it. The Moral Reform League with their supporters and the Licensed Victuallers' Association with their supporters. All were present to urge upon the council their views as to license reduction and incidentally moral reform. The temperance people presented their argument through Rev. J. G. Potter, who handled his subject in a masterly manner. The liquor interests were represented by Mr. A. P. Poussette, K.C., Mr. D. O'Connell, and Mr. R. E. Wood. The two hundred or more spectators applauded the speakers at intervals and had the aldermen attempted to discuss the request of the Moral Reform League, there would have been a tempest and no good could have been accomplished. Ald. Buller very wisely moved that the matter be referred to the Committee of the Whole Council to meet at the call of the mayor. No doubt many of the enthusiasts were disappointed, but the council showed its wisdom, and the probability is that no deputations or spectators will be invited to the committee meeting, as no good can be accomplished by it.

An $80,000 Ware House Building for the Local Quaker Oats Company

The Building Will be 294 Feet by 59 Feet by Four Stories High and a Basement.

Will Start Operations in the Near Fuutre

Ask to Close up Quaker St. Which is Not Now Used by the Public.

A deputation was present from the Quaker Oats Company, Mr. W. H. Denham acted as spokesman. He said he wished to ask the city for certain concessions to enable them to erect a new building representing a cost of $80,000. It would be 294 feet long by 59 feet 5 inches wide and four stories high with basement. He then referred to what he would ask and that will be found in the city engineer's report given below.

They would begin immediately in the spring to erect the building. He had plans with him showing the proposed new building and other alterations. The new building will be a warehouse. It will accommodate over 300 car loads. They are now so over crowded with their turnout of some 4000 barrels per day. If any stoppage should occur at the present time the company would be at a standstill. They would with the new warehouse employ a few more men but the main feature would be that the staff would be employed more steadily. If the flour mill was to be enlarged then this new building would be turned into a new mill and another store house would be built.

Ald. Turner moved that the request of the Quaker Oats Company be referred to the Manufacturers' Committee.

It was then moved by Ald. Morgan and Ald. Graham, that it be referred to the Committee of the Whole Council.—Carried.

ENGINEER'S REPORT.

City Engineer T. A. S. Hay presented a plan showing the proposed alterations and additions to the Quaker Oats Co's property and buildings. The following report accompanied the plan:

His Worship the Mayor, and Aldermen:

Gentlemen,—Re. Quaker Oats Co.'s proposed alterations and extensions.

As requested, I met Mr. W. H. Denham, of the Quaker Oats Co., and examined the premises in view of alterations and extensions proposed by the company.

1st.—The company asks for a triangular piece of Hunter-st. on the north side from the river bank westward to Quaker-st., in exchange for which they will give a small piece of land on the south side between the river and a road allowance now the property of the city, leaving a full width of 66 feet for Hunter-st.

2nd.—The company proposes to lay an additional siding west of the present siding to serve a new building to be erected, and to raise the grade of the present siding eight or ten inches on Hunter-st.

3rd.—The company proposes to close Quaker-st., part of which will be covered by new building and siding.

The only objection to the first proposal is, in the event of a high level bridge being built, access for a low level road on the north side would be impossible, as the bridge would occupy most of the 66 feet.

The piece on the south side between the river and the railway is a deep depression which would have to be raised to grade at considerable expense.

In event of this agreement being made between the city and the company, the latter should waive all claim for damages in the future on account of being unable to get to the low level road from the high level bridge, it will however be able to do so by going under the bridge.

There are no objections to raising the grade of existing sidings, except that it will increase the height of high level bridge when built.

The proposed new siding will be on same grade as present one when raised, but will not increase the danger materially.

The city's present agreement requires the company to install better protection when considered necessary.

Yours truly,
T. A. S. HAY,
City Engineer.

CHARITY BOARD.

At the Charity Board meeting last night a resolution was passed asking the council to pay off a deficit of $1,-000. Last year appeared to have been a particularly heavy one.

A resolution was also passed, asking the council to provide $3500 for next year.

Hon. J. R. Stratton Bought Old Hall Property from the City

So far as the Property Committee was concerned the old Hall building on Simcoe St, which was donated to the city by the Nicholls estate for Public Library purposes two years or more ago, has been sold to the Hon J. R. Stratton, M.P., for $11,000 cash. His first bid was $10,000, but Ald. G. H. Duncan, chairman of the property committee, induced him to give the extra thousand.

Hon. J. R. Stratton was present and addressed the committee in connection with the old Hall building, which was given for a Public Library building. He said that he would give $10,000 cash for it. The offer would not be left open after Tuesday noon as he was anxious to get away to Ottawa.

Mayor Morrow asked if that was the best price Mr. Stratton was prepared to offer.

Mr. Stratton replied that it was. It will cost from $2,500 to $4,000 for repairs and improvements. The end wall has to be rebuilt, the front rebuilt and other alterations made and perhaps a fourth storey put on.

Mr. Stratton was call up on the telephone and told that the committee wanted $11,00. He offered $10,-500. The committee hung out for $11,000, and Mr. Stratton gave it.

On motion of Ald. Bradburn and Morgan the offer was accepted.

Permission was granted the Peterborough Club to swing a storm door on to Simcoe street.

A letter was received from Mr. R. E. Wood on behalf of Mrs. Rogers, asking why the deed for Mrs. Rogers was not granted. There was nothing else left for the council to do but to give the deed and if not done so at once they would have to take legal proceedings.

The matter was, however, left over for the next day or two and in the meantime a couple of the aldermen will see the representatives of the Rogers estate and make some arrangements with them.

Moved by Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Graham that the matter of small supplies for the market and city hall be left in the hands of the chairman.—Carried.

Ald. Batten brought up the matter of repainting and repairing the Dan Spence ambulance. All thought that it should be looked after.

Moved by Ald. Bradburn and Morgan that the matter of repainting and repairing the ambulance be left in the hands of the chairman to look after.—Carried.

Little Lake Cemetery Co. Held Annual Meeting Yesterday

The Little Lake Cemetery Company held its annual meeting in the city council chamber yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The attendance was small, but the business was put through. The reports were very satisfactory and everything points to a much greater interest being taken in the appearance of the cemetery by the stock holders. Attention was drawn to the fact that the amount derived from the sale of lots and graves last year was more than double what it was four years ago.

Reports were read and adopted from the superintendent, directors and the finance committee.

Sheriff Jas. A. Hall and Q. T. Quartermaine were re-elected auditors for the year.

The following directors were elected: Messrs. W. H. Moore; Jas. Stevenson, Chas. Stapleton, B. Shortley, J. J. Lundy, T. A. S. Hay Dr. Burnham, Mayor W. G. Morrow and E. H. D. Hall.

DIRECTORS ORGANIZED.

After the shareholders' meeting the directors met and elected the following officers:

President—W. H. Moore.

Managing Committee — President, Messrs. Shortley, Hay and Mayor Morrow.

Secretary-Treasurer—E. A. Peck.

Superintendent—F. Wise.

The company invested $1,00 in city debentures last year and still have a substantial surplus on hand to invest in other debentures.

Lloyd-George Mobbed Chancellor Taken Out by the back Door

London, Jan. 17.—The most exciting scene of the campaign occurred at Grimsby Saturday, where a menacing crowd threatened David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, compelled him to flee from a hall where he had been speaking, under police protection, much as he was driven from a pro-Boer meeting at Birmingham during the South African war when he escaped in a policeman's uniform.

Part of the provocation for the hostility shown toward him was caused by the chancellor's unusual course in addressing the voters on polling day, which has never obtained before in England, and which is considered by many unconstitutional.

The chancellor's speech included a prediction of disaster to the German fleet if he fought the British.

A big crowd waited outside the hall, and when the chancellor appeared, raised shouts of "traitor," "pro-Boer."

The chancellor retreated within the building and a cordon of police was drawn up to keep back the crowd.

The chief constable, with an escort of police, conducted Mr. Lloyd George out of the back door, and the party retreated a quarter of a mile along the railway, where a small station was used as a refuge.

An automobile was telephoned for, and in the meantime, the chancellor busied himself in writing letters.

When the motor arrived he drove into town by a circuitous route.

Mr. A. Gordon of Peterborough, spent the day in town.—Mr. W. A. Storey of Peterborough, spent the day in town.—Mr. W. Blackwell of Peterborough, spent yesterday in town.—Lindsay Post.

Reduction of Licenses will be Decided by Committee of Whole

The question of the reduction of licenses will be taken up later at a meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council. Such was the decision of the aldermen last night.

The question of reduction of licenses was thoroughly and fairly presented for the Moral Reform League and for the liquor interests. An hour and a half was devoted to the discussion and the above action was decided upon.

REV. J. G. POTTER.

Rev. J. G. Potter, president of the Moral Reform League, addressed the council in connection with the demands of the Moral Reform League. He stated that the object of the deputation was to back up the request made by letter to the council. He then went over the history of the movement to restrict the liquor traffic which began a year ago or more when a big public meeting was held. He went over the movement down to election day. On election day he stated that there were many irregularities and if it was not for disturbing the relations of all the matters passed upon, they would take advantage of those irregularities which in some cases were gross irregularities. But they had decided to take advantage of the means within their hands and secure a substantial reduction of licenses. Then the hotelmen themselves, thought that 23 licenses saloons were too many for a city of 17,000 and they thought that fewer would be better for all parties concerned and that better men would be induced to go into the hotel business. Rev. Mr. Potter then went into the votes polled and claimed that those in favor of local option represented 12000 of the population. The law allows the council to cut the number of licenses down to two, but they did not ask for that, but would ask that all be cut off except say eight, and that two shop licenses be granted. He thought that number would accommodate the thirst of the men in the hot summer time. He said that the hotel proprietors were changing frequently and those who were in business are constantly dropping out of the business. For that reason the men now in the business, except four or five, are men who are changing frequently and should not therefore be allowed to stop the progress of the city.

MR. A. P. POUSSETTE.

Mr. A. P. Poussette, K.C., said that Mr. Potter had presented his side of the case very fairly. The reduction of licenses is a matter to be a matter to be considered from several standpoints. If the city of Peterborough is so immoral and drunken that it needs to be reformed then every one will go hand in hand with the Moral Reform League. But is the reduction of licenses going to reform the city and prevent drunkenness. There are 19 licensed houses here now and fewer than the Legislature of Ontario allows. The population is now 17,000 and it is rapidly increasing. We are therefore well within the law and within the wisdom of the whole Province of Ontario. Before the number of licenses is cut down it must be shown that the Ontario Legislature is wrong in the number of licenses they authorized per 1000 people. Would the reduction of licenses diminish the consumption of liquor? Would it reform the people of the city. He did not hesitate in saying that the reduction of licenses would not reduce in any way the consumption of liquor. He referred to the objections to the treating system. Local option may have assisted in that way, but the reduction of licenses will not do that. The main question is not the reduction of licenses, but whom are you going to license to carry on this business. Even with the present number of hotels and with the present accommodation it is by no means too large to meet the demands. Even on an ordinary Saturday the hotels and hotel yards are over crowded. The same applies to times when conventions are held here and other large gatherings.

MR. D. O'CONNELL.

Mr. D. O'Connell said this was a very serious matter and required to be considered from a sense of fair play and justice, and he asked the council to deal with it as a judicial body and cast aside all sentiment and deal out justice. The men who are in the liquor business are representative and responsible and law-abiding citizens and they are here fighting for their lives and their property. Their business is not only tolerated but it is legalized. Mr. O'Connell then referred to British fair play and asked that the game be played according to the rules. The Moral Reform League staked their case on the bylaw which the people did not carry. Yet the league are not satisfied, but they come here and asked the council to take away the property and livelihood of these men. The law requires a substantial majority in favor of local option. The Moral Reform League did not get the required majority yet they wish to over-ride the wishes of the people. Yet the reduction of licenses will not help the Moral Reform League one little bit. On the other hand it will do the hotel men a reputable wrong. Mr. O'Connell then referred to the value of hotel property which is assessed at $300,000, and at its fair saleable value it would represent $500,000. The people who own that property have just as good a right to it as any one else has to their property. Mr. O'Connell then referred to the large number of men employed in these hotels and their employers pay them yearly $142,000 in wages.

FOR SHOP KEEPERS.

Mr. R. E. Wood, on behalf of the shop keepers spoke next. He said there had never been any mandate before the people in regard to the shop keepers. There had never been a shadow of complaint against the shop license. A bylaw passed by the council in regard to hotel license is not binding upon the commissioners, while a bylaw in regard to the shop licenses is binding upon the commissioners. He therefore asked that the whole matter be left to the commissioners.

Rev. J. G. Potter briefly replied.

The amendment was lost, only council and Ald. Buller moved that as this was a very serious matter it be referred to the Committee of the Whole Council. Ald. Bradburn seconded it.

Ald. Morgan moved in amendment that the city solicitor be instructed to prepare a bylaw putting the number of hotel licenses at eight and the shop licenses at two. Ald. Turner seconded it.

The amendment was lost, only three voting for it.

The motion was then put and it was declared carried.

REV. MR. POTTER'S LETTER.

Your Worship and Gentlemen,—
